Television in Europe Lags, Asserts Paley

Says CBS Soon to Give Statement on Plans

After surveying television developments in Europe during his seven-week vacation tour of England, France, Scotland and Ireland, William S. Paley, president of CBS, returned yesterday on the Normandie somewhat disappointed at the progress made in that field of broadcasting.

"I did an awful lot of observing and talked to people responsible for television in Europe," Paley told MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

"The public reaction in England is disappointing and the sale of receiving sets reflects that. There are less than 2,000 sets, despite the regular broadcasts over BBC. These television broadcasts were started more than a year ago and the size of the image is about 8 in. x 10 in., the same as ours.

Report "U" Workers May Seek C. I. O. Aid

In the face of persistent reports, denied by J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board of Universal, that approximately 150 employes at the home office will be let out tonight was a widely circulated story yesterday that headquarters workers had filed application for a C.I.O. charter. Cowdin, referring to the number reportedly discharged, called it "hooey." Anne Berenholz, in charge of film activities of the United Office and Professional Workers, a

Heifetz Signed for Goldwyn "Festival"

Jascha Heifetz has been signed by Samuel Goldwyn to appear in "The Great Musical Festival," which is to be produced in Technicolor next May. This will be the internationally famous violinist's first screen appearance. He will leave the coast today for New York to begin a concert tour. His first appearance for the season will be at the Orchestra Hall, Chicago, Oct. 24. He will perform at Carnegie Hall here Nov. 3.

Quality Films In Britain Is Mayer's Plan

No Budgets to Be Fixed By M-G-M, He Says

By BILL ORNSTEIN

Quality pictures, along the same lines as those made at the company's coast studios, will be the policy of M-G-M's new British production setup, Louis B. Mayer, production head, stated yesterday on his arrival on the Normandie after a three-month tour of Amsterdam, Carlsbad, Vienna, Paris, Prague, Budapest and London.

"There will be no set production budgets," Mayer added. "That's the way we do it on the coast and the same policy will prevail in England.

"Quality is first, cost is second."

Mayer stated that there were no definite number of pictures scheduled abroad, but "we will make as many as we can as soon as our organization is built up. The English government is supporting us enthusiastically and we are going along fine."

Victor Saville has given up his own company to join M-G-M, Mayer said, "and he will handle only big pictures for us." Mayer expressed

Matthews, Hale May Join Metro British

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Jessie Matthews and Sonnie Hale, her husband and director, may sign with Metro British following the completion of "Sailing Along," their final picture on their current G.B. contract.

Victor Saville, formerly with G.B., joins Metro Monday. Earlier reports that "The Citadel" goes to Metro today were confirmed.

Formerly Kiesler

Hedy Lamarr arrived on the Normandie yesterday with an M-G-M contract among her valuables. Miss Lamarr actually is Hedy Kiesler, star of "Ecstasy," the Czechoslovakian film which has aroused a storm of comment in this country. In it, she bathes in the nude. In it, she has an affair with her celluloid lover wherein the dramatic emphasis is conveyed by a long, large and lingering closeup of Miss Kiesler's head reflecting reactions suitable to the mood. Some opinion has maintained this is artistry. Others had another name for it. Anyway, Miss Kiesler is in America and about to become a member of the Hollywood community. K.

MPTO Will Plan At Board Session

The M.P.T.O.A. will map its plans for a new campaign to obtain distributor cooperation on trade practice regulations at its board of directors' meeting in December, Ed Kuykendall, president, stated yesterday.

Kuykendall leaves for Philadelphia this morning, beginning a coast-to-coast visit of important regional exhibitor units, which is scheduled to be concluded just prior to the board meeting. During his tour he plans to obtain exhibitor sentiment concerning the type of trade practice regulation needed, as indicated by local exhibitor problems throughout the country. He will report back to the board with his findings, and the organization's future action along this line will be mapped accordingly by the board.

How Mussolini Did It

When Vittorio Mussolini came ashore, bound for Holllywood, last week, as then reported by Motion Picture Daily, Hal Roach, his announced partner and host for his Hollywood sojourn, said:

"He wrote the screen column for his father's paper. He was the only one to knock Italian-made productions and praise American films."

Premier Mussolini owns and publishes Il Popolo d'Italia of Milan, the publication to which the son of Il Duce has been a contributor. Motion Picture Herald has obtained translations of some of young Mussolini's contributions.

In the May issue he wrote of the "strike move in Hollywood":

"The humoristic papers have found a new outlet for their quips at the expense of celebrated stars and cinematographic magnates

Reentry Into Stage Field Not General

Columbia Only Firm to Change Attitude

Columbia's announced decision to re-enter the Broadway stage financing field does not presage any general change in attitude of other major companies toward the Dramatists' Guild contract now in effect, it was ascertained yesterday by a check with other large companies.

Of the seven producing companies which declared that they would refrain from financing plays after the adoption of the guild's new contract in 1935, Columbia appears to be the only one which now declares a change in attitude. Amplifying its statement of the day before to the effect that the company had decided to resume play financing and had set up an appropriation for the purpose, a second statement was issued by Columbia yesterday removing any doubt concerning the place of the Dramatists' Guild contract in the company's plans. Yesterday's statement follows:

"As a further step in its play producing plans announced yesterday, Harry Cohn, president of Columbia Pictures, today stated that the company is ready to sign the minimum

Producers Oppose IATSE Film Credit

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30.—It is understood here that producers will fight to the limit the insistence of the I. A. T. S. E. that its emblem be used on the main titles of pictures.

Strategy mapping awaits the return of Louis B. Mayer, president of the Producers' Ass'n., but the indications are that the I. A. T. S. E. demand for screen recognition will be dropped into the lap of the distribution companies.

Producers point out unofficially that

Trust Case Denial Filed by Electrics

A. T. & T., Western Electric and Erpi filed joint denials in the U. S. District Court yesterday in answer to the $6,000,000 anti-trust suit brought against them by Stanley K. Oldden, as assignee of the Pacent Electric Co.

The plaintiff alleges that the violations involve the manufacture of sound film apparatus and parts. The defendants assert that more than six years have elapsed since the alleged act and claim that the statute of limitations bars the present action. Dismissal of the suit with costs is asked.

Myers Silent About Kuykendall's Stand

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Abram F. Myers, Allied general counsel, refused to make formal comment today when shown a copy of Ed Kuykendall's statement to the effect that the M.P.T.O.A. would welcome cooperation from other exhibitor organizations and legislative remedies would correct industry complaints unless distributors made concessions.

Myers gave the impression that he considered Kuykendall's remarks more a restatement of his position than a direct bid for cooperation.

confidence in Saville and said he was impressed with his recent achievements.

Work on "Yank at Oxford" is expected to be completed in two weeks. A decision on sending over additional players from Hollywood will be made at conferences with Nicholas M. Schenck, the M-G-M production head said.

Although Mayer has tentatively set his departure for the coast for Monday, he said he would try to get away as soon as Schenck will let him go. He was not definite as to whether Al Lichtman would go to England, stating that Lichtman was waiting to talk to him about the trip.

"Business in England and on the Continent is very good," Mayer asserted. The next picture to be made at Denham studios will be "Shadow on the Wing," which is slated to get under way in two weeks.

Mayer was on a contract-signing spree while abroad and on the Normandie. He signed two performers on the French liner and several others in various foreign cities. The two he gave term pacts to are Hedy Lamarr, Viennese actress, who played the lead in "Ecstasy," but as Hedy Kiesler, and Grisha Goluboff, 14-year-old concert violinist, a native of California, who was returning after playing at the Salzburg Festival. Miss Lamarr will leave for Hollywood in a few days, while Goluboff will accompany the Mayer party west.

Contracted 15 in Europe

Walter Reisch, who wrote and directed "Masquerade," also was a passenger on the ship and he will leave for the M-G-M studios in a week.

I. M. Nabel, agent, said that he had closed with Mayer for 15 players in Europe and eight in this country. The 23 include opera singers, concert stars and stage and screen talent. The names will be announced as soon as Mayer returns to the coast, according to Nabel.

Benny Thau, M-G-M production executive, and Howard Strickling were in the Mayer party. Thau said he would leave for the coast in three or four days.

"We have no plans for our own studio in England," Thau declared. "We are feeling our way slowly and eventually plan to enter into a heavy production schedule. All the pictures to be made in England will be up to the M-G-M standard. We haven't completed plans on what we're going to make there," he said. Taylor will not return for another eight weeks. He will remain in England for the preview, Thau said. As for other players going abroad, "that hasn't been set yet."

M-G-M Finishing Shorts

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30.—M-G-M will wind up its 1936-'37 program of short subjects in October with four releases. They are "Jungle Juveniles" and "Sunday Night at the Trocadero," Oct. 2; "Rainbow Pass," Oct. 9, and "Behind the Criminal," Oct. 14.

Normandie Dock Looks Like Convention for All Majors

It looked like a combination convention of M-G-M, Universal, Warners, 20th Century-Fox and RKO at the French line pier early yesterday morning when the Normandie locked with a group of film celebrities.

M-G-M home office representatives who were on deck to meet Louis B. Mayer, Benny Thau and Howard Strickling included Al Lichtman, Howard Dietz, Al Altman, Florence Browning, Harry Bernstein, Ernest Morrel, Mel Heyman and Milton Weiss.

J. Cheever Cowdin, Charles R. Rogers, Charles Ford, Marc Lachman, Paul Gulick and Beulah Livingstone staged a welcome party for Danielle Darrieux, who arrived with her husband, Henry De Coin.

The Warner contingent meeting Fernand Gravet included Joseph Hummel and Mitchell Rawson.

Rutgers Neilson and Jack Lewis were the RKO duo welcoming Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

Earle Wingart met Sonja Henie.

Cameramen were all over the pier and boat.

Ship Docked Early

The boat docked at 7:25 A. M. Some of the reception committees hadn't had their breakfasts, but every one was in excellent humor. It was an exciting morning for the customs men, reporters, photographers and the celebrities who were awakened at 5 A. M.

Mayer was feeling pretty brisk for that hour of the morning. He posed for a number of pictures with his wife and Strickling and answered all questions put to him by reporters. He looked thinner than when he sailed three months ago with Joseph M. Schenck, but he said he felt fine and was anxious to get back to the coast studios. Further details on his trip abroad appear in another story in these columns.

Miss Darrieux was overwhelmed by the press. She said that she had studied English for three months. Several times an interpreter had to assist her. She will remain here until Tuesday and then will leave for the Universal studios to begin work in "The Rage of Paris." Her last picture was "Mayerling," which is current at the Filmarte. Universal today will tender the foreign star a cocktail party at the Pierre.

Gravet was accompanied by his wife and Ad Schulberg. The Mervyn LeRoy star was mobbed on all sides and took it graciously. He said he had just completed a role in "The Lie of Nini Petrona" for Solar Films in France and that he planned to remain in New York four days before leaving for Hollywood to start in "Food for Scandal."

Miss Henie looked charming. She said she had visited London and Norway. It was a vacation with swimming, fishing and shooting grouse taking up most of her time. No, she didn't skate once. The 20th Century-Fox star left for the coast yesterday by plane to start work in "Bread, Butter and Rhythm."

Fairbanks, Jr., Back

Fairbanks, Jr., was among the first to greet reporters on deck. He wanted to leave by plane for Hollywood last night. RKO wanted him to see "Having Wonderful Time" last night. He was waiting for a wire from the coast last night. Before the time MOTION PICTURE DAILY went to press, Fairbanks was still around, waiting for his telegram with ducats for the legitimate show, in which he will appear in the screen version, and with an American Airline ticket in his pocket. He will get away today, however.

Criterion Pictures is still active, Fairbanks said, although he is not planning to appear in any more films for the company. He said he still holds a minority interest in it. After he finishes his role in the RKO picture, Fairbanks, Jr., and is set to do "Rupert of Hentzlau," sequel to "The Prisoner of Zenda," for Selzneck International. He was away three months and visited France, Austria and England.

Ramon Novarro also was a passenger. He said he discussed the possibility of making a picture in France with producers in that country. He is still looking for a suitable story and intends to return to Paris in December, after he finishes another film for Republic, to decide whether he will accept the French proposal. He plans to leave immediately for Hollywood to confer with H. J. Yates on his next picture which, Novarro said, will be a modern comedy.

Buchanan Slated for Play

Jack Buchanan, who produced four pictures this year and plans six to eight next season, arrived to appear in "Between the Devil" for the Shuberts. The play is scheduled to open in nine days with Evelyn Laye opposite him. Buchanan has his own film company, Jack Buchanan Prod. His last picture was "Break the News," with Maurice Chevalier and directed by Rene Clair.

Cole Porter was ill and was rushed off the pier. Mary Garden, scheduled to arrive on the Normandie, was not among the passengers. Lew Wertheimer, who appeared on the passenger list, has been in California for three weeks.

Jack Cohn was among the visitors. He said he came down to meet Mayer, but the only words he got in while the M-G-M executive was trying to get his passport details straightened out were "Hello, how are you and how was the trip?"

British Reels Quarrel Over Horror Scenes

LONDON, Sept. 22.—A sharp controversy has arisen over the inclusion of so-called "horror" shots of casualties in the recent bombing of Shanghai by Japanese planes in the China-Japanese conflict, in the British newsreels.

Francis L. Harley has made an official statement on behalf of British Movietone News deprecating "the exhibition of horrific films or horrific incidents." Harley's statement followed the inclusion of grim episodes in recent issues of the Paramount and Universal reels.

Harley's statement says: "It is no part of a newsreel's function to shock or horrify any section of its audiences. The horrors of war are too recent a memory for the unexpurgated details of the Shanghai bombing to add anything to the public's detestation of war."

Producers' Responsibility Cited

"The privilege of conducting a newsreel carries with it considerable responsibility," he further says. "We are charged with the duty of showing news faithfully and reporting it sincerely, but we have also to consider the susceptibilities of our audiences and should strive to give them their entertainment without outraging their feelings."

Part of the controversy centered between G. T. Cummins, editor of British Paramount News, and Jeffrey Bernerd of Gaumont British News.

Bernerd, whose reel showed the devastation caused by the raid, but did not include the grim pictures of casualties which caused comment in the Paramount reel, has gone on record that "to show the ghastly destruction of human beings is letting down the exhibitor. It is not going to stop war." Bernerd declared that the people who should see the full reel are rulers like Chamberlain, Hitler, Mussolini and Roosevelt, not people who want entertainment for themselves and their children.

Cummins Defends Realism

Retorting, Cummins claims the same right for newsreels as for newspapers to record "the trends and events of this amazing world." He quotes theatre managers as saying that the public has highly praised the Paramount reel, as a salutary proof of what war on civilians means.

An official statement from Paramount justified the scene showing the bodies of air raid victims being gathered into lorries, and other gruesome features of their picture by the claim that,

"The task of a newsreel in reporting a war is to show the war as it is, rather than as a glorious pageant of embattled chivalry."

The general comment is that the reels are doing a public service in telling the truth, and the shocked reaction of audiences support this view. At newsreel houses the scenes were indicated as "not suitable for children."

(20th Century-Fox)

Scenes of a Japanese encircling maneuver around Shanghai defenses occupies the lead position in this issue. The material offers soldiers and their armaments with plenty of sound effects. This is followed by shots of Wellington Koo, Chinese Ambassador, letting the League of Nations in Geneva have the "inside" on Japanese invasion.

"Old Faithful" performs for the Presidential party in Yellowstone Park in the News of the Nation division. This is followed by scenes of Justice Black disembarking at Norfolk, the spectacular launching of a Great Lakes freighter and the highly exciting blasting of a mountain in Wisconsin, with 20,000 pounds of explosives set off to do the job. New chapeaux for the women are seen on lovely models through one of Vyvyan Donner's novel frames. The Ritz Brothers cut up on Sid Grauman's sidewalk in the Hollywood Spotlight sequence. Hunting dog trials on Long Island, well filmed, fill Ed Thorgersen's spot. Lew Lehr calls the bowling shots made by a chimpanzee.

The entire reel is first-rate with many dramatic moments and interesting subjects.

President Roosevelt's western tour and the return of Associate Justice Black from Europe provide the news high spots of the midweek release of this reel. The President's travels are depicted against the scenic backgrounds of Yellowstone Park and the Bonneville Dam country and rate as an interesting record. Justice Black's arrival in Norfolk, where he is besieged by reporters intent upon obtaining a statement concerning his Ku Klux Klan affiliations, is of interest primarily because of the front page attention being given the incident.

The League of Nations protest to Japan against the bombing of civilians in China is covered briefly. There is a shot of Vittorio Mussolini's arrival at the Hal Roach studio in Culver City where he is greeted by the Our Gang youngsters. Sporting events make up the remainder of the release and include the International Masters' tennis matches, a women's track meet and a tryout of a new type racing car. The release is lacking in any particular "punch" clip and, in this reviewer's opinion, falls short of average newsreel interest.

Paramount News

(Paramount)

At the start of the reel are the words "Mingalone stuff later." This means that shots of the spectacular flight in Maine of Al Mingalone tied to a lot of small balloons will be inserted. The continuity sheet says he will be interviewed by Gabriel Heatter.

The six numbers in the reel as now cut show scenes on the New Orleans Cotton Exchange with prices fluctuating because of heavy rains. Interesting, but not outstanding. Aerial views are shown of Boulder Dam and Shiva Temple, the plateau in the Grand Canyon, where Mark Hawley, scientist, has been making studies of animal life. A good number.

Some footage is devoted to W. C. Fields getting ready to make a scene in a picture. It's good for several laughs.

Shots of Justice Black being besieged by reporters on shipboard are timely, but not particularly absorbing. Scenes showing President Roosevelt in Yellowstone Park are beautiful. He is also shown speaking at the Grand Coulee Dam.

Pathe News

(RKO)

U. S. Supreme Court Justice Black takes the spotlight in this reel. Not only does he dodge the Ku Klux Klan question to reporters on his return from Europe, but Grand Dragon J. S. Baskin in New York cleverly evades similar interrogations on the same subject.

Audrey Townsend, debutante, leads a group of mannikins in a fashion display of afternoon and evening gowns for the fall season. Silver, gold and black are the predominating colors. Noel Mills handles the narration capably.

Byron Nelson, clinching the $12,000 golf tournament at Belmont, Mass., bests Henry Picard in a pouring rain. Clem McCarthy describes the last round of the match.

Gilbert Seldes, recently appointed CBS television director, states that television is proceeding on a straight course and has no hurdles to jump. He adds that CBS has been experimenting privately with the device and when it is ready it will not take the place of films or radio, but will be a third type of entertainment as satisfactory as the other two.

Professor F. K. Kirsten tests a model plane using rotary blades instead of wings and propeller and predicts a new era in aviation at Seattle, Wash. The bumper grape harvest and annual festival in Rome is pictured in all its splendor. The dynamiting of Wolf Creek Pass, Col., to make way for a new highway also is shown. The reel closes with President Roosevelt making a speech at the dedication of the new $50,000,000 dam at Bonneville, Ore. A routine release.

Universal Newsreel

Vol. 9, No. 602
(Universal)

For the most part the clips in the mid-week issue of this reel lean toward thrilling action and excitement. The makeup is good and the cutting brings out the high spots.

The livest piece of pictorial reporting shows Justice Black returning from Europe. He lands at Norfolk, but says nothing. A golf match with Byron Nelson taking the honors at Belmont, Mass.; scenes at the Pendleton Roundup and "Lucky" Teeter scaring the grandstand at Trenton, N. J. with his daredevil troupe of car wreckers take care of the sporting end. Other sequences show an acrobat doing his stuff blindfolded in Belair, Cal.; a racing car upsetting on a new track in Hammond, Ind.; the wine festival in Lodi, Cal.; Chicago's Chinatown holding a funeral for its mayor; fire in a meat packing plant, also in Chicago; and New York police rookies going through various drills and stunts at Madison Square Garden.

Report "U" Workers May Seek C.I.O. Aid

C.I.O. affiliate, said no statement on the situation could or would be made until today.

The air was rife with an assortment of rumors regarding Universal's admitted retrenchment policy. One concerned C. M. Woolf, managing director of National Film Distributors, Ltd., English company already financially interested in Universal. The report was Woolf was about to acquire a heavier interest in the company, which suggested this might develop through N. L. Nathanson, president of the Famous Players Canadian Corp., who is reputedly close to Woolf and who had been mentioned earlier as a possible new factor in Universal. Nathanson already has denied any such intent.

Of this Cowdin said: "I spoke to London twice on Wednesday. It was about exhibition of our product in England; the matter you mention did not come up."

Tied in with this angle was a further report that Universal would distribute 10 British pictures a year here. Cowdin again denied.

Appeal on "Ecstasy" Ban Argued in Court

ALBANY, Sept. 30.—The appeal of Eureka Prod., Inc., from the New York censors' ban on "Ecstasy" was heard today by the Appellate Division. The film was banned in March, 1936, and an appeal was taken by Eureka to the Commissioner of Education, who upheld the ban the following September.

Henry Pearlman, attorney for Eureka, based his appeal on three grounds: (1) that the film is an artistic and not an indecent or immoral work; (2) that the censors applied the wrong principles of law in banning it, and (3) that the refusal of the state to permit its showing after its importation had been approved by Federal authorities was in unlawful interference with foreign commerce.

Decision was reserved.

Bank Suit Dismissed

OMAHA, Sept. 30.—The Omaha National bank's foreclosure suit on the closed 3,000-seat Paramount has been dismissed without prejudice by District Judge Frank Dineen to formally return control of the house to the A. H. Blank interests. No date has been set for reopening.

basic agreement of the Dramatists' Guild. He further announced that he was ready to enter production this season."

Several producer sources expressed bewilderment over the reference to the "signing" of the guild's minimum basic agreement, pointing out that contracts are not made with the guild but are made between producers and playwrights. The general assumption, however, was that the company would agree to the guild's terms in any producing it undertook.

Spokesmen for Paramount, Warners, M-G-M, 20th Century-Fox, RKO and Universal, the other companies who stated they would discontinue play financing in protest against the new guild contract, were emphatic in declaring that their attitude had undergone no change and no production financing would be undertaken by them during this Broadway season.

Columbia Intention Doubted

Several responsible quarters expressed doubt that Columbia would actually re-enter the Broadway financing field, suggesting that the announcements to that effect were in the nature of "bargaining gestures" for an undisclosed talent or production material acquisition now in work.

Cohn could not be reached for comment on these statements.

The Bureau of New Plays, which was sponsored by the seven companies, including Columbia, as an agency for discovering new plays and playwrighting talent on their withdrawal from the Broadway scene, yesterday announced the opening of its second play competition. Awards are made for the best six plays submitted by accredited students during the season.

Jack Cohn Sailing

Jack Cohn, vice-president of Columbia, sails on the Normandie today on what he yesterday described as his usual annual trip abroad.

One of the purposes concerns Columbia's plans for British quota pictures under the impending Films Act. Cohn will be gone about three weeks.

How Mussolini Did it

with the habitual Havana cigar in their mouths, and the public are given a further proof of the lack of intelligence and seriousness to be found in the mass of people who live in the California Mecca. Is this an effect of the sun?"

Answering his own hypothetical question as to what the rest of the world would do if Hollywood closed down for a year, "a kind of flood without the ark, which would be blessed by a goodly few . . . never again to see the ears of Clark Gable, or Dietrich's legs, or Garbo's feet, or Joan Crawford's mouth, or Katharine Hepburn's nose, or Luise Rainer's eyes, or Goldwyn's and Ziegfeld's ballet girls." Mussolini considered the case of each European country and wound up with this regarding Italy:

"Perhaps in the space of five or six years we may get ahead. In any case we are equipped and ready. We are working at full swing and more enthusiastically, and we shall soon fill Cine City. Even the smallest capitalists will have an opportunity of doing their part and of making an economic film. Thousands of people will find work and thousands will work in the constructive part. Many prejudices will be done away with and the greatest liberty will be conceded from an artistic point of view. . . . Our orders must then be to first effectively conquer the favor of the Italian public before we upset things abroad."

Again, a week later:

"There are several persons who are interested that our cinematographic industry should proceed more vigorously on its way, learning everything that is best to be learned, squeezing the intelligence of cinema maniacs, abandoning all aesthetic dissertations and expressing in true cinematographic language of its own the new power of Rome."

MPTOA Will Plan At Session of Board

Kuykendall conferred with a number of distribution executives on the subject of trade practices, but stated yesterday that he was unable to discuss the results at this time.

In Philadelphia today Kuykendall may discuss the exhibitors' buyers' strike against Paramount with U.M.P.T.O. officials with a view to bringing the exhibitor organization and the company together. Kuykendall said yesterday, however, that he had not been requested by either side to attempt to effect a settlement, but that the "strike," naturally, would be one of the topics of discussion and that if he could aid in effecting any agreement between the two parties he would be willing to do so.

Kuykendall will go to Memphis for the Tri-States M.P.T.O. convention next week, and thereafter to New Orleans, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Portland, Seattle, Denver, Salt Lake City, Dallas, Atlanta and Pinehurst. His trip will end in the latter city on Dec. 6 at the convention of the M.P.T.O. of North and South Carolina. The M.P.T.O.A. board meeting, the date for which has not yet been set, will be held shortly thereafter.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 30.—George P. Aarons, secretary of the local U.M.P.T.O., returned today from Pittsburgh where he addressed the M.P.T.O. of Western Pennsylvania. Court Halts SEC on Company Disclosures

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—Declaring that the S.E.C. may not arbitrarily force a corporation to disclose information regarding its setup where to do so might result in irreparable injury, the District of Columbia Court of Appeals today held that corporations have the right to invoke the jurisdiction of the courts to prevent such disclosure.

The decision was rendered on an appeal of three corporations which contested the right of the S.E.C. to force them to disclose information regarding salaries, gross sales and other data.

The S.E.C. had held hearings in each case and had ruled that disclosure of the information was in the public interest and, when the matter reached the court, asked that the cases be dismissed.

In its decision, the court said the commission was wrong in thinking that it was the intent of Congress that it should refuse requests for confidential treatment without a hearing, and held that "it is fundamental that the property rights of the citizens may not be put in jeopardy or destroyed."

Bargaining Hearing Is Opened on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 30.—William R. Ringer, special trial examiner, opening the hearing on the petition of the Screen Writers Guild to be determined sole collective bargaining agency for film writers in the first case involving application of the Wagner Act to the industry on the west coast today overruled objections of producer attorneys and Screen Playwrights, Inc., to the introduction of evidence in the action and took under advisement motions of the producers and playwrights to dismiss the entire proceedings.

Arguments for the motion to dismiss were featured by an attack upon sections of the Wagner Act by Neil McCarthy, attorney for the Playwrights, which already holds a collective bargaining agreement with the producers and writers. McCarthy declared, among other objections, that the Wagner Act, if applied in this instance, would violate the Federal Constitution by depriving playwrights of liberty and freedom as granted by the playwright-producer pact.

Bearing the brunt of the producer arguments against the proceedings was Walter Tuller of the law firm of Omelveny, Tuller and Myers, representing Paramount; Milton Schwartz of Loeb, Walker and Loeb, representing the MPPDA, and Pat Casey for Universal, MGM, Republic and Samuel Goldwyn.

The first day was devoted to legal skirmishing in which producers lost a minor point when attorneys failed to have each case argued separately, studio by studio.

said: "CBS has been broadcasting television intermittently for some time. We will soon make an announcement, probably in two or three weeks, of more permanent plans.

"Eventually we plan regular television periods, but the date when we will begin is not set. However, our announcement will include the date.

"We have taken over the tower of the Chrysler Bldg., for the installation of a television transmitter. We are also expanding the number of radio broadcasts from Europe. CBS will open another office on the Continent, but where it will be located I cannot say at this time."

Among the drawbacks of television abroad, Paley pointed out, are the cost of sets—from $350 to $400 in England—and the small size of the image.

"The program problem is the most important factor in television in this country," he said. Television will come under F.C.C. regulation, as does radio, Paley asserted. He plans to leave for the coast later in the year.

N. A. B. Committees Are Named by Elmer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30.—President John Elmer of the National Ass'n of Broadcasters, stated today that he had named a state committee following a poll of membership.

The purpose of the committee is to facilitate the national functioning of the organization. It is composed of one member from each state and territory. Each four states are grouped to form a district presided over by one of the committeemen. To date seven of twelve district chairmen have accepted; also 36 state men.

Alfred J. McCosker of WOR will represent New Jersey and Harold E. Smith of WOKO will represent New York.

Elmer also said the engineering committee would have Paul Loyet, WHO, Des Moines, as chairman.

World Series Games Offered to Networks

With the National and American League pennant races run, Judge K. M. Landis, high commissioner of the game, has offered the World Series broadcast privileges on a sustaining basis to the three national chains.

It is presumed that the New York key stations, WABC, WOR, and either one or both of NBC's stations, WJZ and WEAF, will take the games. They will be offered across the networks, of course, but it can not be determined until later how many of the affiliated stations will care to disrupt their commercial schedules to accept the games.

The program will originate from the studios of KHJ in Los Angeles.

New Shows On the Air

"Kate Smith Hour"

The new "Kate Smith Hour" got off to a glittering, Kleig-lighted start last night, with the southland songbird getting a star-studded procession which included Tallulah Bankhead, Henry Fonda, Sport Champions Barney Ross, Lou Gehrig, Ralph Guldahl, Charlie Kurtzinger, Lew Ambers, Glenn Cunningham, Archie San Romani, Henry Jeffra and Jack Miller's orchestra and Henry Youngman.

The new hour threatens to steamroller over any and all opposition, which means principally the Rudy Vallee Hour over NBC. Judging from last night's guest cast, and the one announced for next week, the General Foods purse strings can and will open wider than Standard Brands'.

Despite the preponderance of guest talent the show belongs principally to Kate. A Trojan for work, she offered three songs, delivered most of the commercials, partly served as "emmcee" and was in and out, mostly in, of the script throughout.

Tallulah Bankhead and Henry Fonda delivered a scene from the teary "Camille." Fonda's interpretation of the role of Armand was a trifle too austere for that impetuous lover but the husky-voiced Tallulah played the tragic Lady of the Camillias in the grand manner.

The sport champions spoke briefly, very fortunately, but their presence gave an electric touch to the show. Henry Youngman had a particularly good script.

Kate Smith is presented Thursday from 8 to 9 P. M. over CBS. General Foods sponsors for Swan Down Cake Flour and Calumet Baking Powder. Young & Rubicam is the agency.

Single Bills Get Downtown St. Louis Vote

Neighborhoods for Duals As Count Nears End

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 1.—Tabulation of about 40,000 of the more than 50,000 votes cast in the Fanchon & Marco film and star preference poll shows that first run patrons prefer single bills with stage shows and shorts and neighborhoods want double bills.

Clark Gable, Robert Taylor and William Powell were leading for actor preferences in that order, and Myrna Loy, Loretta Young and Claudette Colbert were at the top of the voting for actresses. Child stars were headed by Shirley Temple, Jane Withers and Freddie Bartholomew. Neighborhood audiences placed Mickey Rooney ahead of Bartholomew.

First run patrons prefer musical comedies, comedies and love romances with gangster and war pictures far behind. Neighborhoods favor musical comedies, comedies and detective mysteries with gangster and war pictures getting more than twice as many votes as in the downtown houses.

First run patrons prefer cartoons, news reels and sports in the shorts division. Neighborhood preferences run to cartoons, newsreels and sports in the order named.

Consolidated Files Appeal in Delaware

DOVER, Del., Oct. 1.—Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., has filed an appeal with the State Supreme Court here from the recent decision of Chancellor Josiah O. Wolcott in Chancery Court at Wilmington, declaring void and granting a permanent injunction against the proposed amendment to the company's certificate of incorporation: Norman Johnson, New York preferred stockholder, was complainant in the action.

Wolcott recently ruled against the proposed amendment whereby new preferred stock would be created and exchanged for old preferred, the holders of the latter to forfeit unpaid accumulated dividends.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 1. —Paramount's appeal from the decision of the U. S. District Court here dismissing its injunctive action against local exhibitors participating in a "buyers' strike" against the company may not be heard by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals until midweek, according to indications today.

The appeal was set for hearing today, but the condition of the court calendar indicates that the case may not be reached for several days. The lower court dismissed the case without prejudice on the grounds of lack of jurisdiction. Paramount is seeking a permanent injunction restraining the exhibitors from concerted action in their protest activities against the company.

All of the August transactions reported in the first summary for that month were comparatively small.

Prowling

Si Seadler was at a loss yesterday, but a loss of short shrift. There he was, in cahoots with Cal Swanson, and both of them set to entertain Howard Strickling, world traveler just returned from three months abroad with Louis B. Mayer and world weary.

Suddenly and with little warning, Strickling upped late yesterday afternoon and hopped for the coast in a plane with Mayer. Where to go and whom to entertain, became the question. Cal remembered Universal was host for Dannielle Dairreux at the Pierre late in the afternoon. It was enough, not only for him but for Seadler.

Sedran and 122 at 'U' Out in Economy Wave

Sam Sedran, for 22 years with Universal and long its purchasing agent, is out in the retrenchment policy which yesterday resulted in the discharge of 122 employes at the company's home office. Under consideration is a reduction of 144 in the domestic exchange system.

Many employes were reported to have signed with the C. I. O. yesterday, with indications last night pointing toward an affiliation of the union recently organized at "U" with the Lewis organization.

Today, J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, flies to the studio for a short stay. Willard McKay, general counsel, accompanies him.

Lichtman to England for Metro-British

Will Leave Here in Two Weeks, Says Mayer

NEWARK, Oct. 1.—Al Lichtman will leave for England in two weeks to further M-G-M's British production plans, Louis B. Mayer, head of production for the company, stated late this afternoon as he boarded an American Airlines plane for Hollywood. Accompanying Mayer were Howard Strickling and Irving Sherman, the former publicity head at the studios, the latter not being identified with the company.

Asked if any definite plans had been completed for sending over additional stars, Mayer said it was his intention to first develop an organization as soon as possible in England. The M-G-M production head stated he could not tell at this time how many pictures would be made a year at the British studios, pointing out that the number may be one to 50.

"When we first started production in California, we had a schedule of 15. Now Mr. Schenck wants 50, so we have to give him 50."

Mayer said he knew nothing of reports that he would confer with David O. Selznick, his son-in-law, on "Gone with the Wind."

To Determine Dallas Case Action Monday

Attorneys for New York defendants in the Government's Dallas anti-trust suit are scheduled to meet on Monday to decide whether or not to appeal from the U. S. District Court decision barring the use of the admission regulation contracts which were made with Hoblitzelle theatres.

Inquiries yesterday revealed that the defendants are about evenly divided in regard to the need for an appeal.

Fleischer Pickets Resume Their March

The strike of commercial artists at the Fleischer Studio broke out again yesterday with new violence and its old-time enthusiasm at approximately the same moment at which pens were poised for the signing of a settlement contract.

Spokesmen for the Commercial Artists & Designers Union attributed the breakdown of the peace negotiations to the refusal of Fleischer representatives to include the studio's animators in the contract in accordance with an agreement which, they said, had been reached earlier. Phillips & Nizer, attorneys for Fleischer, denied that such an agreement had been made and said that the studio's position was the same as it had always been in regard to separate representation for the animators.

Nine of the union's pickets on duty at the building in which the Fleischer studio is located were arrested following an altercation with police yesterday afternoon. Arraigned before Magistrate Oliver in West Side court, they were released in the custody of their attorney for hearing next Wednesday. The union charged that the nine pickets were beaten by the police, several of them severely. The altercation started after police directed the picketers to reduce their lines to 10.

The union picketed the Paramount on Thursday night during the showing of a Popeye cartoon.

Efforts to conciliate the new differences between the studio and union were begun late yesterday in the office of Lou Diamond, Paramount short subjects manager. Both sides indicated a willingness to resume settlement negotiations, but both continued adamant on the subject of animators' representation which frustrated the earlier settlement.

Hart Suit Shifted To a Federal Court

The new suit by William S. Hart and Mary Hart against United Artists for $185,000 which was started in the N. Y. Supreme Court was shifted to the U. S. District Court yesterday.

Hart's suit is based upon an alleged wrongful block booking by United Artists of his 1925 picture, "Tumbleweeds," with a dog picture "Wild Justice." Hart's picture is said to have cost $302,000 to produce and grossed $300,000, while "Wild Justice" cost $15,000 and grossed $100,000.

In his first suit Hart asked for $500,000 damages and was awarded $85,000 by N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Philip J. McCook and a jury. This verdict was reversed by the Appellate Division last June. In the new complaint, U. A. is asked to return the $185,000 which it allegedly retained from the gross receipts as the distributor's share for releasing the picture.

from?" he wanted to know. "There's nothing to them."

Mayer said M-G-M would not produce in any other foreign country and there were no plans to make foreign versions on the coast.

Mayer denied M-G-M was interested in financing Alexander Korda. "That is something Ben Goetz is interested in, not we," he said.

M-G-M eventually plans to produce operas in England, but nothing definite has been set yet.

Mayer scotched reports that M-G-M is negotiating with Jessie Matthews by stating he was not interested. Speaking of Hedy Lamarr, whom he signed on the Normandie, Mayer said he hoped to build her up to stardom.

He smiled when the Hal Roach-Vittorio Mussolini situation was brought up, refusing to comment.

Asked about the I.A.T.S.E. situation on the coast, Mayer said he knew nothing about it.

At the airport to see him off were Nicholas M. Schenck and J. Robert Rubin.

Protests Quota Proposals

LONDON, Sept. 24.—Norman Loudon, chairman and managing director of Sound City, Ltd., in a speech at the annual meeting of the company, which controls the Sound City studio at Shepperton, attacked the legislation plans outlined in the Government's White Paper on films.

Loudon criticized the "reciprocity" proposal as encouraging extravagance. Instead of applying only to films costing £3 a foot, it should be extended to producers working on economical and efficient lines, he said, without any price standard being set.

Loudon objected to the reduction of the exhibitors' quota in relation to the distributors' quota. He also objected to the institution of a minimum cost principle qualified by the right to submit cheaper films to a viewing test. In practice, he argued, this means that a distributor cannot specialize in British films costing £5,000 each, as such subjects would have to "satisfy the whim of a panel of viewers."

Franconi Gets Post With Castle Films

Leon E. Franconi, pioneer newsreel editor, has been placed in charge of foreign topical film production for Castle Films because as an executive he made himself "easy to see."

Eugene Castle, head of the 16mm. producing company, related yesterday that the ease with which he obtained audiences with Franconi when the latter headed the Pathe reel and Castle was a free lance cameraman in San Francisco, along about 1914, had never been forgotten. Upon renewing his acquaintance with Franconi here recently, the early impression was sufficient recommendation for Franconi for the waiting European post, Castle said. The newsreel pioneer leaves for Europe next week to take up his new duties.

vacation, but while I am in London I will discuss British production plans with Irving Asher," he added. Warner had nothing to say about the Dramatists' Guild and the Columbia situation, referring all questions to Jacob Wilk, head of the play department for Warners. He said his company is putting on "Footsteps in the Dark" in London with an English company and the show will come to New York.

Among those seeing him off were Jules E. Brulatour, Hope Hampton, Dorothy Mackaill, Harry and Mrs. Charnas and many personal friends.

"Tovarich" will open at the Hollywood on a two-a-day policy following "The Life of Emile Zola," Warner stated.

Cohn Says Columbia Needs Stage Plays

companies not to use the dramatists contract, Cohn stated: "We don't care about the agreement. We're not going to sit by idly. We can't wait for the author problem to be straightened out. We've got to go ahead with our own plans."

Cohn declared that Columbia must have plays to feed the screens all over the country. "It isn't like operating a small theatre on Broadway. We've got to resort to every means possible to get new plays and talent."

Comedies are preferred by Columbia. Cohn asserted that people want to laugh after they go home from a day's work. "And everyone in Columbia is striving strenuously to make Columbia the House of Joy."

While in England, Cohn will look over a few plays. There is also a possibility that the company will produce in that country. Cohn added he hopes to make a connection in England for the purpose. He praised British writers and said he hoped to find usable material in some of their works.

The new F.C.C. chairman spent most of the day clearing his desk at the power commission, and will swing into his new job tomorrow, facing a task of considerable magnitude.

In his new position, McNinch will be required to eliminate a number of abuses alleged to have crept into the F.C.C. in the past few years which last session brought the commission to the verge of a Congressional investigation, not only of its practices but of the broadcasting industry as a whole.

suit seeking $45,000 damages from Paramount Pictures, Inc., and Paramount Dist. Co., Inc., and 10 John Does alleging conspiracy to harass, embarrass and damage independent exhibitors and for failure of the defendants to supply the plaintiffs with 11 pictures featuring noted stars for which the plaintiffs contracted.

The complaint alleges that Paramount, in company with seven other firms, together known as "The Big Eight," produce more than 75 per cent of all feature pictures and enjoy a monopoly on production and distribution, conspiring together for the benefit of theatres owned by members of the defendant organizations.

The pictures named in the complaint are: "Souls at Sea," "Artists and Models," "High, Wide and Handsome," "Angel," "Spawn of the North," "Count of Luxemburg," "The Barrier," an unnamed Dietrich starrer, a Colbert starrer, a Harold Lloyd starrer and a Gary Cooper starrer.

Alleged also was that after failure to deliver the pictures, the defendants offered them at higher prices than provided for in the original contracts.

ules for the year at the second day of the hearing on the Screen Writers Guild petition for an election to determine the collective bargaining agency for film writers.

Despite strenuous objections of the respondent companies' attorneys and that of Neil S. McCarthy, Screen Playwrights, Inc., attorney, William R. Ringer, special trial examiner, ruled material and relevant Walsh's introduction of the financial figures and this, plus the paving of way by Walsh for the presentation of testimony by film supply manufacturers' representatives on deals with studios, featured the second day's hearing.

Fireworks over the introduction of the financial figures developed in the afternoon session with the calling the first witness — Nicholas Nayfack, M-G-M executive. After describing the physical properties of M-G-M and submitting a map, Nayfack was queried by Walsh on the studio corporation's financial setup. After objections by respondent counsel were overruled, Nayfack answered that Loew's, Inc., supplied cash upon submission of the production program. He declared, after prompting by Milton Schwartz, of Loeb, Walker and Loeb, M-G-M attorneys, who suggested that he not guess, that he did not know.

In the lengthy debate which followed Walsh's injection of finance into the testimony, Alfred Wright, representing 20th Century-Fox, declared that money matters were a trade secret. Leonard Lanofsky, attorney for the Guild, pointed out that in recent Wagner Act case decisions by the Supreme Court, gross revenue was taken into consideration. On direct questioning, Nayfack said M-G-M executives are not sure what individual pictures grossed and Walsh indicated that he would call other officers to obtain financial information.

Introduction of the S.E.C. application and report of Loew's, Inc., to show the relationship of the company to the M-G-M production firm was held up pending a ruling by Ringer.

Hearing adjourned until Monday morning.

Attorneys were instructed to fill out questionnaires on physical property and the amount of materials purchased for various firms and present them on Monday.

hibit them, under the guidance of a central bureau, which would also produce pictures on various subjects for rental or outright print sale.

Schenck, who is general manager of the Hollywood Studios, said that for approximately $2,000 a school could procure the necessary units for production, developing, printing, sound and exhibition.

Additional expense, such as raw film, would be less than that for 16 mm., he says, due to the fact that 35 mm. stock could be split, obtaining larger pictures per foot than 16 mm. The patents are based on a single sprocket wheel.

Paramount is making short subjects for schools. The third, "Men and Oil," patterned from the scenes of discovery of oil in Western Pennsylvania and the subsequent development of the field, was finished last week.

Viewed in Schools

The first two, one from "Maid of Salem" and the other from "The Plainsmen," were distributed by the Bell & Howell educational exchanges spotted in 52 key cities. School systems in California already have seen the subjects. Herbert Moulton, head of Paramount's short subjects department here, and Ralph Jester produced them.

Another company interested in the visual educational field is the newly formed Harry Sherman Visual Education Pictures, Inc., which Harry Sherman, J. D. Trop and Sam Berkowitz formed. No incorporation papers have been filed yet, according to Trop, and the company is merely investigating the possibilities of furnishing schools with 16 mm. films.

FCC Suggests U. S. Control Of Ad. Rates

Broadcasting a Utility, Says McNinch

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Federal control of broadcasting station advertising rates has been suggested as a possibility by Frank R. McNinch, new chairman of the F.C.C.

Declaring that it is not necessary that a utility be a common carrier in order to be subject to Federal control, McNinch indicated a determination to study the subject and possibly make recommendations to Congress next January.

Holding his first press conference as head of the F.C.C., McNinch said: "I regard radio as a public utility subject to regulation, but regulation does not mean strangulation, but it does mean regulation by the commission and not regulation by anybody."

The chairman's observations indicated clearly that the commission will investigate future sales of stations to determine whether there is trafficking in licenses as distinguished from physical properties. Declaring that the rule of caveat emptor applies particularly to broadcasting, he asserted that a station should not be able to

Hays Reviews "Art" Films Which Proved "Box-Office"

The success of Hollywood's current production formula for blending "artistic and social significance" with "box office" is attested by "the impressive audiences which already have greeted some of the new pictures of the season," Will H. Hays, M.P.P.D.A. president, observes in a newly completed appraisal of released and announced product.

Hays sees the new season's picture crop not only adhering to their primary function of entertainment, but including as well that which may "inform and instruct, move and uplift."

"Distinguished films of a character heretofore considered 'class' entertainment," he says, "are helping vastly to raise the standard of so-called 'mass' entertainment." While "the industry is beginning to reap what has been sowed by years of educational effort, by the production of pathfinding pictures and by constantly adding to the variety of entertainment themes, a sense of the highest showmanship marks many of the outstanding films of the new season," Hays declares.

This is being demonstrated, he finds, not only by released pictures which embrace both "artistic maturity and universal entertainment appeal" but by many others now in

Three Picture Cases Before SupremeCourt

Holds Initial Session of Fall Term Today

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—With more than 450 cases already docketed, the United States Supreme Court tomorrow will meet for the initial session of its fall term.

Out of the large number of causes upon which it has been asked to pass, however, only three of interest to the film industry have so far been filed.

The right of state authorities to bar the showing of a foreign picture after it has been approved for importation by the Federal Government is questioned by Eureka Prod., Inc., in an appeal from a decision of the Federal District Court for the southern district of New York in its suit against Gov. Herbert H. Lehman.

The company was refused a license, required under the New York law for the showing of films, to exhibit "Ecstasy," on the ground that it was obscene. It sought a restraining order to keep the state officials from interfering with the showing of the films and, when the District Court refused, appealed the case to Washington.

In its petition for review, Eureka Prod. contends that the New York

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THIS typewriter made quite clear on Wednesday its reactions to the deal effected in Italy by Hal Roach with Vittorio Mussolini. It argued not only on its own behalf, but it also undertook to define the responding vibrations of a number of thinking men in this industry, Jew and Gentile alike, to an arrangement by a prominent American producer with a son of the founder of Fascism and the current consort of the founder and chief trumpeteer of Naziism.

On Friday, Roach picked up the long distance telephone and called this office. What follows are the highlights of his conversation, recommended strongly for careful reading on two counts. First and very first, because Roach is entitled to his rebuttal. Secondly and almost firstly, because of what he has to say:

"In the first place, I don't think you understand the circumstances and, in the second place, I think it's only fair that, if you are going to take a crack at a guy, to talk to him first. I never made a move in Europe on this matter at any time without the advice and cooperation of some of the most prominent Jews there who told me I was doing the finest thing ever done in their estimation — tying up with Mussolini's son and taking the boy back to Hollywood. . . .

"Particularly did I do this on the advice of one of the most prominent Jews abroad [name furnished, on request, off the record and obviously, therefore, not to be divulged] who thought it would do more good for the situation concerning Jews over there than anything that possibly could be done. I am not a politician and I don't know anything about those matters. But after all, Walter Wanger wanted to do this. When the Italian ambassador came to Hollywood, Louis B. Mayer gave him a party, inviting all the important people in Hollywood. . . .

"As far as the film industry is concerned, we expect to make important pictures—twenty a year—for European distribution only. We have no intention of selling any to America unless we have something very big. After all, if a lot of people would get a little closer to this situation and understand that there are hundreds of thousands of Jewish refugees now in Italy under the protection of that government, they would stop taking cracks at a guy who is in a position to talk to the guy who is a friend of the worst enemy a Jew ever had.

"I thought I was in a position to do a lot of good and I still think so. I think I've got something worth $10,000,000 in propaganda value. You don't know but that I might have dinner with Mussolini when I go back to Italy. Maybe I can suggest to him that Hitler is not going quite right about things and maybe Mussolini will write Hitler a note and tell him so. . . .

"After all, every big company is doing business in Italy. Why shouldn't I? Maybe we don't like their form of government, but then maybe they don't like ours. Our company is one hundred per cent financed by Italian banks and has nothing whatever to do with the government there. The reason Mussolini permitted his son to come to the United States is that a very prominent Jew told him it would be one of the best things that he could do and would give him one of the best breaks he ever had. I know more can be done by this arrangement than with $10,000,000 worth of propaganda. . . .

"After all, the papers were full of the idea that I was going over to Italy for this purpose and nobody stopped me. If I can go into business there without investing a dime and make money, why shouldn't I? Wouldn't anyone? Wouldn't you? I think I have a right to. Italy makes only forty pictures a year and we expect to have a thoroughly organized company to make some of them successfully."

This is Roach's approach and now Roach has had his say. . . .

negotiations to the failure of the studio's representatives to include in the written agreement a provision designating C.A.D.U. as the exclusive bargaining agent for all of the studio's employes, a provision the union officials said was agreed upon in their negotiations with Lou Diamond, Paramount short subjects manager, who served as a mediator in the peace efforts. Says English Quota Measure To Be Altered

Strabolgi stated that, as a departmental measure, it was likely to be altered as a result of debates on its various stages through Parliament. This was particularly likely in the Grand Committee, the composition of which reflected that of the House of Commons as a whole. It was not yet decided, he said the Board of Trade had informed him, whether the measure would be first introduced in the Commons or the Lords.

Lord Strabolgi prophesied "with confidence" that the White Paper proposals would be modified in the bill itself as regards the quota for shorts, which would be increased. He attacked the quality clause proposal of the C.E.A. on the grounds of the "terrible responsibility" it would throw on a viewing committee. He also advocated a £25,000 minimum cost, in place of the suggested £15,000 standard and urged the necessity of real reciprocity with the United States, and legislation to enforce it. (The B.F.A. Co. is understood to be committed to the "Ostrer" scheme of compelling U. S. companies to spend a percentage of their British receipts on the production of British films.)

J. F. X. Prendergast, chairman of the luncheon, said reciprocity had been a lovely dream. If Lord Strabolgi brought it about, he hoped it would not be over the bodies of exhibitors. Exhibitors, said Prendergast, wanted to get back to the commercial basis on which they were before the first Films Act.

A number of members of Parliament attended the luncheon as guests of exhibitors.

Supreme Court Has FCC Procedure Case

Congress Square Hotel Co., the latter operators of WCSH, Portland, Me.

The proceeding involves conflicting applications of the Eastland Co. and the Portland Broadcasting System before the broadcast division of the F.C.C. for a new station at Portland. The Congress Square company participated in the proceedings as an intervenor.

The construction permit was granted the Portland system and Eastland carried the case to the courts on the ground that two of the three members of the broadcast division had been replaced between the hearing of the case and the issuance of the order, raising the question whether the substitution of commissioners before a decision has been rendered is valid when the majority of the division which decided the case neither heard the evidence nor submitted a report.

work or planned. In the first group he cites specifically "The Life of Emile Zola," "Dead End," "100 Men and a Girl," "Prisoner of Zenda" and "Stage Door." Coming productions which, he declares, will also be marked by "artistic maturity and popular appeal" capable of raising the "standard of the screen" are "Idiot's Delight," "Tovarich," "Madame Curie," "Three Comrades," "Gone with the Wind," "The Buccaneer," "The Hurricane," "Marie Antoinette," "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," "You Can't Take It with You," "Ebb Tide" and "A Damsel in Distress."

Hays' appraisal of the new pictures also points to a blending of the instructional with the entertaining in announced productions which take their source material from dramatizations of American history, from literary classics and biography and from popular and classical music. He points out, as well, that comedy "promises to be a prominent part of the new entertainment fare," and cites Walt Disney's feature length "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" as a "unique screen achievement" in the realm of fantasy.

This indicated wide variety of new screen entertainment is supplemented by mystery, detective and outdoor films, and important short subjects, the Hays appraisal finds.

Kelly and Cohen

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"52nd Street"

(Wanger-U. A.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3.—Walter Wanger's "52nd Street" is as diffuse, raucous, gay, sad, realistic, sentimental, artificial, practically contradictory, incredible and as objectively absorbing as the thoroughfare it documents both narratively and by the use of resident talent. The serious story of the street's somewhat inverse development from the social austerity of 1912 to the surcharged abandon of 1937 is threaded along as such things are in the sector without being permitted to impede a flow of mirth and music purveyed by performers who know the street as well as it knows them.

Wanger has in striking fact laid the bespangled and bedraggled 52nd Street right smack in the lap of the screen audience. What it will think of the spectacle may be no more than conjectured unless the recent reaction to pictures that have done the same with Hollywood holds good for its tinselled companion community. That seems likely. Whatever the case, Wanger's presentation neither glorifies nor condemns the place and the people it depicts. Not all the Neon tubing between 5th and 6th Aves. strung together could spell out the exploitable names. A few are Ian Hunter, Leo Carrillo, Zasu Pitts, Jack White, Sid Silvers, Georgie Tapps, Pat Paterson, Al Norman, Ella Logan, Dorothy Saulter, Al Shean, Maurice Rocco, Marla Shelton, Benny Baker, Dorothy Peterson, and the list runs on—but no Leon and Eddie.

The screenplay is by Grover Jones, additional dialogue by Sid Silvers, songs by Walter Bulock and Harold Spina and the dances by Danny Dare, all craftsmen who know their way about. Harold Young's direction keeps a necessarily periodic and jerky story admirably integrated.

Hunter plays a wealthy idler cut off by two spinster sisters for marrying an actress. Carrillo is a cook turned organ-grinder in the hope of making his son a musician. When their fortunes are swept away in 1929 Hunter and Carrillo open a "speak" which yields the profits on which is found a new and honest fortune after repeal. After complications characteristic of 52nd Street, Hunter's daughter and Carrillo's son marry. The telling, not the tale, is the picture.

a week are used and an additional 10 cents if 250 inches are used.

Since contracts will not be signed in the future, the theatres fear a still higher rate when the World-Herald's new accredited circulation is released.

The old combination net rate for the two papers was $5.45 an inch, but theatres figure that they've lost approximately 35,000 total advertising circulation and practically the entire publicity circulation in the deal.

No apparent move has been made by the World-Herald to change its old ultra conservative publicity policy, but there is a trend to more pretentious amusement pages.

Lincoln Ad Row Settled

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 3.—An advertising rate dispute between the Lincoln Theatres Corp. and Westland Theatres Corp. on one side and the newspapers, Journal and Star, has been ironed out after nearly eight weeks of nose-tilting on both sides. Support of the sheets goes back to the theatres after giving the dance spots a heavy play during the difference.

The old rate of $3.70 was raised to $4 by the papers. Theatres then withdrew more than half of their usual money. Under the agreement it will be $3.80 an inch, but if more than 50 inches are used weekly it will be $3.

First and very first, because Roach is entitled to his rebuttal. Secondly and almost firstly, because of what he has to say:

"In the first place, I don't think you understand the circumstances and, in the second place, I think it's only fair that, if you are going to take a crack at a guy, to talk to him first. I never made a move in Europe on this matter at any time without the advice and cooperation of some of the most prominent Jews there who told me I was doing the finest thing ever done in their estimation — tying up with Mussolini's son and taking the boy back to Hollywood. . . .

"Particularly did I do this on the advice of one of the most prominent Jews abroad [name furnished, on request, off the record and obviously, therefore, not to be divulged] who thought it would do more good for the situation concerning Jews over there than anything that possibly could be done. I am not a politician and I don't know anything about those matters. But after all, Walter Wanger wanted to do this. When the Italian ambassador came to Hollywood, Louis B. Mayer gave him a party, inviting all the important people in Hollywood. . . .

"As far as the film industry is concerned, we expect to make important pictures—twenty a year—for European distribution only. We have no intention of selling any to America unless we have something very big. After all, if a lot of people would get a little closer to this situation and understand that there are hundreds of thousands of Jewish refugees now in Italy under the protection of that government, they would stop taking cracks at a guy who is in a position to talk to the guy who is a friend of the worst enemy a Jew ever had.

"I thought I was in a position to do a lot of good and I still think so. I think I've got something worth $10,000,000 in propaganda value. You don't know but that I might have dinner with Mussolini when I go back to Italy. Maybe I can suggest to him that Hitler is not going quite right about things and maybe Mussolini will write Hitler a note and tell him so. . . .

"After all, every big company is doing business in Italy. Why shouldn't I? Maybe we don't like their form of government, but then maybe they don't like ours. Our company is one hundred per cent financed by Italian banks and has nothing whatever to do with the government there. The reason Mussolini permitted his son to come to the United States is that a very prominent Jew told him it would be one of the best things that he could do and would give him one of the best breaks he ever had. I know more can be done by this arrangement than with $10,000,000 worth of propaganda. . . .

"After all, the papers were full of the idea that I was going over to Italy for this purpose and nobody stopped me. If I can go into business there without investing a dime and make money, why shouldn't I? Wouldn't anyone? Wouldn't you? I think I have a right to. Italy makes only forty pictures a year and we expect to have a thoroughly organized company to make some of them successfully."

This is Roach's approach and now Roach has had his say. . . .

negotiations to the failure of the studio's representatives to include in the written agreement a provision designating C.A.D.U. as the exclusive bargaining agent for all of the studio's employes, a provision the union officials said was agreed upon in their negotiations with Lou Diamond, Paramount short subjects manager, who served as a mediator in the peace efforts. Fleischer spokesmen asserted that the studio at no time had any thought of granting the union the right to represent its animators, although it was at all times willing to recognize the union as the representative of all other employes.

No arrangements have been made for a resumption of the settlement negotiations.

Says English Quota Measure To Be Altered

Strabolgi stated that, as a departmental measure, it was likely to be altered as a result of debates on its various stages through Parliament. This was particularly likely in the Grand Committee, the composition of which reflected that of the House of Commons as a whole. It was not yet decided, he said the Board of Trade had informed him, whether the measure would be first introduced in the Commons or the Lords.

Lord Strabolgi prophesied "with confidence" that the White Paper proposals would be modified in the bill itself as regards the quota for shorts, which would be increased. He attacked the quality clause proposal of the C.E.A. on the grounds of the "terrible responsibility" it would throw on a viewing committee. He also advocated a £25,000 minimum cost, in place of the suggested £15,000 standard and urged the necessity of real reciprocity with the United States, and legislation to enforce it. (The B.F.A. Co. is understood to be committed to the "Ostrer" scheme of compelling U. S. companies to spend a percentage of their British receipts on the production of British films.)

J. F. X. Prendergast, chairman of the luncheon, said reciprocity had been a lovely dream. If Lord Strabolgi brought it about, he hoped it would not be over the bodies of exhibitors. Exhibitors, said Prendergast, wanted to get back to the commercial basis on which they were before the first Films Act.

A number of members of Parliament attended the luncheon as guests of exhibitors.

Supreme Court Has FCC Procedure Case

Congress Square Hotel Co., the latter operators of WCSH, Portland, Me.

The proceeding involves conflicting applications of the Eastland Co. and the Portland Broadcasting System before the broadcast division of the F.C.C. for a new station at Portland. The Congress Square company participated in the proceedings as an intervenor.

The construction permit was granted the Portland system and Eastland carried the case to the courts on the ground that two of the three members of the broadcast division had been replaced between the hearing of the case and the issuance of the order, raising the question whether the substitution of commissioners before a decision has been rendered is valid when the majority of the division which decided the case neither heard the evidence nor submitted a report.

work or planned. In the first group he cites specifically "The Life of Emile Zola," "Dead End," "100 Men and a Girl," "Prisoner of Zenda" and "Stage Door." Coming productions which, he declares, will also be marked by "artistic maturity and popular appeal" capable of raising the "standard of the screen" are "Idiot's Delight," "Tovarich," "Madame Curie," "Three Comrades," "Gone with the Wind," "The Buccaneer," "The Hurricane," "Marie Antoinette," "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," "You Can't Take It with You," "Ebb Tide" and "A Damsel in Distress."

Hays' appraisal of the new pictures also points to a blending of the instructional with the entertaining in announced productions which take their source material from dramatizations of American history, from literary classics and biography and from popular and classical music. He points out, as well, that comedy "promises to be a prominent part of the new entertainment fare," and cites Walt Disney's feature length "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" as a "unique screen achievement" in the realm of fantasy.

This indicated wide variety of new screen entertainment is supplemented by mystery, detective and outdoor films, and important short subjects, the Hays appraisal finds.

Kelly and Cohen

Arthur W. Kelly, U. A. foreign head, who is recuperating from a mastoid operation, the other day ordered a radio sent to his room in the Manhattan Hospital.

Just before Monroe Greenthal left for the coast, he said this was a sign that Kelly was recuperating very nicely, but as soon as Kelly orders Sammy Cohen to come up and see him, then he will know Kelly is in perfect shape.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"52nd Street"

(Wanger-U. A.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 3.—Walter Wanger's "52nd Street" is as diffuse, raucous, gay, sad, realistic, sentimental, artificial, practically contradictory, incredible and as objectively absorbing as the thoroughfare it documents both narratively and by the use of resident talent. The serious story of the street's somewhat inverse development from the social austerity of 1912 to the surcharged abandon of 1937 is threaded along as such things are in the sector without being permitted to impede a flow of mirth and music purveyed by performers who know the street as well as it knows them.

Wanger has in striking fact laid the bespangled and bedraggled 52nd Street right smack in the lap of the screen audience. What it will think of the spectacle may be no more than conjectured unless the recent reaction to pictures that have done the same with Hollywood holds good for its tinselled companion community. That seems likely. Whatever the case, Wanger's presentation neither glorifies nor condemns the place and the people it depicts. Not all the Neon tubing between 5th and 6th Aves. strung together could spell out the exploitable names. A few are Ian Hunter, Leo Carrillo, Zasu Pitts, Jack White, Sid Silvers, Georgie Tapps, Pat Paterson, Al Norman, Ella Logan, Dorothy Saulter, Al Shean, Maurice Rocco, Marla Shelton, Benny Baker, Dorothy Peterson, and the list runs on—but no Leon and Eddie.

The screenplay is by Grover Jones, additional dialogue by Sid Silvers, songs by Walter Bulock and Harold Spina and the dances by Danny Dare, all craftsmen who know their way about. Harold Young's direction keeps a necessarily periodic and jerky story admirably integrated.

Hunter plays a wealthy idler cut off by two spinster sisters for marrying an actress. Carrillo is a cook turned organ-grinder in the hope of making his son a musician. When their fortunes are swept away in 1929 Hunter and Carrillo open a "speak" which yields the profits on which is found a new and honest fortune after repeal. After complications characteristic of 52nd Street, Hunter's daughter and Carrillo's son marry. The telling, not the tale, is the picture.

Increase Ad Rates For Omaha Theatres

a week are used and an additional 10 cents if 250 inches are used.

Since contracts will not be signed in the future, the theatres fear a still higher rate when the World-Herald's new accredited circulation is released.

The old combination net rate for the two papers was $5.45 an inch, but theatres figure that they've lost approximately 35,000 total advertising circulation and practically the entire publicity circulation in the deal.

No apparent move has been made by the World-Herald to change its old ultra conservative publicity policy, but there is a trend to more pretentious amusement pages.

Lincoln Ad Row Settled

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 3.—An advertising rate dispute between the Lincoln Theatres Corp. and Westland Theatres Corp. on one side and the newspapers, Journal and Star, has been ironed out after nearly eight weeks of nose-tilting on both sides. Support of the sheets goes back to the theatres after giving the dance spots a heavy play during the difference.

The old rate of $3.70 was raised to $4 by the papers. Theatres then withdrew more than half of their usual money. Under the agreement it will be $3.80 an inch, but if more than 50 inches are used weekly it will be $3.

Cooper in "Bluebeard"

Hollywood, Oct. 3.—In what appears to be an unusual tangling of a player's commitments, Paramount has definitely cast Gary Cooper opposite Claudette Colbert in "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife," which Ernst Lubitsch will produce and direct.

This picture will be either the one picture loanout deal made for Cooper by Paramount with Samuel Goldwyn, to whom the star is under contract, or the one-picture deal that Emanuel Cohen of Major Pictures had with the star. Cohen planned "What Ho!" for Cooper, but the script apparently is not in shape for him to do it. Cooper is being sought for "Marching Herds," large scale western which Lucien Hubbard will produce for Paramount. Fred MacMurray and Randolph Scott also are being talked to concerning the western.

Pugilistic Short

Pictorial Films will make a short dation and the Daily News and will do the shooting at the Golden Gloves training camp on Staten Island.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Stand In"

(Wanger-U. A.)

Hollywood, Oct. 3.—Again the motion picture explores the motion picture and finds it comic, dramatic, ludicrous, pathetic, frivolous and tragically earnest in swiftly rotated succession. This time the exploration is from the Wall St. quarter and the principal character is a banker sent to salvage or sell a Hollywood studio.

Leslie Howard plays this lugubrious, astigmatic human comptometer with cogwheels of gold as no such emissary of efficiency was ever played before and to an audience response reminiscent of no performance since Gary Cooper's "Mr. Deeds." Joan Blondell approaches his level as the stand in who becomes his stenographer and sweetheart. Humphrey Bogart surprises favorably in a portrayal of the right side of the moral code. Alan Mowbray is amusing in a closely clipped role of a temperamental director. Marie Shelton, C. Henry Gordon, Jack Carson, J. C. Nugent and Tully Marshall contribute variable support.

On the basis of the public appreciation accorded other recent pictures depicting Hollywood and its ways it may be expected that "Stand In" will turn in snug box-office balances. Tay Garnett directed the picture from a screenplay by Gene Towne and Graham Baker based on a Clarence Budington Kelland story.

Howard arrives in Hollywood to investigate the affairs of Colossal Pictures for New York bankers who are about to sell it. His reception and subsequent treatment give Hollywood institutions and ethics an airing that might not be altogether relished if the emphasis were not laid heavily upon the comedy aspect. Ultimately he learns that the studio's ace director and top star have conspired with the prospective buyer to depreciate the property and involve the star in a scandal by way of invalidating a contract under which she holds cutting and editing authority over the picture which must be revised to save the company. His bankers sell the studio out from under him, but he engineers a sit-in occupancy of the plant by its 3,000 employees and saves the business for them and the stockholders. This latter procedure is heavily cushioned with comedy and interspersed with carefully worded utterances for what might be interpreted by those so inclined as the purpose of suggesting emphatically, if inversely, that it can't happen here.

Running time, 90 minutes. "A."

"Breakfast for Two"

(RKO)

Hollywood, Oct. 3.—A somewhat sophisticated, good-humored type of story, its chief ingredient being comedy, "Breakfast for Two" offers an hour's entertainment which should be found pleasing by most audiences. Against a background of sumptuous indoor sets, the yarn revolves about the effort, finally successful, of a girl to rejuvenate the remnant of a once proud family.

The result occasionally descends virtually to the level of slapstick, at other times produces comedy of a much higher order. It is somewhat questionable whether Herbert Marshall is exactly the right man for the lead but he does his best with the role. Barbara Stanwyck is good, and able assistance is rendered by Glenda Farrell, as the would-be actress being aided by Marshall; Eric Blore as the perfect valet, and Donald Meek as the considerably disturbed justice of the peace.

Alfred Santell did a satisfactory directing job from a story by David Garth and a screenplay by Charles Kaufman, Paul Yarwitz and Viola Brothers Shore. The dialogue has its moments but lacks essential sparkle for this type of thing in a great many instances.

A stranger, Miss Stanwyck, brings Marshall home to his mansion after a lively evening which leaves the scion of a once great shipowning family under the weather. She, a wealthy girl from Texas, attempts to restore his backbone, takes over the company, fights endlessly with him, until he sees the light, gets him into harness and steals Marshall from under Miss Farrell's nose at the same time.

"Big City" on Dual Frisco's Top, $16,000

San Francisco, Oct. 3.—"Big City," on a dual with "Talent Scout" at the Paramount, was about the only first run to make an impression during the week. It reached $16,000, up by $3,000.

"The Life of Emile Zola," on a two-a-day basis, pulled $10,000 at the St. Francis. "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" and "Footloose Heiress" garnered $15,000 at the Warfield, but elsewhere business was bad.

Jury Hits Bank Night

Tampa, Oct. 3.—The Hillsborough County Grand Jury, in its latest presentments, took a rap at Bank Night. The report said that "Bank Night is, through the congregation of crowds surrounding theatres, a menace to the public safety and an expense to the city police department and are further a form of amusement which justly should pay an extremely high license if not be prohibited. We recommend that the city and county officials take immediate steps to correct this situation."

statute requiring that all films be licensed is invalid in that it interferes with the right of the Federal Government to regulate commerce with foreign nations, and that the refusal of the court to grant the restraining order is a burden on foreign commerce and an infringement upon the Federal Government's exclusive right to censor foreign films.

Licensing rights of the socalled "Radio Trust" under the patent pooling arrangement engineered by Radio Corp. of America, Western Electric Co., Electrical Research Products and American Telephone and Telegraph Co. are questioned by General Talking Pictures Corp., an appeal from a decision of the Second Circuit (New York) Court of Appeals favoring those companies in a patent infringement suit.

Purchased Amplifiers

The petitioner over a considerable period of time purchased large numbers of vacuum tube amplifiers from the American Transformer Co., a licensee, to which were attached license notices limiting their use to amateur and broadcast radio reception. The amplifiers were used in the production of talking picture projection equipment. The radio companies brought suit charging infringement because the use to which the amplifiers were put was outside the "licensed" use. The petitioner appealed from a decision that a patentee may extend his monopoly beyond a sale by a licensee, and asked the Supreme Court to determine whether a patent owner may restrict the use made of a device manufactured under the patent after the device has passed into the hands of a purchaser.

The anti-monopoly suit of the Indianapolis Amusement Co. against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Dist. Corp., Universal Film Exchanges, United Artists, 20th Century-Fox, Vitagraph and Educational Film Exchanges, is pending before the court in an appeal of the Indianapolis company from a decision of the Seventh Circuit (Indiana) Court of Appeals.

Equity Suit Outgrowth

The appeal grows out of an equity suit brought by the respondents to secure the production of books and records, the companies alleging that they were defendants in an action brought by the petitioner, who alleged that it operated a large film house in Indianapolis for years and that the respondents, by an unlawful conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce, had damaged it by forcing it to pay higher prices for films, and by forcing it to take inferior films, thus causing the company to fail and go into liquidation.

The respondents allege that the greater part of their defense of that action will consist in proving that the petitioner's losses were not the result of their acts but were from some other cause, and for that defense it was necessary for them to obtain information from the petitioner's records as to daily receipts and expenditures, price of admission, names and dates of films shown, and which films were of inferior quality, etc. The lower court refused the petitioner's motion to dismiss the case, and the company appealed.

Looking 'Em Over

"Annapolis Salute"

(RKO)

A human and entertaining story of midshipmen at Annapolis, their social activities and the traditions of the Academy, "Annapolis Salute" should be found entertaining for the general run of audiences. It is not elaborate, has little of glamour and the cast names will mean nothing at the box-office, but the film undoubtedly will please.

James Ellison has the lead, supported by Harry Carey, Marsha Hunt, Van Heflin, Ann Hovey and Arthur Lake. It is a Robert Sisk production, with Christy Cabanne, who wrote the story, also responsible for the direction. John Twist prepared the screenplay.

Ellison, whose father, Carey, is a petty officer, enrolls in the Academy, his future commission and navy career his only aim in life. He comes into almost immediate conflict with Heflin, who is wealthy and at Annapolis only at parental request, and whose only desire is to get out. Their divergent attitudes come into sharp focus when they meet Miss Hunt, sister of a classmate. Heflin's idea is to leave the academy and marry, while Ellison is torn between what he conceives as his duty and the girl.

Ellison gets into difficulty when a girl with whom he had been seen is injured in an accident while he, contrary to rules, was in Miss Hunt's room. Eventually, Heflin saves his career and the boy realizes he can have both his commission and the girl, since she promises to wait.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"Public Cowboy No. 1"

(Republic)

Here is a cattle rustling story with many modern touches. The outlaws are right up to the minute with short wave radios, an airplane lookout and refrigerated trucks. They slaughter, skin and dress the beef right on the plains and cart it off to a packing center. The story is excitingly done with Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, William Farnum and Ann Rutherford featured. Miss Rutherford is one of the prettiest "horse opera" leading women to be seen in a long while. She also does justice to her role as editor of a small town newspaper.

Autry is a deputy working under Farnum. After convoying a herd of cattle across rustler country, they discover later that the herd has been rustled and murder has been done. The setup has Autry puzzled for a moment, but later a few leads are found and he begins tracing the movement of a number of suspects. Farnum is shot and Autry and Burnette arrest a suspect who is beaten to death while in jail. The townspeople tire of the official action and hire the services of a detective agency. On the day of the new outfit's arrival Autry sets his trap and, while all the folks from the surrounding range are attending the welcoming ceremonies, his trap is sprung. The finish is a thrilling sequence of exceptionally well-filmed riding shots and clever direction. Autry and Burnette also sing a few numbers, the latter a comic piece about a "Defective Detective from Brooklyn."

Joseph Kane directed. Jack Marta photographed. The original story is by Bernard McConville.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Ed Kuykendall, M.P.T.O.A. president, is expected here tonight from Philadelphia and Washington to address the convention tomorrow. His visit here will be his second in the course of a coast-to-coast tour to obtain national exhibitor opinion on the need for trade practice regulations within the industry.

Shift Warner Action

A $10,000 suit was revealed in the U. S. District Court on Saturday by the removal from the N. Y. Supreme Court of the action by Select Theatres Corp. against Warners. The complaint alleges that the Shubert Theatres Corp. acquired the title to the story, "The Audition" and later assigned it to Select. The Warner picture, "Ready, Willing and Able" is claimed to be an infringement. The author of "The Audition" was not given in the complaint.

So far, he said, he has no views on newspaper ownership of stations, network ownership or government operation. The first two, however, are problems to be considered with a view to the determination of policies, either by the commission or by Congress upon recommendations from the commission. He has no present opinion upon the charging of fees for licenses or special taxes upon broadcasters.

McNinch promised that the operations of the commission would be absolutely open and that there would be no "covering up." "There will be no covering up of anything by me," he said, "I care not how high or low it goes."

M-G-M's Air Plans Come Up This Week

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, told MOTION PICTURE DAILY. Sidney left for Hollywood Saturday by plane. He was to have been accompanied by Benny Thau, production executive at the M-G-M studio, who returned last week from Europe with Louis B. Mayer, but Thau will get away either today or tomorrow.

Schenck sees certain advantages in a radio tieup, provided the program is handled properly.

"We feel that as long as radio is here we might as well make the proper use of it," Schenck stated. "If we are going to go into it, we want to see that our stars are protected with the proper material."

The Loew head added that no decision had been reached as to who will be the first star on the program, nor how the program will be worked out. These matters, he held, were now being worked out in California. The show will start Nov. 4 and will go on from 9 P. M. to 10 P. M. every Thursday after that.

Schenck said the deal had a number of options and he looks forward to the program as a big event.

Accompanied by his wife, Schenck will depart for his annual visit to the studios about the middle of the month. He said he plans to remain on the coast three or four weeks. He declared there was no particular significance attached to the trip. J. Robert Rubin, general counsel of M-G-M and a vice-president of Loew's, will meet Schenck in California next month.

Three Webs to Air Series Regardless of Schedules

CBS, Mutual and NBC will cover the World Series games completely, regardless of time or sponsor schedules. The list of sponsors who will relinquish their broadcast time, with the networks paying the rebates, follow:

NBC's Red network is the hardest hit. Wednesday, Oct. 6, from 1:15 until 5 P. M., the approximate times of all games, the cancellations will be "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," "John's Other Wife," and "Just Plain Bill," all sponsored by American Home Products; "How to Be Charming," sponsored by Charles H. Phillips Chemical Co.; "Pepper Young's Family," "Ma Perkins," "Vic and Sade," "The O'Neill's," "Guiding Light," "Story of Mary Marlin," and "Road of Life," all Procter & Gamble programs, and "Lorenzo Jones," a Charles H. Phillips Co. show. The same cancellation schedule follows for the following day, Thursday, with the addition of "Mystery Chef," sponsored by Regional Adv. Co. The Saturday Red network schedule for the game time is unaffected commercially, all programs being sustainers. Cancelled Sunday will be "Bicycle Party," sponsored by Cycles Trades.

The only Blue network commercial programs which will be affected are the Sunday shows, "Magic Key," for RCA; and "On Broadway," Diamond Crystal Salt Co. All other listings during the series time are sustainers.

The CBS cancellations follow: Oct. 6 through Oct. 12, "Gold Medal Feature Time," sponsored by General Mills, Inc., and "Jack and Loretta Clemens," for Colgate-Palmolive Peet. Additionally, "News Through a Woman's Eyes," for Pontiac Motor Co., and the Dr. Dafoe program for Lehn & Fink will be cancelled Oct 6, 8 and 11. Saturday and Sunday are open dates on the CBS schedule, with no sponsored programs between 1 and 5 P. M.

Agrap Votes Support Of Labor; Stays As Is

The American Guild of Radio Announcers and Producers, in session the past weekend for the first time since its formation, reaffirmed its decision to support all bona fide labor organizations, but voted to keep its own entity. In some circles, it had been believed that AGRAP might go over to the Equity-controlled American Federation of Radio Artists. More than 200 attended the meeting at the Taft Hotel.

AGRAP will keep an eye on and watch the developments of other labor organizations through a committee of seven New York members. The committee will report periodically to all the AGRAP chapters.

Roger Bower of WOR was elected to succeed Karl Schullinger as national secretary and treasurer.

New Shows on the Air

"Varsity Show"

The "Varsity Show," which draws its talent from the student bodies of various colleges, returned to the networks Friday evening, with the lads and lassies of the University of Alabama whooping it up for their Alma Mater and the Pontiac Motor Co. Paul Dumont is the "em cee" this time, succeeding John Held, Jr.

The program remains a great promotion for Pontiac cars, but it falls somewhat short of being an excessively entertaining show. The usual boys' and girls' glee clubs, student band, talks by the various athletic coaches and a history of the school were offered. Most amusement, however, was derived from listening to the delicious southern drawls of the students who spoke during the evening.

Pontiac sponsors. Beginning next Friday the program will be presented at a new time, from 9 to 9:30 P. M. on the NBC-Blue. MacManus, John and Adams is the agency.

"Music from Hollywood"

The only thing new about the Friday evening Chesterfield program is its title. It is now known as "Music from Hollywood," with Hal Kemp's orchestra and Alice Faye providing the music and vocals.

The Kemp organization, one of the smoothest about, celebrated its 12th birthday by playing the first song it ever recorded as many years ago, "A Little Boy, a Little Girl, a Little Moon." The orchestration was the same as a dozen years ago, and, truth to tell, it was hard to detect the difference between the then and the present-day styles. BANNER.

ARTA Deals Closed With Two Stations

The American Radio Telegraphists' Ass'n late Friday night closed agreements with WHN, New York, and KYW, Philadelphia. In both instances the union won a 40-hour, five-day week, time and a half for overtime, and increases in salaries.

The agreements also call for a review of all projected dismissals and stipulate that the technicians are permitted seven holidays a year. The agreements also call for preferential hiring of A. R. T. A. members, making both stations closed shops in so far as the hiring of technical employes is concerned.

The A. R. T. A. is now negotiating with two Philadelphia stations, WFIL and WCAU. Contracts with these stations will be consummated within a short time, according to Mervyn Rathborne, president of the A. R. T. A.

The WHN agreement brings to a close a long-drawn fight between the station owners, Loew's, Inc., and the C. I. O.—affiliated A. R. T. A. This is believed to be the first instance wherein a film company in any of its activities has given recognition to a union affiliated with the C. I. O. Louis K. Sidney conducted the negotiations for the station.

Fred Dawson Joins WOW

OMAHA, Oct. 3.—Fred Dawson, who was hailed as the "miracle coach" when he directed the University of Nebraska to two football victories over Notre Dame in the "Four Horsemen" days, has joined the staff of WOW. He will have two 15-minute periods weekly, starting Oct. 7.

Sullivan in New Series

Paul Sullivan, WLW commentator, will inaugurate a new series of commentaries, "Behind the News" for Liberty Magazine over three of the WLW Line stations—WHN, New York; WXYZ, Detroit, and WLW, starting tomorrow, 9:30 to 10 P.M.

Music Publishers at Code Meeting Today

the meeting, the bulk of the small houses are expected to await publication of the first draft of the code before indicating their views, although a group of smaller independents is reported prepared to descend upon Washington in vigorous protest against Government regulation.

Possibilities of a protest against trade commission approval of the proposed code are seen in the relationship between some of the publishers and film producers. If opposition is launched on this ground, it may possibly be based on a charge that a code would not be in the public interest and might lead to monopoly—a charge which recently led the commission to deny a code to the petroleum distributing industry.

Opposition of the smaller publishers to the code will probably be based on the idea that the outlawing of certain practices would make it impossible for them to compete with the larger houses.

MPPA Urges Extended Ban On Song Plugs

Would Apply Patman Act To Music Industry

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4.—A flat ban on bribery, gifts or other inducements to song plugging where the effect is to lessen competition or create monopoly, and application to the music industry of the prohibitions of the Robinson-Patman Act against price discrimination today were asked of the Federal Trade Commission by the Music Publishers' Protective Ass'n.

These two problems were covered in a proposed code of fair trade submitted on behalf of the industry by Judge Joseph V. McKee, counsel for the M.P.P.A., with the unanimous approval of the nearly 75 music trade representatives present at a conference presided over by Judge George McCorkle, director of trade practice conferences.

With the exception of an attack on the music operations of film producers and the suggestion that provisions be

Selznick to Talk Future Lineup Here

Asserts He Will Discuss Plans with "Everybody"

Distribution plans for David O. Selznick, after he completes two of four pictures for United Artists on his present committment, will be completed here in the next few weeks, the producer told MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday on his arrival from the coast.

"I have a few definite things in mind," Selznick stated, "and I will talk to everybody," he added. One of the executives he will confer with is George J. Schaefer, vice-president and general manager of U.A., who is due to return from Hollywood tomorrow.

Asked if he would talk to Nicholas M. Schenck, Selznick was non-committal except to say that he would discuss his plan with "everybody."

"I will get straightened out before I return to the coast in a month."

Hollywood, Oct. 4.—In a day bristling with second thoughts RKO announced "Danger Patrol" as the new title of "Highway to Hell," "Living on Love" as the new name for "Love in a Basement," "Perfect Alibi" as the final designation for "The Shadow Speaks," and Gwen Bayer (as in aspirin) as the new name of Becky Baer (as in fisticuffs).

No Decision Reached On a Dallas Appeal

Attorneys for defendant distributors were unable, following a conference yesterday, to agree on the necessity for appealing the recent Federal court decision at Dallas holding the contracts made with Hoblitzelle theatres which regulated subsequent run admission prices to be in violation of the anti-trust laws.

Attorneys explained, following the discussions, that many parts of the Federal court decision are confusing in their implications and do not permit of a definite interpretation. In view of this, a decision on an appeal will be held in abeyance until the Government's decree has been entered. This is expected within the next few days.

Frels Monopoly Suit Is Begun at Dallas

DALLAS, Oct. 4.—Ruben Frels' anti-trust suit against Jefferson Amusement Co. and major distributors was started here today in U. S. District Court. Most of the day was spent in selecting a jury after which attorneys outlined the case.

Frels charges that Jefferson Amusement acquired houses in towns where he operated and that thereafter he was unable to secure product from majors.

The distributing companies will seek to prove that product was available for Frels.

"100 Men" Tops Box-Office Grosses in Key City Spots

Ranking first or close to that spot, in many comparative estimates, "100 Men and a Girl" appeared to be the leading contender for box-office honors in the major theatres of the key cities during the past week. "Souls at Sea," "Thin Ice," "Dead End" and "Double or Nothing" did a fair share of business and "Lost Horizon," virtually concluding its key city runs, also was in the running.

"100 Men and a Girl" was top in Cleveland, taking $16,500 at Warners' Hippdrome and going to the Allen for a second week. "Dead End" and "Thin Ice" went over average in their spots.

"Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938" took top honors in Detroit, capturing $26,500 at the Michigan, over par by $6,500, while "100 Men and a Girl" was close behind, running $5,600 over average with a $25,600 take at the

Early End of Strike Urged By Kuykendall

Statement Follows Talks In Philadelphia

An immediate settlement of the controversy between Paramount and Philadelphia exhibitors "for the good of the industry as a whole," was urged by Ed Kuykendall, M. P. T. O. A. president, in a statement issued yesterday following weekend conferences with Philadelphia exhibitor leaders.

Kuykendall's statement asserted that Lewen Pizor, president of the U. M. P. T. O., an affiliate of the M. P. T. O. A., and Pizor's associates "are willing to try to negotiate a fair settlement with the Paramount sales executives or through an impartial committee of arbitration or mediation."

Apprised of this statement yesterday by MOTION PICTURE DAILY, Austin Keough, vice-president and secretary of Paramount, said that the company "is and at all times has been ready and willing to discuss with any of its customers any grievances they have and to try to adjust them satisfactorily. Paramount, however, is not willing to deal with representatives of a 'band' or any combine formed to 'gang up' on it.

"Our attitude on this remains unchanged," Keough said. "We have always been willing to treat individual customer's complaints individually."

Questioned concerning the company's attitude toward the suggestion that the dispute be submitted to "an impartial committee of arbitration or mediation," Keough said, "We do not feel that we have anything to arbitrate or mediate."

Kuykendall's statement hits at exhibition contracts "which," he observes, "are carefully written by counsel for the distributor, not by attorneys for the exhibitor."

Citing the non-delivery of six pictures on last season's Paramount contracts which, he says, the exhibitors "were led to believe they had bought," Kuykendall remarks that "Maybe they (exhibitors) failed to read the technical, legalistic clauses in fine print in the Paramount contract, or to fully realize that the pictures they think they buy from every distributor are seldom if ever actually identified in the written contract they sign."

Clarification Asked

M. P. T. O. A. president regards the situation as "clear proof of the need for a simpler, fairer and more easily understandable form of exhibition contract, free from trick clauses and technicalities."

He also regards the Paramount buyers' "strike" as an argument for conciliation machinery within the industry which would permit the settlement of "our commercial disputes and controversies by other means than beating the other fellow into submission."

"A fairer trade practice relationship must be followed," he warns, "or we are headed for Governmental regulation. M. P. T. O. A.'s 10-point trade practice program is badly needed and we are still fighting for it."

Kuykendall left Philadelphia over the week end for Memphis, where he begins a nationwide tour to sound out exhibitor sentiment on the need for trade practice regulations within the industry.

Asks Filing of Complaints

COLUMBUS, Oct. 4.—Quoting the highlights of Judge Atwell's decision in the Federal Court, at Dallas, in which he held that the 10 major distributors were operating in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, P. J. Wood, secretary of the I. T. O. of Ohio, has asked exhibitors who are being damaged by inability to obtain product to arrange a conference with him in order that their complaints may be investigated, and, if possessing merit, be set up in legal form for submission to the proper Federal authorities.

Fox. "Dead End" went well over par, and "Stella Dallas" was in the running.

A Bowes unit on the stage of the Lyric in Indianapolis assisted the film, "Back in Circulation," to draw down top money, $11,200, better than $3,000 above average. "Big City" and "The Girl Said No" made a good dual at Loew's, in a week in which all first run takes were good.

Philadelphia was generally weak, only two films making good, "Life of the Party," aided by Mal Hallett's orchestra at the Earle, taking $18,500, and "Dead End" in its second weeks at the Aldine. Both went well over average, but were unique in that respect.

"100 Men and a Girl" led the way in San Francisco, going $8,700 over par to $16,700 at the Orpheum, in a week that was generally quiet. "Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938" was the only other film to better average.

Deanna Takes Montreal, Too

In Montreal also, "100 Men and a Girl" took the lead at Loew's, grossing $13,500, over par by $5,500. For the first time in years at the house, the film was held. "Broadway Melody of 1938" and "Lost Horizon," the latter in its second week, held up well.

"Souls at Sea," plus Ina Ray Hutton and her band, turned in a good $21,600 at the Earle in Washington, and the bill was booked into the Metropolitan. "Thin Ice" and "Dead End" did their share of the business.

"Double or Nothing" was the only film which managed to reach par in either St. Paul or Minnesota, that film hitting $5,500 at the Paramount in St. Paul.

Oklahoma City's grosses were led by "Souls at Sea" at the Midwest, which went over average by $1,100, reaching $5,100. "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" at the Criterion was the only other film to better par.

"That Certain Woman" and "Marry the Girl" took $6,700 at the Roger Sherman in New Haven, over average by $2,100. "Thin Ice" and "You Can't Buy Luck" at Loew's Poli were good for $9,000, over par by $1,000.

High, Wide Strong in Denver

"High, Wide and Handsome" led the Denver grosses at the Denham in a generally good week, taking $7,500, over average by $2,500. "The Prisoner of Zenda" did well with a take of $3,000, $1,000 over par in its second week at the Broadway.

Chicago's gross parade was led by "That Certain Woman," which took $30,000 at the Oriental, $12,000 over average. "Thin Ice" hit a good $20,000 at the Roosevelt, over par by $9,500, and "Big City" at the United Artists was over average by $5,000 on a gross of $16,000.

In Pittsburgh, "100 Men and a Girl" topped the list with a splendid $14,750 at the Alvin, over average by $9,250. "Life of the Party," aided by Horace Heidt and his orchestra on the Stanley stage, was good for $28,000.

Milwaukee Likes "100 Men"

Milwaukee grosses were topped by "100 Men and a Girl," which took $8,500 at the Warner on a dual with "Back in Circulation." "Lost Horizon" went slightly over par but the rest were weak.

In Cincinnati, "Thin Ice" led the march, taking $13,500 at the RKO Shubert, which was $1,500 over average. The film was held. "Big City" was strong at the RKO Palace, and "100 Men and a Girl," in its third week, equalled par with $2,750.

George Cukor, who will direct "Gone with the Wind," Myron Selznick and Bobbie Keon, production secretary of Selznick International. David Selznick and Cukor will confer with Sidney Howard, the playwright and writer, on the second draft for "Gone With the Wind." The first one, completed by Howard, apparently requires certain changes to conform with a number of ideas Selznick has in mind for the picture.

Asked if reports that Paulette Goddard had been cast for the role of Scarlett O'Hara, Selznick declared that this was not so, adding that Miss Goddard had not even been tested. The producer stated he had no one in mind for the role, as yet, but may cast someone while in New York.

Two pictures recently completed by Selznick International for U.A. release are "Tom Sawyer" and "Nothing Sacred." The producer did not mention the other two which are to wind up his current U.A. pact.

Asked if he would continue to release through U.A., Selznick said, "I have no idea what's going to happen. Further than that I have nothing to say."

Met by Calvert, Beck

Lowell Calvert, eastern representative for Selznick International, and Meyer P. Beck of the U.A. publicity department were at the station to meet Selznick. He seemed tired from the trip and declined to have pictures taken.

Reports concerning the signing of Paulette Goddard were also denied by Selznick on his stopover in Chicago and by the publicity department of his company in Culver City. The joint denial said: "Regardless of attempts of various persons to hoist themselves to prominence on the shoulders of Scarlett O'Hara, I can unequivocally state no one has been selected, much less signed, for the role in 'Gone with the Wind.' George Cukor and I will continue our search for Scarlett in New York."

In Chicago, Selznick added that he planned to start making tests for the Scarlett O'Hara player about Nov. 1.

"So far there has been no casting for the film," he said, and he added he expected that "someone with film experience would be necessary for the part of Scarlett."

incorporated to abate their radio plugging activities, delivered by Arthur F. Fishbein of the Southern Music Publishing Co., there was no criticism of the proposed code, which will be considered by the F.C.C. and, if approved, offered the individual members of the industry for adherence.

Because of the fact that the Robinson-Patman Act prohibits secret rebates or discounts and other practices which amount to price discrimination and therefore such matters no longer need be considered in a code, the discussion today was confined to the situation of the music industry resulting from paid plugging.

It was explained by John G. Paine, executive chairman of the M.P.P.A. board that the association has found it impossible to eliminate paid plugging by agreement and has found it necessary to appeal to the Federal Government to outlaw the practice, having in mind the success of the code adopted under the N.R.A., which was not once wilfully violated during its life.

Music Importance Cited

Paine pointed out that the music industry is vitally important to the film and radio industries, without which they could not exist, and declared there is a greater demand for music today in this country than ever before in history.

A number of prominent publishers supported Paine, Edward B. Marks, of the E. B. Marks Music Corp., declaring that since the passing of the N.R.A. the industry has gradually been tending toward chaos and the situation has been made more acute by the almost unbridled plugging of mediocre music over the radio.

Attributing the present situation to the picture producers, Fishbein told the conference the proposed code should be strengthened so as to control the plugging activities of the film industry. He pointed out that the producers use radio to advertise forthcoming musicals, by plugging songs from the film or a song written around the title of the picture. Most of the music emanating from Hollywood, he said, is of poor quality.

Admitting that it might be helpful if something could be done to control the film songs, Judge McKee explained that the association had gone as far as it thought possible under the law, and suggested that if the code were approved by the commission it might be feasible later to give attention to the picture music situation.

Harms Seeks Ending Of Suit Over Music

Harms, Inc., music publishers, will ask N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Robert McLaughlin on Thursday to dismiss the $100,000 suit of April Productions, Inc., on the ground that the complaint fails to state a cause of action and that the court lacks jurisdiction.

The complaint is based upon a contract made in 1924 between Harms and the Shubert Theatres Corp. under which Harms received exclusive rights to publish and exploit nine songs from the "The Student Prince" with a 50-50 division on the profits. Shubert Theatres later assigned its rights under the contract to April Productions. It is alleged that Harms has been receiving royalties from Ascap for radio privileges, although at the time the contract was drawn no provision was inserted covering radio rights. Besides damages the plaintiff also asks that the contract be rescinded and a permanent injunction issued to restrain Harms from disposing of radio rights of the songs.

that approximately 600 subjects suitable for classroom use have been selected by the organization's reviewing committee from the 1,500 or more films which were made available to it, is regarded as the principal subject for discussion at the meeting. Guild Hearing Told Of Raw Stock Sales veal the exact amount of footage of raw negative and positive film sold each company. Present were representatives of J. E. Brulatour, Inc., Eastman distributor; C. King Charney, Inc., Agfa distributor, and Smith & Aller, DuPont distributor.

The first witnesses were Edward O. Blackburn, Brulatour vice-president, and Gertrude Nestel, his assistant. Blackburn said that the Eastman weekly sale of sound film equals 1,000,000 feet and the weekly sale of print positive equals 8,000,000 feet. Miss Nestel declared that M-G-M is by far the greatest user of Eastman negative and positive, in a year buying 9,966,000 feet of negative and 155,716,000 feet of positive. Agfa sales were detailed by Margaret Hower, office manager for Charney, and Dupont sales by John W. Smith of Smith & Aller. G. M. Frink of Eastman Kodak Stores, Inc., sketched the total amount of business in photographic supplies. I. S. Brown, salesman for the E. K. Wood Lumber Co. declared the producing companies annual purchases of lumber amount to approximately $160,000.

During the afternoon, representatives of metal and glass companies submitted figures on sales volume.

At the conclusion of today's proceedings, Walsh stated that he will go into the matter of gross income and revenues tomorrow and that the board's case will end on Wednesday with an attempt to establish that writers are employes by Wagner Act standards. Leonard Janofsky, attorney for the Guild, will then have his opportunity to present the petitioner's side of the controversy.

G.N. Plans to Put "Renfrew" on Air

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 4.—Grand National is the latest production company to make plans for an air presentation. A print of "Renfrew of the Royal Mounted," recently completed feature with James Newill, radio singer, in the title role, has been shipped to New York for submission to a possible sponsor to return the serial to the air.

The plan is to sell the idea of the serial, once sponsored on CBS, to a new advertiser, and offer with it the services of Newill, now under contract to Grand National for the remainder of the "Renfrew" series.

Under the plan, the radio show would originate from the Grand National lot here, and have the cooperation of Grand National executives. If the unnamed sponsor approves the plan, plans to exploit other lot talent either on the "Renfrew" air show, or in another radio program, will be worked out.

Newill has a wide following on the coast by virtue of his singing and acting on the radio for several years. He made his film debut in "Renfrew of the Royal Mounted."

Canada May Reduce Politics on the Air

MONTREAL, Oct. 4.—A move to limit the number and length of political speeches on the air during election campaigns will almost certainly be made at the coming session of the Federal Parliament.

Discontent over the monopoly of the airlanes by parties during the last federal election and the present provincial fight in Ontario, is believed to have fostered a movement to wipe out such conditions.

The regulations to cover such broadcasts, it is believed, will be modeled on the system now in use by the British Broadcasting Corp., which has met with the approval of public and politicians alike. Overseas each party chooses a spokesman who is permitted to make a campaign opening address and another at the close of the drive, thus pruning all the repetition otherwise included.

Various politicians in both federal and provincial fields here are believed willing to back such limitation.

Sunday night listeners, already fortunate in having a choice of the best programs on the air, gain still another in the new Jergens-Woodbury series, "Hollywood Playhouse," which features Tyrone Power in air adaptations of stage plays, pictures, and original stories. The initial vehicle was "Her Cardboard Lover." Margaret Sullavan was heard in support of Power.

The "famous son of a famous father," as he was characterized in a between act talk by Darryl F. Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production for 20th Century-Fox, Power soon should have the girls who listen to radio just as ga-ga over him as their sisters of the film houses. Aided and abetted by a charming story and given excellent support by Miss Sullavan, Tyrone devastated the mike with a great characterization of a love-smitten swain who, to save the mysterious lady of his adoration from returning to her former husband, becomes her "cardboard lover." It's light, frothy and amusing stuff, the kind that lends itself beautifully to the microphone. Miss Sullavan was no less attractive than Power. The sponsor should team up this pair often in the future. The adaptation, by Edith Meister, was exceedingly good.

Zanuck repeated the now familiar and Horatio Algerish story of the discovery and rise of Power to screen fame and discussed briefly the rapidly strengthening alliance between screen and radio.

"Hollywood Playhouse" is sponsored by the Jergens-Woodbury Co., over the NBC-Blue, from 9 to 9:30 P.M., Sundays. Lennen & Mitchell is the agency.

Jack Benny Show

Radio's most popular comedian reappeared Sunday night to begin a new season on the Jello program in his accustomed spot on WEAF and the NBC Red from 7 to 7:30 P.M. The program was marked by the familiar brand of kidding and clowning that has made Benny and his able staff the tops in radio comedy these several seasons. Obviously, there is no nee yet for a change in the formula which has proved so popular in all sections of the country.

It was natural that Mary Livingstone's and Jack's summer vacation in Europe should provide much of the framework on which depended ma of the laughs of this re-opening program. That trip even inspired Mary to poetry which she dutifully contributed to the program. Kenny Baker, as soloist and comedian, is as good as ever in both roles, and Andy Devine, also, is back contributing his simple fun to the laugh-feast. Phil Harris and his orchestra again reported for duty, but under embarrassing circumstances. Abe Lyman, whose band played Benny's last three programs before the summer adjournment, reappeared Sunday night to complicate things by claiming to have a contract for the new season. The evening was complete with Benny's mention of Fred Allen late in the proceedings.

Don Wilson does the announcing, still seemingly getting as big a kick out of the proceedings as any member of the audience.

General Motors Concert

Although the ambitious plans for the resumption of the General Motors Concert, Sunday night, on the NBC-Blue went awry in several important particulars, the program took the defections in its stride and by the excellence of the materials at hand provided a tasteful, distinguished musical hour.

The advance announcements related that the full roster of musical artists who will appear on the program this season would be heard during the opening session from 8 to 9 P.M. This was to have been accomplished by cutting in Erna Sack and Jussi Bjoerling from Stockholm, Richard Tauber from England and Helen Jepson and Grace Moore from Hollywood on the program being broadcast from Carnegie Hall, New York, where were Maria Jeritza, Donald Dickson, Joseph Schmidt, Erno Rapee and the G. M. Symphony Orchestra and Chorus. However, it was stated early that "due to circumstances over which we have no control" the two Swedish songstresses would not be heard. Cables from these two artists expressing their regrets were read. They are scheduled to arrive in New York in two weeks.

The defection which prevented Tauber from being heard, apparently, was unexpected. Milton Cross, announcer and master of ceremonies, prepared the audience for Tauber's appearance, then after a moment of silence on the air, returned with an apology that because of "conditions over which we have no control" Tauber would not be heard. The tenor spoke later in the program.

Miss Jeritza and Dickson contributed solos and then returned in a duet from Mozart's "Don Giovanni." Miss Jepson and Schmidt completed the vocal sections of the program. Miss Moore merely greeted the audience, mentioning that she would appear on the program three weeks hence. John B. Kennedy spoke briefly. His topic was "The Parade of Scientific Progress." K.

Joe Penner Show

Joe Penner, minus the duck but still bearing with him the old familiar catch phrases, returned to his old stand on CBS for Cocomalt Sunday night, and lots and lots of kiddies, who may not cry for the sponsor's product but who do cry for Joe, will be happy the coming winter months.

The "Park Ave. Penners" again serve as the motif for the story. Prodigal Joe returns to the old homestead to find a career as a stock salesman mapped out for him by his father. Joe, thereupon, hawks his stocks on the street corners and, when he is questioned about this by a passerby, answers: "Why not sell stocks on street corners? They sell 'em on the curb, don't they?" That's a fair sample of the script.

Between gags Jimmy Grier's band and Judy Gibson and Gene Austin, vocalists, take the mike. The series is broadcast Sundays from 6 to 6:30 P.M. Ruthrauff & Ryan, the agency. BANNER

Phil Baker Show

Among the popular Sunday evening programs which were resumed this week after the summer recess was the Gulf Gas show, featuring Phil Baker and his stooges, who reappeared on WABC and the CBS network for the 7:30 to 8:00 P.M. period. The show followed the same pattern of comedy, music and song employed by Baker last season and, in this listener's opinion, was neither better nor worse for the summer lay-off. Which makes it a sprightly enough offering anyhow.

Bottle and Bettle are back on the program in their familiar roles. In addition, the opening program offered Patsy Kelly, Hollywood comedienne Oscar Bradley, conductor, and Alfred Garr, a soloist with a pleasing voice, whose Sunday night performance was his first on the air, Baker said in introducing him.

The comedy was highlighted by parody on a scene from the film "Dead End," which consumed almost all of the latter half of the program Incidentally, it brought mention on the program not only for the picture bu also for Samuel Goldwyn, its producer, whom Baker described as "my boss." Other "mentions" included i the program were NBC's Jack Benr and the Packard Motor program. K.

"Seein' Stars in Hollywood"

With a variety of popular names promised each week, this program, which takes the air Sundays from 7:30 to 8 P.M. over WJZ and the Blue network, has the possibility of being a strong competitor to other shows during the same period.

For the initial lineup, Feg Murray, who does a syndicated cartoon strip which bears the name of the show, had Walt Disney and Richard Arlen as guests. Regular standbys are Ozzie Nelson and his orchestra and Harriet Hilliard. Next week, Pandro Berman and Sonja Henie are slated to top the list.

In introducing Arlen, Murray gives a flash-back story on incidents which led to his entrance into pictures. He was driving a motorcycle, his first day on the job, when he crashed into the Brunton studio gates. The casting director saw possibilities in him, offered the $18-a-week-delivery man $150 and Arlen headed for fame.

Disney seemed to get a great kick out of the interview by Murray. He cracked wise several times. Disney, according to Murray, is head of a $20,000,000 company now. He came to Hollywood nine years ago with $45 in his pocket and drew the first Mickey Mouse cartoon in his garage. Disney said that if one animator were to work on a short, it would take him five years to do the job. And if one man alone worked on "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the premiere would be held in 2,167. About 2,000,000 drawings have been made for the picture and, if put end to end, would stretch from New York to Pittsburgh.

Fleischman's Yeast for bakers is the sponsor through J. Walter Thompson. Nelson's first number was "Music in Brown." Then followed the Arlen introduction. Next was Miss Hilliard singing "In Our Penthouse on 3rd Ave." Nelson then sang "Remember Me." Disney then came on and Nelson finished with "Me, Myself and I." O.

"Silver Theatre"

These are lush days for screen actors and actresses, who are doubling in radio harness to the anguish of the legitimate radio names. This is by way of being a preamble to a discussion of the new International Silver Co. series, "Silver Theatre," which features Jimmy Stewart and Rosalind Russell.

The opening story, an original, is titled "First Love." It is to be offered in four installments. Whether consciously or not, the story is enough like "A Star Is Born" to be almost an exact carbon copy of the latter, save for a few minor variations. Jean Wilson, played by Miss Russell, goes to Hollywood at the invitation of a "quickie" company. Her test is a failure. Down the ladder she goes progressively, as a model, sales girl, and finally, as was to be expected, as a waitress. Follows a fade-in to the office of Martin Rickey, head of Superba Prod., where a stormy scene involving the star of Superba, Trista Lane, and the press agent, Jimmy Parks, played by Stewart, is enacted. As a consequence of the argument, Jimmy is fired.

To cut corners, Jimmy meets Jean in the restaurant where she serves hash, invites her to attend a premiere of a picture with him, and introduces her over the air as a new glamour girl. The future episodes do not promise to hold much mystery.

Despite the obvious story, the play was made somewhat enjoyable by the portrayals of the two principals, and the excellence of Conrad Nagle as "em cee."

"Silver Theatre" is presented Sundays over CBS from 5 to 5:30 P.M. International Silver sponsors through Young & Rubicam. BANNER

"Your Birthday Party"

David Ross, Freddie Rich and h orchestra, the Eton Boys and Ruth Carhart all combine to make this show entertaining. It's novel in a way, with the audience participating in several of the vocal choruses, thereby giving th show an intimate touch. The progra is on from 8:30 to 9 P.M. Sundays

Ross does a ventriloquist act wit a dummy named Soyna and even goes so far as to impersonate a Russian He got over nicely with a voice tha registers well.

The first number by the orchestra and audience was "Happy Birthday to You," followed by Miss Carhart singing "Love's Old Sweet Song" and the audience assisting in the chorus. Bill Cook impersonated several characters The orchestra played another son without announcing the name and followed with "He's a Jolly Good Fellow." The Eton Boys sang "No, No, 1000 Times, No," and got a big hand. They deserved it. Miss Carhart's last number, "Yours and Mine" climaxes the show.

Unsponsored, the show is heard over CBS. O.

"Metropolitan Auditions of the Air"

"A search for opera stars of tomorrow" as the sponsor says in the blurb, effectively describes this program. Various applicants of both sexes come up to the microphone and offer their talents in competition for the semi-finals which will land them at Johnson's 40th Street opera house. The series is a stand-pat favorite.

The music involved in the proceedings ranged from the accepted operatic composers to Rimsky-Korsakof and Sigmund Romberg. The program is interesting from the viewpoint of observing talent in its embryonic stage.

Sherwin-Williams, the paint company, sponsors "Metropolitan Auditions of the Air." It is offered over the NBC-Blue network on Sunday from 5 to 5:30 P.M., through Cecil, Warwick and Legler. P.

"Time of Your Life"

The "Time of Your Life" is a standard variety production, no better nor worse than most of the similar periods on the air. Sheila Barrett is starred. The support includes Joe Rines' orchestra, a singing group introduced as the Campbell Royalists, and Graham McNamee as "em cee."

Miss Barrett offered a familiar, but well-done, impersonation of the fluttery-voiced Ed Wynn, and a skit titled "Experience," in which she played the part of a faded actress who has applied for a role in a forthcoming production. To the query, "What experience?" she reviews her career via a flashback, from its beginning in burlesque, up to vaudeville, her success on Broadway, and then the decline, which brings her back to the present quest for a job.

The orchestra and chorus offered a medley from "Hit the Deck," "You Can't Have Everything," and "Bambalina." Gruen Watch Co. sponsors, Sundays from 5:30 to 6 P.M. on the NBC-Red. McCann-Erickson is the agency. BANNER

"Singing Lady's Music Plays"

The dramatization of Giuseppe Verdi's early life and his great love for music is a fine piece of work for both Irene Wicker and Milton Rettenberg, the latter handling music interpolations. The story of Verdi's father and mother making a sacrifice to buy the boy a spinnet at the age of seven and how the organist, Giuseppe's teacher, realizing the uncanny ability of the youngster, quits his job at the village church so that the enterprising composer may find a means of earning enough money to further his inclination was worthwhile from all angles. Music lovers will find enjoyment from this series.

Next Sunday, over WOR from 5 to 5:30 P.M., Kellogg's will present the second in the series, that of Verdi and how he came to compose "Il Trovatore." N. W. Ayer and Son, Inc., the agency. O.

"The Week in the Theatre"

John Gassner, drama critic of The Forum and head of the play reading department of the Theatre Guild, gave the first of a series of weekly talks on the Broadway theatre over WQXR last Saturday. The program, featuring Gassner, will be offered as a studio presentation by the Interstate Broadcasting Co. every Saturday from 5:45 to 6:00 P.M.

In his opening program Gassner, after appraising briefly the last Broadway season and the current one thus far, offered the conclusion that the stage needs "life" to keep it from being banal. Some one should remind him, for the benefit of his future talks, that the same conclusion can be applied to radio programs. Not only did his material have the dullness of a classroom lecture but the delivery as well was faltering and uninspired. K.

"...but for the Grace of God, there sit I, Portia Merriman, facing a verdict of life or death!"

A heart-tugging mother-and-son story as only Faith Baldwin could write it. Played to perfection by a superlative cast.

Not to Renew Hoyts-Union Circuit Deal

Greater Union Finances Sound, Says Rydge

By CLIFF HOLT

SYDNEY, Sept. 15 (By Air Mail via London).—"Greater Union Theatres will not renew its association with General Theatres Corp. On and after Dec. 31 it will definitely operate as an entirely independent circuit."

That declaration by Norman B. Rydge, chairman of the board of Greater Union Theatres, Ltd., (the present partners with Hoyts Theatres, Ltd., in G. T. C.) apparently ends the speculation as to whether the two companies would extend their five-year agreement upon its expiration at the end of this year.

Rydge's statement is neither confirmed nor denied by Hoyts, and the trade now assumes that the two companies are preparing to re-enter competition with each other with the beginning of 1938.

Speaking at a special function attended by the directors and combined staffs of Greater Union Theatres and

Phila. Exhibitors Hold Their Ground

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—Philadelphia independents displayed no tendency to meet Paramount through an arbitration committee in an exciting meeting of the United M.P.T.O. today. Lewen Pizor, president, came from a sick bed, and was warmly welcomed. He related opinions of Ed Kuykendall to the meeting in which the M.P.T.O.A. president stated local exhibitors were right in their fight, but suggested the formation of a committee to confer with Paramount.

The concensus of the opinion of the meeting was against such a move. In spite of the alleged bargain prices offered individual exhibitors by the company, the group declared the front was holding and the fight would be

ITOA Seeks Pact to Stop All Giveaways

Pledges Are Sent Out; Circuits Willing

Members of the I. T. O. A. will eliminate giveaways and games on Dec. 1, providing other exhibitors in the territory agree to do the same, according to The Independent, the organization's paper, published today.

In an effort to make the move widespread among independent theatre owners, pledge cards seeking support of unaffiliated exhibitors are attached to the publication. Exhibitors who subscribe to the plan will be listed in the publication, The Independent article states.

Major circuits for some time have been trying to get independent exhibitors to stop games and giveaways. The article in the exhibitor publication states: "From now on, no one will be able to say it was the other fellow who wanted giveaways; there won't be any passing the buck."

Loew's and RKO have been on record as stating that awards and gifts will be eliminated from their theatres if competitive houses get together and do likewise.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

TEN years ago tonight, the stirrings of wonder and enthusiasm fanned earlier by "Don Juan" because, in part, it talked, blossomed into the genuine article when "The Jazz Singer" opened on Broadway.

Those days linger well in the memory. Will Hays had postponed a trip west to sound-record his message on the future of talking pictures which issued forth from the new and miraculous screen of the Piccadilly Theatre. Harry Warner, only a few days before, had told us he thought we once had sense but that, if ever we did, we seemed to have lodged it in some forgotten mental alley. "Can't you see what this means?," he had urged upon us in his office in the Mecca Building. Like most others then, we did, but then again we were not sure that we did. . . .

It was, however, Jolson in "The Jazz Singer" that swept away all barriers, emphasized the accuracy-to-come with which Sam Warner had been arguing for and about with his brothers and with others from the stage of the old Manhattan Opera House and elsewhere. Certainly, it was "The Jazz Singer" that made a new business of this business and established the priority in commercial pioneering which had marked and checkered the course of the Warner Brothers in this new-fangled thing called talking pictures. . . .

Only ten years. An amazingly short time and, at once, an amazingly long time. Brief as the history of any industry goes, but long and very long indeed in accomplishment. In the confusion that trailed the discovery that films had found tongue and could make fortunes while they did so, the transformation through which the industry was compelled to go eventualized itself into a major operation, performed with skill and enterprise and full restoration of health to the patient.

We suppose in these latter days when silent films are thought about in the same approach as museum pieces, few bother to recall those hectic days when the fight for reproducing equipment raged up and down the land, when the studios stumbled and fumbled over the manner and means of making silent pictures part talkers and part talkers all talkers, when interchangeability fumed and fussed as one of the vital issues of the times. Yet, in its overall aspects, it was a magnificent job of readjustment. . . .

Magnificent, as well, was the speed and the intelligence applied to the learning of the new formula—what it could do and could not and how. Today, when Hollywood is turning out for a contented public, one attraction more worthwhile than the other, time appears to be lacking for a throwback to the dimming days when the history of a new entertainment format within the old was being registered. But because it is a mere ten years, or a fleck on the accumulations of time, there can be nothing remiss, for this once, at least, in fastening attention to the magnitude of a task, gargantuan and overwhelming, but, nevertheless, eminently well done. . . .

Ascap Florida Case Comes Up Next Week

Ascap's petition for an injunction to restrain Florida state officials from enforcing the law barring the organization from operating within the state, which was passed at the last session of the legislature, has been prepared by Schwartz & Frohlich, Ascap attorneys, and will be filed with the Federal court at Tallahassee next week.

The action will be the fourth which the society has advanced this year to nullify measures designed to prevent its licensing activities within individual states. A fifth and final action for this year will be filed later in Tennessee. Hearings on Ascap's injunctive measures have been heard already in Montana, Washington and Nebraska, but no decisions have been handed down yet by any of the special Federal statutory courts which have heard them. The Florida and Tennessee actions follow the same pattern followed by Ascap in the other states.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 5.—The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here today refused a motion to dismiss the appeals of Mrs. William Fox and Herbert Leitstein, Fox's bookkeeper, from contempt of court citations by Federal Judge John B. Avis at Camden for refusing to testify in Fox's personal bankruptcy proceedings. The circuit court, however, will consider the dismissal motion at the time the appeals are heard.

"Counsel for Crime" will open at the Rialto Friday.

Drake Sails Today; To Be Away 2 Months

Whitford Drake, Erpi president, who will sail on the Queen Mary today for annual conferences with company representatives abroad, will be away about two months. He will visit England, France and Germany, with much of his work on the continent being concerned with international cable matters and other affairs unrelated to this industry, he said.

Drake said he did not expect any development of importance in connection with Erpi's projected disposal of its reproducing equipment business during his absence from New York. It was learned elsewhere that the most advanced of the several plans for the takeover of the theatre sound business is not being given further consideration by Erpi and Western Electric because it fails to make provision for a sufficient number of Erpi's present employes on a basis acceptable to those companies. Erpi is prepared to continue the reproducing end of its business insofar as is necessary for several additional years in the event that no acceptable offer for that portion of the business is received by the company, it was stated in official quarters.

Quebec Cardinal in Clean Pictures Move

MONTREAL, Oct. 5.—Declaring that motion pictures are a prodigious influence which "unfortunately, in the present state of things, is nearly always toward evil," Cardinal Villeneuve, head of the Roman Catholic Church in the Province of Quebec, has launched a general campaign against the 200 theatres in the cities of Quebec through a system of censorship and the establishment of a Catholic Cinema League for the faithful.

The purposes of the League are to insist on "morally sound" pictures from the producers; to establish a bureau of classification for all films marketed in Quebec, and to call upon the civil government of the province to enact laws complementary to present statutes "to assure adequate control of the industry."

receiving only $2,887,174 in gross income during the period from Sept. 1, 1936 to Aug. 31, 1937. Grand National's gross income for the fiscal year ending April 3 of this year was $1,205,651; Universal spent approximately $8,000,000 for production during the year and Samuel Goldwyn spent $3,460,645 on six features during the year ending July 3.

For 42 features, Republic spent $2,019,483 during the year ending Sept. 30 while last year's gross for Selznick International was $1,760,000.

Paramount's answer to the demand for its figures was the submission by its attorney, Walter Tullers, of its annual report to stockholders dated Jan. 2, 1937.

William J. Walsh, attorney for the board, introduced the figures in an attempt to show to what extent interstate commerce is affected by the film business. Other companies are expected to have their gross income and expenditure reports filed this week.

RKO, through a letter by Samuel J. Briskin, said that its gross revenue figures are not yet available and will have to be obtained from New York.

David Sapos, chief economist for board will arrive this week to testify on the industry's relationship to commerce.

waged throughout the 1937-38 season if necessary.

Warners were accused of taking unfair advantage of exhibitors in the situation, but William Mansell, Warner local manager, denied the charge, intimating that it may have arisen from disgruntled exhibitors. A committee was named to meet Warner officials in New York to receive assurances of neutrality in the fight.

George P. Aarons, secretary, offered a survey of the situation all over the country. Telegrams were read which claimed that Boston is 90 per cent organized, with Los Angeles claiming to be even stronger. Twin Cities reported one exhibitor in 71 buying from Paramount.

It was said that 150 theatres were represented at the meeting.

THE BIG THRILL COMES TOMORROW

when . . .

Stage Door

RKO RADIO PICTURES

OPENS AT RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL

Short Subject

"Pathe Parade"

(RKO)

There is entertainment and interest in the first of a new series, in which the activities of commercial models are outlined, in their work as mannequins or in posing for advertising illustrations. There is entertainment as four musicians attack the toy instruments at a music counter, with surprising results. The number closes with a few shots of famous and society people attending the exclusive Stork Club in New York.

Running time, 13 mins. "G."

"Whispers in the Dark"

(Paramount)

Some stupid cartoon stuff on the style of "Believe It or Leave It" serves to introduce Gus Arnheim and his band in the rendition of the title song which is one of those bouncing ball affairs. It may draw laughs and it may release hidden inhibitions from the would-be crooners in the audience. It is fair stuff. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Ostrich Feathers"

(Universal)

More or less a burlesque of African exploring activities featuring Meany, Miny and Moe. They use clever methods to obtain the tail plumage of ostriches and get banged around considerably. The short is spectacular and the animation amusing. Running time, 7½ mins. "G."

"Should Wives Work?"

(RKO)

There are a handful of real laughs in this comedy, chiefly supplied by the rubber-legged Leon Errol. His wife insists on going to work, and he is more than a little disturbed to find her as his boss's secretary, after he has threatened to fire any man whose wife is in his employ. His efforts, with a friend to keep the boss in the dark at a conference at his home, when they are forced to stay overnight, affords an opportunity for the short's amusing moments.

Running time, 20 mins. "G."

"Picking Pets"

(Rice-Paramount)

There is an entirely new type of humor in this Sportlight. It consists of hilarious shots of a strange assortment of bears, badgers, cheetahs, kangaroos and a baby panda. They are the young of the species and their waddles and other cute movements will prove highly satisfactory and humorous. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Coronet Using New Plan

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5.—First use of the 14-passenger plane bought by Coronet Pictures, producing Buck Jones action pictures for Columbia release, will be in transporting personnel working in "West of Broadway" to and from imperial Valley. It's a story of the lettuce fields trouble and its reverberations in the New York produce racket. In December Lincoln Garland will pilot the personnel of "Ghost Ship," a story based on the lost Russian flight, into the Alaskan terrain. Ewing Scott will direct this picture, to be produced by L. G. Leonard.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Over the Goal"

(First National)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5.—Made to accommodate a seasonal market, "Over the Goal" is a topical football picture. It is geared to a little more melodramatic premise than others of its character, but it does not offer much that is new or anything different from many which have gone before. Chock full of standby heroics and villainy, plus that full quota of do-or-die-for-dear-old-alma-mater spirit, the story this time concerns a player whose sweetheart makes him give up football before he is seriously injured. Then occurs all the old stock stuff, a great deal of which is very much exaggerated. However, when the fortunes of the eleven are at the lowest ebb, the hero risks life and limb to cause the heavies to be hoist by their own petards and bring joy and happiness for everybody else.

The cast is lengthy. Even the 1937 U. S. C. football squad is included. The real football players go about their business all right, but of the others, interest accrues only to William Hopper, the hero, and Johnnie Davis, the comic.

William Jacobs, who wrote the original, collaborated with Anthony Coldeway on the screen play. Noel Smith directed and Brian Foy produced.

Running time, 63 minutes. "G."

"Here's Flash Casey"

(G.N.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5.—Eric Linden and Boots Mallory are top names available in this picturization of the George Harmon Coxe story, "Return Engagement." The picture is better than either its original or final title suggests and ranks well up among the more moderate productions of contemporary release. It may have a special billing value in many localities in that it deals with the candid camera fad in an interesting and informative manner.

Eric Linden is the candid shutter snapper whose ups and downs are principally concerned. He manages to wangle his way through college with the help of his lens manipulations, obtains a newspaper job through happenstance, snapping the publisher's son in romantic proximity to an actress somewhat less than approved parentally, and becomes enamored of Miss Mallory, a sob sister. Later a professional blackmailer gains his confidence and uses the fruits of his camera for ulterior purposes which wind up in plentiful fisticuffs, a gangster murder, an abduction, and, of course, a happy ending.

John Krafft's screenplay is lightly and lucidly done. Director Lynn Shores extracts full value from materials placed at his disposal by associate producer Alfred Stern. The result, while not tremendous in its relation to the general status of the nation's box-office, should please generally.

Running time, 63 minutes. "G."

"Youth on Parole"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 5.—Designed to stir audience sympathy for a boy and girl who find the going more than difficult after an unjust jail sentence, "Youth on Parole" suceeds in an unpretentious fashion in conveying its premise, and its plea for a better chance for those trying to live down prison sentences. There is at the same time a touch of action in the activities of a gang of jewel thieves, and a pleasant romance interlarded throughout.

Gordon Oliver and Marian Marsh are entirely satisfactory in their roles. Oliver, with an attractive personality and capable performance, giving promise for the future. Margaret Dumont and Miles Mander are among the supporting players. Phil Rosen's direction is commendable if not outstanding, in the handling of the original screenplay by Hershel Rebuas.

Oliver and Miss Marsh, strangers, are framed by jewel robbers as they stand before a store window. Packed off to jail for two years, they are model prisoners and are released in 18 months. They go their separate ways, but come together, seeking companionship in their misery, as successive job doors are closed to them. They fall in love, find small jobs but lose them when word of their prison records comes to their employers. In a last desperate effort, they seek out the gang leader who framed them, and with police cooperation trap them and cause their arrest, bringing for themselves complete exoneration.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

The Newsreel Parade

"Movietone News"
Vol. 20, No. 7
(20th Century-Fox)

In its various departments this issue provides interest and evolves as satisfactory newsreel. The lead clip shows President Roosevelt visiting Canada. Next is a demonstration of chemical warfare at the Edgewood Arsenal in Maryland. In other sequences King Christian of Denmark opens a new bridge, Anthony Eden speaks at Geneva and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor are seen in Paris. Winter evening gowns are paraded before the camera by pretty models. In Hollywood Eleanor Holm meets Glenn Morris and "Jiggs," a chimpanzee. Lew Lehr does his usual stuff with a school in Kansas that has only one pupil attending. The scoring plays in three of last weekend's football games are taken care of by Ed Thorgersen.

Running time, 10½ mins. P.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 205
(M-G-M)

A punchy reel with plenty of action. The shots of two gridiron games, that of Nebraska downing Minnesota and Cornell besting Colgate are thrilling. The producers of the newsreel have extra footage on both games which are to be provided theatre accounts in both upstate New York and Nebraska towns.

President Roosevelt on his visit to Victoria, B. C., opens. He is then shown on his way back to this country, stopping over at the Grand Coulee Dam in the state of Washington. Two dictators, Mussolini and Hitler, meet and the rousing reception is covered from many angles.

Edgar Hoover's "G" men in target practice at Quantico, Va., the Duke and Duchess of Windsor on a shopping tour in Paris preliminary to their trip to the U. S., members of the American Legion visiting the graves of their former buddies in France and the unveiling of a statue of Marshal Foch, and the Fidelity Prize Race at Belmont with 30,000 turf fans on edge make up the balance.

Above the average reel with a little of something to please everybody. Running time, 10 mins. O.

Paramount News
No. 18
(Paramount)

This is a good, live release, offering as diversified a selection of subjects as the front page of a daily newspaper and enhancing them with excellent narration, photography and sound effects.

The European news selections are particularly well handled and of high topical interest. They include shots of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, who are back on the front pages of the metropolitan press currently with their plans for an early visit to America. Intimate and significant glimpses of Mussolini's visit to Hitler furnish an apt prelude to shots of activities along the French-Spanish border, which may be opened to supplies for Loyalist Spain. The European section, all of which is narrated by Frank Knight, concludes with coverage of the impressive funeral of ex-President Masaryk of Czechoslovakia.

Gabriel Heatter narrates the incidents attendant upon the seating of Hugo Black with the reconvening of the Supreme Court on Monday. Undistinguished, but of high topical interest in many sections of the country. Camera glimpses of spectacular play in both the Army-Clemson and Minnesota-Nebraska games take care of the new football season adequately, while the running of the Futurity at Belmont Park rounds out the sports coverage. This brings the reel to a last subject—J. Edgar Hoover's G-men exhibiting their skill with firearms, the single non-news clip of this release, which, after all, is a good enough average for anyone's reel these days.

Running time, 9 minutes. K.

Cut China Scenes

Boston, Oct. 5.—Scenes of violence in the Japanese-Chinese conflict were eliminated from Universal News by Massachusetts censors acting under the Sunday laws. Bodies lying in the street and others being thrown into a ditch were ordered not shown.

Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 22
(RKO)

Pathe has seven subjects in its latest release. It leads off with a new slant on the Justice Black controversy by showing Albert Leavitt, the former U. S. Assistant Attorney General who is challenging the legality of Black's appointment, ascending the Supreme Court Bldg. steps, and then lets Heywood Broun express himself. Broun says no man is judged entirely on his past and every dog is entitled to one bite—Black's bite in this case being his Klan membership 15 years ago. It's a good controversial number.

Clem McCarthy can certainly add drama to sporting scenes. His description of Menow's victory in the Belmont Futurity as the horses race down the stretch is great. His handling of the Cornell-Colgate football game also is first class. Exceptional photography distinguishes the latter.

President Roosevelt is shown inspecting the Grand Coulee Dam. This is a routine clip. The same can be said for shots of oil well drilling in the Gulf of Mexico.

The arrival of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor in Paris is timely, in view of the renewed interest in their movements as a result of announcement of their impending American visit.

Considerable activity is shown among Japanese troops, but the Oriental hostilities seem to be lagging at the moment.

Running time, 9 mins. J.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 9, No. 603.
(Universal)

A well-diversified reel interesting in content, is offered by Universal, combining sports action, unconscious comedy and significance. Of dramatic value is the sharp attack on parole boards launched by G-Man Chief Hoover, seconded by startling examples of G-Man skill with guns. A striking shot is offered in the night shooting of a miniature house as target.

Danielle Darrieux is publicized on her arrival, and the Duke and Duchess of Windsor are caught in Paris, in timely coincidence with their reported intention to visit the U. S. Justice Black's K. K. K. statement is heard in part, against a background of family groups listening at their radios. A patriotic and colorful rally in the Austrian Tyrol is well handled. Some fast football emerges from shots of the Columbia-Williams and Notre Dame-Drake clashes, and a hearty laugh is developed in the pictures of a stray monkey which arrived at an Illinois farm, attached himself—literally—to the cows and proceeded to make them miserable. Their frantic efforts to dislodge the monkey are ludicrous.

Deal of Hoyts-Union Will Not Be Renewed

its affiliated companies, Cinesound Prod., British Empire Films and National Theatre Supplies, Rydge amplified his statement by a definite denial to "the crafty statement that a receiver has been appointed by the bank."

"How different are the facts," he said. "Our financial standing was never better, and, what is more, the board is assured of ample funds to break up the present combine and operate independently.

"Greater Union Theatres, Ltd., has always been proud of the fact that it is an all-Australian organization, owned and controlled by Australians, and working in the interests of Australia. Our policy is merely a policy of Australian independence.

"I give the lie also to the deliberately inspired rumor that Cinesound Studios will be compelled to close down forthwith. Nothing is farther from the truth. On the other hand, our board have approved of a 12-months' production plan, calling for an expenditure of no less than £100,000.

"I also refute the suggestion that we will not be operating the State Theatre, Sydney, next year.

"Despicable Lies"

"We do not know who is responsible for these statements, which are damnable, despicable lies—lies calculated to harm our undertaking. All I can say is that we are endeavouring to trace their source, and if we are able to do this, we will protect the interests of our companies by the immediate issue of writs against the persons responsible."

The suggestion that the Federal Government will give serious consideration to the advisability of regulating the distribution of available film supplies between Hoyts and Greater Union Theatres after the two circuits end their partnership on Dec. 31 is a point freely discussed by Australian film men.

The chief argument in support of this contention is that the Government may foresee the possibility of a film "corner" being created by either one circuit and in that event consider its intervention justified.

Taplinger Sells Firm to Fizdale

Robert S. Taplinger, who has been signed to a long term contract as west coast publicity director for Warners and their radio interests, has sold his publicity business, one of the most extensive in radio, to Tom Fizdale, Inc., Chicago publicists, for a reported $20,000. Irwin Nathanson, an associate of Fizdale, is already here negotiating the transfer of the Taplinger interests. Fizdale will arrive by plane this morning.

The new firm is to be known as Tom Fizdale, Inc. The Taplinger New York offices will serve as the headquarters for the Fizdale organization, with branches in Hollywood, London, Chicago and New York. The Taplinger accounts number Eddie Cantor, Burns and Allen, Kate Smith, Guy Lombardo, Bob Ripley, Nelson Eddy, Andre Kostelanetz, the Jack Oakie program, Benny Goodman, Phil Spitalny's all-girl orchestra, the Lehn and Fink program, the Sealtest program, Bing Crosby's interests and others. The Fizdale accounts include "Kaltenmeyer's Kindergarden" and "Aunt Jemima" for the Quaker Oats Co.; the General Mills programs, "National Barn Dance" and "Uncle Ezra" for Alka-Seltzer, and others. The absorption of the Taplinger business will make Fizdale, Inc., probably the biggest radio publicists in the industry.

Shift Causes Stir

The deal to bring Taplinger to Warners was consummated by Jack L. Warner, vice-president, and S. Charles Einfeld, national director of advertising and publicity for Warners, just prior to the former's departure for Europe. The story was reported exclusively by MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday and caused a tremendous buzz in radio circles. Taplinger will make his headquarters in Hollywood by Nov. 1.

Taplinger's rise has been one of the most rapid in radio annals. He joined the CBS publicity department in 1928 and resigned to enter the publicity field in 1935. Shortly after he opened offices in New York he expanded to Hollywood, Chicago and finally to London.

New Shows on the Air

"The Life of Mary Southern"

The reliable hokum is expertly weaved, acted and presented in this program. There is disillusionment, romance and comedy as the tale is unravelled. The cast performs well and the story manages to be fairly convincing.

Mary Southern is a film actress. She runs away from Hollywood and the studios, returning to her small town friends "to find love" as she puts it. Various complications are introduced after Miss Southern has her cry on a sympathetic shoulder and so goes the story with numerous familiar twists.

Hind's Honey and Almond Cream sponsors the program which is heard every weekday from 4:15 to 4:30 P.M. over the WLW line from WHN. William Esty is the agency. P.

"New Horizons"

Something entirely new and thoroughly engrossing is offered in this spot which is sponsored by the Ten Year Development Program of the American Museum of Natural History and the Columbia Dep't of Talks. The period offers various guest speakers, all of them famous explorers in their own right, who discourse on subjects close to their activities. Monday's broadcast featured Vihjalmur Stefansson, the Arctic traveler who spoke on Polar aviation. His material was exceptionally interesting as he touched upon the rescue work done in the rescue of the Russian flyers who are lost "up there." News flashes from where museum expeditions are at work are also offered giving an up-to-the-minute freshness. "New Horizons" is heard on Monday from 6:15 to 6:30 over CBS. P.

"Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe for Lysol"

Any news about the Dionne quintuplets, particularly from such a close source, should have the listeners centering their dials for this period. Dr. Dafoe gives advice on child care and also intimate and entertaining conversation about his charges. The spot is sponsored by Lysol, a Lehn and Fink product. It is heard Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 4:45 to 5 P.M. over the CBS. The program is rounded out with appropriate music. Dr. Dafoe speaks from Callander, Ont. Lennen & Mitchell, the agency. P.

"On Broadway"

First in the series of stories on men and incidents which make up the glamor and glitter of Broadway, this story was based on the alleged career of a famous columnist, Mr. Manhattan, portrayed by John Brown, and Alice Fost, his secretary, in the role of My Girl Friday.

The columnist is a sensation while his secretary, who has a crush on him, assists in getting out the daily chatter. Said columnist falls for Debutante Miss Vanner, gets swell-headed, quits and learns soon enough that his supposed friends were just images as long as his column was his popular. However, Marcia Grey doesn't forget Ted Brooks and it isn't long before she gets him his old job back and gets her heart troubles straightened out at the same time.

The script is well-handled, but the story itself is bloated with unbelievable situations. It's entertaining in a way and shouldn't be taken too seriously.

Diamond Crystal Shaker Salt sponsored over WJZ and a split NBC-Blue network Sunday from 3 to 3:30 P.M. Jean Paul King does the spiel on the product. Next week, the girl playwright who wouldn't let success go to her head will be dramatized. Benton and Bowles, the agency. O.

"Headlines and Bylines"

Three important commentators, H. V. Kaltenborn, Bob Trout and D. R. Bader discuss international news developments of the week in a manner which impresses. The trio will be a regular feature Sunday nights from 10:30 to 11 over WABC and the CBS system.

Trout took over the microphone first and talked about President Roosevelt's tour, Shanghai and Spanish war developments, Hitler, the Duke of Windsor, Supreme Court Justice Black, the Denver convention of the A. F. of L. and the death of Ed. Howe, editor of the Atchinson Globe, Atchinson, Kan.

Bader compared the Black situation with the Dreyfus case and outlined innumerable facts concerning both.

Kaltenborn was impressive. He has a clear and distinct voice and gives emphasis to his reading. This was lacking with Bader, who fumbled and read his lines ineffectually.

Among the subjects discussed by Kaltenborn, and he seemed to have plenty of background to know what he was talking about, were the alarm being shown in France due to the drop in the franc, the Spanish war and how Great Britain and France view it, Mussolini's visit to Germany, and the Sino-Japanese warfare. The commentator goes as far as to give his own opinions on some of the foreign topics and they seemed to be well-reasoned views. O.

Madison Personal Loan Show

Nat Brusiloff and his orchestra, Jane Clifton, blues singer; Jack Eigen, gossiper announcer, and Bob Parker, singer, set a fast pace for this half hour show which went on at 9:30 Sunday nights over WMCA and to be heard every week day night thereafter. Madison Personal Loan is the sponsor with Don Kerr handling the commercial boost.

Helen Morgan was the guest star of the evening, sang one song toward the end and bowed out. The number she did was "He's Just My Bill," from "Showboat."

A rendition of "You Can't Have Everything" by the orchestra opened the show with Miss Clifton following with "That Old Feeling" in blues tempo. Eigen came on next with his "Broadway Newsreel," a few gossip items about stars and personalities of the day. Parker then sang "Star Dust on the Moon." The musicians played an unannounced tune and Miss Clifton took the spotlight again with "Just Foolin' Myself."

"The Bolero Lady," which was said to be an original composition by Brusiloff, was then heard and was followed by Parker singing "Remember Me?" Miss Morgan followed and the orchestra closed with "High, Wide and Handsome." O.

"Back Home"

A Sunday afternoon spot that offers dramatized events from the life and times of James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet. The characterizations, dialogue, acting and atmosphere are effectively re-created. The poet's admirers will be pleased.

The material flashes from various settings. Sunday's broadcast was a chapter that concerned Riley's visit to New York. It was then the colorful Gotham of Mark Twain, Diamond Jim Brady and Lillian Russell. The names of Delmonico's and Sherry's figured in the action. Later, the story moved to Indiana where a comfortable mood was established with the homey characters that live in Riley's poetry. The period finished with the reading of "At Aunt Mary's. It is very well done and pleasant.

The program is a sustainer. It originates in Chicago and is offered over the NBC-Blue on Sunday from 1:30 to 2 P.M. P.

Mary Margaret McBride

Gossipy, with a charming flair for skipping from one thing to another and doing it all with a pleasant Missouri drawl, Miss McBride opened her series yesterday. She merely introduced herself to the radio audience, briefly, in autobiographical form, telling how she was born in Missouri, went to college, came to New York with a desire to write "deathless prose," and got a job on a paper. Her journalistic career was a merry-go-round of fires, climbing the ladder of the Quarantine cutter with the wind blowing her skirts about her head, and many other adventures.

Miss McBride also plugs her sponsor's product, Minute Tapioca, at intervals. She promised to tell about wild horses on Wednesday. The broadcast is heard from 12 to 12:15 P.M., Monday, Wednesday and Friday over CBS. General Foods sponsors. Young & Rubicam is the agency. P.

"Bicycle Party"

The Cycle Trades of America sponsor this Sunday afternoon spot. It offers cycling information, gifts, blackface comedy, music by Hugo Mariana and various guests. The guest on last Sunday's broadcast was Jim Crowley, the guiding spirit of the Fordham Rams. Bert Whalen, a baritone, handled the solo vocals in good style.

The period will be found entertaining by many listeners and the offer of 15 "wheels" should bring in the expected response. The variety entertainment is well-rounded.

"Bicycle Party" is offered on Sunday from 3:30 to 4 P.M. over the NBC-Red network. Campbell-Ewald is the agency. P.

"Children's Corner"

Dorothy Gordon's "Children's Corner" series, winner of the National Radio Women's Committee award for being the best program of its type in radio, well merits this distinction. Miss Gordon for years has specialized in the field of building and creating entertainment suitable to be heard by children. She has succeeded admirably.

Creating the illusion of a treasure bag by means of excellently conveyed sound effects, Miss Gordon pulls out songs, stories and games, performing all chores herself. She has an excellent singing voice and tells her stories well. Her treasure bag Monday yielded two songs, "The Lilac Tree," written by the superintendent of schools in New York, and "Slumber Song," plus the Greek mythology tale of the "Three Golden Apples."

As part of her program, Miss Gordon asks the youngsters to organize singing groups in their homes. A great many such groups have been formed.

"Children's Corner" is offered over the coast-to-coast CBS network Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 5:45 to 6 P. M. BANNER

"Zion Variety Show"

"Zion Variety Show," a new Monday evening presentation over WMCA, attempts to transcend racial lines by offering entertainment in Jewish and English. Jewish stage stars are featured and the songs they offer are the traditional melodies of that race.

The program features a choral group, Bobby Miller, a boy with a high tenor voice; and a dramatized episode titled the "Jewish Events of the Week." The program is shakiest in this department, as the dramatizations are far from well done. The guest star was Gertrude Bolton, currently co-featured with Molly Picon in an East Side comedy-drama. Zion National Kosher Products sponsor the series, which is offered Mondays from 7:30 to 8 P. M. BANNER

Shift "Homemakers' Exchange"

"Homemakers' Exchange," heard last year over CBS, will be heard over NBC beginning Nov. 30. National Ice Advertising Co. will sponsor, through Donohue & Coe.

Featuring Elinore Howe in home economic talks, the series will be broadcast over the Red network, Tuesdays and Thursdays from 11:30 to 11:45 A. M., with a repeat for the west coast, from 12:45 to 1 P. M.

NBC Staffs Being Reduced

To combat costs mounting more rapidly than revenue is the official explanation offered by NBC for the discharges now swinging through various departments. During the past few days approximately 25 members of the statistical and cost accounting departments have been given notices. How many, if any more, cuts will be made is not known.

Para. Appeal Is Argued at Philadelphia

Decision Is Reserved by U. S. Circuit Bench

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 6.—Paramount's appeal from Federal Judge Oliver B. Dickinson's decision dismissing the company's conspiracy action against local exhibitors participating in the "buyers' strike" against the company was heard today by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here. The court reserved decision on the appeal.

William A. Schnader, local counsel for Paramount, argued the appeal. He charged that the U. M. P. T. O. and other exhibitor defendants in the Paramount action engaged in an unlawful conspiracy to restrain interstate trade by provoking the alleged boycott against the company's pictures. It was also charged that the exhibitors employed coercive measures in effectuating the "buyers' strike."

Benjamin Golder, attorney for the defendant exhibitors, endeavored to

"U" Sales Force Stays Intact; Plans to Drop 144 Abandoned

The economy purge at Universal which resulted in the discharge of approximately 112 employes at the home office last week will not touch the sales force, here in New York or at any point throughout the country.

Plans had been tentatively made to reduce exchange employes nationally by 144 and, it is understood, were discussed at a meeting of the company's advisory board Monday evening, following the return of James R. Grainger from a sales trip. Decision then was reached not to make a solitary slash, thereby lifting from the minds of men in the field any concern over the future of their jobs.

Appeal from Verdict Considered by Frels

DALLAS, Oct. 6.—Ruben Frels, independent south Texas exhibitor, who yesterday lost his damage suit for $600,000, against the Jefferson Amusement Co., and several major distributors, is considering an appeal of the directed verdict by Federal Judge William H. Atwell.

The verdict was ordered on the ground that Frels had failed to make a case, and followed a motion by counsel for the defense, made as the plaintiff's testimony was completed. The trial had opened on Monday. Frels had contended that after the Jefferson Amusement Co. had begun renting theatres in the towns in which he operated, his supply of major films dwindled until he was forced out of business.

There are already four first runs here, three of which are operated by Wilmer & Vincent and one by Loew's.

CEA, FBI Ask Extension of Gov't Control

Also Urge Modification Of Double Quota

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 6.—A greater measure of Government control over the film industry in England is expected to be urged by the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Assn., and the Film Group of the Federation of British Industries.

The extension of control is expected to be urged in the form of an official film commission representing the Government, instead of the advisory committee as recommended in the Government White Paper on the proposed new Films Act, which will replace the present legislation, expiring next year.

Committees of the C.E.A. and the Film Group have discussed joint action on the Films bill, and formal conferences are scheduled to be held following the endorsement of the committee recommendations by the councils of the two organizations.

The joint suggestions are expected also to ask for modification of the double quota provision as proposed, on the ground that the provision will tend to reduce footage and decrease employment. The double quota recommendation provides that pictures of a certain caliber in negative cost may be counted for double footage in the quota.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Awful Truth"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—The awful truth about "The Awful Truth" is that it makes Columbia's prize picture of long standing, "It Happened One Night," look like an amateur performance of "Charley's Aunt." Whether or not it collects the cavalcade of honors that picture did when the Academicians have completed their balloting for 1937, it is, on the basis of response accorded its unveiling before a hypercritical preview audience recently surfeited with comedies, a faster, funnier and finer production.

That it will meet with equivalent or greater response when set before King Public is as certain as any conclusion predicated on recorded precedent and guinea pig test may be. That it lifts Irene Dunne, Cary Grant, Ralph Bellamy and Alexander Darcy to stratospheric heights with Cecil Cunningham, Joyce Compton and Esther Dale trailing close behind is as undebatable as the distinction it confers upon Leo McCarey as a director second to none in the rarified field of smart comedy. The screenplay by Vina Delmar from the play by Arthur Richman is a signal achievement in the art of bringing to the screen without loss of verve and with gain of freshness that brittle, often quasi-risque, type of humorous stage narrative so frequently broken on the wheel of adaptation.

With dozens of chances to let the story slip into the treacherous half-world of dubious bedroom farce, Miss Delmar kept it safe on the high road of frank amusement for family consumption. That is not to say that it is all innocuous complication and confusion, but rather that the essentially adult motives, causes and effects are treated as civilized adults treat them in the presence of other adults, octogenarians or infants.

Miss Dunn and Grant are modern young married folks of means who decide too quickly upon divorce as a means of settling a tiff which results from his coming to find his wife returning unexpectedly from an unannounced trip into the country with her male voice tutor. She is granted a 90-day interlocutory decree and affiances herself to Oklahoma Millionaire Bellamy.

Grant becomes engaged to a debutante. Disillusionments come to both. On the evening of the 90th day she calls upon his fiancee and family, posing as Grant's sister, and shocks them with feigned crudities. He takes her away forcibly and they wind up in her aunt's country place where they manage to effect cancellation of the interlocutory decree with scant moments to spare by the cuckoo clock.

Miss Dunne's performance is far and away her finest, revealing a brilliant talent for touch-and-go repartee. Grant's assignment is in the general pattern of his role in "Topper," but more rounded and ideally executed. Bellamy's portrayal of the blunt westerner is an impressive demonstration of an unsuspected feel for comedy.

Unlike most of the many light comedies offered in the recent swift succession of declared rib-ticklers, Associate Producer Everett Riskin's offering makes use of no formula dumbbells, dead pan manservants, caricatured relations or detectives, and stands therefore at the head of the list as of this date. Even the dog which figures vitally in the story acts like a dog.

"The Awful Truth" is Columbia at its best in the "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" and "It Happened One Night" mood, and that's as good as any showman or showgoer wants any picture to be.

Running time, 89 minutes. "G."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Awful Truth"

(Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—The awful truth about "The Awful Truth" is that it makes Columbia's prize picture of long standing, "It Happened One Night," look like an amateur performance of "Charley's Aunt." Whether or not it collects the cavalcade of honors that picture did when the Academicians have completed their balloting for 1937, it is, on the basis of response accorded its unveiling before a hypercritical preview audience recently surfeited with comedies, a faster, funnier and finer production.

That it will meet with equivalent or greater response when set before King Public is as certain as any conclusion predicated on recorded precedent and guinea pig test may be. That it lifts Irene Dunne, Cary Grant, Ralph Bellamy and Alexander Darcy to stratospheric heights with Cecil Cunningham, Joyce Compton and Esther Dale trailing close behind is as undebatable as the distinction it confers upon Leo McCarey as a director second to none in the rarified field of smart comedy. The screenplay by Vina Delmar from the play by Arthur Richman is a signal achievement in the art of bringing to the screen without loss of verve and with gain of freshness that brittle, often quasi-risque, type of humorous stage narrative so frequently broken on the wheel of adaptation.

production losses amounting to £766,809, which are reduced by £200,000 from a special reserve created last year; income tax, debenture sinking fund and interest reserve for amortization and depreciation, plus the preference dividend paid last March, for a grand total of £1,112,047, making a net balance of £31,953 carried forward. The balance compares with £196,756 last year.

No dividend on the ordinary shares is provided for. The transfer from reserve of the £435,278 was necessary to balance the production losses, concerning which the report states: "The directors have considered it prudent to cease production at the Shepherd's Bush studio." The report refers to the deal with General Film Distributors, declaring it "should be favorably reflected in the future accounts of the corporation. The realization of film stocks is effecting a gradual reduction of the bank overdraft."

The overdraft amounts to £819,778, against £1,149,785. Film productions amount to £77,962, against £521,257. The failure to recover from the United States a proportion of the production costs, is stated as the cause of the losses of G.B. Distributors.

The first impression in most quarters is that the discontinuance of production will result in the company showing a real profit in the new year, but a stormy meeting is expected as the result of the passing of the dividend for the second year.

Witness Intimidation Is Charged by Guild

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 6.—After William J. Walsh, special Regional Labor Board attorney, with the introduction of more financial matters concluded temporarily his presentation in the hearing of the Screen Writers Guild petition for a collective bargaining agency election, Guild Attorney Leonard S. Janofsky today precipitated oral battles by getting into the record the fact that his writer witnesses had demanded subpoenas "to protect them in their jobs because of what they will testify here."

Janofsky presented an application to subpoena writers Brian Marlow, Sheridan Gibney and Sherman Lowe, at present working in studios, indicating a fear of possible reprisals but counsel for the respondent companies and Screen Playwrights, Inc., bitterly fought the intimations. The studio attorneys stipulated that all the time needed from their duties would be afforded the Guild witnesses but Janofsky insisted upon subpoena issuances. Applications under the new board ruling must go to Washington for confirmation.

Pioneer Testifies

Frank Woods, veteran of the industry and first witness for the guild, told of the formation in 1920 of the Screen Writers Guild of the Authors League of America and of the Screen Writers Guild of California Corp. and traced to 1927 the attempts of the guilds which he said were the same organizations to bargain collectively with producers.

Woods also told of formation of the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences at a private dinner party given by Louis B. Mayer at the Biltmore Hotel in May, 1927. When counsel for the respondents objected to this as immaterial Janofsky stated it was important in showing the Academy's part in writer contract negotiations.

Ewell Moore, first attorney for the Writers Guild and now attorney for the Home Owners Loan Corp., here, took the stand to identify documents regarding the early life of the Guild.

The hearing adjourned until Friday to give Trial Examiner William Ringer and witnesses an opportunity to visit M-G-M.

Ascap's Quarter Earnings at Peak

Ascap's earnings for the third quarter, ended Sept. 30, provide the largest net distribution to members of any similar quarter in the organization's history. The amount available for distribution for the period was estimated yesterday at $984,000 by John G. Paine, chairman of the Ascap administrative committee. This compares with $949,000 for the same period last year, which was the organization's previous high for a third quarter distribution.

The society's record earnings for the period were realized despite the fact that no revenue was received during the quarter from five states which have enacted legislation barring Ascap from operating therein. Those states are Montana, Washington, Nebraska, Tennessee and Florida. Had operations been on a normal basis in all five, the society's distribution for the period might have been increased by $150,000, it was estimated.

Ascap has issued invitations to all foreign composers' and authors' societies to hold their annual international convention in New York next year, Paine said. The foreign societies' conference usually is held in May or June.

Increases Spread in Wilmington Theatres

WILMINGTON, Oct. 6. — Admission prices in almost all of the 12 theatres have been increased from five to ten cents.

Loew's Parkway and the Aldine, Stanley-Warner first run, had the sharpest increases from 40 to 50 cents in the evenings, tax included. The Rialto, a first run independent, made a five-cent increase.

Matinee hours at reduced admissions were changed by some theatres and others made straight increases.

Other houses reporting increases were the Arcadia and Queen, second run Stanley-Warner houses, and the Park, an independent neighborhood. The Park increased from 20 to 25 cents on Oct. 2 when the theatre was reopened after alterations.

Regular admissions are still being charged at the Grand Opera House and Savoy by Stanley-Warner, and at the Strand, an independent neighborhood. The Ace, another neighborhood independent, increased from 20 to 25 cents last February.

Raise Iowa Admissions

DES MOINES, Oct. 6.—The Central States Theatre Corp. has raised admissions five cents in Iowa. Theatres in the larger cities with a previous price of 35 cents have been raised to 40 cents and the B theatres in the smaller towns now are up to 35 cents. The price raise was tried out first in Mason City, Ia., and found very successful.

Increase Scale at Lincoln

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 6.—The first price raise in nearly a year is Milt Overman's change at the Varsity from 10c-15c to 10c-20c-25c on the same basis with the opposition Lincoln. The Overman, on duals for the summer, will go to single features.

Berlin Theatres Slump

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—The summer slump has hit the theatres of Berlin, according to a report to the U. S. Dep't of Commerce from Assistant Commercial Attache R. M. Stevenson. The 401 theatres operating in June hit a season low, with 3,345,405 persons paying 2,634,202 marks, as against the 1937 high in March, when with one more theatre, 6,653,766 paid 5,418,152 marks.

Plan 3 in Wisconsin

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 6.—Three new theatres are planned for Wisconsin. They include a house at Kaukauna by William Van Dyke, operator of the present Vaudette; a new 450-seat house at Elroy by Eskin Theatres, Inc., and a new 600-seat house at De Pere by W. R. Vincent, operator of houses in De Pere, Oconto Falls, Denmark and Oconto. All are slated to open before the first of the year.

Commonwealth Expands

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 6.—Commonwealth Amusement Corp., operating over 25 theatres in Kansas, Missouri and Iowa, has acquired the 400-seat Plaza at Neosho, Mo., from N. W. Huston. Huston operates in Columbus, Kan., also.

Commonwealth already is a partner in the Fotosho and Orpheum at Neosho with Hugh Gardner and Ed Harris.

Looking 'Em Over

"Moonlight on the Range"

(Spectrum)

The title has little to do with the story in this western. It serves merely as a label, something which serves to identify. The film otherwise is fast-moving stuff with humorous asides and some snappy dialogue. Of course, the rip-roaring and noisy action is scattered here and there and a noisy fist fight brings things to a conclusion.

Fred Scott is featured in "Moonlight on the Range." He sings with an excellent baritone voice and puts a few stirring numbers across very well.

When his best friend is murdered by "Killer" Dane, Scott sets out to avenge his death. He soon discovers that the culprit is his cattle-rustling half-brother. He joins up with Lois January's outfit and soon is devoting his spare time when he is not otherwise engaged in singing and romancing, to tracking down the outlaw. With much action and riding the piece soon after comes to its proper end.

Al St. John provides plenty of laughs as the comedy relief. Sam Newfield directed.

Running time, 62 minutes. "G."

British Vaudeville Opposes "Doublings"

LONDON, Sept. 26.—A ballot of members of the Variety Artistes Federation has shown 943 votes against and 49 votes for the practice of "turn working" or "doubling" in provincial theatres.

The vote was arranged as a result of negotiations between the V.A.F. and Union Cinemas, Ltd., which had started the practice of playing stage acts in two theatres in the same town. V.A.F. rules bar doubling except in London, but Union claimed it was unable to pay the salaries demanded by good acts unless it could spread the charge over more than one theatre.

The V.A.F. decision, which reiterates the prohibition of doubling out of London, is likely to act as a check on any general tendency on the part of film exhibitors to take up vaudeville.

Bartholomew Case To Be Heard Oct. 15

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 6.—M-G-M is scheduled to go into Superior Court here Oct. 15 to follow up its preliminary court victory, in its attempt to prevent Freddie Bartholomew from "jumping" his contract, entered into in September, 1934.

The trial date was set by Superior Judge Emmett H. Wilson, who issued an order restraining Freddie from working for any other studio, and upheld the validity of the state statute covering minors' contracts, in a strongly worded opinion. The trial will be before another judge.

The attack on the constitutionality of the statute was the first since its enactment in 1927. Attorneys for the young actor contended it was unconstitutional because it set apart the contracts of minors who were performing dramatic and picture work, and did not apply to contracts made by minors for other services.

Judge Wilson held that the statute did not make an arbitrary or discriminatory classification and that because of the character of the work performed, it was not in violation of the constitution.

The law is not to the detriment of minors, he pointed out, but favors them by protecting them against unfair and unjust contracts.

"I have had nearly 100 contracts before me for approval within the last seven months," the jurist said. "A number of these failed to pass scrutiny of the court and were rejected because they were not bona fide employment contracts but were plainly obtained by irresponsible persons seeking to exploit the services of the minor among the various studios."

establish a legal difference between a primary and secondary boycott. Citing U. S. Supreme Court decisions, Golder contended that the "buyers' strike" was a "secondary" boycott and not in violation of the anti-trust laws. His argument was replete with quotations from Judge Dickinson's opinion, which held that the company's pictures were not in interstate commerce at the time of the "strike" and, therefore, outside the jurisdiction of the Federal court.

The court's decision is expected within the next week or two.

Hedges Resignation Caused by Friction

CINCINNATI, Oct. 6.—The background of the controversy which led to the resignation of William S. Hedges as vice-president of the Crosley Radio Corp. and general manager of stations WLW and WSAI came to light today, While Hedges was absent in New York recently during the IRNA meetings, Robert Jennings, son-in-law of Powell Crosley, Jr., president of the Crosley Corp., was appointed program director of both stations. Other appointments were made without consulting Hedges, according to report.

Upon his return from New York, Crosley, it is reported, refused to see Hedges for 10 days. It was the combination of these reputed circumstances which led to Hedges' resignation.

Hedges' future plans are indefinite. The appointment of Jennings, it is understood, is temporary.

Before coming here Hedges was general manager of NBC managed and operated stations, and previously directed WMAQ, Chicago, and KDKA, Pittsburgh.

Arrangers Seeking Their Own Charter

Musical arrangers are negotiating for a separate charter for a new Arrangers' Guild. The purpose of the guild is to win for arrangers recognition for their work. Joe Glover is head of a committee working out the proposal. The new guild, according to Glover, will not conflict with the jurisdictional power of the American Federation of Musicians.

Among the demands voiced by the arrangers are credit announcements on network programs, credit announcements on recordings and program credits on musical films and stage productions.

Ferris and Fizdale Conclude Agreement

Ferris, now on the coast, leaves there today for Chicago where he will open an office of Radio Feature Service, with Roger Doulins in charge. Norval Burch, at present handling Chicago accounts for Radio Feature Service, will remain in the new Chicago office under Doulins' supervision.

New Shows on the Air

"Tony Wons and His Scrapbook"

If the housewife in her morning gymnastics with the vacuum cleaner takes Tony Wons' advice and lets things go for a little while, she will be amply entertained and doubtless get a pleasant mental stimulant. His delivery is easy and Ann Leaf's organ music goes to make a nice combination. Wons reads his simple stanzas and discourses on child training, too. In yesterday's broadcast he also revealed some humorous aspects of etiquette. Vicks' sponsors the "Scrapbook." It is heard over CBS thrice-weekly, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, from 10:30 to 10:45 A. M. The program is handled by the Morse International Agency. P.

"Follow the Moon"

A nicely fashioned story, well acted and interestingly developed. It begins with a pair of honeymooners, Jean and Clay Bannister, as they are sailing to Honolulu. On board the ship the pair meet an old schoolmate of Bannister's. The story receives its mystery angle from the queer attitude of the man and no doubt carries on adequately from that point. Lehn & Fink sponsor the show for Pebeco. It is to be heard every weekday from 5:00 to 5:15 P.M. over the CBS Lennen & Mitchell is the agency. P.

"Honeymooners"

Grace and Eddie Albert do not have much opportunity to do their stuff on this 10-minute spot. Their script is brief plus a song and a gag and, with the interruption of the announcer to plug the sponsor, the program is over before you know it. The Olson Rug Co. sponsors the period which goes on from 9:30 to 9:40 A. M. on Wednesday, over WEAF. Presba, Fellows & Presba is the agency. P.

"The Fun Bug"

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—"The Fun Bug" leaves considerable to be desired in the way of mirthful entertainment if the second program of the series is any criterion. The talent used on the program is composed largely of amateurs who lack the necessary polish and showmanship to make it stand up in competition with shows offering more professional artists.

Leading attraction on the half hour show is the singing of The Tulsans, a 60-voice chorus which lacked the sureness which would have put more vim into the musical numbers offered. The quality of the vocal numbers offered was excellent, but the singing lacked a touch of inspiration. The Tulsa orchestra under the direction of Michael Cooles was satisfactory. So was the conducting of the singing by Choirmaster Harry Evans.

Patti Kelly, youthful marimba artist, was notable for her rendition of selections from the "Poet and Peasant." "The Fun Bug," to radio audiences, is mostly sound effect and is used to promote mirth at various intervals from the artists in the studio. Over the air it wasn't too funny.

The contest between the tenors and baritones was a carry over from the first week and is undoubtedly a running gag to be used weekly. The "Song Of The Open Road" closed the show, which is heard every Sunday over 18 CBS stations at 1-1:30 P.M. C.S.T. The Barnsdall Oil Co. is the sponsor. C.

France Plans Measure for Film Control

Adoption of Drastic Rules Would Hit Americans

By PIERRE AUTRE

PARIS, Oct. 7.—A bill which would establish regulations to govern the industry in France will be submitted for a vote at the next session of Parliament, it was decided last Saturday at a meeting of the Cabinet held at Rambouillet Castle and which was attended by President Albert LeBrun. Parliament will meet in a few weeks. The bill, which had been requested by trade unions six months ago, was presented by Minister of National Education Jean Zay. The stipulations were kept secret until today, when indiscretions revealed the main points. The measure calls for:

(1) The definition of what shall be regarded as a "French film."

(2) Establishment of conditions to govern the production of films.

(3) A state organization to decide producers' and distributors' percentages in theatres.

(4) The institution of a tri-partite board which shall include a representative of the Government and one each from the trade unions and employers which shall establish standards for the industry.

(5) The elimination of double bill programs.

A tax on dubbing is also under con-

Mussolini Reaches East; Roach Deal Reported Off

Vittorio Mussolini, son of Il Duce, arrived in New York yesterday by plane, following his sudden departure from the coast, via San Francisco, on Wednesday morning. He had been in Hollywood only 12 days of a scheduled three-week stay.

Reports were widespread throughout Hollywood yesterday that the recently completed deal between Mussolini and Hal Roach for production in Italy under the company name of RAM, had collapsed.

It was said on the coast that the action brought by Dr. Ranato Senise, seeking $30,000 damages in the RAM deal, was largely responsible for young Mussolini's sudden departure from the coast. It was further reported that Mussolini was irked by coast trade paper ads calling attention to his writings about war being a glorious adventure.

Hollywood audiences hissed newsreel shots of Mussolini generally. It was reported that the Italian consul in Los Angeles followed the usual custom of clipping newspaper and trade paper stories on Italian affairs and apparently clips of the ads and the stories on protest meetings which were held on the coast, were sent to Rome.

Wednesday morning young Mussolini and his party, traveling under the name of W. J. Willis, left for San Francisco and a night plane for New York. Accompanying him were his interpreter and a Secret Service agent

Anti-Dualists Tell Ampa How To Battle 'em

Two exponents of the latest anti-double feature movement, William R. Clay, makeup editor of the Nutley (N. J.) Sun, a weekly newspaper, and George H. Siegel, an insurance man from the same town, took the spotlight at the Ampa yesterday. The former preferred to be a silent partner while the latter acted as spokesman.

According to Siegel, the whole idea came to the two men "strictly spontaneously" after viewing a number of "atrocious features."

"The first thing we did was to can-

Para. Granted "Strike" Stay For Minnesota

Court Rules Exhibitors' Tactics Are Illegal

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 7.—Finding in favor of Paramount in its conspiracy and restraint of trade action against local exhibitors engaged in a "buyers' strike" against the company, Federal Judge Gunnar Nordbye today granted the distributor's application for an injunction to restrain the exhibitors from carrying on the "strike" by invalidated tactics.

The injunction issued today is temporary and will remain in force only until a hearing is held on a further application to make the restrainer permanent. No date for this hearing has been set yet.

Judge Nordbye's decision found the defendant exhibitors had conspired among themselves to effect the "buyers' strike" in violation of the anti-trust laws. He also found that the tactics employed tended to coerce others into refraining from contracting for Paramount pictures with a resultant interference with interstate commerce. The decision and opinion of Judge Nordbye is sharply at variance with that handed down earlier by Federal Judge Oliver Dickinson in a similar action instituted by Paramount against "striking" exhibitors in the Philadelphia area. Judge Dickinson held that due to the strike there Paramount films were not in interstate commerce at the time and the

There will be 300 feet of a sequence called "Behind the Headlines," which will be an interpretive feature. The total length of the reel will be 1,200 feet.

Foresee Sharp Fight By CEA on KRS Move

LONDON, Oct. 7.—Sharp retaliation on the part of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n is expected to follow the decision yesterday of the Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors), limiting program lengths in film rental contracts.

The decision is understood here to imply the abolition of all flat rental bookings on "A" features. Most seriously affected by the move will be the circuits, which run big bills. In some informed quarters the move is interpreted as a blow in advance of the anticipated C.E.A. agitation for lower rentals. The expected exhibitor retaliation may take the form of a concerted movement to discontinue business with the weaker distributors in an attempt to force dissension within the ranks of the K.R.S.

Arthur Loew to Tour Southern Hemisphere

Arthur Loew, vice-president of Loew's and in charge of the foreign activities for the company, will leave about Jan. 1 for a tour of South America, South Africa, India and probably Australia.

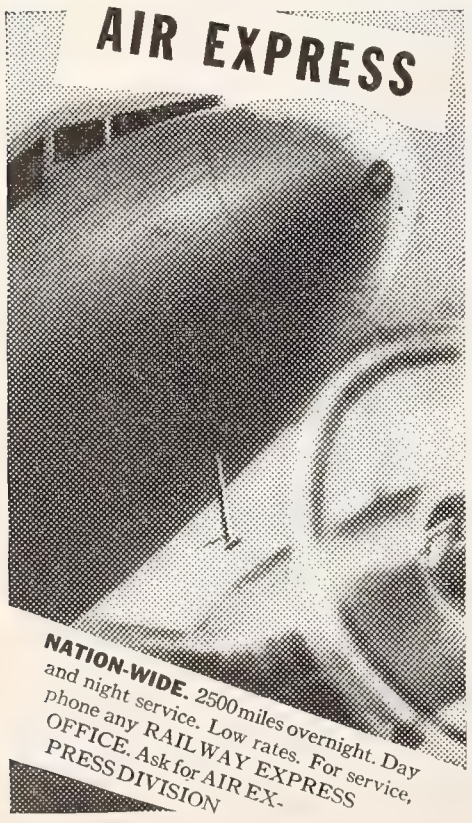
vass our friends in an experimental way. The newspapers publicized the move and then we found that the idea had national implications," Siegel said. "Letters started to pour in from Los Angeles, Kansas City, Boston and several towns in Virginia commending us on the formation of the Anti Movie Double-Feature League of America.

"We now have 65 chapters and we hope to have a representative group in each of the 48 states," he said.

Clay later told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that the Franklin at Nutley is continuing double-feature programs and if the practice is not stopped pickets will be posted, not only at this house, but at many other theatres throughout the country. Clay stated, however, that he has been successful in getting the management of the theatre to put on a trailer asking for the reaction of patrons.



Herbert Marshall Apprehensive

Herbert Marshall and Jean Muir preceded Siegel. Both apparently had been tipped off to what was coming and bemoaned their fate in the event such a move came to pass.

Other guests included Lee Patrick, RKO player; Peggy O'Donnell, who appears in the screen version of "Stage Door"; Gene and Kathleen Lockhart of "Virginia"; Ted Hammerstein, and Valentina Darde, songstress.

Paul Lazarus, Jr., presided in the absence of Ralph Rolan, who is out of town.

Douglas MacLean, former Grand National producer, also took the floor and started kidding Arthur W. Eddy, who today leaves for the coast to join the Warner publicity department. He then reminisced on his experience at a radio broadcast some time ago when Marshall was master of ceremonies.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 8
(20th Century-Fox)

The combination of President Roosevelt's speech in Chicago on violation of peace treaties and the opening game in the World Series are highlights that give this real distinction. The President's talk is a dramatic indictment against war and runs about five minutes. The fifth and sixth innings with the Giants scoring in the fifth and the Yankees clouting seven runs in the sixth stanza takes up two and a half minutes.

Following the President's denunciation of war are scenes of Japan's attack on a Chinese city from the air. Lowell Thomas, the commentator, says these are the first air pictures taken of Japanese bombings. They are vivid shots, well photographed.

Society at the last horse show of the season at Piping Rock Club on Long Island, and Lew Lehr's newsette of a man whose hobby is to decorate his home with notions made of mirrors complete the subject.

(M-G-M)

President Roosevelt's surprise speech in Chicago uses up most of the footage in this issue. Clever montage and the insertion of a map and scenes of Chinese strife are used to supplement the chief executive's talk. Japanese bombing planes in action over China follow; exciting rodeo activity in Bakersfield, Cal., and the reel closes with shots of the scoring plays in the opening game of the World Series. With only four topics, the issue makes the grade.

Running time, 10½ mins. P.

Paramount News
No. 19
(Paramount)

An entertaining, although not particularly newsworthy sequence is introduced in this issue of the Paramount reel, with flashes from the newsreel of 10 years ago, including amusing shots of airplane-building attempts of 1927.

News flashes effectively show Japanese forces working their way through the difficult terrain of north China, the arrest and return to New York from California of Max Silverman, wanted labor racketeer, and the preparation of the once-great Leviathan for the hammers of the scrap heap, made more interesting with flashes of the big ship as a liner and a troop transport during the war.

Effectively is the C.I.O.-A.F. of L. battle portrayed, with the violent call for action by William Green of the A. F. of L., followed by the sarcastic retort of John Lewis of C.I.O. The highlights of the President's speech on aggression are recorded, as spoken in Chicago, and the first game of the World Series, with that devastating Yankee attack in the sixth inning amply filmed.

Vol. 9, No. 23
(RKO)

Some shots of the Bronx sluggers in action in the first game of the World Series are outstanding in this release, primarily, however, because of the passive material surrounding them. The only other straight news clip is that of President Roosevelt making his significant foreign policy talk in Chicago. The latter subject, however, is without distinction save for the President's words themselves.

Three other subjects complete the reel. One is of Bruno Mussolini taking off in a plane and with shots of Madrid added. Obviously stock material included because of recent news reports that Il Duce's son is now flying in Spain. Another is a record Idaho cattle roundup and the last a lecture in fashion economy for women.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 9, No. 604
(Universal)

Charles Ford, editor of Universal News, has introduced an extraordinarily effective dramatic technique in illustrating President Roosevelt's Chicago talk on international relations. It serves the double purpose of introducing a variety of war scenes from Spain, Ethiopia and China and, in effect, using the President as a commentator. At the same time, it adds effectiveness to the address. When the President says: "We desire peace" the crowd is shown applauding. As his remarks turn to civil war, Spaniards are shown running for cover with machine guns. When he refers to unwarranted invasions without a declaration of war, Japanese troops are shown in action with some of the horrible details of human destruction.

The rest of the reel is made up of shots of the Giants' lone run in the first World Series game, and the destructive Yankee attack in the sixth inning that wrecked the Giants' hopes.

Salmon tagging in the Columbia River isn't news, but it's lively and photographed with attention to detail. A rodeo at Bakersfield is pretty much like all rodeos, but kids and cowboy enthusiasts will like it.

V. Mussolini In New York; Sailing Soon as bodyguard. The immediate general belief was that the Roach deal in RAM was off.

The Roach studios yesterday said that Mussolini's departure was by no means unexpected and that the dictator's son would consume some time for his trip across country visiting important American cities. The Roach executive said Mussolini had only intended staying two weeks, anyway.

The executive declared, "Roach does not know when he will be able to leave for Italy to wrap up the loose ends of the deal for RAM."

A United Airlines executive on the coast said that Mussolini was bound for New York, without stopovers.

En route to New York, interviewed yesterday in Salt Lake City and Chicago, he denied that the deal was off, and likewise denied that his father had ordered him home. Leaving San Francisco, he was quoted as saying he planned a sightseeing trip. He declared he had had no communication with his father since his arrival.

Universal, News of the Day and Paramount News men were not permitted to shoot the landing of the plane which bore Mussolini from the coast at Newark Airport yesterday. Ordered off the field, they took a stand on the "apron" and refused to budge until the police ordered them off. They then planted their cameras outside the field and shot from that angle, which permitted a scene of the plane as it taxied in.

Roach Says Suit Lacks Merit

On the coast yesterday, Roach commented on the Senise suit in this fashion: "The suit has absolutely no merit. From the standpoint of law how can damages be claimed when no deal was made?" Roach indicated that he would defend the suit if it should come to trial, but he expressed doubt that it ever will.

The suit, against Roach, his studio corporation, M-G-M, two John Doe corporations and two John Does, seeks $30,000 as the alleged share due Dr. Senise on the RAM deal. Senise charged he introduced Roach to the Italian situation and that he is being eliminated from the deal. He claimes he entered into a contract with Roach by which he was to get one-fifth of any profits made by Roach and also provided that Roach get 35 per cent of any profit of pictures if Senise negotiated a production deal.

Young Mussolini is expected to sail from New York on the Rex on Oct. 16.

Revamping of M-G-M Music Firms Is Set

the last 15 of which have been as general manager, was named general manager of the Feist company. The latter firm, in effect, is made an autonomous organization for its exclusive Metro connection, rather than being an adjunct of the publishing trio, as heretofore. The Feist firm, however, will continue to partipicate in the publishing work done by the three for other film companies, as it has in the past.

The Robbins-Feist-Miller companies publish for 20th Century-Fox, RKO, Universal, Sol Lesser and Walter Wanger, among others. The publishing work for these will continue to be divided among the three firms, whereas Robbins and Miller no longer participate in the M-G-M publishing.

Abe Olman, former general sucager of Feist, whom Bregman succeeds, replaces the latter as general manager of Robbins. Chester Cohn, general professional manager at Feist, continues in that post with the added duties of assistant to Bregman.

The Feist and Miller firms are owned by Robbins Music Corp., which in turn is 51 per cent owned by Loew's. Bregman will continue to retain his stock holdings in the Robbins firm.

Double Bills Win in Poll At St. Louis

per cent of the total of the three groups.

Clark Gable led the actors with 6,096, or 10.6 per cent of the total questionnaires answered, followed by Robert Taylor and William Powell.

Myrna Loy led the actresses with 6,209, or 10.8 per cent of the total, with Loretta Young and Claudette Colbert as runners-up.

Shirley Temple maintained her lead from the start with a final count of 19,528, or 33.9 per cent of the total. Jane Withers and Freddie Bartholomew were second and third.

The poll is regarded as important to the industry at large because 57,599 ballots were cast. St. Louis, being an important key center and the vote being so extensive, it is believed that this may represent a cross-section of opinion over a widespread mid-continent area. The balloting was conducted in cooperation with the St. Louis Star-Times.

About 310,000 questionnaires were distributed to patrons of four centrally located first runs and 27 neighborhood houses during the 10-day period from Sept. 17 through Sept. 26.

Questions Varied

Patrons were asked to fill in the name of their favorite actor, actress and child star, and this was followed by a list of eight types of features and eight types of shorts on which first, second and third choices were permitted. Features listed were melodrama, historical, comedy, war, musical comedy, love romance, detective mystery and gangster pictures with musical comedies, the winner. Short subjects covered cartoons, which won by a huge margin, travel, industries, animal life, musical, sports, science and newsreels. The stage show questions and double feature preferences followed on the ballots. There was also included a classification of age and sex groups.

Ballot boxes were provided in theatres, but 3,500 ballots were returned by mail. It was the first poll of its kind here and 19 per cent of the ballots were filled in.

The final lists carry 320 actors' names, 289 actresses and 111 child stars. Of the 320 actors, 21 each polled one per cent or more of the total questionnaires; 21 of the actresses were in this bracket and nine of the child stars appeared on one per cent or more of the total replies.

Flash Previews

"Heidi"—In which the growing up Shirley Temple offers a performance of consummate artistry in the Johanna Spyri story of a sentimental child and her hermit-like old grandfather.

"Texas Trail"—Hopalong Cassidy again rides—this time against some magnificent scenic backgrounds—to furnish horses for use in the Spanish-American War.

"Forlorn River"—Larry Crabbe, out of the water and into a saddle, does well in a Zane Grey western.

These films will be reviewed in full in a coming issue of Motion Picture Daily.

How They Voted

St. Louis, Oct. 7.—It was 69 per cent for two features against 31 per cent for one feature with shorts in the Star-Times-F. & M. poll, the summary of the final count reveals.

Answers on this question were turned in by 85 per cent of patrons attending first run theatres and by 80 per cent of those who patronize the F. & M. neighborhood theatres. This is how it breaks down:

	First Run	%	Neighborhood	%	Combined	%
For two features	14,553	59	18,198	78	32,751	69
One with shorts	9,916	41	4,990	22	14,906	31
	24,469		23,188		47,657

A compilation of the total questionnaires carrying the name of some star in each group shows actors registered strongest in appeal with child stars next and actresses third. The following figures are the totals polled by all names in each group.

	First Run	Neighborhood	Combined	Percentage of Total
Actors	25,814	26,205	52,019	9.03
Actresses	24,579	24,880	49,459	85.9
Child Stars	25,854	24,899	50,753	88.1

The percentage figure serves as an index of the fans' relative interest in the groups. Actors were first with 90 per cent, child stars second with 88 per cent and actresses third with 86 per cent. The 10 leading actors polled 51.5 per cent of the total questionnaires:

	First Run	Neighborhood	Combined	Percentage of Total
Clark Gable	3,016	3,080	6,096	10.6
Robert Taylor	2,166	2,458	4,624	8.0

Errol Flynn	665	1,051	1,716	3.0
Fredric March	939	634	1,573	2.7
				51.5

While both first run and neighborhood audiences pick Clark Gable as first choice, the order of selection changes on all of the others.

The first 10 actresses polled 47.9 per cent of the total questionnaires:

	First Run	Neighborhood	Combined	Percentage of Total
Myrna Loy	3,502	2,707	6,209	10.8
Loretta Young	2,160	1,892	4,052	7.0

Jeanette McDonald	1,102	752	1,854	3.2
Janet Gaynor	816	820	1,636	2.8

The 10 leading child stars polled 84.8 per cent of the total questionnaires returned:

Jane Withers	5,849	6,576	12,425	21.6

Spanky McFarland	307	397	704	1.2
The Mauch Twins	280	272	552	0.9
				84.8

With two exceptions both audiences selected the same features in equal ratio. Neighborhoods' audiences placed comedies ahead of musical comedies and war pictures ahead of detective mysteries. Both audiences placed gangster films at the bottom of the list. Actual figures (polled totals) are shown together with each feature types percentage of the total polled: (Based on first choice only)

Dietrich Avoiding Reich

Hollywood, Oct. 7.—Marlene Dietrich, condemned by an organ of the Nazi Government for having sought American citizenship, will answer the Hitler regime by avoiding the nation during her present tour of Europe, Paramount stated today. The actress is now in Italy.

Charge Suit Is to Harass Paramount

Paramount yesterday submitted affidavits in the N. Y. Supreme Court in answer to the Hayim motion for an examination before trial of Barney Balaban, Paramount president.

Both sides submitted their papers without oral argument to Justice William P. Collins who reserved decision. The two-year employment contract with Zukor which was made on April 26 provides for a $3,000 weekly salary with a bonus of seven and a half per cent on the profits up to $2,500,000 and five per cent on profits above that figure. The plaintiff seeks to examine Balaban before trial about the terms, conditions and compensation of Zukor's employment between July 1, 1936, and June 15, 1937; the details of the April 26 contracts, receipts, expenses and profits relating to film operation as defined in the contract from Aug. 1, 1936, to Sept. 23, 1937, money disbursed to Zukor for that period, capital employed by Paramount and subsidiaries in the production and distribution of films under the title of film operation and information as to the $2,500,000 allegedly set up on Dec. 31, 1934, as film reserve and the alleged crediting of that sum to profits of 1936 on which Zukor's compensation was allegedly computed.

Complaint Called Vague

Whitney N. Seymour of the law firm of Simpson, Thatcher and Bartlett stated in his affidavit that the complaint was too vague and general. He pointed out that Zukor's contract was approved at a stockholders' meeting by a vote of 3,571,056 to 11,722. He also charged that "the complaint in the present action was verified on June 12, four days before the stockholders' meeting and the action was commenced on the same day of the meeting. The verification of the complaint before the stockholders' meeting shows that the suit is in utter disregard of the stockholders' wishes and must have been for some ulterior purpose. This motion to examine broadly as to matters not within the scope of the action must be viewed as a near attempt to harass the company in whose interest the suit purports to be brought.

sideration but was not included in the provisions of the statute.

The bill was written without consulting leaders of the industry who had wished to cooperate in the framing of any industry measure before its submission to Parliament.

The fifth stipulation—that calling for the elimination of double bills—will work a particular hardship upon American companies here which are already considering defense moves, fearing annulment of the conditions secured by the last Franco-American trade agreement. They consider the situation as most serious since the projected law would establish practically a seizure of the industry by the state.

Delay Decision on Dallas Case Appeal

Attorneys for major distribution companies conferred again yesterday on interpretations of the recent decision of the U. S. District Court at Dallas which held that contracts made with Hoblitzelle theatres regulating subsequent run admission prices were in violation of the anti-trust laws. The attorneys have been unable to decide whether the court's opinion referred to general use of the contracts by all distributors or to the contracts themselves.

Pending the entering of the Government's decree, expected next week, this point will not be made certain. It was indicated that if the decree finds the contracts to have been invalidated by "conspiracy" no appeal of the decision will be taken. However, if the decree holds the contracts, as such, to be illegal, an appeal is almost certain to be taken by the distributors, it is believed.

U. A. to Attack Hart Suit

United Artists will ask Federal Court Judge John C. Knox to dismiss the $185,000 suit of William S. Hart and Mary Hart against them or compel the complaint to be made more definite in the U. S. District Court this morning.

The suit is based on the alleged blockbooking of Hart's 1925 picture, "Tumbleweeds," which cost $302,000 to produce with a dog picture which cost only $15,000. Hart is asking for the return of $185,000 which U.A. retained as its share of the gross receipts of the picture.

Warner Action Postponed

Federal Court Judge John C. Knox yesterday granted the motion of Warners to postpone the trial of the infringement suit of the Beekman Film Corp. against them until the testimony of Jack L. Warner, vice-president in charge of production, can be taken in California. The plaintiff claims that its picture, "This is America," was infringed upon in "The Yanks Are Coming." A permanent injunction, damages and an accounting of the profits is asked.

total. Selections of the two audiences other than agreeing on cartoons as first choice were radically different as indicated by polled totals of first choice only.

	First Run	Neighborhood	Combined	Percentage of Total
Cartoons	12,303	14,158	26,461	45.9
Musical	2,659	2,547	5,206	9.0
Travel	2,968	2,161	5,129	8.9
Newsreels	2,669	2,028	4,697	8.1
Sports	1,994	2,331	4,325	7.5
Animal life	521	791	1,312	2.3
Science	457	464	921	1.6
Industries	250	503	753	1.3
				84.6

First choice of short subjects was indicated on 84.6 per cent of the total questionnaires returned. The addition of second and third choice votes in a combined vote of first, second and third choice changes the ratios in both features and shorts. Complete tabulations will be released in the final detailed report to be issued later.

Eighty-seven per cent of the total questionnaires carried an expression on the question of stage shows with films. The detailed totals: (percentage figures show percentage of total voting, not total questionnaires.)

	First Run	%	Neighborhood	%	Combined	%
For stage shows	18,271	71	16,363	67	34,634	69
Against stage shows	7,515	29	7,929	33	15,444	31

Of those who registered in favor of stage shows with films the following named these preferences of types of shows:

	First Run	Neighborhood	Combined
Prominent bands	5,915	3,983	9,898
Singers	1,382	1,609	2,991
Dancers	2,409	2,744	5,153
Vaudeville	6,771	6,207	12,978

Since vaudeville is an all-inclusive term, a comparison of the other three types—bands, singers or dancers—shows a decided preference for bands. This ties up directly with the choice of musical comedies as the preferred feature. Fifty-five per cent of those voting for stage shows, exclusive of vaudeville, asked for name bands.

A comparison of age groups showed that the majority of first run audiences was in the two middle groups from 16-25 and 26-40, while in the neighborhood audiences the majority was in the first two groups, from under 16 to 16-25. Tabulations show:

Men

		Under 16	16-25	26-40	Over 40
First Run	11,744	1,643	5,574	3,483	1,044
Neighborhood	13,722	3,481	6,743	2,713	785
Combined	25,466	5,124	12,317	6,196	1,829

Women

		Under 16	16-25	26-40	Over 40
First Run	14,811	2,333	6,784	4,032	1,662
Neighborhood	11,492	3,116	5,106	2,337	933
Combined	26,303	5,449	11,890	6,369	2,595

In tabulating age and sex groups only those questionnaires on which both sex and age group were given were tabulated.

New Shows on the Air

"Skolsky in Hollywood"

Bad delivery vies with excellent material on the "Skolsky in Hollywood" series, but the diminutive columnist, now turned aircaster, scores despite a decided voice handicap.

Skolsky's radio stint follows much the same pattern of his erstwhile newspaper column—movie boners, reviews, chatter about the players, and amusing observations grouped under the now well known line—"but don't get me wrong, I love Hollywood." It is for more reasons that these, however, that Skolsky is in a sort of class by himself as a cinema sage. Whereas most Hollywood commentators look upon the city and its denizens with a jaundiced eye, Skolsky's observations are obviously delivered with tongue-in-cheek and are entirely free from rancour. He debunks gently, not with a club, yet surprisingly enough his method is the more devastating of the two.

Skolsky spoke at great length about Vittorio Mussolini's attempt at picture producing, and told of the harrassment Il Duce's son has been subjected to by anti-Nazi and anti-Fascist groups in Hollywood since his arrival there.

The less said about his delivery, however, the better for him. But don't get me wrong—"I like Skolsky."

Bromo-Seltzer sponsors the program, Wednesdays from 8:30 to 9 P. M. over the NBC-Blue. J. Walter Thompson is the agency.

"Hobby Lobby"

Dave Elman's "Hobby Lobby," developed as a sustaining series over WOR and now presented under Hudson Motor Car Co. sponsorship over the CBS network plus WOR, is one of the more enjoyable air features. Reviewed in MOTION PICTURE DAILY when it began over WOR, it was stated then that the program should quickly win for itself a sponsor, a prediction now fulfilled.

The series features people who pursue unusual hobbies. Those who lobbied for their hobbies on the opening sponsored show included a gentleman from California who raises and breeds angle worms; Prof. Charles C. Weidemann, Ohio State University mathematics instructor who makes home-made musical instruments out of such things as peanut shells, glass, wood, the rib bones of fossiled animals, turkey drum sticks; Edwin M. Hydemann, a retired New York business man whose hobby is to provide entertainment for underprivileged children, and several others whose hobby avocations are more than surprising. Admiral Richard E. Byrd was the guest of honor and he hobby-lobbied for World Peace.

"Hobby Lobby," unless all indications fail, is headed for a long and enjoyable stay on the network. Harry Salter's orchestra provides the music. The Salter combination, in our estimation, is one of the best in radio.

The series is presented Wednesdays from 7:15 to 7:45 P. M. on CBS, and from 10:30 to 11 P. M. on WOR. Hudson Motor Car Co. sponsors, through Brooke, Smith, French & Dorrance. BANNER.

CBS and NBC In AFM Accord

CBS and NBC have reached an accord with the A. F. of M. for an agreement governing the number of musicians to be employed by the network key stations in cities such as New York, Chicago, and Los Angeles. The details of the agreement have not been made available to date.

Joseph N. Weber, A. F. of M. president, is now in Denver attending the A. F. of L. convention. While there he will meet with the broadcasters of that region, it is believed.

Alan-Scott—"This and That"

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 7.—Alan Scott is quite a figure along Philadelphia's radio row and, in the past, has tangled with city officials regarding his air remarks. At the show caught, which was his second for Gulf Oil, in the main he lived up to his reputation as a news commentator with a truly different style. He uses, and very effectively, the "You and Me" attitude toward his listeners. And when he sticks close to home in his subject matter, Scott is at his best. He has a tendency to go slightly overboard when he tackles foreign and international topics. His voice is of the better microphone variety, the result of a five year stretch as a radio announcer.

During last night's broadcast, he discussed the Philadelphia grand jury vice probe and then handled F.D.R.'s "aggressor nation" speech. He was speaking in front of 500 Gulf dealers, gathered at a midtown hotel for a bit of agency palaver.

Scott tied a bit of commercial spiel into his script, while announcer Vernon Crawford did the closing commercial. It stressed Gulf dealers courteous and efficient service, but the copy was not too smartly written.

Listeners in these parts consider Scott the top news commentator—and from a local angle that includes Boake Carter.

Presented Monday through Friday over WFIL at 10:30 to 10:45 P.M. The agency is Young and Rubicam. B.

Reports that the A.R.T.A. had made demands for a contract of KFXR were confirmed by the organizer, but he refused to reveal whether negotiations are in progress with other stations. It has been reported here, however, that KOMA and WBBZ, Ponca City, have signed. No confirmation of this report is available.

No Change in G.B. Control For 6 Months

Payment of Preference Dividend Reason

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Paying the half-year's preference dividend, Gaumont British made impossible for another six months any change in the control of the company by means of preference votes, which only become operative in the event that the dividend is passed.

On the payment of the half-year's dividend due in March there was a split in the G. B. directorate, the decision for payment being carried by the Ostrers against the votes of John Maxwell, Sidney R. Kent, Dixon Boardman and O. H. C. Balfour. The Ostrers and their nominees had five votes.

Later the legality of the preference payment was tested in the courts by the Nordon Committee of G. B.

Stuart Doyle Plans 100-Theatre Circuit

LONDON, Sept. 29.—Stuart F. Doyle, the Australian film executive, on his arrival here from New York, outlined a "five-year plan" for the creation of a circuit of 100 super-theatres in key cities of the British Empire. Such a circuit, he said, was necessary to put British films on the map, and he hoped to organize it through a private company.

Doyle also will engage in British production, he stated, and has selected his first subject, but he refused to discuss details, though admitting he has discussed cooperation with existing British companies.

The Doyle theatre-film center in Lower Regent St. here will be opened in the spring of 1938, declared Doyle.

ABP Denies Part in KRS Rental Policy

LONDON, Oct. 8.—Arthur Dent today issued a statement disassociating Associated British Pictures from the Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors) new policy of restricting the rental by contract of all "A" feature to percentage deals.

At the same time Dent revealed that A. B. P. is not a member of the K. R. S. The membership of Wardour Films lapsed on the absorption of the company by A. B. P. and the latter did not join.

Goldwyn is planning a day-and-date opening at the Carthay Circle on the coast and the Astor on Broadway for "Hurricane" the early part of the month. He will attend the local premiere.

Present plans for the Carthay Circle opening call for the construction of a Tahitian village, which was used in the picture, and which will be located near the coast theatre.

Say Films Are Part Of Interstate Trade

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—More than 200 exhibits which, the Government claims, show the effects of the industry on interstate commerce as well as the employe-employer relationship of writers to producers were offered today as exhibits in the Screen Writers' Guild hearing before the Regional Labor Board petitioning for an election to determine the collective bargaining agency for film writers. Exhibits included excerpts from Motion Picture Herald and at the next session will comprise extracts from Motion Picture Almanac.

Meeting the opposition from respondent companies, William J. Walsh, labor board attorney, asked Trial Examiner William Ringer to recess until Monday to give all counsel the opportunity to examine the exhibits, the materiality of which had been questioned.

The recess came when Dr. David Saposs, chief economist of the labor board, took the stand to wind up the Government's side of the action and submitted his testimony which was was based on Federal reports, Congressional investigations and trade publications.

AFL Decides To Unionize Office Help

Move Aimed to Forestall Extensions by CIO

DENVER, Oct. 8.—Extension of its activities to white collar workers, in opposition to the C.I.O., was decided upon today by the A. F. of L. in convention here.

President William Green has summoned leaders of the A. F. of L. office workers to convene here tomorrow when plans will be discussed for forming a national council and eventually an international union.

Up to the present, the A. F. of L. has sponsored only local organizations of office workers.

Sol A. Rosenblatt, former NRA administrator, addressed the convention and stressed the significance as regards labor today. He said the responsibility of labor was to itself, the employer and to the public. He referred to radio by mentioning the 12 weeks' work with Joseph Weber in New York in negotiating an agreement with radio for musicians.

Rosenblatt and Weber conferred for several hours this afternoon, but

Allied Asks Support Of Film Legislation

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8.—Allied States, in its most recent bulletin from the exhibitor organization's headquarters here, urges all independent exhibitors to give concrete evidence of their support for film legislation in the next session of Congress.

The bulletin suggests that it is the obligation of every local exhibitor leader to ascertain the wishes of independents relative to such legislation. The bulletin queries exhibitors on their wishes in the matter of Congressional action on the Neely-Pettengill bill prohibiting block booking and blind selling, the Hobbs resolution for an investigation of the industry, and a Guffey Act for the industry.

Exhibitors are asked if they will come to Washington during the special session next month to assist in the organization of a steering committee and to testify before committees regarding the need of such legislation.

The bulletin reviews the recent court decisions in Philadelphia and Dallas, concerning Paramount and the United M.P.T.O in Philadelphia, and the U. S. against the Interstate Circuit in Texas. The bulletin points out that although the two decisions are favorable "so far as immediate results are concerned, they actually do not shed a great deal of light as regards exhibitor rights."

both refused to divulge the nature of the discussion.

Members of the United Office and Professional Workers of America have been petitioning employes of all major companies for the past few months to join. The organization is an affiliate of the C. I. O.

Reports from home office indicate that the white collar union has not made much progress in lining up stenographers, clerks and bookkeepers, although there are a number of employes in each of the eight major companies who have joined the U.O.P.W.A.

On July 12 last, MOTION PICTURE DAILY reported that executives of major companies have been considering plans for recognizing a "white collar" union as soon as negotiations were completed with locals throughout the country representing "back room" employes. These unions with which agreements have been signed are A. F. of L. members.

Theatre union help employed by major circuits in all instances are identified with the I.A.T.S.E., also affiliated with the A. F. of L. With the A. F. of L. now taking steps to extend its sphere to white collar help, it is likely that if, and when, major companies decide to recognize a union for this type of worker negotiations will be carried on with the William Green affiliate.

shareholders, the decision going in favor of the Ostrers.

On the present occasion the dividend payment was unopposed in the board.

An action by John Maxwell, for Associated British Pictures, against the Ostrers is pending. He alleges that the sale to him of shares in Metropolis and Bradford Trust, controlling G. B., was obtained by false pretenses. Maxwell is claiming damages. Stories that the action had been settled by the return of its money to A. B. P. have been denied by the Maxwell interests.

The Financial Times, in a leading article this morning, launched a sharp attack on the Gaumont British financial report. Especially criticized was the absence of a consolidated balance sheet, which was forced last year by the stockholders at the annual meeting.

The Financial Times said, "The company's affairs are far worse than this time last year, but the board has persisted in an attempt to satisfy stockholders with meager details. The group which uses the methods of dictatorship and presents such a record of inefficient management, owns directly less than one per cent of the equity in the company."

Theatres Thought Overvalued

Also attacked was the abandonment of production by the company, and the suggestion was made that the company's theatres are overvalued. "Suspicion must again arise that the preference dividend was paid in order to prevent the preference stockholders from exercising their vote," the article said, and continued, "There is now a need for active intervention by the shareholders."

The newspaper declared that the figure used for theatre depreciation is insufficient and that a slight increase would have made the preference dividend unearned. It is expected that the Nordon group again will move for adjournment of the annual meeting pending the preparation of a full balance sheet, and will intensify its campaign for an investigation by the Board of Trade.

"The Spanish Earth," documentary film emphasizing the Loyalists' side of the conflict in Spain has been booked into the Europa, Philadelphia and the Art Cinema, Pittsburgh.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Heidi"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 8.—The consummate artistry of the young queen of the stars, Shirley Temple, is once again amply demonstrated in this screen adaptation of the well known story, "Heidi," by Johanna Spyri. It is a simple, sentimental tale of a child and her grandfather, perfectly suited to the unquestioned talents of Shirley, and the result is made-to-order family entertainment and a holiday for showmen.

Production values are high, including occasional flashes of beautiful scenic effects in the Tyrolean Alps. The screenplay and direction, the former by Walter Ferris and Julien Josephson, and the latter by Allan Dwan, are smooth and geared to display the child star to best advantage, and the supporting cast, headed by Jean Hersholt, is all that could be required. Arthur Treacher, Helen Westley, Pauline Moore and Sidney Blackmer are featured.

A pleasing interlude is the little Dutch scene, in which a picture comes to life and Shirley, surrounded by boys and girls, sings and dances delightfully. Lew Pollack and Sidney D. Mitchell wrote the song, "In Our Little Wooden Shoes," sung by Shirley.

There are times, perhaps, when the film becomes overly sentimental and undoubtedly it will draw tears from the eyes of the feminine element in the audience. But that has never been any obstacle to substantial attendance.

Shirley is brought to the hermit-like old man who is her grandfather by an aunt who desires to be rid of her. The child restores Hersholt to his former place in the hearts of the townspeople and is herself ideally happy in the mountains. Then the aunt suddenly snatches her away, virtually selling her to be companion to a crippled girl in the big city many miles away, while the old man hikes in search of her. The child is torn between her desire to stay with the girl, her wish to return to her grandfather and her suffering under the harsh treatment of the housekeeper.

Excitement enters as the grandfather seeks her frantically, the discharged housekeeper tries to sell her to gypsies, and they are all arrested. Peace comes at last, and happiness is hers again in the mountain cabin.

Running time, 87 minutes. "G."

"Stage Door," which opened Thursday morning at the Radio City Music Hall, was previewed by wire from the coast on Sept. 9.

"Life Begins in College," opener at the Roxy yesterday, was reviewed by wire on Sept. 24 from Hollywood.

"High, Wide and Handsome" at the Paramount and "Good Earth" at the Capitol are holdovers, as is "Back in Circulation" at the Strand.

"Wife, Doctor and Nurse," reviewed by wire from the coast Sept. 2, is scheduled to open this morning at the Rivoli.

Knox Avoids Hart Suit

Federal Judge John C. Knox, declared himself disqualified from hearing the motion made by United Artists to dismiss the $185,000 suit of William S. Hart and Mary Hart in the U. S. Clancy for hearing on Oct. 19. Hart is suing for the return of $185,000 which United Artists retained as its share of the gross receipts of the Hart picture, "Tumbleweeds" which was produced in 1925 and distributed by United Artists.

Loeb Appeal Is Denied

The Appellate Division of the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday denied John L. Loeb, a stockholder of Columbia Pictures Corp., permission to appeal to the N. Y. Court of Appeals from an adverse decision dismissing his $201,600 suit against Columbia Pictures, Joe Brandt and Harry and Jack Cohn. Loeb claimed damages as the result of an alleged destruction by the defendants of the value of certain options he had been granted to purchase stock. The options had been allegedly used jointly by the individual defendants and voting trustees and by Columbia. His complaint was dismissed on the ground that it failed to state a cause of action.

Suit Against Floyd Gibbons Dismissed

general statement of damage was not sufficient.

Locke prepared the script for a broadcast by Gibbons over Station WLEW giving a description of the Cincinnati flood scenes in January of this year. He alleges that Gibbons interpolated misleading descriptions of scenes which did not occur in order to lend a realistic atmosphere to the broadcast. As a result, the plaintiff claims his reputation as a script writer was seriously damaged and that he has been unable to secure employment. Justice Pecora stated in his opinion that the question whether a false radio broadcast constitutes libel or slander has not been settled in the N. Y. courts. However, he ruled that since Gibbons did not read from a script, the broadcast could not be held as libel and that the action was for slander and special damages must be proven. Locke was allowed 20 days to file an amended complaint.

New Shows On the Air

Kraft "Music Hall"

Bing Crosby, after an absence of several months, returned to the Kraft "Music Hall" Thursday evening and whatever temporary let-down the series may have suffered during his absence was entirely eradicated. The show, guided by the easy-going crooner, is the best variety program in radio.

Crosby, of course, doesn't do it himself. He has swell help from bazooka-playing Bob Burns, Johnny Trotter's orchestra, and the screen players and opera singers who usually comprise the guest talent on this series. Thursday night's was Beatrice Lillie.

One of the chief charms of this program is the informal behavior of its players. On the surface this may not seem important, but compare it to the stiff manner in which other programs are handled and its importance should become obvious. All credit for this belongs to Crosby.

The show is heard Thursdays from 10 to 11 P. M. on the NBC-Red. Kraft-Phenix Cheese Corp. sponsors, through J. Walter Thompson.

"We, the People"

"We, the People," introduced last year over the networks by Philip H. Lord, is back again this season under sponsorship of the General Foods Corp. for Sanka Coffee. This time Gabriel Heatter serves as the commentator instead of Lord.

Since its original introduction the novelty of such programs, which brings people with unusual experience to the microphone, has worn off. And again, the guests presented on the opening show were nothing to boast about. Their experiences, in the main, were quite prosaic and, as a consequence, the show moved at a slow and sluggish pace.

Heard on the inaugural was a man who knew Mrs. O'Leary's cow personally, who said quite positively that it was a libel to blame the great Chicago fire on such a fine and faultless animal; an Idaho farmer whose farm is sinking out of sight; a Minneapolis librarian who gave some amusing twists on book titles; an unfortunate woman who served a jail sentence for a crime she did not commit. Most interesting was Al Mingalone, Paramount newsreel camera man who experienced a quite unwelcome balloon ascent; and a veteran of the Argonne Forest who related an experience while attempting to break through the German lines. Helen Hayes, as guest, spoke briefly from Boston, where she is playing "Victoria Regina." The series is heard Thursdays from 7:30 to 8 P. M. over CBS. Young & Rubicam, the agency.

WNEW Sues Barney Over Use of Record

The WNEW Artists Bureau, Inc., and Martin Block, announcer, filed suit in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday against Barney's Clothes, Inc., for $147,090 damages for an alleged "piracy" of a sound record of Block's announcement "Calling All Men to Barney's." Emil K. Ellis, attorney for the plaintiff, stated that the suit was the first of its kind. The plaintiff alleged that Block made a record which was to have been used exclusively on WNEW and that Barney's used it on other stations 14,709 times. Ten dollars is asked for each alleged unauthorized use of the record.

The complaint states that the "widespread and unauthorized use" of the record lessened the value of the announcer's voice. The suit is a reply to Barney's action against the WOB Broadcasting Co., operators of WNEW, for $105,000 damages.

Barney claimed that his programs were cut from one to four minutes without his knowledge and that on certain occasions only eight spot announcements were broadcast, although 12 were contracted for. Ellis stated that Barney's failed to take into account the time taken for theme music and station announcements. He declared that the script furnished by Barney's was broadcast in full. The number of spot announcements was reduced, according to Ellis, by agreement whereby more favorable locations were given to the announcements.

SupremeCourt To Give First Listing Today

May Make Known Status Of Three Film Suits

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The Supreme Court tomorrow will make its first announcement as to cases to be heard during its new term and may make known whether it will take up any of the three film suits now pending before it.

More than 450 cases are awaiting the court's consideration. Only a comparatively small proportion of appeals are accepted by the court, the majority being refused either because they involve issues which have been decided in previous cases or do not involve a Federal question.

The three suits of interests to the film industry involve the right of state authorities to ban exhibition of a foreign picture permitted to enter the country by the Federal authorities; the extent to which a patent owner can control the use to be made of an article manufactured under the patent after it has passed into the hands of a purchaser, and whether organizations charged with conspiracy in restraint of trade shall have access to the books and records of the complainant in order to refute his charges that he was damaged by the alleged conspiracy.

Try Newsreels to Stimulate Attendance at P. E. Church

CINCINNATI, Oct. 10.—An experiment to discover whether a more graphic presentation of ordinary sermon material through the use of regular newsreels will attract more people to churches is being conducted here during the sessions of the Triennial Convention of Protestant Episcopal Churches.

Through the combined efforts of the publicity department of the National Council of Churches and Very Rev. Charles E. McAllister, dean of the Cathedral of St. John the Evangelist, Spokane, five showings of regularly-released newsreels are being shown at the Mayfair, normally dark, at the convention. A lecture stressing the social implications of the newsreels will accompany each showing, the whole being set in a frame of prayer and praise to resemble, somewhat, a regular church service.

In explaining his idea, Dean McAllister quoted from a message which will be given at the conclusion of each reel:

"Like it or not, the church is faced with the fact that motion pictures are one of the most powerful influences in the world today. Aware that 80 per cent of what man learns comes through his eyes, educators in recent years increasingly have stressed the need of visual education. Today there

Buying Strike Ruling Scores Boycott Plans

The proper legal remedy of exhibitors with contract grievances against a distributor is an action at law for breach of contract, and not a concerted effort at boycott, Federal Judge Gunnar H. Nordbye maintains in his opinion handed down in connection with this granting of an injunction to Paramount against exhibitors in the Minneapolis territory who were charged with participating in the "buyers' strike" against the company. Copies of the Federal jurist's opinion were received in New York coincident with the signing by Judge Nordbye of the decree giving effect to the decision.

The decree, which remains in effect until a hearing has been held on Paramount's petition to have the injunction made permanent, restrains the Minneapolis exhibitor defendants from effectuating the "buyers' strike" even by methods of so-called "peace-

Dangers from New Laws Seen By Kuykendall

Predicts "Drastic" and "Far-Reaching" Moves

Sounding a warning that "drastic and far reaching legislation aimed at motion pictures" is impending, an M.P.T.O.A. bulletin issued yesterday over the signature of Ed Kuykendall, president, calls upon exhibitors to improve their organized front to resist it and the threat of "heavy taxes."

Kuykendall is scheduled to arrive in Los Angeles today in the course of a coast-to-coast visit to local exhibitor organizations. The trip began in New York on Oct. 1 and was followed by visits at Philadelphia, Memphis and New Orleans. The major purposes of his trip are listed as the obtaining of information on the plans and activities of local exhibitor organizations, on trade practice complaints and proposals, on measures for the defense of theatres from adverse legislation and tax burdens, the actual effect of radio broadcasting by film stars on the box-office, on plans to improve business and theatre management, on cut-rate competition and business conditions, on the public relations in the community of local theatres and to plan for the next M.P.T.O.A. national convention.

Looking 'Em Over

"Casta Diva"

(Cine Lux Corp.)

Of the life and romance of Vincenzo Bellini, famous Italian composer, the Cine Studios in Rome have made an effective, at times moving, film in "Casta Diva." In Italian, and without benefit of English subtitles, the story presents no difficulty to the understanding of the patron lacking a knowledge of the language, but considerable is necessarily lost in the attempt to follow the story from action alone.

As the young and brilliant student at the Conservatory of Naples, and later as the successful composer, Sandro Palmieri offers a good characterization, but performing honors go to Marta Eggerth, European film and opera star, whose work as the sweetheart of Bellini, who sacrifices her love, and finally her life for his career, is outstanding. Her performance is warm and touching, and her voice is splendid.

Carmine Gallone directed from a screenplay by Corrado Alvaro. The famed Paganini, first disturbed by the presence of Bellini, becomes his friend. Bellini meets and falls in love with Miss Eggerth, who is betrothed to the King's secretary. He accepts a proposal to be the private composer of a celebrated singer, intending to elope with Miss Eggerth. But she sacrifices her love for the advancement of his career. When an opera of his is a failure, she brings him the song he wrote for her and, as he is restored in the public eye, she dies.

Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

"The Music Hall has a hit in 'Stage Door.' . . . One leaves the theatre with a feeling of satisfaction at having witnessed a perfectly grand show . . . All the performances are so absolutely right that it is hard to choose among them . . . Ginger Rogers is superb in the handling of the snappy, incisive dialog which keeps the audiences in stitches . . . Miss Hepburn rises to dramatic moments with a fine show of histrionics . . . One of the most entertaining pictures of the Fall season." —Kate Cameron

N. Y. TIMES

"Not merely a brilliant picture, but as well a magnificently devastating reply on Hollywood's part to all the catty little remarks that George Kaufman and Edna Ferber had made about it in their play. . . . It is wittier than the original, more dramatic than the original, more meaningful than the original, more cogent than the original." —Frank S. Nugent

HERALD-TRIBUNE

"Brilliantly written, directed and acted . . . a far more satisfying entertainment than the play . . . it has such a burden of emotional power that it betters its stage prototype as an exciting and moving tribute to the abiding fascination of the theatre . . . A brilliant, witty and moving show." —Howard Barnes

"Startling in its daring, the idea of teaming arty Katharine Hepburn and realistic Ginger Rogers in the Ferber-Kaufman 'Stage Door' has proved an inspired one. Their roles might have been written for them. Backed by a great cast which includes Adolphe Menjou, the co-stars give the show of their lives . . . All the fans will relish 'Stage Door.' . . . In acting, directing, writing, it represents the finest flower of movie craftsmanship." —Bland Johaneson

"One of the funniest, best-made films that has come along for quite a while. The Music Hall, accustomed to fine pictures, can make 'Stage Door' quite at home, which is just as well. is scarcely a large public school system without motion picture equipment.

"There are 200,000 churches in the United States with an enrolled membership of 62,000,000, of which number about 40 per cent are definitely active. Recent studies suggest that church attendance, especially among Protestants, averages not more than 10 per cent of the enrolled membership each week. Something is obviously wrong.

"This experiment is to discover whether a more graphic presentation of what is ordinarily sermon material, if only it were used, will attract some of the 90 per cent now non-church going to our places of worship.

"If any progress can be made toward proving such a proposition, further steps will be taken to see whether a new organization or existing organizations or groups will not cooperate to expand this experiment into a permanent organization."

Milton C. Weisman, equity receiver for Fox Theatres, stated in his petition for approval of the sale that he has been carrying the building for several years in an effort to find a purchaser, and $41,270 will be required to continue holding the building until 1942 when the mortgage falls due.

The property is assessed at $650,000, but Weisman in a tax reduction petition appraised it at $537,240. The book value is $512,877. Weisman also stated that the equipment is 15 to 25 years old. The theatre is now under lease to the purchaser until February, 1945, at a minimum annual rental of $25,000 plus 17½ per cent of the gross receipts over $25,000. The offices are also under lease at $13,250 annual rental with 50 per cent of the income over $16,500.

Judge Knox ordered the plaintiff to set forth the names of all the employes who allegedly viewed the picture together with dates and places.

New Shows On the Air

"Grand Central Station

"Grand Central Station" started out with a grand idea, but the execution of the idea was a bust.

Offering dramatic sketches built around the folks who daily arrive and depart from the vast railroad terminus, the opening theme was the old and trite story of the prizefighter and the lady. The flat theme was matched by an equally flat performance by the cast.

Bill Town arrives in the terminal as the middleweight champion of the world and brings with him as a surprise, a wife, a chorine with a somewhat shady past. His manager, a grasping individual out to make as much as he can out of his fighting property, knows all about Mrs. Town's past and threatens to expose her unless she remains very much in the background and permits him to manage Billy as he sees fit.

Follows the usual developments—the champ is knocked out when he is rushed into battle too soon; Mrs. Town's interference; the exposure of her past by the manager; the domestic breakup; the decline of Town as a prizefighter; the exposure of the manager when he wagers on Town's opponent, and the final clinch when Billy penitently and humbly returns to his love.

"Grand Central Station" is sponsored by Listerine and is presented Fridays from 8 to 8:30 P. M. on the NBC-Blue. Lambert and Feasley, the agency.

"Let's Play Games"

"Let's Play Games," sponsored by the Vapex Co., is an audience participation program in which the principals, under the guidance of Jane Martin, vie for a $25 cash prize by struggling with tongue twisters, riddles, and tricky games. The players are unrehearsed.

Like all shows of this type, plenty of laughs are guaranteed for the listeners who dial to it. Miss Martin guides her unrehearsed players in skillful manner.

The series is broadcast Fridays from 8:45 to 9 P. M. over WOR. Small & Seiffer is the agency.

AFRA Starts First Labor Board Action

CINCINNATI, Oct. 10.—The American Federation of Radio Artists, an Actors' Equity affiliate, has filed a complaint with the National Labor Relations Bureau charging CBS and WKRC with violation of the Wagner Act. The complaint is based on the discharge of William Seymour, a WKRC news writer, who was discharged for alleged union activities.

Seymour was discharged last Sept. 30, the complaint alleges, because of activity on behalf of the union.

CBS officials have refused to reinstate Seymour, according to Mrs. Emily Holt, national secretary, who quoted them as saying that it would be a "tacit admission" that they were wrong if they were to return Seymour to his job.

According to Phillip G. Phillips, regional director for the N. L. R. B., this is the first case of its kind to be filed against a network.

findings to a meeting of the M.P.T.O.A. board of directors to be called early in December.

In the M.P.T.O.A. plea for a better organized exhibitor front, the bulletin addresses itself in particular to the small, unaffiliated local circuits which, it declares, are now found to be frequently "working against each other in matters that affect the entire industry." If these "do not work together through a representative exhibitor association," the bulletin says, "not much is accomplished in the way of effective protection of their own business."

The bulletin declares that while circuit theatre operation has become "more prevalent" in the past several years, there "has been no marked expansion on the part of the five affiliated circuits in the past seven years."

Two Reports Conflict

The statement is at variance with an official report given to MOTION PICTURE DAILY by Paramount on Aug. 5, which showed that that company's theatre interests had increased by 400 houses during the past three years.

The bulletin attributes the threat of new industry taxes to the increasing use of "dollar publicity" by production and distribution companies. It reports that the M.P.T.O.A.'s 10-point trade practice program is now at a standstill for two reasons, the first, failure of distributors to respond to the organization's request for a reconsideration of the points which were rejected in whole or in part, and, second, failure or refusal of the distributors to take the initiative in establishing the local conciliation boards to make effective seven of the 10 proposals.

tures on a percentage basis only, denied the plan is designed to fix rentals.

Eckman declared the K.R.S. has no intention of establishing a combination for rental fixing, but that the resolution was designed merely to reduce overlong theatre programs, and eliminate the use of two "A" films on the same bill.

He said that he personally was willing that conferences be held with the Kinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n. but that there could be no discussion of price fixing, which is a matter for individual attention.

Buying Strike Ruling Scores Boycott Plans

ful persuasion." They are enjoined from picketing either the Paramount Minneapolis exchange or any theatre showing the company's pictures; from "intercepting" either employes or patrons of the exchange or theatres, and from the use of "intimidation, threats, force, fraud or defamatory publications" to induce employes to leave their work, theatre patrons to withhold their patronage or other exhibitors to refrain from buying the company's product. They are also enjoined from "advising or requesting" anyone not to do business with the company or its customers under implied threats or intimidation.

Three Points Raised

Judge Nordbye's opinion holds that three primary questions are involved in the case. They are whether the court has jurisdiction over the case, whether Paramount is guilty of fraudulent or unconscionable conduct in its dealings with the defendants, and whether, if Paramount comes into court with "unclean hands," it should be denied equitable relief.

On the first question, Judge Nordbye disagrees with Federal Judge Oliver B. Dickinson of Philadelphia who ruled in the Paramount buyers' strike case there that the court was without jurisdiction.

"The very intent of the entire plan and scheme (the buyers' strike) of these defendants," Judge Nordbye declares, "in entering into the conspiracy is to accomplish the restraint and limitation of complainant's films in interstate commerce."

He adds that even if the interstate commerce angle did not give the Federal court jurisdiction in the case, that "it is entirely probable that this court would not be justified in refusing to assume jursidiction" as "a diversity of citizenship exists and the sums involved are sufficiently large to establish a legal action of conspiracy to boycott."

Not Judging "Bad Faith"

On the last two questions Judge Nordbye held that "it would be presumptuous for the court to conclude on the conflicting affidavits (of the complainant and defendants) and their assertions that the complainant does not come into court with clean hands. The court cannot say that the showing as to bad faith or other inequitable conduct preponderates in the defendants' favor. If it be true that the license contracts were procured by fraud or misrepresentations, the controversy herein or the relief granted by the court does not affect or limit the defendants' rights thereunder. But it may be doubted that defendants' rights or grievances under these license contracts will justify a court of equity in refusing to enjoin a conspiracy which proposes to induce, restrain, or prevent or repress exhibitors, whether aggrieved or not, from dealing or contracting with complainant in connection with the exhibition of its motion pictures."

"If contracts have been violated," Judge Nordbye concludes, "if legal rights have been flaunted, and such matters are collateral to the controversy, it would seem that defendants must resort to the law and have these wrongs redressed and not indulge in open violation of the laws of this land to achieve that to which they assume they are entitled."

Judge Nordbye indicates, however, that the question of whether or not Paramount could have released the six pictures involved in the case under last season's contracts may be determined at the later hearing on the company's application for a permanent injunction. No date has been set yet for this hearing.

The two distributors are also accused of favoring enterprises that employ non-union workers. It is understood this dispute is not connected with demands for wage increases or other economic benefits.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 10.—The strike of workers at the Rex Cinema, de luxe theatre in Monterrey, important industrial center near the American border, threatens to deprive all of Monterrey of electricity. The electricians' union is arranging a sympathetic walkout in support of the strikers at the Rex. The Federal Labor Board is engaged in an effort to end the theatre strike.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., Oct. 10.—Warners have signed a three-year contract with the M. P. Twelve projectionists are affected with wage increases reported totaling between $7,000 and $8,000 for the three-year period.

SMPE Hears Sound Moving About Screen

'Stereophonic' Method Is Given Demonstration

A demonstration of "stereophonic" or third dimensional sound, through which method dialogue and sound effects come directly from the point of origin on the screen, rather than from a central point behind the screen, was the highlight of the technological developments described and demonstrated yesterday as the 42nd semi-annual convention of the Society of M. P. Engineers began at the Hotel Pennsylvania, with approximately 300 in attendance.

The stereophonic demonstration was conducted last night at the Bell Telephone Laboratories, with introductory and explanatory remarks by J. P. Maxwell of Erpi. Engineers of that company and the Bell Laboratories developed the new method. It was pointed out that whereas under the present method, only an illusion of sound coming from the point of origin is obtained, under the stereophonic development the sound actually is capable of traveling about the screen, coming directly from the point of origin. Two separate sound tracks and

Hays Denies Windsor To Take a Film Post

"There is no basis for the report," Will H. Hays volunteered yesterday in referring to a statement that the Duke of Windsor would be retained by the industry as an overseer of its international relations.

The statement was broadcast over a national radio network Sunday night by a Hollywood commentator and created little, if any, stir in informed film quarters. New York reaction, primarily was one of tolerant amusement at the ingenuousess of the idea.

Kansas City, Kan., Irked by Hays Reply

KANSAS CITY, KAN., Oct. 11.—The inability of Will H. Hays to intervene on behalf of Kansas City, Kan., in its campaign to obtain first run pictures day and date with Kansas City, Mo., was explained in a letter received here today by Ray T. Willette, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, who addressed Hays several weeks ago with a plea to help obtain film fare equality for the smaller city.

The Hays letter, which was signed by Gabriel L. Hess, M.P.P.D.A. attorney, declares that the character of the Hays organization prevents it from interfering with its members in matters concerning individual business policies and transactions, "such as contracts with first runs in Kansas City, Mo."

"The by-laws provide that the as-

GTP Granted An Appeal by Highest Court

Involves Vacuum Tubes; DeMille Case Dropped

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11.—The Supreme Court today granted the petition of General Talking Pictures Corp. for review of a decision of the Second Circuit Court of Appeals holding it to have infringed patents by use in talking picture projection equipment of vacuum tube amplifiers to which were attached license notices limiting their use to radio reception.

The company purchased the amplifiers from the American Transformer Co., which manufactured them under license from the so-called radio license pool, and contended a patent owner is without right to restrict the use of a device manufactured under the patent after the device has passed into the hands of a purchaser.

The court rejected an appeal of Eureka Prod. from a decision of the Federal District Court at New York refusing a restraining order to keep New York state officials from interfering with the showing of the imported picture "Ecstacy." The state censor board held the picture to be obsence and refused a license for its showing, and the company sought action from the Supreme Court on the

"Zola," Playing Few Spots Sets High Key Cities' Pace

Playing in comparatively few spots, "The Life of Emile Zola" forged to the front with especially high box-office takes in an estimate of grosses for the week at the leading theatres in key cities.

"Double or Nothing," "Thin Ice," "The Prisoner of Zenda" and "100 Men and a Girl" appeared to be in the top money in other spots.

At Cleveland, "Zola" went way over average at the Hippodrome, taking $21,250, against a house average of $12,000. "100 Men and a Girl" was $2,300 over par in its second week at the Allen.

"The Prisoner of Zenda," dualled with "Bad Guy," was tops in Indianapolis, over the $7,000 average by $3,000. "High, Wide and Handsome" was strong at the Circle and was

London Films, Korda Settle Two Actions

Two infringement actions against London Films and Alexander Korda have been settled out of court, it was learned yesterday. The amounts involved in the settlements were not made known.

The first action was brought by Francis Hackett who charged that the film "The Private Life of Henry VIII" infringed material used in his biography of the British monarch. The second action was brought by Wallace Irwin, author, who alleged that the production, "The Ghost Goes West," infringed his story "Transplanted Ghost." Both settlements were negotiated by Schwartz & Frohlich, American attorneys for London Films.

Films Sonores is suing United Artists, Charles Chaplin and the Chaplin Film Corp. for a permanent injunction and an accounting based upon the alleged infringement of the plaintiff's "A Nous La Liberte" in "Modern Times." IATSE and Theatres Sign in Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 11.—At the end of five years in which it has had no contracts with subsequent runs in Kansas City, and four years without a written agreement with first runs, Operators' Local 170, I. A. T. S. E., has closed deals with both groups.

Following several months of negotiations by Claude Cessna, business manager of the local since June, two-year contracts have been signed. They call for a five per cent increase both this year and next for first runs, and for a five per cent increase next year for suburbans. The five per cent hike in downtown first runs—Mainstreet, Midland, Newman, Tower and Empress—is retroactive to Sept. 1. The agreement with the Fox Beyer in Excelsior Springs, Mo., which comes under Local 170's jurisdiction, was made on a similar basis.

The two-year agreements with suburbans provides for no increase this year. The contract, retroactive to July 11, this year, schedules a wage hike of 5 per cent next July 11.

Exceptions are the Fox Plaza, first subsequent run, and the Fox Uptown, suburban first run. Contracts with them, which are, like the others, for two years, contain a 26 cents per hour increase, amounting to almost 20 per cent. No change in the contract is provided next July 11, anniversary date.

Only five subsequent runs have not signed contracts, according to Cessna, and two of these are using I. A. T. S. E. men. With two of the others, these are expected to sign within the next few weeks.

two microphone amplifier channels are employed in recording the stereophonic sound. Maxwell pointed out that the production companies must decide when the new development will be incorporated in actual production.

The opening day was featured by the election of several officers, not including the president, who carries over for another year; an opening address by S. K. Wolf, president, reports of several committees, the beginning of a long series of technical papers on the developments of the year in the technique of the screen, and an informal luncheon at which Louis Nizer, attorney, and Martin Quigley were the speakers.

Quigley, in his brief address to the convention, offered a spirited defense of the industry in its concentration on entertainment as the prime function of the screen. His theme was "Propaganda, Education and the Entertainment Film."

Cites Critics' Ulterior Motives

Certain persons, Quigley declared, raise objections to the use of the screen as a medium of entertainment only, and seek to bring about its employment for other purposes, chief among them educational and propagandistic. He quoted from Dr. Fred Eastman, educator and clergyman, professor at Chicago Theological Seminary, who has asserted that producers should think of themselves as educators, not "as a bunch of entertainers."

Another quotation was from Norman Thomas, who has declared that the motion picture should take life as it is, and "morals would take care of themselves." There is too much Cinderella in films, Quigley quoted Thomas as saying.

Replying, the publisher asserted these men may be described as "lacking in candor." Following their suggestions, he said, would create a condition whereby those persons who wish to use the film for their own purposes would be dictating what should be produced.

Decries Propaganda

There is no indication that the public desires anything but entertainment from the motion picture theatre, Quigley pointed out, and declared it would be dishonest if the theatre showed anything else under guise of pure entertainment. The propagandists, who show a marked approval of the realistic type of film, he said, seek actually to destroy the hours of happiness which the screen now brings to the public. They would turn the theater into a place of political debate, and not a place of refreshment, and would create a spirit of discontent, he declared.

He agreed that the screen has certain definite responsibilities, chief among them being an obligation to abide by the dictates of decency. Concluding, Quigley declared that these outside sources which seek to use the screen for other purposes are potentially a source of the destruction of the industry, which has a right to exist "and has rendered a great public service."

Nizer stressed the value of the screen in bringing about a movement for peace throughout the world, in its inherent value of making the different peoples of the world more familiar with one another. He praised the work of the engineers, who have contributed so much to the screen, where science contributes nothing to any other art form.

Willifred Vice-President

New officers elected yesterday were E. A. Willifred, financial vice-president; Dr. L. A. Jones, reelected engineering vice-president; Kenneth F. Morgan, executive vice-president, West Coast; James Frank, secretary, L. W. Davee, treasurer, and Herbert Griffin, Dr. A. C. Hardy and Ralph E. Farnham, elected to the board of governors. Griffin and Hardy were reelected.

Another outstanding demonstration of the day was that on third dimensional pictures by George W. Wheelwright, 3rd, of the Land-Wheelwright Laboratories, Boston. Based on the use of Polaroid glasses by the audience, an effect of third diminsion is produced.

N. D. Golden Heard

N. D. Golden, head of the films division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce of the Dep't of Commerce, spoke an "Safeguarding and developing Our Film Markets Abroad." Taxes and complex restrictions which continue to be imposed in many foreign countries form one of the greatest problems American producers must face abroad, he said. Some are unreasonable, Golden declared, and the industry is justified in taking a strong stand with the object of bringing about their elimination.

In such action, the producers would be supported by the desire of the foreign audiences to see and hear American entertainment films. Foreign markets, which play an important part in the success of the industry, must be safeguarded, he said. American pictures are maintaining their immense popularity abroad, declared Golden.

Other technical papers read at yesterday's session included the following:

Hollywood, Oct. 11.—Josef Pasternack, musical conductor of Vick's radio show, and Joe Pasternak, producer of Universal's "100 Men and a Girl," are getting hardened to a scrambling of their mail, 'phone calls and office appointments, but don't know what to do about the newspaper that ran a biography of one with a portrait of the other. Neither does anybody else. So they're to meet across a luncheon table as a committee of two on ways and means.

ground the state was interfering with Federal Government's exclusive right to regulate commerce with foreign nations.

The court also denied a petition to T. L. Tally and the Corbar Corp. for rehearing of its suit against the Fox Film Corp. The case arose out of the Fox West Coast bankruptcy, the petitioners seeking to have the reorganization set aside on the ground that it was fraudulent. The lower courts ruled against the petitioners and were upheld by the Supreme Court.

An appeal of the Bureau of Internal Revenue for review of a decision of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals absolving Cecil B. DeMille from alleged avoidance of income taxes by use of a holding company was rejected by the court.

Rule on DeMille Prod.

The bureau in its petition contended Cecil B. DeMille had been employed by DeMille Prod. from 1924 to 1929 to avoid payment of taxes. The corporation, a holding company owned personally by DeMille and his associates, accumulated a surplus of $1,606,515 by 1929, but had paid in dividends only $192,000. The Bureau contended the corporation was used for the purpose of avoiding surtaxes, as had been charged last session by bureau officials appearing before the Tax Investigating Committee of Senate and House.

It was contended that DeMille and his wife owned 70 per cent of the holding company, Ella King Adams, a relative of Mrs. DeMille, held 10 per cent and DeMille's attorney held 20 per cent until after 1927 when DeMille and his wife owned 97 per cent.

sociation has no jurisdiction or control over the internal affairs or business policies of members," the letter states. It also points out that the order of exhibition availability at theatres in any contiguous area is universally "a matter of competition between theatres in such areas for contracts with distributors," and adds that as the two Kansas Cities are in the same competitive area "there can be only one first run of a picture in such area."

Willette characterized the reply as "buck passing" in commenting on it here.

"If Hays is going to pass the buck, well and good," he said. "There are other ways in which we can force this discrimination to public attention. But Mr. Hess made the mistake of trying to make us believe that Kansas City, Kan., is merely a suburb of Kansas City, Mo."

Willette said he would answer Hays' letter in a few days after conferring on the subject with civic leaders and the local theatre owners' association.

Flash Previews

"Counsel for Crime"—Not outstanding in any respect, this is satisfactory program fare, telling the story of the criminal lawyer who sacrifices himself to aid his son, who believes himself fatherless.

"Green Fields"—Something entirely new that will be found highly enjoyable by Jewish audiences. It is acted to perfection by well-chosen cast. It will be a memorable effort among all-Yiddish talkers.

"Renfrew of the Royal Mounted"—Standard "mountie" entertainment but with some Canadian backgrounds which are truly magnificent.

"She Loved a Fireman"—A secondary film, perhaps, but one which offers excellent amusement for the family trade.

Full reviews of these pictures will appear in an early issue of MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

president of the S. D. G., names as respondents Columbia, First National, M-G-M, RKO, 20th Century-Fox, Goldwyn, Selznick, Universal, Walter Wanger and Warners.

The petition had a lengthy memorandum attached asking that the board delay its decision on the Screen Writers' Guild petition for a hearing until the S. D. G. had a chance to present its case on its own merits. The memo asked that a hearing date be set for October 18 and if the S. W. G. hearing is not over at that time that a day-to-day postponement be made explaining that both Trial Examiner William Ringer and Special Board Attorney William J. Walsh will be on hand to handle the board's side of the case.

The memo added that the jurisdiction question raised by the respondents in the S. W. G. case and other issues at stake are of vital importance to both organizations

Dr. Towne Nylander, regional director of the Labor Board, said that the S. D. G. petition and memorandum would be forwarded to the National Board for action.

Protest Guild Hearing Evidence

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 11.—After respondents' counsel objected strenuously to the admission into evidence of more than 200 exhibits compiled by Dr. David Saposs, for the purpose of showing the effect of the industry on interstate commerce and in this manner establishing writers as employes, William Ringer, trial examiner, deferred until tomorrow a ruling on its admissibility in the hearing of the Screen Writers' Guild's petition for a bargaining agency election before the National Labor Relations Board.

After Ringer delayed the ruling on admissability, Paramount counsel moved for dismissal of the proceedings, holding that there is involved only a jurisdictional dispute between the S. W. G. and Screen Playwrights, Inc., which holds a bargaining agreement with the producers. This was taken under advisement.

Musician Pay Ratified Anew By the INRA

The Independent Network Radio Affiliates, convening yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria, again ratified the $1,500,000 annual increase for staff musicians salaries, the sum asked of this body of broadcasters by the A. F. of M. Of this sum, the networks have agreed to contribute $200,000 annually, to be allocated to stations on the basis of their increased expenditures.

The body also ratified a formula of allocation, on the basis of weighted averages as determined by Ernst & Ernst, accounting firm, representing the INRA. This will amount to five and one-half per cent of net receipts of station time, with allowances for certain deductions such as agency and representatives' commissions. They also adopted a resolution instructing the committee to continue negotiating a form of trade agreement with the A. F. of M., the proposed agreement being unsatisfactory in several points.

Pact Terms Published

The terms of the agreement were made available publicly for the first time at yesterday's meeting. The agreement contains 24 clauses, all of which are satisfactory to the INRA except clauses 10, 20 and 21, with the most emphasis placed on Article 10.

Article 10, as it now reads, stipulates that Federation musicians need not perform for an INRA station which will do any one of the following: (a) Transmit music to an affiliate station which fails to agree to expend the allocated quota for staff musicians, or fails to comply with the agreement; (b) Contract to broadcast music to any station other than an affiliate or key station which fails to enter in an agreement satisfactory to the A. F. of M. or with a local union of the A. F. of M.; (c) Contract for records and transcriptions or take and use transcriptions other than those licensed for that purpose by the A. F. of M.; (d) In the event an affiliate station transmits music not under contract now existing to any other broadcasting stations which are not affiliate or key stations, members of the Federation need not perform their services for such affiliate station unless such other broadcasting station enters into an agreement for the employment of staff musicians satisfactory to the Federation.

Call for Revision

This article and its division will have to be completely revised before the contract as a whole can become satisfactory to the INRA, it was said yesterday.

Article 20 specifies that A. F. of M. or its local affiliates can withdraw its musicians without notice in the event there is a default of contract by the station. This, in effect, means a musicians' strike, and the INRA wants an arbitration clause inserted. Article 21 now states that musicians owe their first allegiance to the Federation, not to the station, and the INRA committee has been instructed to seek a modification of this clause.

At yesterday's meeting, M. Rosenberg of Philadelphia, was elected chairman of the special advisory committee, replacing William S. Hedges, resigned.

The committee will meet with the A. F. of M. Monday.

Simultaneously yesterday the I. R. N. A. members convened separately to receive their committee's report of its negotiations with the International body of the A. F. of M. Approximately 125 attended the meeting, held also at the Waldorf. The I. R. N. A. will meet with the N. A. B. today, but because its problems are somewhat different from the non-network affiliated group, its pact with the A. F. of M. will be drawn separately.

Penna. High Court Upholds Waring on Music Air Casts

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 11.—Fred Waring has been upheld by a decision of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court, handed down in this city, in his suit based on the contention that a radio station cannot broadcast music from a recording without his approval.

Station WDAS, Philadelphia, had contended that, by joining the Nat'l Ass'n of Performing Artists, Waring had automatically relinquished his rights in the records, and therefore had no right to interfere with their reproduction.

The opinion was written by Justice Horace Stern. He held that, while the station did not profit directly by using Waring's music, it did gain an indirect benefit and was a competitor with Waring and advertisers using his orchestra. The court commented that the problems involved in the suit never before had been raised in an American or English court.

WDAS, an Independent

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 11.—WDAS is an independent station, which garners a large listening audience from programs which, in the main, consist of recordings. In addition to periodic shows throughout the day, composed solely of transcribed tunes, WDAS has a popular local show "Merry-Go-Round" which combines commercial announcements with records and comes over the air twice daily in two hour broadcasts. WDAS has a day power of 250 watts, and a night power of 100 watts.

The suits were originally four in number and were instituted in December, 1935. The others involved were a dance hall, a restaurant, and a recording laboratory that takes programs off the air. These cases were tried in the lower courts of Philadelphia and were lost by the defendants. WDAS was the only litigant to appeal the lower court decision.

Claim 20 Other Decisions

Approximately 20 similar cases, filed throughout the country, have been won by Waring and the Nat'l Ass'n of Performing Artists which now includes several thousand members, according to John O'Connor, Waring's manager.

The Nat'l Ass'n of Broadcasters, it is understood, arranged for the defense of the WDAS case.

Pending in Congress is a bill introduced by Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania and Congressman Daley of Philadelphia which seeks to establish the interpretative rights of performing artists legislatively. If the bill is passed it will prohibit nationally the reproduction of interpretations for profit.

In New York, a suit brought by Paul Whiteman against WNEW is on the calender to be heard in the Supreme Court some time next month, while another, brought by Frank Crumit against WHN, is also scheduled. Other cases pending are by Abe Lyman and Connie Boswell in Chicago, and Bing Crosby, Lily Pons, Wayne King in California. All are members of the Nat'l Ass'n of Performing Artists. The defendants, in all the cases, will be radio station owners.

Cincy AFRA Files Complaint

New Shows On the Air

"30 Minutes in Hollywood"

"30 Minutes in Hollywood," new coast-to-coast participation program on Mutual, featuring Georgie Jessel and Norma Talmadge, got off to a draggy start Sunday. However, there is reason to believe that with so expert a showman and comedian as Jessel at the helm, the show will build as it grows older.

The main fault with the opening installment was the lack of comedy. Despite the fact that this program has been in the making for more than a year, the script read as if it had been prepared at the last moment. Even the studio audience, which can always be depended upon to laugh at the wave of an announcer's hand, was painfully silent during the script pauses for laughs.

Tommy Tucker's orchestra bows to none as a musical unit. Dorothy McNulty's vocals are good; Norma Talmadge's style hints should be helpful to the feminine listeners, and a youngster, Josephine Starr, offers excellent possibilities.

The show is offered from 6 to 6:30 locally over WOR, and is sponsored in the metropolitan area by Crawford Clothes Stores. The agency is Redfield-Johstone.

"Log Cabin Jamboree"

"Log Cabin Jamboree" with Jack Haley as the fun maker and Ted Fio Rito and Virginia Verrill supplying the orchestral and vocal interludes, is a breezy half-hour offering and should enliven the living rooms of many listeners in ensuing weeks.

Haley, who was removed from the Maxwell House "Showboat" to prepare for this series, reflects the experience he gained while performing in the former. The "Showboat" mike rubbed some of the rust and radio inexperience from him and, as a consequence when he opened in the "Jamboree" Saturday night, he was heard to better advantage than in the past. He may yet build to a top comic spot in radio.

Miss Verrill, whose voice has long been a choice, although unsponsored, network bet, sang "Bob White," solo, and doubled with Haley in offering a parody of "Love Is on the Air Tonight." She also participated in the comedy skits. Fio Rito's orchestra definitely helps the program. Wendy Barrie was the evening's guest performer.

"Log Cabin Jamboree" is offered Saturdays from 8:30 to 9 P. M. on the NBC-Red. Benton & Bowles is the agency. General Foods Corp. sponsors for Log Cabin Syrup.

Denver best gross went to "Double or Nothing" at the Denham, with a high $11,000, over par by $6,000, and the film was held. "Stella Dallas" was strong at the Denver and was moved to the Aladdin.

High, Wide Milwaukee Hit

"High, Wide and Handsome" and "She Asked for It," at the Fox Palace in Milwaukee went over average by $3,000. "Stella Dallas" and "Big Shot" at the Warner were good for $7,500, up by $2,500.

"Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938" led in Cincinnati, with $13,500, over the RKO Palace average by $3,500, was moved to the RKO Capitol for a second week.

In Seattle, "Small Town Boy," aided by a Major Bowes unit on the stage of the Palomar, bettered par by $2,300, while "100 Men and a Girl," plus "My Dear Miss Aldrich," was strong at $7,800 at the Fifth Avenue, and "The Prisoner of Zenda" was good at the Paramount.

"Life Begins in College," with the Paul Whiteman orchestra on the stage, was the only film to better par in Oklahoma City, taking $8,200 against a house average of $4,500.

Believe Rose Has Completed UA Sale Plans

Expect a New Financial Issue in the U. S.

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 12.—David Rose, vice-president and financial adviser of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., is believed to have completed financing arrangements whereby Goldwyn and Alexander Korda will exercise the options for the purchase of U. A. stock held by Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford for $6,000,000.

The options will be included in a new financing issue, it is understood, which is to be floated in the U. S.

Rose will sail Oct. 20 on the Ile de France with Korda and Maurice Silverstone, U. A. head in England. The three executives will meet Goldwyn in New York for preliminary conferences and then go to the coast for the annual meeting of U. A. producer-owners.

David O. Selznick and Walter Wanger, producers for U. A., are now in New York. They have no partnership arrangement with the company. It is likely that they will confer with Alexander Korda and Samuel Goldwyn here before returning to Hollywood. Goldwyn is due from the coast about Nov. 1 for the opening of "Hurricane" at the Astor on a two-a-day policy.

Attempt Seen by Japanese To Buy Universal War Reel

By CHARLES S. AARONSON

(Copyright, 1937, Quigley Publishing Company)

Siegfried F. Lindstrom, formerly connected with the film industry in this country and in Japan, and purporting to represent the Japanese Chamber of Commerce in New York, yesterday attempted to purchase from Charles E. Ford, editor of Universal Newsreel, the entire footage embodying the latest pictures taken by Universal's cameramen of the Japanese-Chinese undeclared war in China.

Admittedly the purpose behind the purchase is suppression.

The film en route here, running a total of 10,400 feet, which will be cut and released as the weekend issue of the reel, in the normal running time of approximately 10 minutes, is said by Ford to contain shots of the bombing by Japanese airplanes of the Central Hospital, the Nanking Power Plant, the shooting down of Japanese planes and the capture of their pilots by the Chinese, and the visit of Madame Chiang Kai Shek, wife of the generalissimo of the Chinese armies, to the Central Hosptial during the air raid.

The newsreel material arrived in San Francisco on the China Clipper yesterday and is due in New York today by plane. Lindstrom, describing himself as neutral, a friend of both sides, and asserting that he was requested by the Japanese Chamber of Commerce here to represent it in the negotiations, telephoned Ford yesterday declaring that he had an important matter to discuss, then made his bid in Ford's office.

From the reel's editor Lindstrom received a flat and unequivocal refusal to entertain the proposition. Ford emphatically replied that the reel was neutral in the war, has no intention of coloring or censoring the film material obtained by its cameramen in China, and under no circumstances would consider its sale to any interests.

Lindstrom, questioned later in the day by MOTION PICTURE DAILY, recounted his experience in the film business, said he was employed at one time as manager of the New York office of the Japanese N.Y.K. steamship line, in the passenger department, and declared he is at present connected with the New York office of the Bureau of Insular Affairs of the U. S. War Dept. His film experience included a period as Far

Admission Tax May Be Levied Indefinitely

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Possibilities that the admission tax may be made a permanent part of the tax setup were voiced today by Representative Robert L. Doughton of North Carolina, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, following a visit to the White House, accompanied by Representative Fred M. Vinson of Kentucky, chairman of the special tax sub-committee, to discuss revenue with President Roosevelt.

The admission tax and other nuisance levies were adopted as a temporary means of raising revenue. Extended by Congress last session, they are now due to expire in 1939.

Light Around Screen Topic Of the SMPE

Lighting the marginal areas of screen so that theatre patrons would not be conscious of the sharp contrast between them and surrounding areas was demonstrated yesterday at the second day's session of the Society of M. P. Engineers convention at the Hotel Pennsylvania by Ben Schlanger.

Schlanger is the inventor of the process in cooperation with Jacob Gilston. He calls it a "screen synchrofield," and says that it will be an important factor in making the screen more lifelike by widening the field of vision of the spectator. No change will be necessary in the size of screens.

The paper and demonstration were a feature of the afternoon meeting.

Yesterday's meeting was devoted

Radio Problem To Be Argued By Kuykendall

One of Aims of Present Visit to Studios

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.—Studio broadcasts will be one of the topics to be discussed here by Ed Kuykendall on his current visit. He made this known today after first saying that his purpose was to hold a series of informal huddles with industry units on distributor-exhibitor relationships.

Kuykendall arrived Monday evening and will leave Saturday for San Francisco where a meeting is scheduled for Monday.

Expanding on the subject of studio broadcasts, Kuykendall said the M. P. T. O. A. attitude is that M-G-M, as well as other studios, should have the exhibitors' box-office point of view on timing and content of radio programs and should be given a chance to work out a technique and material which will enhance rather than detract from the theatre value of players and pictures.

A point that he made in passing was that certain players have sought to limit themselves to four or five pictures a year to conserve their popularity, but display a prompt willingness to sign up for 52 radio appear-

Congress to Meet Again on Nov. 15

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—A special session of Congress, to meet Nov. 15, was today announced by President Roosevelt.

The extra session will be devoted largely to the consideration of the Administration's agricultural program, but will also offer opportunity for discussion of a number of other matters, thus opening up possibilities that measures affecting the film industry may be pressed.

Ambassador Again Requests SEC Delay

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Further deferment of the effective date of its registration was today asked of the S.E.C. by Ambassador Pictures.

The company, which filed a statement Aug. 25 covering a proposed issue of 1,176,000 shares of $1 par value capital stock of which 600,000 shares were to be publicly offered, had previously sought and secured two extensions of time.

Monogram to Meet On Coast in April

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—Monogram will hold its 1938-39 convention here next April. Franchise holders and office managers will convene here at a date to be announced by W. Ray Johnston, president, in New York, after the first of the year.

Alsop-Lynch Join Up

JACKSONVILLE, Oct. 12.—Back from a three-month vacation in the north, former Mayor John T. Alsop says he has renewed a former business association with S. A. Lynch and will open offices here.

Alsop was associated with Lynch in the opening and operation of virtually all of the theatres here and in Miami.

Confer on K. C. Scales

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 12.—Felix Snow, I.A.T.S.E. representative in this area, has begun conferences with local exhibitors in an effort to reach a settlement of the agreement proposed June 19 by the theatre employes' local. The union has two groupings, one for front-of-the-theatre workers, one for porters and others on the after-show shift.

Two British Groups Confer on Film Bill

LONDON, Oct. 12.—The council of the Film Group of the Federation of British Industries tonight and the council of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n are considering their statements of policy relative to the Film Bill proposed by the Board of Trade.

The C.E.A. is understood to be planning to reiterate its belief in the value of the quality clause as a basis for ascertaining quota, and the Film Group is expected to ask for a quarterly quota instead of the annual arrangement planned, aiming to prevent the release and exhibition of British film in the mass during the summer.

Both groups are opposed to the double quota principle on the ground that it must logically be extended to the point where the quota will be based entirely on cost, which, it is contended, will result in a shortage of product and react unfairly to the advantage of the wealthier American companies.

Further talks by the two branches of the industry next week are expected to provide an expansion of the common front they are presenting to the films bill as proposed.

Wilcox expects to be in this country until Jan. 2, and stated that there had been no developments in earlier discussions to produce for Paramount in England.

Mutual will broadcast a radio adaptation of "Victoria the Great" tonight from 10 to 10:30 P. M. from Ottawa, Canada, where the motion picture will have its premiere this evening. Following the broadcast Anna Neagle, player in the film, and Herbert Wilcox, will be interviewed on the air.

Sindlinger Named to March of Time Post

Albert E. Sindlinger yesterday was appointed director of promotion and advertising for The March of Time by Louis de Rochemont at a staff luncheon. The appointment of Sindlinger, who has been in charge of the subject's MOT exhibitor exploitation for the past two years, follows 13 years of experience in the industry. Sindlinger has managed key theatres in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and in other cities.

showed in his report that the organization is in excellent financial condition with $7,800 in cash on hand and additional sums in investments.

National leaders were not present, although Abram F. Myers had been scheduled to talk, but was prevented because he had to appear before the Federal Trade Commission.

Committees were appointed as follows: Resolutions—Glenn Cross, Battle Creek, chairman; P. C. Schram, Kalamazoo; W. G. Thich, Marshall; C. R. Beechler, Charlotte, and William Schulte, of the Schulte circuit. Credentials — Schuttenhelm, Detroit, chairman; Thich, Beechler, Budge, J. E. Stocker, Detroit; Kirchner, W. E. Cassidy, and Harry Hobolth, Imlay City.

Following the first business session, the annual banquet was held with more than 150 exhibitors and film men and their friends enjoying a special floor show arranged by Alex Schreiber.

Tomorrow's sessions will be confined to business, which will include election of officers and the possible selection of a general manager to succeed H. M. Richey who recently resigned to join Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan.

Schreiber Will Join Co-op of Michigan

DETROIT, Oct. 12.—Alex Schreiber, of the Associated Theatres Circuit, controlling seven houses in Detroit and in the state, this afternoon stated that his organization had made application for membership in Co-operative Theatres of Michigan. It is expected that the application will be approved at the board meeting of the booking and buying combine tomorrow.

Schreiber's action follows the recent sale of the Capitol by Associated to Ben and Lou Cohen, removing the last Associated house from competition with a Co-op situation.

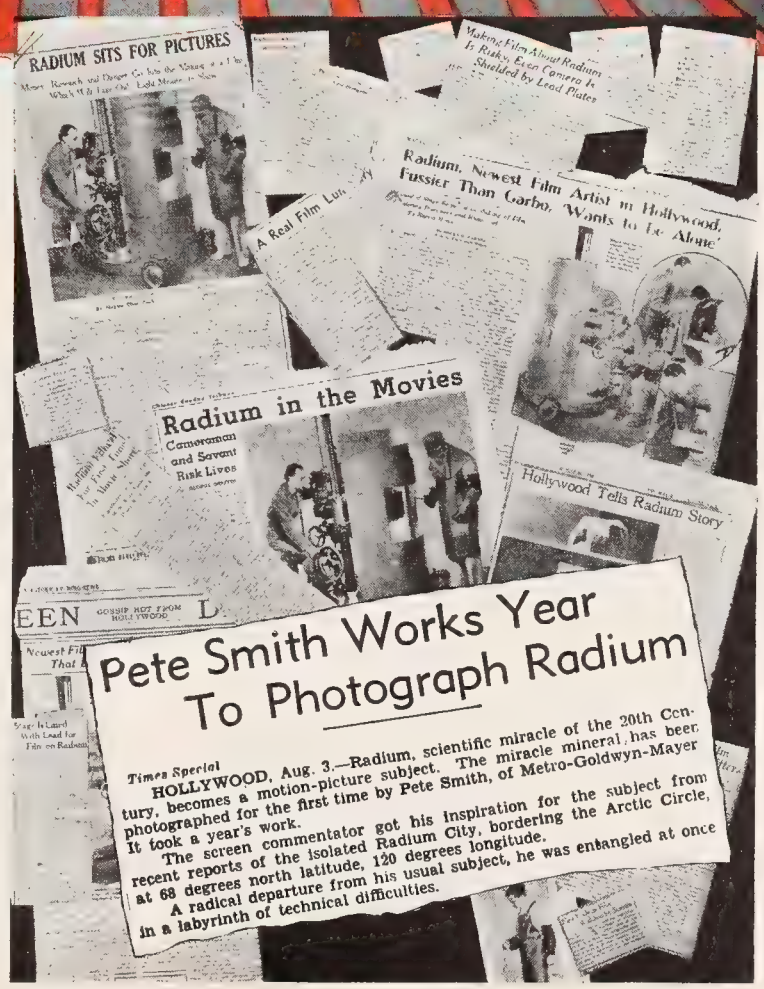
territory and efforts to unite both groups into one organization will be gone over from all angles.

Irving Dollinger, newly elected president of Allied of New Jersey, will head his committee which includes Louis Gold and Morris Marks. The I.T.O.A. group will be under the chairmanship of Maurice Fleischman, chairman of the unit's executive committee; Leon Rosenblatt, David Weinstock and Jimmy Binkov.

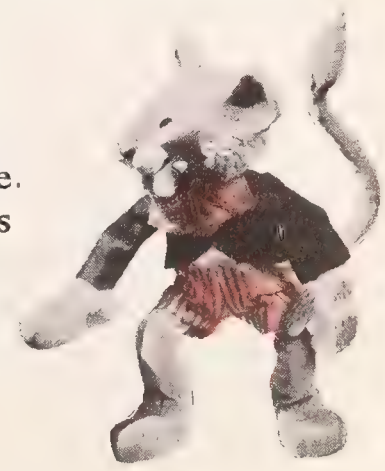
During the last years of the Theatre Owners Chamber of Commerce, of which Charles L. O'Reilly was president, Harry Brandt, head of the I.T.O.A., made several unsuccessful attempts to combine the membership. The T.O.C.C. has been dormant for the past three years, but still maintains an office in the Times Bldg. While O'Reilly now devotes most of his time to his candy vending business, he occasionally takes time off to lend his support to legislative issues affecting Greater New York exhibitors.

IT TOOK ONE WHOLE YEAR TO MAKE THIS AMAZING SHORT SUBJECT!



Pete Smith's ROMANCE OF RADIUM

M-G-M brings you the most costly short subject ever made. One entire year was devoted to making the first motion pictures of the "miracle mineral" for the screen. Radium, the most dangerous substance known to man, is also the most valuable. Filming it was a perilous undertaking. Making it factual was a technical triumph. That's why every newspaper in the land, from the New York Times to the smallest weekly, has devoted full pages and rotogravure space to a one-reel motion picture. It is more than a picture, it's the triumph of showmanship over seemingly unsurmountable obstacles. Pre-sold, it will attract more attention to your theatre than any one-reel picture you have ever played. It is a thrilling entertainment that offers unlimited publicity and exploitation values.



A NOTED THEATRE OPERATOR WRITES:

"Dear Mr. Pete Smith: For four years I have booked every short subject you have made and always in 'A' time. You are the best loved and most respected person on the screen today by men, women and children in big towns, little towns, first, second, third and subsequent runs and return engagements. One of the remarkable things about your work is that each subject invariably maintains your high standard. No other short subject series has such a record.

Pages of Publicity precede its release. Leo, Jr., is on the job just like his pappy!

Report Japan Tried to Buy "U" Newsreel

Eastern general sales manager for United Artists, and later as Far Eastern manager for RKO. Lindstrom also said that he had approached officials of News of the Day and Movietone News on the same matter, but that they gave him no specific answer pending receipt of their clips.

He admitted to MOTION PICTURE DAILY that he has no official capacity in the Japanese Chamber of Commerce here, but said he had been requested to represent it in the attempt to purchase the Sino-Japanese war film. He declared that he "assumed" a cable from Japan to that country's Chamber of Commerce here led to his attempt to buy the material from Ford. The Chamber of Commerce office here could not be reached yesterday because of the holiday, and at the Japanese Consulate here it was said Lindstrom was not known.

Wanted Capture Scenes

Lindstrom, MOTION PICTURE DAILY learned, laid particular stress, in his conversation with Ford, on the desire of the interests he claimed to represent to obtain that portion of the film which recorded the capture of Japanese airmen by Chinese. It was generally believed, however, that since suppression appeared to be the ultimate purpose of the attempted purchase, the film record of the bombing of the Central Hospital was most ardently desired.

It is also known that Lindstrom, in his effort to persuade Ford to sell the film, made the point, rather by inference than directly, that perhaps it might be good business for Ford to sell, in view of the fact that if he did not, Japan might not welcome the activities of Universal's representatives in that country in the future.

Ford was unmoved by the arguments, reiterating his refusal to sell under any circumstances. Price was not mentioned specifically, but it was implied that it would be high.

Disavowed by the Embassy

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—The Japanese Embassy today disavowed all knowledge of Siegfried F. Lindstrom, officials stating that all officials of the Japanese Government and the Japanese Chamber of Commerce are Japanese.

Lindstrom is not an employe of the U. S. Bureau of Insular Affairs, as claimed by him in New York. However, officials of that bureau here explained today that there is a purchasing agency in the Whitehall Bldg., New York, which is more or less under War Department control and acts for the Philippine Government, the Dominican and Haitian receiverships and the Manila Railroad Co. and believed Lindstrom is, or has been, employed by the head of that agency, named Hershey. He does not draw pay from the Federal Government.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News

Vol. 20, No. 9

(20th Century-Fox)

Plenty of pictorial variety marks the latest issue of Movietone News, but the dramatic highlight is the final World Series game and three college football games. Screen credit goes to Tom Cummiskey for his supervision of the sport shots and he deserves it. They're really good, and Ed Thorgersen's running comment adds to their dramatic value.

The reel starts with a variety of shots of the Endeavour I nearing its home port of Gosport, England. They're well done. Shots of the Duke of Connaught reviewing troops follow—why, it's hard to say, unless the editors thought some British footage needed. The public's lively interest in the Duke and Duchess of Windsor visiting the Paris Exposition are timely in view of their approaching visit to this country.

At times Lew Lehr is very funny, at others he is just funny and on occasions he—well, he tries. In this reel his description of a wrestling match is a riot.

Vyvyan Donner's fashion shots have some beautiful models and sumptuous backgrounds to make them interesting for the male as well as the female customers. Talent scouts ought to take a look at these models from time to time.

As said before, the sport shots are excellent. It's getting so we'd rather watch football on the screen than on the gridiron. The supersensitive film and the smart cutting enable the spectator to see what is happening without suffering a chill.

Running time, 9 mins. J.

News of the Day

Vol. 9, No. 207

(M-G-M)

This might well be described as a sporting reel, since the major part of the footage is devoted to the World Series and various of the early college football games. The men will go for the reel in a big way, of course, and the women will probably enjoy the picture of the Connecticut woman who started to raise turkeys as a hobby and now has the largest privately-owned turkey farm in the world, with 60,000 gobblers. A farm hand sharpening an axe lends a timely note.

The arrival of the lost Endeavour I in England, the Paris shopping tour of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor and the wedding anniversary of Oscar of the Waldorf are the remaining clips. A bit more attention might have been paid to the final game of the series, the clip occupying but a minute.

The college game sequences afford action in plenty, featuring highlights of the games between Southern California-Ohio State, Notre Dame-Illinois and Princeton-Cornell.

Running time, 9 mins. A.

Paramount News

(Paramount)

The usual series of clips with brief innings of the five World Series games and three pigskin set-tos highlighting the issue. The reel starts off with the rodeo show at the Madison Square Garden, then switches to Washington where Secretary Hull and Ambassador Norman Davis discuss the nine-power conference at the State Department. The return of Endeavour I to Gosport, Eng., after being at sea for 19 days, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor leaving Paris for Germany, preparatory to their departure next month for the U. S., and possible residences they may take during their sojourn here complete the international topics.

The trio of football games show U.S.C. defeating Ohio State at Los Angeles by a score of 13-12, Yale downing Penn at New Haven by 27-7, Cornell routing the Tigers with a tally of 20-7 at Princeton. Several of the major plays are caught by the camera and will surely provide a thrill for the home town boys.

Running time, 9 mins. O.

"Pathe News"

Vol. 9, No. 24

(RKO)

"Shall We Scuttle Neutrality?" is the lead off in the latest issue of the rooster reel. There is not very much to the topic. Secretary of State Hull is shown talking to the press. Frederic J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War, in a talk, calls on the President to invoke the neutrality laws. C. N. Eichelberger, director of the League of Nations Ass'n, urges support of the President's policy to scuttle the neutrality legislation. Pro and con.

Clem McCarthy delivers his familiar comment while scenes of the World Series unreel. Vittorio Mussolini, besieged by the press in Washington, says "I don't know," "No comment" when he is asked how he likes American girls. The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are seen at the Paris Exposition. A Russian cyclist demonstrates a seagoing vehicle. The reel closes with shots of the scoring plays of the Princeton-Cornell football game last weekend.

The reel, outside of the humorous aspect of young Mussolini parrying reporters' questions, offers routine material. The sports are well filmed.

Running time, 8 mins. P.

Universal Newsreel

No. 605

(Universal)

A good variety of subjects with plenty of sports action contribute to the making of a diverting reel despite the absence of any spot news clips.

The sports subjects are outstanding for good photography and action shots and include the final World Series game, the Northwestern-Michigan game, the Yale-Pennsylvania and Cornell-Princeton games. In addition, there are some good action shots of the rodeo, current in New York, and the automobile speed trials at Bonneville, Utah. The return of Endeavour I to its home port in England after having been last for almost three weeks in the North Atlantic, shots of Vittorio Mussolini journeying eastward from Hollywood and a glimpse of Dannielle Darrieux, Universal's new European import, being welcomed in Hollywood, complete the issue.

Wood has registered a protest in behalf of his organization with Nicholas M. Schenck.

Fleischer Strikers Reach Agreement

The strike of the Commercial Artists' & Designers' union at the Fleischer studio here was settled by agreement between the two parties yesterday after many weeks of negotiation.

Under the strike settlement the union waives its claim to represent the 16 animators employed by the studio, a stumbling block which tripped up several earlier attempts to settle the strike. The animators were opposed to having the union designated as their representative, due to the fact that they regarded their problems and work as entirely different from that of the other studio employes. Siding with the animators, Fleischer persistently refused to include them in any agreement with the union, but was at all times willing to recognize the union as the bargaining agent for the remainder of the employes.

Wage increases, working hours and vacation agreements and other benefits are included in the settlement of the strike which has been in progress since May.

Anti-Trust Ruling Up at Dallas Today

heard the discussions. It is understood that the film men will try to get a softening in the tone of the decree as it has been prepared by the district attorney's office.

Judge Atwell recently ruled the Interstate and several major distributors had been operating in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act in making contracts which regulated subsequent run admissions. A formal decree was not filed at the time, the judge allowing the interim for both sides to try for an agreement as to the form of the decree.

Defendant distributors have indicated they will not appeal the decision if they are able to agree with the Government on the form of the decree.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Texas Trail"

(Sherman-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.—"Texas Trail" is a Hopalong Cassidy story. William Boyd, George Hayes, Russell Hayden and Billy King, who may be a possible permanent addition to that group, are in it. The photographer has not been negligent of scenic beauties. "Texas Trail" is an outdoor, action and adventure entertainment. Practically everything that happens is standard. One alteration is made, horses rather than steers—cows to most people—are the central figures in the exciting episodes. This is not entirely unique, inasmuch as horses have replaced cows many times before.

"Texas Trail" was made for a market. The people who patronize that market know what they are going to get. Harry Sherman, the producer, has seen to it that they will not be disappointed. He has given them what they expect and in so doing has decked it up with a little novelty. The United States Army when it was warring with Spain needed horses. Hopalong (William Boyd) and his aides were assigned to procure them. For devious reasons, all of which make understandable entertainment, rustlers, headed by Alexander Cross, prevent delivery of the steeds. But a girl, Judith Allen, and the boy, King, help Boyd to accomplish his mission.

The film may not be as good as some of the other Hopalongs, but it still is interesting and entertaining. Where people don't go to the trouble of analyzing everything as to whether it is right or wrong, but are content to be entertained in a way that westerns are expected to entertain, this should satisfy.

Running time, 63 minutes.

"She Loved a Fireman"

(First National)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.—Good stuff very often comes in small packages. And despite its rather 10-20-30-cent sounding title, "She Loved a Fireman" is entertainment of more than expected merit and a picture which contains considerable exploitation material.

Naturally the film concentrates on action; that's a part of the personal doings of the cast as well as a feature of production. It also tells a human interest love story. A secondary film, it also appears to be, judging from preview audience reaction, a show that should interest the entire family.

Dick Foran, who thinks pretty well of himself, joins the fire department. He 's not amenable to discipline until Captain Robert Armstrong beats him up. The enmity between the two is not softened when Foran falls in love with Armstrong's sister, Ann Nagel. But the feud is brought to a happy ending when, after the trucks roll and shriek, Foran saves Armstrong's life during a fire.

Besides turning in a good acting job, along with Armstrong and Miss Nagel, Foran also sings one romantic number in pleasing manner. The capable supporting cast, which includes Veda Ann Borg, May Beattie, Eddie Chandler, Lane Chandler, Ted Oliver and Pat Flaherty, features Eddie Acuff in a role which, while essentially comic, also wins him considerable audience sympathy.

The original screenplay by Carlton Sand and Morton Grant is coherent and fast-moving. John Farrow's direction keeps something doing on the screen all the time.

Running time, 56 minutes. "G."

Finished in Rome

ROME, Oct. 12.—Maria Gambarelli has just finished a role in "Dr. Antonio," the first picture to be made at Cinema City studios, just outside this city. Mander Films is the producer. BOSTON, Oct. 12.—Charles Repec, head of the Boston Cinema Club, is recovering from an automobile accident. He still has a limp.

Short Subjects

"Screen Snapshots, No. 12"

(Columbia)

A brief tour of the highlights of Hollywood is offered in this number. The various rendezvous of film folk for publicity, recreation and other purposes are pictured with a number of players taking part in the presentation. It is a good reel for the fans. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"The Football Toucher-Downer"

(Fleischer-Paramount)

Popeye is trying to feed Sweepea spinach. The infant refuses to eat. Popeye then tells about his boyhood as a football player. The action that follows is the usual, reliable stuff that is replete with plenty of highly imaginative drawings and laughs. Good. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Roping 'Em Alive"

(Vitaphone)

Starting with scenes of members of the Masawi tribe in Africa, this short goes on to the Malay States where a baby elephant and a python are captured with lariats. There is nothing much to it but the scenes of the roping may prove exciting though they seem phoney. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"The New Deal Show"

(Fleischer-Paramount)

Betty Boop holds a pet show. The piece de resistance is a stage show where the latest comforts for the various animals and fish are shown. What ensues is clever stuff well drawn. The finale has Betty and her four-legged assistants "truckin'" off the boards. It is good. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"The Inventor"

(Paramount)

A baffler that eventually turns out to be hilarious comedy. It is a take off on the queer patents cycle. The screwy patents are demonstrated by a phony professor who eventually is shown to be an inmate of a nuthouse. His convincing lines will build the audience up for the climax which they will no doubt find laughable. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"The Star Reporter in Hollywood No. 2"

(Paramount)

Ted Husing as commentator serves to introduce a cowboy singing group, David Holt in a song and dance routine and Louis Prima's music. Husing's narration is interesting and the acts are pleasant enough. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Rooftop Frolics"

(Columbia)

A fairly entertaining musical with a number of effectively performed acts. It is set on a rooftop and there is music, singing, dancing and much atmosphere. It will please. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

New Shows On the Air

"The Lamplighter"

Jacob Tarshish, known to WOR listeners as "The Lamplighter," returned to that station Sunday with his informative and philosophical discussions of the world and its people.

He choose as his opening topic religious tolerance. Beginning with a review of the Black- Ku-Klux-Klan affair, he quickly dropped personalities to speak generally about human brotherhood and of how unfortunately little tolerance is practiced. Epitomizing his sermon, he told of the Irish woman who wandered into a synagogue and sat down to pray. The Rabbi approached her and sympathetical suggested that perhaps she had mistaken the synagogue for a Catholic church. But the woman had not erred. "Surely," she said, "I can find God here, too."

Tarshish, in our book, rates as one of the most enjoyable speakers in radio, not only because his talks usually are far superior in subject matter and interpretation to those of his colleagues, but because he speaks simply and without affectation. He is presented Sundays from 7:45 to 8 P. M. North American Accident & Health Insurance Co. sponsors. BANNER

Departmentalization Voted By NAB; Dues Boosted 50%

NAB members strengthened and drastically reorganized their association at the special convention at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday by adoption of a series of resolutions providing for the departmentalization of special interest groups, and also voted an increase of 50 per cent in dues to carry out the program. The dues are to be paid by member stations on the basis of their highest quarter-hour rates bi-monthly instead of quarterly, and will increase the NAB's income from approximately $80,000 to $120,000.

The resolutions for this program were introduced by Ed Craig of WSM, Nashville, and were adopted by acclamation of those in attendance, approximately 300 in number.

The committee which will act on the reorganization comprises Mark Ethridge, WHAS, Louisville, chairman; Ed Allen, WLVA, Lynchburgh, Va.; Ed Craney, KIBW, Butte, Mont.; Walter J. Damm, WTMJ, Milwaukee, Wis., and John Shepard 3d, of the Yankee and Colonial networks.

Usefulness Broadened

With the departmentalization of the NAB, the organization will be enabled for the first time to serve the divergent groups within its body, such as network affiliates, non-network affiliates, clear channel stations, and regional and local groups.

Also adopted by acclamation was a resolution to reorganize the Bureau of Copyrights of the NAB, and it will henceforth function as a separate and private enterprise. The NAB, however, will continue its stock ownership in the bureau.

The problem which led to the reorganization and the calling of the special convention was introduced to the body at the afternoon session when Lloyd Thomas, of WROK, Rockford, Ill., asked the NAB to provide its advice, assistance, counsel and cooperation to the unaffiliated independent stations in their dealings with the A. F. of M. Up to this point the discussions had centered solely on the negotiations between the network affiliates and the Musicians Federation. The Thomas resolution was adopted, but not before much debate had centered about the subject of non-affiliates versus the affiliates.

Ike Levy Criticises

Ike Levy, fire-brand owner of WCAU, Philadelphia, created great excitement when he declared the NAB an ineffectual organization. Levy, who resigned from the NAB two years ago, predicted wholesale resignations of other members in the future.

Levy reviewed the NAB's tardily-handled negotiations with ASCAP, which, he said, enabled ASCAP to dictate its own terms to the NAB "and made you like it." He said he considered the A. F. M. demands as fair ones, warned that Weber was not to be toyed with and urged the broadcasters to come to terms with the Federation without further delay. He declined invitations to return to the NAB as a member.

Two resolutions, both of which urged the NAB to cooperate with any proposed Federal investigation of the industry were offered by Ed Craney and Lloyd Thomas. Both resolutions were referred to the board of directors for further action.

A resolution introduced by Harold Hough of WBAP, Fort Worth, Tex., provided that the standard yardstick of the measurement of broadcast business in the future be computed and published in the terms of unit hours instead of gross dollars. It also asked that representation be made to NBC and CBS and Mutual to follow this same practice. The resolution was adopted.

By resolution the NAB also recommended that five divisions be created to handle administrative, legal, economic, engineering problems, and one to disseminate general information about the industry.

Non-network affiliates, at the close of the regular NAB session, met to consider their own problems with the musicians and to select a committee to consult with the NAB on procedure. This committee comprises Howard Loeb, WFDF, Flint, Mich.; H. B. McNaughton, WTBO, Cumberland, Md.; Gregory Gentling, KROC, Rochester, Minn.; S. Schultz, WLAW, Lawrence, Mass., and NAB President John Elmer, who operates WCBM, Baltimore.

The NAB special convention will reconvene again this morning.

Music Labor Group Active in Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—The Chicago Musicians Union today defied the C. I. O. and the A. F. of M. by mapping plans for further organization of production men in radio.

James C. Petrillo, head of the musicians' union here, caused a tremendous stir in local labor circles with the revelation that his union had secretly organized radio announcers, producers and sound effect men. During the past week, Petrillo revealed, his union has conducted secret negotiations with the local studios of CBS, and has received a 20 per cent increase in pay for the new members, already effective.

WHN Adds New Accounts

The Archcraft Shoe Shop and the Clark Shoe Co. have signed contracts with WHN for spot announcements. The former is for 26 weeks and the latter for 13 weeks. Other new business signed by the station is a renewal of "Alias Jimmy Valentine" by Larus & Bros., for Edgeworth and Domino cigarettes. The Pinex Co. has signed for a second program, "Merrymakers," which is fed to WHN from WLW in Cincinnati every Saturday from 7 to 7:30 P. M.

Minstrels Time Changed

The NBC Minstrels will be heard from 9:30 to 10 P. M. tonight over the Blue instead of from 10:30 to 11 P. M.

KYOS Celebrates Today

MERCED, Cal., Oct. 12.—KYOS, local station operated by the Merced Star Publishing Co., will celebrate its first anniversary tomorrow.

Radio Problem To Be Argued By Kuykendall

ances annually. It was necessary, he said, for exhibitors and producers to cooperate to safeguard against players thus destroying their own billing value as well as product carrying a studio and theatre investment.

Kuykendall expressed optimism over the prospect of working out a satisfactory means of handling the problem.

Commenting on a statement in MOTION PICTURE DAILY Oct. 11 that his bulletin setting forth that there has been "no marked expansion on the part of affiliated circuits in the past seven years" is at variance with an official report supplied by Paramount, Kuykendall said 400 houses represented as Paramount acquisitions during the past three years had been in point of all except formal declaration Paramount affiliates of long standing.

Describing the status of his visit here, he recalled his father's advice on the settlement of a fence dispute in the south during his boyhood. His parent pointed out that the disputants could accomplish nothing by standing 400 yards apart with the fence in the center, but could find their mutual interests as a basis for agreement by moving down to the contested line and chatting across the fence. He said he held no magic wand and has no cure-all. He has come down to the fence, he said, to talk common sense.

Example from Memory

About 20 telephone calls he received during the half-hour interview with a DAILY reporter indicated plenty of Hollywoodsmen want to hear him do it.

WNEW Gets Two Accounts

Michael's Department Store is sponsoring "News for Everyone," new program on WNEW for 11 weeks. The Schillin Advertising Corp. handled the deal. Also on the same station Sulophen has contracted for sponsorship of "Make Believe Ballroom" for 13 weeks beginning Oct. 18 through Robert & Reiners, Inc.

"Another Racket" on WOR

"Another Racket," new program on WOR sponsored by the Better Business Bureau, will be heard on Sunday, Oct. 17, from 12:45 to 1 P. M. instead of from 9:45 to 10 P. M. as previously scheduled.

WHN-NBC in Pact

WHN, which recently expanded the scope of its program activities by becoming a member of the WLW Line, has entered into a pact with NBC, it is learned, and, effective shortly, the Loew station will broadcast commercial programs simultaneously with NBC, with the network feeding WHN. Full details of the pact will be revealed soon.

SMPE Hits at Academy Plan For Apertures

Claims $1,000,000 Cost Can Be Avoided

The Society of M. P. Engineers, in the course of the third day of the semi-annual convention at the Hotel Pennsylvania, heard the Projection Practice Committee, of which H. Rubin is chairman, take sharp issue with the Academy of M. P. Arts and Sciences' Technical Branch, on the matter of a change in projection practice.

The S. M. P. E. committee charged that the change suggested by the Academy would cost exhibitors of the country approximately $1,000,000, whereas the methods to overcome the situation recommended by the committee would involve virtually no cost.

The committee, in considering the problem whereby essential action photographed upon the film is often cut off from the screen during projection in the theatre, recommended that the cameramen draw upon their view finders hairline rectangles to be used as guides or danger signals in composing their scenes.

The Academy's recommendation

Japanese Admits Effort to Obtain Newsreel War Film

By CHARLES S. AARONSON

(Copyright, 1937, Quigley Publishing Company)

George Yamaoka, attorney, of 120 Broadway, who is a director of the Japanese Chamber of Commerce in New York, admitted to MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday that he had asked Siegfried F. Lindstrom to approach Universal and other newsreel companies with reference to the reels' latest film material recording the bombing of Nanking, including the air raid on the Central (Chinese) Hospital, in the undeclared Sino-Japanese war.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday exclusively revealed that efforts to obtain the clips were made by Lindstrom, who had stated he was acting on behalf of the Japanese Chamber of Commerce.

Yamaoka declared that Lindstrom had been requested by him not to purchase the negative of the newsreel material, which reached New York by plane yesterday, but to obtain copies of the reel, if possible.

Yamaoka was asked the purpose for which the Japanese Chamber of Commerce wanted the film, or copies

Moves to End Prizes Make No Progress

Little response has been shown by major circuits and independent exhibitors not affiliated with the I.T.O.A. in signing of pledges to eliminate games in the Greater New York territory, it was stated yesterday.

Several exhibitors in the outlying districts have signed the pledge, it was said, but no definite action has been forthcoming from Loew's, RKO and Skouras, and important independent circuits.

Nate J. Blumberg, operating head of RKO, has sent a letter to the independent organization stating he was in favor of the move. C. C. Moskowitz of Loew's has received a letter from the I.T.O.A. asking for his reaction. Moskowitz also is in sympathy with the plan to drop games and giveaways and is expected to answer the letter in a few days.

Last year, Loew's, RKO, Skouras and Century circuits abandoned gifts and games in the hope that competing independent theatres would follow. Independent exhibitors refused to drop the practice with the I.T.O.A. demanding that major circuit houses increase prices.

Having initiated the move last year,

Branch Named Head Of Michigan Allied

DETROIT, Oct. 13.—Ray Branch, who previously had held the office four years, was elected president of Allied of Michigan this afternoon in a whirlwind business session that lasted only three hours. W. G. Thich of Marshall was named vice-president and Edgar E. Kirchner of Detroit, secretary-treasurer.

Reflecting the new out-state complexion of the organization, which lost a considerable number of houses when they resigned recently to become affiliated with Co-Operative Theatres of Michigan, local booking and buying combine, eight of the new directors are out-state exhibitors, while one Detroiter, William Schulte, also controls several state theatres.

The new board is composed of Glenn Cross, Battle Creek, C. R. Beechler, Charlotte; P. C. Schram, Kalamazoo; W. A. Cassidy, Midland; Charles Kingsbury, Morenci; Schulte,

Dallas Decree Allows Use of Old Contracts

Bars Concerted Action By Distributors

DALLAS, Oct. 13.—Distributors will continue to have the right to enter into contracts for exclusive runs with exhibitors, to designate admission prices and establish the clearance period for subsequent runs so long as the contracts are not the result of agreements by understanding or conspiracy, according to the terms of the decree and judgment which were entered in Federal court here today in the Government action against the Interstate Circuit and major distributors.

Indications are that the defendants are satisfied with the findings of the contracts' legality when conspiracy is not involved in their use and will not appeal from Judge Atwell's decision.

The court ruled that the decree "does not affect the right to contract between distributors and exhibitors. The right of the owner of a copyright to contract for exclusive run with the exhibitor and asking him to charge 40 cents a seat is not denied so long as they not conspire or have a common understanding. He may even fix the time of clearance for subsequent

CIO Seeking Union Among Loew Worker

Petitions were distributed to all Loew home office workers yesterday during lunch hour by the Film Division, Local 16, United Office and Professional Workers of America, a C.I.O. affiliate, in which the discharge of home office Universal employes was discussed, and at the same time asking the white collar workers to join the union.

The petition was in the form of a four-page letter and signed by the "Committee of Discharged Universal Employes."

CEA Challenges KRS On New Rent Policy

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The council of the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n today accepted the report of the rentals committee recommending that members continue to book "A" or "B" features on a flat rental basis, where that method has been used in the past.

The action is a challenge to the recent statement of policy of the Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors) under which it was declared that "A" films would be rented on a percentage basis only.

The C.E.A. council stated that a joint meeting is planned with the circuits to inaugurate a fight for lower rentals.

Publicity Bureau Dropped

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The C.E.A. has dropped its plan for a publicity bureau, and Frank Tilley, who had been named to handle the department, has been appointed temporarily to assist W. R. Fuller, general secretary of the C.E.A., on publicity work in connection with the proposed new Films Bill.

CEA Approves Long Reel

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Out of 607 replies received to a questionnaire by the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n, relative to the proposed new standardized 2,000-foot reel, 568 exhibitors declared for the new reel and 37 expressed opposition to it.

A total of 571 declare that existing projectors will take the new size reel, and 37 say they will not. Front projection is reported in use by 576 exhibitors and 87 use rear projection. No theatres report licensing restrictions against the long reel.

Wilcox to Make Two British Lion Films

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Herbert Wilcox Prod. are to make two films for distribution by British Lion, using the latter's Beaconsfield studio. "The Romance of Madame Tussaud," from the recent book by the grandson of the founder of the waxwork establishment, will be Herbert Wilcox's next for Imperator, releasing through RKO. It will be in Technicolor and will picture the adventures of Madame Tussaud during the French Revolution and later in London.

Dallas Decree Allows Use of Old Contracts

runs but must not conspire to do so," the court said.

Film attorneys lost their motion to strike out a reference in the decree to Texas Consolidated Theatres, a subsidiary of Interstate, and the names of Karl Hoblitzelle and R. J. O'Donnell, on the grounds that the subsidiary did not operate under the contracts in question for two years and that the individuals did not move as such but in behalf of Interstate. While the reference to the subsidiary was modified, the names of the individuals were not ordered removed.

A motion by the film attorneys to eliminate references to "attempts to monopolize trade," which had been written into the decree by the Government, was granted by the court.

Disagreements among the attorneys on the wording of the decree caused the postponement of the hearing from the scheduled morning hour until mid-afternoon. The issues still in disagreement at that time were disposed of by Judge Atwell, who characterized the differences as "lawyers' technicalities," adding that the "substance of the decree is 'they mustn't do it again.'" His remark referred to the charge of the defendants' operating in restraint of trade in violation of the anti-trust laws.

Gordon Suit Up Oct. 15

A motion to dismiss the complaint of Virginia Gordon and her copyright infringement suit against Moss Hart, George S. Kaufman and Sam Harris will be heard in the U. S. District Court Oct. 15. The defendants claim that the complaint failed to set forth a cause of action. Miss Gordon alleges that her play, "Rash Moments," which she wrote in 1935, was plagiarized in the Hart-Kaufman play, "You Can't Take It with You." She asked for a permanent injunction and an accounting of the profits, also damages.

Cullman Tax Payment Allowed

U. S. District Court Judge Francis G. Caffey yesterday authorized Howard S. Cullman, trustee in reorganization of the Roxy Theatre, to pay the Collector of Internal Revenue $2,760 in settlement of the $7,969 claim for unpaid 1931 income taxes. Interest at six per cent from Jan. 15, 1931, to date must also be paid.

Retitle Henie Film

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.—"Hot and Happy" will be the release title of the new Sonja Henie musical now in production on the 20th Century-Fox lot. It was formerly known as "Bread, Butter and Rhythm."

Weisman Authorized To Settle Fox Suits

Circuit Judge Martin T. Manton yesterday authorized Milton C. Weisman, equity receiver of the Fox Theatres Corp., in the U. S. District Court to settle two anti-trust suits against A. T. & T., Western Electric and Erpi for $22,500. Both suits were filed in 1934 for a total of $1,577,500.

Louis Karasik, attorney for Weisman, stated that a similar suit of General Talking Pictures Corp. and the Duovac Radio Corp. in the Delaware Federal Court against the same defendants has been dismissed. He stated that the possibility of recovering the judgment in the face of that decision was remote and that $50,000 to $75,000 would be required to bring the suit to trial. Karasik was allowed $6,000 out of $9,000 requested for his services in the suit.

The plaintiffs in the suit besides Weisman were the William Fox Isis Investment Co., William Fox Exhibition, Inc., Fox Varieties Co., Flatbush Avenue & Nevins Corp., the Colwood Co. and the Theatre Realty Co. Since the last three corporations are in reorganization under Section 77B, the proceeds of the settlement will go to the trustees for these companies. Weisman will receive only $18,000 of the $22,500 settlement. Weisman stated that the gist of his action was "that the defendant corporations conspired to restrain trade in interstate commerce and it was done by effecting a monopoly as to equipment for the production and exhibition of sound pictures" and by making excessive charges on all purchases of equipment.

Big Scripps-Howard Section in 24 Pages

The much-discussed film section of the Scripps-Howard papers had 24 pages with the biggest circulation of stills and production stories any publicity man has seen in years. With it were solid pages of advertising from M-G-M, 20th Century-Fox, Paramount, Warners, United Artists, RKO and Republic, and also a full page from Look, the picture magazine.

Half pages were taken by Loew's Theatres, Skouras Theatres, Columbia, the Music Hall, and RKO Theatres. There also was an assortment of smaller theatre, night club, RCA-Victor, Technicolor and travel ads.

Flash Previews

"Alcatraz Island"—A prison yarn, obviously, reaching no great emotional heights but holding the interest throughout.

"Counsel for Crime"—Tale of a lawyer in the service of gangsters and his attempt to keep from his son the knowledge of his association.

These films will be reviewed in full in a coming issue of MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

March of Time Reel Must Sign—S.A.G.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.—The board of directors of the Screen Actors' Guild today decreed that March of Time sequences in which actors portray other persons do not constitute a newsreel but rather a dramatic production. The Guild issued an ultimatum to the effect that March of Time must either sign a Guild contract or A.A.A.A. members will not work for the reel.

Today's decision came after weeks of deliberation between March of Time and Guild officials.

Thomson Sees Educational Signing

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13. — Kenneth Thomson, secretary of the Screen Actors' Guild, today stated that Educational Pictures is expected to sign with the Guild as soon as its pact can be drawn in conformance with New York laws and the California statutes on which it had, in part, been originally based. This difficulty, said Thomson, has been the only factor delaying the signing.

Marlow, at Hearing, Admits High Salary

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13.—At the morning session of the hearing of the Screen Writers' Guild petition to be designated as the writers' bargaining agent, Brian Marlow, a guild witness, testified that writers were highly paid, that they usually make their own hours and also are their own bosses to a large extent.

The statement was made under cross-examination by Neil McCarthy, attorney for the Screen Playwrights.

Marlow testified that he had a couch in his office on which to sleep, but added: "I don't play cards or shoot dice during office hours."

Sheridan Gibney followed him on the stand.

Laughton Role Set

LONDON, Oct. 4.—Charles Laughton is to be starred in a drama of English newspaper life, specially written by Bartlett Cormac and based on the recent absorption of the Morning Post, oldest English newspaper, by the Daily Telegraph. Short Subjects

"Pluto's Quinpuplets"

(Disney-RKO)

Pluto and Fifi, his Pekingese "wife," have a hard time keeping the quinpuplets in order. When they escape from the kennel, the result is in the best Walt Disney tradition. The cartoon, in excellent color, of course, is wholly delightful, and should bring chortles from the elders and squeals from the children.

Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"The Old Mill"

(Disney-RKO)

What goes on in the old abandoned windmill as night falls and a terrific storm comes up is told with beautiful color effect in this new Walt Disney cartoon, which is one of the most effective he has done. It is not motivated by comedy, but rather tells of the disturbance the storm causes to the birds, mice, owls and other creatures who make the mill their home. A top-ranking Disney subject.

Running time, 9 mins. "G."

Balaban Ordered to Tell of Zukor Pact

between Zukor and Paramount executed in April under which Zukor receives a weekly salary of $3,000 and a bonus of seven and a half per cent of the profits up to $2,500,000 and five per cent of any profits above that figure.

Justice Collins set the place for the examination in the courtroom of the Special Term, Part 2, of the Supreme Court, but it is customary for such hearings to be held at an attorney's office. The order granted the plaintiff's request only in part. Balaban may be questioned on the terms of the contract and particulars on how the compensation was computed, but not on negotiations leading up to the contract. Justice Collins also ordered the production of the corporation books and records to assist Balaban in his testimony.

Zukor Report for Executives

The Paramount executive committee is scheduled to meet today to hear Adolph Zukor's report on British production possibilities for the company, Stanton Griffis, chairman of the committee, said yesterday. Zukor arrives today on the Normandie after a one-month study of the British production scene.

Indications are that Paramount will not conclude its plans for production in England at today's meeting, despite the fact that the company already has decided on making "quality" rather than "quota" pictures abroad. The decisions on the number of pictures which will be made annually and whether or not these will be made under company or British producers may not be set for some time yet.

Paramount Signs Estabrook

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 13. — Howard Estabrook has been given a contract as production associate with Paramount by William LeBaron, managing director of the company's production. Estabrook, a writer, had been associated with Frank Lloyd.

Branch Named Head Of Michigan Allied

George Wilbur, Wyandotte; John Henry Ross, Battle Creek; James Olsen, Clare, and J. E. Stocker, David Newman and William E. Schuttenhelm, Detroit.

Selection of a new general manager was not mentioned at the session, but it is understood that the matter will be taken up at a board meeting soon.

Twenty-eight new out-state members were taken in during the two-day convention, Branch announced.

Referring to the absence of Allied leaders from other states, Branch said that "we felt we had a job of our own to do and we wanted to do it ourselves, so I asked them not to come here this year as we felt if our organization amounted to anything we must do the job ourselves. I feel that we have done a fine job of it. Everything is peace and harmony and I feel that the local unit will do a big job this coming year, both for itself and the national organization."

of it. Acknowledging that he had enlisted the aid of Lindstrom, whom he described as a personal friend, because of his previous connections in the film industry, Yamaoka at first refused to divulge the reason.

Later, however, after declaring that he believed a failure to answer might lead to misunderstanding as to motive, he explained that there was a feeling (he did not say in what quarter) that some of the Sino-Japanese war scenes appearing in the newsreels, as well as some of the war pictures published in the daily newspapers, might not be authentic. He made a point of declaring that he was making no accusations in the direction of any person or any company, but said the feeling existed.

He declared the lack of authenticity of some of the pictures was "very possible," that it was also conceivable the Chinese had "created scenes" for the cameramen to shoot and that the photographers, lacking a knowledge of their authenticity, proceeded to take them and send them through to the United States.

Queried again by MOTION PICTURE DAILY, he reiterated his contention that copies of the reels were sought for the purpose of verification of the material taken and declared that the interests he represented were interested particularly in the scenes depicting Japanese pilots as prisoners in the hands of the Chinese. He declared that no other scenes which may have been taken were of concern to him.

The statement that copies, and not the original films were sought, is at variance with the understanding of MOTION PICTURE DAILY that Lindstrom attempted to purchase outright the entire footage of the Universal newsreel pertaining to the Chinese-Japanese war.

E. B. Hatrick, general manager of the Hearst film enterprises, in which is included the newsreel, News of the Day, said Lindstrom had come to the News of the Day offices and expressed a desire to see the film material on the war. He made no attempt to purchase the films, said Hatrick, who added that the reel would not be sold in any case. The reel is treating the war like any other news story, the executive declared.

SMPE Hits Academy Plan for Apertures called for revisions of the dimensions of the standard projector aperture, which, the committee estimates, would cost the theatres of the country $1,000,000 running from $50 in the smallest theatres to several hundred dollars where it might be necessary to purchase new screens. The committee claims that the American Projection Society concurs in its opinion.

The annual Progress Medal and the Journal Award were presented last night at the convention's semi-annual banquet. The Progress Medal, given in recognition of outstanding achievement in film technology, was awarded to Edward Washburn Kellogg, of RCA. The Journal Award went to Dr. Dean Brewster Judd, senior physicist in optics and the National Bureau of Standards, for the best technical paper published in the society's journal in 1936. The paper was "Color Blindness and Anomalies of Vision."

C. C. Pettijohn Speaks

Charles C. Pettijohn, general counsel of the M. P. P. D. A., made the principal address at the banquet. The awards were presented by S. K. Wolf, president of the society, with E. W. Engstrom of RCA reading the Progress Medal citation and E. A. Williford of National Carbon Co., reading the citation for the Journal Award. Entertainment was a feature of the banquet.

The technical papers during yesterday's session were devoted entirely to projection problems, delivered in the course of the projection practice session, of which A. N. Goldsmith was chairman.

Among the papers were two by F. H. Richardson, of Better Theatres, on "A Discussion of Screen Image Dimensions" and "Perforated Screens and Their Faults." In the first, Richardson recommended standard screen image proportions based on the combined dimensions of illumination brightness that will provide most comfortable viewing conditions. The other paper discussed faults in perforated screens, particularly with relation to imperfections in the perforations.

Other papers of the day included:

"The Practice of Projection," by A. N. Goldsmith, New York; "Grading Projectionists," by G. P. Barber, Government of the Province of Alberta, Edmonton, Alberta, Canada; "Cooperation as the Keynote of Successful Small Town Projection," by T. P. NAB Reconsiders Its Move On Departmentalized Plan

Led by Samuel R. Rosenbaum of WFIL, Philadelphia, and Don Elias of Winston-Salem, the N. A. B. yesterday, in the second and closing day of its special convention at the Waldorf-Astoria, rescinded the resolution adopted Tuesday to departmentalize the organization.

The departmentalization resolution was part of the five-point plank submitted by Ed Craig of WSM, Nashville, which was jammed through and adopted by acclamation shortly after the opening of the session. Its purpose was to enable the N. A. B. to serve the divergent groups within its body, such as network affiliates, non-affiliates, clear channel, regional and local groups.

Part 4 of the Craig resolution, also passed Monday, which compelled the reorganization committee to wait until January or February for the next regular N. A. B. convention to make its reorganization recommendations, was amended to enable the committee to instruct the N. A. B. board to call a convention as soon as its findings are complete, indicating that another convention may be called shortly.

Ethridge Withdraws

Mark Ethridge, of WHAS, Louisville, chairman of the reorganization committee, yesterday notified the N. A. B. that he would be unable to serve either as chairman or even as a member of the committee, due to his inability to spare further time away from his business. The convention body tried unsuccessfully to get Ethridge to reconsider, and attempted to obtain Craig's consent to serve on the committee. Craig declined for the same reason, whereupon a resolution was adopted confirming the action of the convention in the appointment of Craig's committee and he was authorized to appoint additional members at his discretion. The reorganization committee currently comprises Ed Allen, Ed Craney, Walter J. Damm and John Shepard, 3rd.

The N. A. B. Bureau of Copyrights came in for severe criticism from several of the delegates, but particularly from Paul Morency of WTIC, Hartford, who objected to increasing expenditures to maintain the bureau. Action on the bureau's future status was deferred until the next N. A. B. convention, however, when James Baldwin, managing director of the N. A. B. and head of the Copyright Bureau, offered a report about the bureau's status that reflected favor upon it. Baldwin warned that the N. A. B. must continue to build up its own music library, via the bureau, in preparation for 1940 when the Ascap contract with the broadcasters expires.

Seek Radio "Czar"

If the industry did not do so, he said, the broadcasters would "find themselves over a barrel in 1940."

The question of appointing a "czar" for the broadcasting industry came up for the first time at yesterday's meeting. It is understood that the finding of such a personality is one of the most important tasks faced by the reorganization committee. The "czar," if and when he is found, and it is understood he will be offered to the body of broadcasters at the next convention, will serve as the N. A. B. president and not under the undignified title of "czar." The industry is prepared to pay him more than well, judging from the talk offered yesterday.

Lubricants

Hollywood, Oct. 13.—Quoting from a release from the press bureau of the J. Walter Thompson Agency:

"In demonstrating his bazooka to Margo before the the Kraft Music Hall rehearsal began, Bob Burns revealed that he keeps the crude instrument working smoothly with motor oil. 'Have you always used motor oil on it?' Margo asked. 'Well, I reckon I always use motor oil when I got it handy,' he replied. 'But in the old days, I used lard.'"

Cincy Hears Rumors Of Fourth Network

CINCINNATI, Oct. 13.—The fact that Red Barber, ace sportscaster of WLW, is giving play-by-play descriptions of the Notre Dame football games has given rise to rumors that a fourth major network centering around the 500,000-watt local station is in the offing, despite denials that WLW is anything but an "accommodation." One report is that the WLW Line will have coast-to-coast coverage by Jan. 1.

The Barber football broadcasts were on a sustaining basis, although the Line has sold time for commercial broadcasts immediately before and after the games, in which Bob Newhall, WLW sports commentator, is featured.

The same source of information cites the fact that several broadcasts are being fed to the New York Broadcasting System, composed of Hearst stations, although confirmation that the Hearst stations are members of the hookup are lacking.

The commission also authorized an increase of day power to 250 watts for WTAL, Tallahassee; KGFW, Kearney, Neb., and KWNO, Winona, Minn.

At its weekly meeting, the broadcast division ordered hearings held on the following applications: Evening News Press, Inc., for new 1,500-kilocycle station at Port Angeles, Wash., 100 watts night, 250 watts day; WOOD, Grand Rapids, change of frequency from 1,270 to 1,010 kilocycles and decrease of power from 500 to 250 watts; WSJS, Winston-Salem, N. Maxwell Gets Union Circuit; U.K.'s Biggest

Deal Makes ABP No. 1 British Chain

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 14.—John Maxwell, head of Associated British Pictures, today purchased the stock holdings of the late David Bernhard in Union Cinemas, Ltd., giving A.B.P. control of the circuit and at the same time making A.B.P. the largest theatre group in England, according to Maxwell.

Two directors of Union Cinemas will be replaced by A.B.P. men and the future business of Union will be operated in conjunction with Maxwell's other theatre interests.

Prior to his death Bernhard said that Union had 228 and was building 30 other houses. The A.B.P.-Union tieup will give Maxwell's group at least 100 more theatres than G. B. Bernhard was the father of C. F. Bernhard, founder and managing director of the circuit.

Reports of the impending deal were first published in MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Sept. 18. At that time, circles close to Maxwell denied the story.

G. B.'s annual stockholders' meeting will be held tomorrow at which time the Nordon Committee is certain to move for an adjournment and ask

Zukor Says Company to Study the New Act

By BILL ORNSTEIN

Paramount's plans for producing in England will not be decided until the British Government sets up the new quota provisions, Adolph Zukor, chairman of the company's board, declared yesterday upon his return from a six-week vacation and survey in Paris, London, Vienna and Budapest.

"The British Government is expected to pass the new law, which is to become effective next April, in two or three months," Zukor said. "We are waiting to see what it contains and then we will decide what to do and what we want to do."

Asserting that Paramount will definitely produce in England, Zukor added: "Our plans are not fully developed at this time.

"We do not care to go into competition with British producers," he said, "by establishing a studio in that

Minneapolis Suit Planned Over Non-Delivery

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 14.—Local exhibitors will shortly begin a test case for a mandatory injunction to compel Paramount to deliver the six pictures which, it is charged, were promised on last season's contracts, according to a statement issued today by Allied Theatre Owners of the Northwest.

"This action will be taken," the exhibitor statement sets forth, "because Federal Judge Gunnar Nordbye (who last week granted Paramount's application for a temporary injunction restraining the exhibitors from pursuing their 'buyers' strike' against the company) held that the non-delivery of the pictures has nothing to do with the defendants striking in any legal sense, and the decision, therefore, leaves it open for us to test in an independent action the right of Paramount to refuse to deliver the pictures."

The Allied unit also has stated that it will move for an immediate appeal of Judge Nordbye's decision granting the distributor a temporary injunction and that the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals here will be asked to "advance the appeal for immediate hearing." The organization said that it would also seek an early trial in the Federal district court of the distributor's basic action.

Attorneys to Study Dallas Court Decree

Attorneys for major distributors will meet early next week to study the decree entered in the U. S. District court at Dallas on Wednesday and may decide at that time whether or not to appeal from the court's decision holding their contracts with certain Interstate Circuit houses to be in violation of the anti-trust laws.

Copies of the Dallas decree are not expected to reach here until today, and until attorneys here have had an opportunity to study them no decision will be made on an appeal.

Union Suit Dismissed

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Charles B. McLaughlin granted summary judgment dismissing the complaint of Mardiros A. Krikorian against Local 306 yesterday. Krikorian was a member of Local 306 in 1923 when he withdrew. He applied for readmission in 1927. He was not readmitted until 1933. He sued for the value of his wages for the six-year period. Justice McLaughlin ruled that a general release executed by Krikorian in 1932 barred his present action. The suit was dismissed with costs.

Poster Firm Files Suit

Suit for $2,500 damages for an alleged breach of contract was filed in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday by the Berkshire Poster Co., Inc., against the B. F. Keith Corp. and the Greater New York Vaudeville Theatres Corp. The contract which was allegedly made in 1932 provided that Berkshire was to receive one-third of the poster work of the 40 theatres in the RKO circuit in the metropolitan area. The defendants will ask Supreme Court Justice Shientag for a bill of particulars itemizing the claim this morning.

Reserve Decision on Steuer

Decision was reserved by Supreme Court Justice Charles B. McLaughlin on a motion for a summary judgment made by Max D. Steuer in his suit for legal fees against the Knickerbocker Theatres, Inc., and the Clinton Appollo Theatre Corp. in the Supreme Court yesterday. Steuer was awarded $75,789 for legal fees for conducting arbitration proceedings in 1935 for the defendants against the Greater New York Vaudeville Theatres Corp. He has received $50,000 and is suing for the $25,789.

Steuer stated the defendants received an award totaling $45,000 in damages and the enforcement of two 10 year leases in the arbitration proceedings. He estimated the value of the leases at $2,340,000, but the proceedings were settled without his consent. The defendants allege Steuer was hired to prosecute a conspiracy charge against RKO, Loew's, Inc., and the Greater New York Vaudeville Theatre Corp. and that he failed to do so. They assert his work in the arbitration proceedings was merely incidental and the award of $75,789 merely fixed his fee without giving any rights to another judgment.

Files in Bankruptcy

The Omaha Orpheum Co. filed a voluntary petition in bankruptcy in the U. S. District Court yesterday through its president, O. R. McMahon. Assets were listed at $7,047 in cash, but a schedule of the liabilities was not given. It was learned liabilities exceed $2,000,000. Among the creditors are the Stadium Theatres Corp., RKO Radio Pictures, RKO Film Booking Corp., ASCAP, and National Screen Service. The principal asset of the corporation was a theatre in Omaha which was erected at a cost of $1,500,000. It was sold under foreclosure in 1933 to the A. H. Blank Theatrical Circuit, Inc. for approximately $100,000. Four bond issues, the largest of which was for $1,000,000 and a second mortgage of $200,000 were floated on the theatre.

Seek $6,618 from the Roxy

Jones, Clark & Higson, attorneys, who were employed by the Roxy bondholders' protective committee, filed a petition asking for $6,618 allowance in the Roxy reorganization in the U. S. District Court yesterday. The firm sets forth in its petition that it handled legal matters and incidental details for the committe. Louis B. Altreuter, vice-president of Horace S. Ely & Co., realtors, also filed a petition for $1,250 allowance for appraising the Roxy for the bondholders.

Guild Pacts Go to Time, Educational

Screen Actors Guild contracts will be submitted to the March of Time and Educational for signing as soon as the Guild office here has been notified officially of the decisions by its board of directors in Hollywood that both companies must be signatories to the contract in order to permit guild and other A.A.A.A. members to continue working for them.

Mrs. Florence Marston, eastern head of the guild, said that the official notification of the decisions was expected here within a day or two. Although both companies have agreed to conform with guild contract terms in all respects, they asked to be relieved of actually signing a guild contract, March of Time on the ground that it was a newsreel, and Educational because of technical considerations.

Metro Hits Validity Of Copyright Rules

The constitutionality of Section 11 of the U. S. Copyright Law in its relationship to unpublished manuscripts was challenged in the U. S. District Court yesterday by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corp., the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing Corp., the Culver Export Corp., Loew's, Inc., and Frank Dolan, when they filed a general denial to the copyright infringement suit brought by Henry Rose.

Rose claims infringement of his story, "Burrow Burrow," in "Man of the People." The defendants claim that Section 11 conflicts with Article 1, Section 8, Clause 8 of the U. S. Constitution insofar as it grants statutory copyright to unpublished works. Rose is asking for a permanent injunction and an accounting of the profits.

country. We are just going to organize a production unit to take care of our requirements. And when we do that we will make pictures worth while."

Zukor was highly optimistic over the progress made by English film companies.

"England has taken its picture producing seriously. There are big studios and big plans. The British are developing producing organizations to make pictures for their own market better than in the past. As they improve and gain by experience their product will reflect that."

Asked about television, Zukor said, "I visited television studios in Great Britain and they are very interesting."

"Do you think television will be a third form of entertainment," he was asked.

"No, I can't see anything like that at the moment. Television will develop like radio and will have no effect on theatres. Television will be an improvement on radio, as sound was to the silent film."

Calls Foreign Business Good

Queried on conditions abroad, the chairman of the Paramount board stated:

"Business in general is better than it has been. This goes for the Continent as well as London. The increasing number of outstanding pictures has stimulated business. Exhibitors are optimistic and hopeful and confident on this season's product turned out.

"In every country efforts are being made to produce better films. England is working hard to produce worthwhile pictures and credit must be given British producers for the sincere efforts behind the move."

Speaking of general reactions abroad, he said there was no war scare. Everyone over there, meaning England and France, is wondering why the stock market has dropped here and they cannot understand the reason for it, he commented.

Attended September Meet

While in London, Zukor attended the sales convention of all European managers Sept. 25-26. Some of the company's new product was screened for the men. John W. Hicks, foreign head, will remain abroad for another three weeks.

Paramount's production plans at Joinville call for four to six French pictures a year. Ike Blumenthal is in charge of the studio and there is no intention to import the films.

Discussing studio operations in Hollywood, Zukor asserted that there is no thought of resuming unit production.

"We are doing a successful job under the present plan and we will do nothing to stop us from making good pictures.

"We have developed a cooperative system in the studio, a system which Famous Players operated under when the company originally started. It put the company to the front and we will keep Paramount there."

Asked for additional data on the cooperative system, the chairman of the board said:

"It's a system where everyone at the studio works together as one big unit and which I believe is the way to get the best results.

"I like it because everyone is tickled pink when someone makes a good picture. It also economizes on costs and it is better than any other system." There will be no change in production plans laid out at the beginning of the season, Zukor added.

Emphasizing that his trip was a vacation, the Paramount executive said he didn't buy any stories and didn't sign any players. He added that there is no intention to interchange talent with European producers. The company does not plan to use the Astoria studio as an eastern production unit.

If time permits, Zukor will continue to make an annual visit abroad. He expressed satisfaction over the appointment of Chris Dunphy as his aide.

It is doubtful whether Paramount will sponsor a radio program from the studio, it was indicated. The company has seventeen of its important stars and players on various commercial programs. Zukor said he will give the studio air show idea his attention when he returns to the coast.

Asked about reports that David O. Selznick was negotiating to join Paramount as a producer, the chairman of the board said, "I don't know anything about it."

Zukor will remain here a week before leaving for the coast. He will be accompanied by Dunphy, who met him yesterday at quarantine. At the pier were Stanton Griffis, chairman of the Paramount executive committee; Barney Balaban, president, and Al Wilkie of the publicity department.

Although no plans for studio space have been made in England, Zukor said that there is plenty of space available at Denham and Pinewood.

Shortly after he cleared customs, Zukor attended a meeting of the executive committee, at which he gave the highlights of his trip.

LeBaron to Take Vacation

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—William LeBaron, who has been in charge of Paramount production during Adolph Zukor's absence, will leave on an extended motor vacation as soon as Zukor returns from the east.

Lou Smith Goes to Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—Lou Smith has been transferred from the home office publicity department to a permanent spot at the studios. His first assignment will be the handling of publicity for the Ernst Lubitsch production unit on "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife." Smith plans to move his family here shortly.

John Loder Arrives

John Loder, who last appeared in "Non-Stop New York" for G.B., arrived yesterday on the Normandie with his wife, Micheliene Cheirel, who played a leading role in "Carnival in Flanders." This is the first American visit for the actress. The Loders will spend a week in New York and then visit Hollywood and San Francisco.

Reinhardt to Have Repertory Theatre

Plans are under way to organize a permanent repertory theatre for Max Reinhardt, it was learned yesterday with the arrival of the producer from Salzburg. According to the plans now being discussed, Reinhardt will produce some of his greatest plays in New York in a theatre which will bear his name.

Reinhardt will remain in New York for a few days and then leave for the coast where he is scheduled to make "The Gamblers" for Warners. He is due to return from Hollywood next July, by which time the repertory theatre plan is expected to be completed. Reinhardt's last spectacle produced at Manhattan Opera House was "The Eternal Road," which is expected to be revived shortly.

Harry Foster Here; Has Stories, Plays

Harry Foster, an agent in England who is affiliated with the William Morris agency here, arrived yesterday on the Normandie to offer American producers a number of stories held by G. B., it was learned. Foster would not comment other than to say he has a number of screen tests and stories with him and that he was here to buy plays and secure talent. He will remain in New York for about two weeks and then proceed to the coast. Foster will return to England in two months, he said.

for a full accounting of directors' actions. The point in issue will be the preferred dividend, which was recently declared, and which is said to be unjustified by the company's figures.

The preferred stockholders' vote would put Maxwell in, giving him a dominating circuit of 700 theatres. Alternatively, his legal action may indirectly oust the Ostrers from G. B.

On Oct. 6, the G. B. financial statement showed a net profit from theatres and investments of £561,701, increased by a balance brought forward of £147,021 and the transfer from reserve of £435,278, making a total of £1,144,001 available.

A stormy session is predicted at the meeting tomorrow as a result of the passing of the dividend for the second year.

Pacts on Bargaining Up at S W G Hearing

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—Leonard Janofsky, counsel for the Screen Writers' Guild, today scored an important point in the Guild's collective bargaining hearing before the National Labor Relations Board when he drew admissions from Ken Thomson, secretary of the Screen Actors' Guild, and John Arnold, past president of the American Society of Cinematographers, that the organizations negotiated with the producers as a group. This was held by Janofsky to be an important point in the presentation of the Guild's side of the lengthy hearing.

Arnold testified concerning the 1933 I. A. T. S. E. cameramen strike and the subsequent signing of a bargaining agreement by the A. S. C., an opposition group, with the producers. He said Louis Mayer acted as spokesman for the producers in the negotiations. Thomson told of the recent signing of the Guild contract and a copy of the pact was entered in the records of the hearing despite objections by respondents' counsel.

The first morning witness was Sherman Lowe who said his salary as a writer at Warners was $150 weekly. He stated that writers are not all highly paid. Janofsky indicated that he would call many writers to the stand to divulge their salaries to combat the playwright and producer contention that writers are a highly paid class of craftsmen.

Sears Goes to Coast

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager of Warners, today left for the coast to confer with H. M. Warner, Hal Wallis and S. Charles Einfeld. He is expected to be gone about two weeks.

Sam Schneider, assistant to H. M. Warner, is accompanying Sears.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Alcatraz Island"

(Cosmopolitan-First National)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—"Alcatraz Island" obviously is designed to use the current interest in the prison fortress in San Francisco Bay as one of the selling features. At the same time it gives an opportunity for some of the younger talent on the Warner lot to demonstrate their ability. They turn in creditable performances in a story that maintains interest without hitting any emotional heights.

It is the story of a gangster regenerated in prison by the devotion of his daughter and an older woman, directed by William McGann from an original screenplay by Crane Wilbur. The woman in the case, Ann Sheridan, is certainly pleasant to watch, and brings sincerity to the role. The daughter, Mary Maguire, has looks and talent that probably will be enhanced by experience.

The story starts like a typical gangster yarn, but soon concentrates on the father-love theme when John Litel, the gangster, is sent to prison on an income tax charge and is transferred to Alcatraz after a brawl with a former member of his gang. At Alcatraz he is charged with murder, but is acquitted at the finish by the aid of Gordon Oliver, young district attorney, who has fallen in love with the daughter. Oliver is a promising young actor who will bear watching.

Running time, 61 minutes. "G."

"Wallaby Jim of the Islands"

(Bud Barsky-Grand National)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 14.—In Albert Wetjen's Collier's stories Wallaby Jim is a ruthless, hardboiled character. As Bud Barsky recreates him on the screen, Wallaby is still tough. But with George Houston in the role, he's a singing hero who uses his fists, wits, and eschews guns, to bring about triumph of virtue. The transition reflects a good deal of intelligence.

As the sustained production of "Wallaby Jim of the Islands" is above average, so is the merit of the story, as well as the potential exploitation angles. The background is in the South Seas. Ruth Coleman, bound to meet her sweetheart, Douglas Walton, boards Houston's schooner. Walton, a victim of the temptations which befall many white men in the tropics, is in the power of pearl highjacker William von Bricken. Houston has three jobs to do—bring about Walton's regeneration so that he will be a suitable mate for Miss Coleman, remove von Bricken as scourge of the natives and prevent him from jumping a pearl bed claim. All is accomplished to the tune of engaging romantic interest, melodramatic action, the required comedy touches and quite a lot of music which accentuates both the romance and drama.

Houston, Walton, Miss Coleman, Mamo Clarke, Colin Campbell and Syd Saylor check in with credible performances and the support is up to standard. The screenplay by Bennett R. Cohen and Houston Branch is a workmanlike job and the manner in which Charles Lamont handled his material and characters, as well as worked in the Felix Bernard and Irving Bibo song numbers, gives the film the desired swing and sock.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"This Is China"

(Leon Wechsler)

An attempt to reveal the Chinese character with scenes of pitiful labor, vices, sicknesses and ultimate cooperation in the conflict with Japan—the united action of formerly dissenting provinces—is offered here in this documentary film.

Much of the material is down-to-earth facts. They hit hard. Coolie labor, opium addiction, pestilence and disease parade before the camera. Military movements, fine architecture centuries old and modern medical science are juxtaposed with the unending struggle of the native to eke out a living.

The film is definitely anti-Japanese. Jack Foster of the New York World-Telegram staff wrote the narrative continuity. Alois Havrilla does the narration. Eric Berna photographed.

The film is very apt to create much comment.

Running time, 72 minutes. "G."

Ampa Members Have Afternoon of Waiting

Some of the Ampa members who left their offices about 12:30 to attend the first meeting at the International Casino had to be introduced to their co-workers when they returned.

About 2:10 waiters hove over the horizon on the 45th St. end of the huge dining room equipped with rolls and butter. People wandered about looking for seats. Those who already had them munched rolls.

Some time before 2:30 P.M., E.S.T., Paul Lazarus told the expectant diners that next week's meeting would be different—the head table would be on the 44th St. end and all the seats would face it, and the management would be told that the members couldn't take the day off for lunch, or afternoon tea. When the food finally arrived it was all right. The dessert looked as though it had been designed by Rembrandt—or Tony Sarg.

Lazarus—presiding in the absence of Ralph Rolan—told the guests all about the next two meetings in detail. Then he gave a list of the guests of honor who hadn't arrived. Then he introduced several women. In the course of time he convinced the diners Bob Taplinger was about to speak. The bright spot of the afternoon was Estelle's Taylor's singing.

After the applause for her numbers had died down Commissioner Bert Adler of the Sanitation Dept. was presented. He introduced Bruce Barton. Bruce explained why he was running for Congress.

About 3:30 the working members went back to their offices.

Equity Members Ask Livelier Magazine

A council committee of Actors' Equity Ass'n has been appointed to study possibilities of improvement in the content and makeup of the organization's official publication, Equity, as a result of membership charges that the organ bars any but administration viewpoints from its columns, it was learned yesterday.

The current issue of Equity, published today, contains an article by Ilka Chase which sharply criticizes the "dullness" of the publication and pleads for "a better magazine." The issue also contains an article, published at the direction of the organization's council, setting forth the case of 54 Equity members whose sentences, imposed by the council for refusing to continue work on a struck Federal theatre project in violation of Equity orders, were revoked recently on appeal to the Equity membership.

Frank Gillmore, Equity president, is expected in New York this weekend from the A. F. of L. convention at Denver and probably will immediately head a movement to induce Paul Dullzell to reconsider his resignation as executive secretary. The resignation was handed to the Equity council on Tuesday and tabled by it for a two-week period.

"Wife" Pulls Big $26,000 On the Loop

CHICAGO, Oct. 14.—"Wife, Doctor and Nurse" was the top attraction in the Loop last week at the Oriental. The gross was $26,000 which was $8,000 over average. Since starting to show "A" pictures at advanced prices the Oriental has been in the big money class.

Milton Berle at the Palace was credited with the excellent business there. The screen attraction was "Music For Madame" and the $25,600 gross was $6,600 above normal.

The Roosevelt with "Thin Ice" held over a second week was above the average line with a gross of $14,800. The Apollo with "Lost Horizon" did a nice business and "Marry the Girl" at the State-Lake was satisfactory.

Looking 'Em Over

"Forlorn River"

(Paramount)

"Forlorn River" stands comfortably above the regular run of westerns and should be pleasing to the youngsters and the adults who like straightforward action pictures. Against a background of beautiful western mountain scenery is told a more or less routine yarn, with the romance nicely subordinated, and for once, not involving the hero, but his friend.

Larry Crabbe, once famous as a swimmer, looks as though he might be on the way up as a western player. He rides well, has all the requisite physical presence, and has learned to handle himself and his dialogue smoothly and engagingly. June Martel supplies the romance. John Patterson is Crabbe's friend; Harvey Stephens, the menace, and Syd Saylor offers the comedy as Crabbe's buddy.

Charles Barton directed from a screenplay by Stuart Anthony and Robert Yost, and a novel by Zane Grey. Crabbe and Saylor take stolen money from a gang, escape the sheriff and run across Stephens again as he poses as a horse buyer for the army, planning a raid. Some excellent shots of herds of horses on the move are interspersed with a full quota of hard riding and shooting, before the gang is brought to book, and the romance saved.

Running time, 57 minutes. "G."

"Counsel for Crime"

(Columbia)

Straight program material, telling an old story in satisfactory fashion, "Counsel for Crime" probably will prove all right on duals and, in some spots, will be able to stand alone.

There is little to sell in cast names, although Otto Kruger and Douglass Montgomery offer their expected finished performances as the young lawyer and his older and clever employer. Jacqueline Wells, as secretary to Kruger, has but little to do, and romance is subordinated.

John Brahm, in his direction, focussed the action on the drama, in the courtroom and revolving about the skeleton in the closet which nearly emerges to ruin the boy's career. Harold Shumate's story indicates early that Montgomery, who believes himself adopted by his parents, actually is the child of his foster-mother and Kruger, who takes him into his office after graduation and teaches the younger man the wiles of the law.

But when Montgomery learns that a fat gangster fee means more to Kruger than the ethics of the profession, he quits him, joints the district attorney's office and becomes his antagonist. When, in the course of a defense plan, Kruger's man brings back evidence of the past episode, and Kruger kills him in a struggle. Montgomery prosecutes and Kruger goes to prison rather than reveal the truth of the case.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Green Fields"

(New Star)

If the production standard set by this film is maintained, a fresh brand of entertainment for a specialized audience may appear on the market. It is first rate film in every respect, based on a Jewish folk tale. The dialogue is wholly in Yiddish. "Green Fields" is something new that will be found highly enjoyable by Jewish audiences. The story is acted to perfection by a well-chosen cast of Artef and Jewish Art Theatre players.

The screenplay is a bucolic comedy of Jews living on Russian farms prior to the revolution. They lead a simple and ignorant existence until a Talmudic scholar appears on the scene. He is out to see the world in its reality. By nature, he is sensitive and retiring and his appearance strikes a new note in the people's existence. He is taken in by one David-Noich and treated with great respect. A scheming neighboring farmer, Avrum-Yankon, soon tries to lure him to his domicile. Much of the humor revolves around this competitive game. Noich's son is courting Yankon's daughter and the girl's parents attempt to use this romance to force Noich into permitting the scholar to visit them. Finally after much bickering and heated argument is it shown that the scholar has fallen in love with Noich's young daughter and asks for her hand. Tears and laughter follow as the two families are once more on good terms. The story is projected against the honest atmosphere of simple labor in the fields. The photography on every hand is admirable.

Jacob Ben-Ami directed in association with Edgar G. Ulmer. Their joint effort is a good blend of stage and film dramatic handling. The cast includes Michael Goldstein, Helen Beverly, Isadore Cashier, Anna Appel, Saul Levine and Hershel Bernardi. Leon Drennen's English titles adequately translate the story.

Running time, 105 minutes. "G."

their reports to the board. Indications are that distributing arrangements will not be completed for some time to come.

The committee of educators is headed by Dr. Mark A. May, director of the Yale Institute of Human Relations. Its other members are Frederick H. Bair, Isaiah Bowman, Karl T. Compton, Edmund E. Day, Royal B. Farnum, Willard E. Givens and Jay B. Nash.

The film subjects selected by the committee included material which may be used in art, biology, nature study, elementary education, physical education, social studies, music, geography, science and history classes.

The committee's report declared that "if education is to be adequate for the future needs of our increasingly complex life, it must avail itself of every modern device for teaching. The motion picture is destined to take its place beside the text book, the laboratory and the workshop as a factor of major significance in education."

Further Study Planned

The committee's report was received and discussed by the board and will be studier further, it was stated following the meeting. In thanking the committee for its work, Will H. Hays declared that the development of "the classroom usefulness" of films has been one of the "purposes" of the M. P. P. D. A. since its organization.

"It is gratifying that you have found such a high percentage of pedagogic values in the films examined," Hays said. "These values will be developed for the classroom in a field and with a technique separate from the essential service of theatres in furnishing wholesome entertainment."

Attending yesterday's meeting in addition to Hays were Barney Balaban, Paramount; Harry D. Buckley, United Artists; R. H. Cochrane, Universal; Earle W. Hammons, Educational; E. B. Hatrick, Cosmopolitan; Frederick W. Herron, M. P. P. D. A.; Leo Spitz, RKO; Nicholas M. Schenck, Loew's; Sidney R. Kent, 20th Century-Fox, and Albert W. Warner, Warners.

Texas Theatres Face New Taxation Threat

HOUSTON, Oct. 14.—The tax bugaboo is again giving Texas theatre operators the jitters since Gov. James Allred's determined efforts to force his special tax bills through an extra session of the state legislature.

The bills propose to place a 10 per cent state tax on theatre admissions over 25 cents. This will be in addition to a first 10 per cent state tax on admissions over 50 cents and a Federal tax of 10 per cent on admissions over 40 cents.

Local theatres now charge 50 cents top admission, stating it is a 45-cent admission plus five cents Federal tax. Houston managers say any further tax burden will result in an increase in admissions. The state bill is still pending.

Looking 'Em Over

"Live, Love and Learn"

(M-G-M)

M-G-M has woven a wholly delightful piece of smart and laugh-laden entertainment in "Live, Love and Learn," which is the kind of thing audiences should go for in a large way, and in which showmen should revel. It has names, comedy, a touch of honest drama which at times is truly moving and is endowed at the same time with splendid production values. It is in the best tradition of M-G-M's smart comedy-drama.

The cast is topped by Robert Montgomery, offering one of his suave, finished performances as the young artist; Rosalind Russell, as his charming wife, who captures audience sympathy at the start and holds it throughout; Helen Vinson as the feminine villain of the piece, and, Robert Benchley as the slightly shabby and completely engaging friend of the couple. It must be recorded that the slightly corpulent Benchley, who has demonstrated his skill in a number of short subjects, comes very, very close to tucking the picture into his hip pocket and walking off with it. Monty Wooley, E. E. Clive and Al Shean, in lesser parts, offer highly commendable support.

Harry Rapf produced, and George Fitzmaurice, who directed, has maintained a fine pace, timed the laughs expertly, and withal, done an excellent job. The screenplay was by Charles Brackett, Cyril Hume and Richard Maibaum, from an original by Marion Parsonnet, in turn suggested by a story by Helen Grace Carlisle.

The story finds wealthy Miss Russell tumbling off a horse into painter Montgomery's careless life and forcing him to marry her. In the garret, with Benchley much in evidence, and to the tune of some hilarious comedy, they are all happy. Then Miss Vinson, friend of Miss Russell, walks in, proceeds to carve a "money" career for the young artist, which is one way of making a play for him, and follows the inevitable parting. But the lesson is learned, following the living and loving, and a grand reunion, accompanied by more laughs, writes finis.

Running time, 78 minutes. "G."

Appeal to N.L.R.B. To Be Made by KFXR

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 14. — Charges against KFXR of this city will be filed immediately with the National Labor Relations Board by the A.R.T.A., a C.I.O. affiliate. Joseph Harris, union organizer, told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that the plea to the labor board is the result of the station's refusal to negotiate with the A.R.T.A. which had asked an increase of $7.50 for engineers with $1.50 an hour for overtime, also raises of $40 a week for the chief engineer and $25 a week for his assistant. Also requested were a voluntary closed shop and sick leave with pay.

Harris claims that the entire staff of KOMA here, including continuity men, announcers and engineers, has signed with the A.R.T.A. At the present time the operators are awaiting further instructions from the Hearst offices in New York. Harris added that other Oklahoma stations are in the process of organization and that working condition demands will be made shortly.

Sauter Says Music Program Will Go On

James E. Sauter, producer of the bank sponsored Philadelphia Orchestra program, states that the series will get underway Monday over NBC as scheduled, despite a report that the series would be postponed.

Sauter states that the program may be heard over another Philadelphia station in the event WFIL is unable to carry the program, but that in any event the network broadcast will not be affected by the Philadelphia situation.

Now What?

By JACK BANNER

THE extraordinary session of the NAB, the first special convention to be called in the history of the organization, is now on the record. Perhaps its most notable accomplishment was that it again showed the broadcasters to be among the most disorganized group of big business men in America.

Faced by the most serious threat that has ever confronted them—the A. F. of M. demands —the broadcasters conducted their meeting in the manner of a schoolboy fraternal organization. Several of the more serious-minded attendants grew so exasperated with the way things were progressing that they gave utterance to bitter remarks, openly, on the floor, in the form of resolutions.

Samuel R. Rosenbaum, for instance, "annoyed to the point of tears" because the convention behaved at its silliest after the members had agreed to tax themselves 50 per cent more in dues, sarcastically offered a resolution asking the convention to increase the dues by at least another 25 per cent. The resolution was accompanied by a not-to-be-misconstrued slap at John Elmer, president of the NAB. Rosenbaum subsequently apologized to Elmer for his remark. Others also hotly attacked the ineffectual manner in which the convention was progressing, with apologies from most subsequently taking the stings from their remarks.

THE main point, however, is that the special session was called only because of the A. F. of M. threat, yet the convention did little or nothing in this situation. The INRA committee on its own has already accomplished more for its group than the NAB can do in a dozen conventions such as the one which has just been concluded. As for the non-network NAB members, they are no better off at the moment than if the convention had not taken place. It is true they appointed a committee to represent their group, but this committee is authorized only to study, not to act. The committee will not even meet with the A. F. of M. to learn its attitude toward them; to ascertain what kind of a deal they can make.

As far as we can determine, and we know that many of the NAB members are of this same opinion, the convention succeeded only in quickening the pace of the merry-go-round on which the NAB is riding. The acceleration is liable to bring about many cases of mal de mer; to make many so dizzy they'll have to drop off.

Perhaps many, after reading the foregoing , will form the opinion that we are against the NAB and the broadcasters as a whole. This, of course, is not true. But it does seem that with the A. F. of M. closing down, with a Federal investigation of radio just around the corner, with Ascap still in the advantageous position of having the station owners "over a barrel," as Jim Baldwin said, that the special convention could have accomplished far more than it did.

McNinch Drops FCC Division Procedure

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 14.—First steps toward cleaning up unsavory conditions in the F.C.C. were taken today with publication of an order abolishing the division of the commission into separate sections for the handling, respectively, of broadcasting, telephone and telegraph matters.

Under the new order, it was explained by Chairman McNinch, the full commission, or a quorum thereof, will act on every matter.

Under the original setup, three members of the commission comprised each division and all matters pertaining to that division could be handled by a quorum of two. The chairman comprised the third member of each division, but, McNinch pointed out, could not possibly actively participate in all matters.

The change, bringing all broadcasting matters before all members of the commission, is the first of a series which McNinch, appointed by President Roosevelt as "clean up" man to eliminate criticism of the F.C.C., is expected to make in the near future.

Nichols Wins Long Suit on KFJF Site

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 14.—Dr. G. A. Nichols, Oklahoma City real estate man, has won a five-year Federal courts battle for a $7,392 judgment against four radio companies which at one time operated KFJF in Nicoma Park outside of Oklahoma City.

Dr. Nichols contended the money was due him from the National Radio Corp., the National Radio Mfg. Co., the Radio Corp. of Oklahoma and the Southwest Broadcasting Co.

Under the terms of a contract negotiated in 1928, Dr. Nichols claimed the station was to be operated in Nicoma Park where Dr. Nichols sold the radio site. When KOMA replaced KFJF, it vacated the Nicoma Park site and Dr. Nichols alleged breach of contract. The Southwest Broadcasting Co. subsequently sold KOMA to the W. R. Hearst interests.

RCA Television on 3 by 4 Ft. Screen; Use Film Technique

By RED KANN

sort of greenish in color and the performers, while they spoke with exceeding clarity, lacked sharp visual definition. Yet there they were, stepped up from the 7½ by 10-inch maximum put on display by NBC and RCA on Nov. 6 of last year and pointing up a whole, vast future with limitations and possibilities which only that future might determine.

The demonstration had been arranged as a sort of grand finale for the convention of the S.M.P.E. This time and again there was a battery of about 30 television receiving sets. But this time it was different. For, while the 16 simultaneous receivers gave out with their show, down the hall a thick telescopic-looking affair, set on a plane horizontal with the floor, was projecting on a moving picture screen the same images, speaking the same lines and playing the same music, five times larger in the height and four times greater in the length.

First Time on Screen

Attaches willingly supplied the information that this was the first time a television program was being projected on a motion picture screen. So far as this observer is concerned, the claim goes by him without challenge. But he recognized the potential—and it is still only potential—challenge which the television of tomorrow holds for New York and San Francisco and all of the picture theatres between.

RCA and NBC officials readily concede perfection has not been attained. They admit "bugs" are running around in the equipment, but they did hold to the opinion that the larger image now within television's grasp compares favorably with motion pictures in their early days. And on that score and with that observation they are entirely correct.

Improvement Noted

Since the demonstration of last fall, this television system has undergone considerable improvement in another direction, too. Film technique has been aimed at and, in large measure, successfully captured. This time there were closeups, dolly shots, medium and long shots in keeping with the accepted practices of the studios in Hollywood. Thus, a closeup of a xylophonist's hands playing "Some of These Days"; another of a doctor pouring medicine for his patient in a hospital skit; a traveling shot to encompass a whole set.

Television, as RCA and NBC, at least, had it developed last night, is committed to go longer distances before it is entirely satisfactory to its mentors. They admit it, but they also admit—and it is immodest, if you like—that they expect finally to perfect it scientifically and commercially. When, is a matter for tomorrow and the tomorrow after that to determine. They don't seem to be anxious; neither do they appear to be in a hurry.

They call the invention which shoots the image from its 7½ by 10-inch size to the approximate three by four feet the Kinescope. It is the result of several years of experimentation by RCA technicians under the direction of Dr. Vladimir K. Zworykin, W. H. Painter and Dr. R. R. Law. It is a projection tube, the secret of which is light, plenty of it and in high intensity—twin factors without either of which the larger image is not possible.

The show consisting of dramatic sketches, harp solos by Margaret Brill, and a comedy skit by Herman and Banta, plus a newsreel, was picked up by Iconoscope cameras on the third floor of the RCA Building, relayed by coaxial cable to the transmitter in the Empire State Tower and broadcast to the receivers on the 62nd floor of the NBC Building.

It was not much of a show as entertainment content goes. But it was literally a whale of a show for the direction in which it pointed. This was the great significance of the demonstration.

By JACK BANNER

RCA for the first time in the history of the industry.

The show consisted of both film and live entertainment. The images were shown first on the 7½ by 10 inch television screen and were then projected on a screen approximately three by four feet by the new catnode ray tube. The pictures were scanned with the 441 line definition, beyond which engineers have not advanced.

The black and white images were far from being those colors. They were nearer gray and white; on some of the 7½ by 10 screens they had the blue-green tint observed last year.

The manipulation and coordination of the television cameras, however, were much more skillfully handled than in the past. Close-ups and long shots were well defined and the changes from one to the other, while not instantaneous or free from flicker, also showed improvment.

Kinescope Interesting

The "large screen" television was shown on a motion picture screen several feet away from the newly developed projection Kinescope. The Kinescope is a high-current electron gun which generates an extremely slender electric beam of tremendous intensity. The electrons are passed through three metal focusing discs, each having an opening about the size of a pencil lead. They then pass through a fourth disc with an opening too small to admit a human hair. After this the beam is caught by deflection coils and made to scan a small area at the flat end of the tube. The electron bombardment is so intense that the light produced at the end of the tube is 480 times as bright as that on the reviewing screen.

The enlarged image thrown by the projection Kinescope was somewhat "fuzzy" compared to the image seen on the smaller screen.

The entertainment included two dramatic sketches written for television, harp solos by Margaret Brill, a comedy skit and a newsreel. The show was picked up by the Iconoscope cameras in the NBC studios at Radio City, relayed by coaxial cable to the transmitter in the Empire State Tower, and from this point broadcast to the approximately 30-odd receivers on the 62nd floor of the RCA Bldg.

New Shows On the Air

"Mr. Keen, Tracer of Lost Persons"

Mr. Keen fights heartbreak, not crime. So it comes about that he helps the hero find his dream girl, the girl he thinks doesn't exist. However, she does and, conveniently enough, turns out to be Mr. Keen's assistant. Since love and its course never run without hurdles and the script has to be extended to make this a serial anyway, not much happened in the first episode Wednesday evening beyond establishing the premise. Indications were Mr. Keen would bring the unwitting lovebirds together within a week and that suggests the end of this part of the show. Not a bad idea.

The program is sponsored by American Home Products Co. on behalf of Bi-So-Dol and is heard over the NBC Blue from 7:15 to 7:30 P. M. Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. Blackett, Sample and Hummert, the agency. K.

Yasha Davidoff

Yasha Davidoff is well known in this country and abroad due to his many appearances on the concert and operatic stage. He sings well in a fine baritone-basso voice. His repertoire includes many light romantic numbers which he delivers with well-modulated voice. On his initial program he sung "Under Your Spell," "Thine Alone," "Can I Forget You" and "The Rogue Song." Davidoff is heard every Thursday from 4:30 to 4:45 P. M. over Mutual as a sustainer. P.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 10
(20th Century-Fox)

Some spectacular shots of the Sino-Japanese conflict stand out in this release, which is varied in content, splendidly photographed, ably edited and narrated.

Five clips from the Orient comprise an impressive panorama of the deadly conflict being waged in China. From scenes of fleeing refugees and long lines of invading forces on the march to those entire communities silenced by shell fire and the destruction caused by air raids, these shots portray vividly the seriousness and horror of the struggle in the Far East. The camera catches a Japanese plane shot from the skies and follows its downward course into a river. Shelled hospitals, captured Japanese fliers, the landing of American Marine reinforcements, China's defenders, and the American ambassador at Nanking, a danger zone, are all included in this footage photographed by Eric Mayell and Bonney Powell, and narrated by Lowell Thomas.

Ed Thorgersen covers the Long Island Steeplechase at the West Hills Hunt meet; Thomas describes the opening of New York's West Side highway; Vyvyan Donner and Helen Claire a juvenile auto show, and Lew Lehr a motorized kangaroo hunt to complete the reel. The release rates high for news, action and amusement.

Running time, 10 minutes. K.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 208
(M-G-M)

The dramatic highlight of News of the Day in this issue is the bombing of Nanking. How the cameramen obtained the shots without themselves being blown up is a mystery. The scenes build up.

After showing the arrival of Marines at Shanghai in the Chaumont and taking rides in rickshas, the films turn to views of Japanese planes in midair as they approach Nanking. The descent of the bombs and their devastating explosions are visible. Details are given of the damage done to the Rockefeller Hospital. Chinese soldiers clearing the tracks after a train has been bombed and pulling bodies out from beneath are shown. In one extraordinary shot a plane falls in flames and dives into a river almost directly in front of the camera.

President Roosevelt is shown discussing this country's intention to stay out of war. General Pershing is presented at the dedication of his monument at Versailles. Air shots give a good idea of the extent of the new express highway along Riverside Drive, and some fashion shots are presented.

Running time, 9 mins. J.

Paramount News
No. 21
(Paramount)

The highlight of this reel is the bombing of Nanking vividly caught by the camera of Arthur Menken. Repelling tactics by Chinese anti-aircraft batteries bring down a Japanese bomber in flames. The crash looks like the real stuff.

The new west side highway in New York opens the reel. It is followed by President Roosevelt calling a special session of Congress in November. In Bangor, Me., the activity of the main street is caught a few minutes after the Federals eliminated a few public enemies. This clip, too, is good. The American Legion in Paris, Versailles and Rome is shown parading and saluting. The first snowfall at Mt. Washington, N. H., is shown and, also in New England, at Presque Isle, Me., champion potato pickers do their stuff.

Running time, 10½ mins. P.

Reel Suspends

London, Oct. 14.—The National News, new British newsreel, which was planned to run 1,200 feet as against the usual reel running time of 900 feet, and also was to include a sequence in color and one in cartoon, has been suspended to permit reorganization, following the first issue.

Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 25
(RKO)

There is nothing outstanding in this issue of the Pathe reel, the highlights being the President's latest fireside chat to the nation, and some fast football action in the Columbia-Army game.

An interesting feature of the shooting of the President's speech is the camera play on the battery of radio sound men in the White House, keeping the airwaves clear as the President spoke. For the rest, the reel showed, in rapid succession, the killing of Al Brady and his companion in Bangor, Me., the academic parade at the induction of Dr. Edward E. Day, Cornell's fifth president, the operation of a new mechanical cotton picker in the south, which will cut costs, and a fashion parade with squirrel fur as the piece de resistance.

Clem McCarthy imparts plenty of punch to the description of the spectacular gridiron battle at West Point while the boys themselves should keep any fan on the edge of his seat.

Running time, 8 mins. A.

Universal News
No. 606
(Universal)

This is the newsreel which the Japanese Chamber of Commerce sought to purchase from Charles E. Ford, Universal News editor, as revealed by MOTION PICTURE DAILY. The reason given by spokesmen for the Japanese association for the attempt to acquire the reel was a desire to suppress it on the grounds of doubt as to the authenticity of footage showing Japanese airmen taken captive by the Chinese, as well as other scenes of the conflict which, however, were described as "of no concern."

In view of this statement it must be admitted after viewing the reel that the camera does not present the conclusive evidence which a court of law would require before identifying the prisoners either as Japanese airmen or as combat prisoners. Whether or not this fact, or the scenes themselves, are sufficient to justify attempts at suppression of the reel, becomes a matter, therefore, of individual approach.

The camera does not show the prisoners being taken captive. It does not show them with any identifying insignia, either of the air force or of any other branch of the Japanese armed forces. Most Occidentals, in fact, will be obliged to rely upon the narrator's words that the men shown are of the Japanese race. The shots show a dozen Orientals garbed only in underclothing and shirts, taking setting up exercises and enjoying a smoke under armed Chinese guard in what is presumably a prison camp. That is all there is of the footage which apparently gave the Japanese Chamber of Commerce so much concern.

Destruction Shown

The reel depicts the devastation of air raids in Shanghai and Nanking, with the mute evidence of holes torn in the roofs of hospital buildings and great bomb craters in hospital yards. It shows civilians running for cover in bomb-proof shelters as air raid warnings are sounded. It shows the American consul at Shanghai inspecting the underground shelter recently completed on the consulate premises, and it shows a plane falling in flames while an attack from the air is in progress.

China's leaders, Chiang Kai Shek and Madame Chiang Kai Shek, are pictured, the latter at the dedication of a new hospital. Chinese civilians are shown bearing the remnants of a wrecked Japanese plane to a public exhibition place and a Chinese plane which has been shot down is found by the camera in an open field. Japanese troop movements are shown, and so is the arrival of U. S. Marine reinforcements for Shanghai.

George Krainukov and Howard Winner are the photographers. Running time, 9½ minutes. K.

Ostrers Win Approval of Stockholders

Allege Meeting "Packed" To Gain Endorsement

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 15.—The Ostrer brothers stole a march on their opponents at the meeting of stockholders of Gaumont British today. The gallery, crowded with 700 shareholders, who were reported to have been chosen by the Ostrers, voted five to one in favor of the directors, approved the recently-issued financial report of the company and reelected the directorate by large majorities.

It was freely alleged during the meeting that employes were given shares and instructions to interrupt and shout down any criticism of the proceedings. Observers were inclined to find the allegations borne out during the session.

The noisy scenes began when

Local 306 Contract Runs into Next Year

New contracts between Local 306 and independent circuits will not be negotiated until next September, it was stated yesterday by Joseph D. Basson, president of the union. Basson said that the deal with the independents was not set until 1936, and according to the agreement no new scales can be discussed until two years later.

Basson and a committee yesterday conferred with major circuit executives at the Loew home office. Progress was reported on the new two-year arrangement for the circuits. Further meetings are planned before a new scale is set up for the next two years.

Goldman Building 2 Philadelphia Houses

William Goldman, former Warner zone head in Philadelphia and now an independent exhibitor with a circuit of 10 theatres, is building two new houses in Philadelphia, he stated yesterday. One of them will be a newsreel theatre at 13th & Market.

Goldman came in town yesterday to see Al Lichtman, Loew executive, off on the Normandie. He returned to the Quaker City in the afternoon.

Ask Roxy Fees Of $512,010 In Petitions

Others Filed Late Will Raise This Amount

Fourteen petitions for allowances in the Roxy Theatre reorganization totaling $512,010 were filed in the U. S. District Court yesterday, the last day for filing petitions. A number of additional requests for allowances were filed at the last moment. The amounts could not be learned. Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey set Nov. 19 for a hearing.

Howard S. Cullman, Roxy trustee, asked for $120,000 in addition to $80,000 previously received. In his report Cullman revealed that the gross receipts during his administration from Dec. 15, 1932, to Sept. 2, 1937, were $7,975,586 as against disbursements

Griffis Sells a Big Block of Debentures

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Receipt of reports that Stanton Griffis, New York, director, disposed through Hemphill, Noyes & Co., of 23,000 3¼ per cent Paramount convertible debentures in July and a similar volume in August, reducing his holdings from 88,000 on June 30 to 42,000 on Aug. 31, was made known tonight by S. E. C. in its semi-monthly summary of the transactions of officers, directors and principal stockholders in the securities of their corporations.

The report also showed that Jack Barnstyn, New York, who became an officer in Grand National Films Jan. 12, at which time he held no equity securities, acquired 1,000 shares of $1 par common stock during August.

C I O Active

Further indications of the desire of the C. I. O. to gain a foothold among "white collar" workers in the industry came to light with the knowledge that much literature, similar to that circulated among Loew's, Inc., employes, has been distributed among RKO workers as well.

U. A. Selling Away From F. P. Canadian

United Artists is selling away from Famous Players Canadian in Canada. Several deals have been closed by George J. Schaefer, vice-president and general manager, with Loew houses and with independents.

Among the deals are: Orpheum, Montreal; Garrick, Winnipeg; Loew's, Toronto; Center, Ottawa; Empire, Quebec; Loew's, London; Strand, Calgary; Vanity, Windsor; Roxy, Saskatoon; Rex, Regina; Imperial, Moncton, N. B.; Orpheum, Moosejaw; Esquire, Brantford, Ont.

Columbia Attends Play Bureau Meet

Columbia, which recently declared through its president, Harry Cohn, that it would re-enter the Broadway play financing field this season, yesterday sent its representative to the first fall meeting of the board of the Bureau of New Plays, the organization sponsored by seven major producing companies on their withdrawal from play financing activities two years ago. The bureau's objective is to discover its own playwriting talent and production material before it gets to Broadway.

Al Lichtman, assistant to Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's, is now a director in addition to being a vice-president of the company. It will be two years next month that Lichtman joined Loew's as assistant to Schenck. Within a few weeks, he was made vice-president with the dissolution of M-G-M.

Lichtman sailed yesterday on the Normandie to spend several months abroad "to help develop the M-G-M producing organization."

Loew's is expected to drop the Midland, Kansas City, it was learned yesterday. The circuit has a 10-year lease on the theatre which expires Oct. 28. No negotiations have been held on a renewal of the lease, it was stated. Loew's, however, is understood to have declined to discuss new terms.

For some time, Joseph R. Vogel, in charge of out-of-town operations for the circuit, had been trying to get a reduction in rent without success. The house has been in the red for several years.

May Shelve LaGuardia Reel Here Until Election Is Over

The showing in New York neighborhood theatres prior to Election Day, Nov. 2, of March of Time's production starring Mayor LaGuardia and city department heads, and depicting the Mayor's public career, is extremely doubtful at this time.

RKO's Greater New York circuit, which has first call on the picture, will not play it until after Election Day in order to avoid suspicion of political partisanship in the municipal campaign, it was reported in reliable quarters yesterday. Efforts to check the report with N. J. Blumberg, RKO theatre head, were not successful.

The picture was withdrawn from the Music Hall last week after completing seven days of a 14-day run, which makes it available to the Embassy next Thursday. Officials of the theatre said last night that it would open there according to schedule. No other Broadway bookings of the film for dates prior to Election Day are set, according to RKO, distributors of March of Time, and no neighborhood dates have been set yet.

Harry Michalson, RKO short subjects manager, offered the explanation that the 18 minutes running time of the La Guardia production "make it difficult to fit in on double feature programs" and said that this has delayed the setting of dates for the picture in RKO neighborhood houses. He added that the metropolitan bookings for the film would be discussed at RKO early next week with some possibility that dates would be set then. He declared, however, that it was not certain that these dates would be in advance of Election Day. Michalson will leave Sunday for Cleveland and Pittsburgh, to be away a week.

Time Executives Unmoved

March of Time officials were undisturbed, apparently, by the delay of the production in reaching the city's screens.

A March of Time spokesman said there was "no trouble" over the reel as far as March of Time is concerned, and no complaints have been received from exhibitors due to any indicated delay in the availability of the film. He belittled the reports that delivery and bookings of the picture were being held up because of "threats" from the Mayor's political opposition, as did the distributor and numerous metropolitan exhibitors, none of whom had heard of any attempt at intimidation to discourage the exhibition of the picture until after the city election.

Player Group Backs Mayor

A theatrical and film division of the Non-Partisan Committee in support of Mayor LaGuardia for reelection and Thomas E. Dewey for Manhattan District Attorney, has been formed here. Daniel Frohman is honorary chairman, Louis Nizer, chairman; Major Edward Bowes and Theresa Helburn, vice-chairmen; J. Robert Rubin, treasurer, and Meyer W. Weisgal, secretary.

Thus far the membership of the committee includes: George Abbott, Luther Adler, Richard Aldrich, Kelcey Allen, Maxwell Anderson, Helen Arthur, Brooks Atkinson, Edith Barrett, Norman Bel Geddes. Owen Davis, Crosby Gaige, Margalo Gillmore, Dorothy Gordon, George Heller, Arthur Hopkins, Lawrence Langner, Sam Levene, Philip Loeb, Leonard Lyons, Guthrie McClintic, Paul McGrath, Victor Moore, Clifford Odets, Donald Oenslager, Brock Pemberton, George Ross, Morris Ryskind, Sam Sax, Arthur Schwarz, Herman Shumlin, Leonard Sillman, Henry Travers, Richard Watts, Jr., and Rita Weiman.

Ask Fees of $512,010 In Petitions on Roxy of $7,561,445. Cash on hand at present is $421,446. During his period as foreclosure receiver, the Roxy lost $124,186, but earned $543,990 while he acted as reorganization trustee. Together with other income of $3,692, the net operating profit for the entire period of four years and 39 weeks was $405,495.

Creditors of the reorganization proceedings hold claims totaling $47,318. Bernard Appel, Cullman's attorney, suggested that money of the creditors who failed to claim their 100 per cent dividends should go to the bondholders after 30 days. However, Judge Caffey vetoed the suggestion and ordered the money deposited with the clerk in the court until claimed. Class A stockholders who will receive $1 per share from 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., which took over the Roxy, under the settlement not included in the reorganization plan have been notified to exchange their shares for cash.

Program costs for the entire period totaled $3,046,481 and other operating expenses were $2,474,606. Admissions, less taxes, were $6,627,114; film rentals, $1,030,892; special talent, $984,162; orchestra, $505,622; stage, $311,029; projectionists, $203,619, and ballet, $11,155. There were over 17,000,000 paid admissions.

Advertising costs were $806,202; house salaries, $678,489; administration costs, $336,796; advisory supervision, $258,595.

Besides Cullman's request for fees, the following also were filed: White & Case, attorneys for the Pound bondholders protective committee, proponents of the plan, $65,000 for fees and $1,565 for disbursements; the Pound committee, which represented 63 per cent of the first mortgage bonds, asked $23,318 for fees and $37,394 for disbursements; Beekman, Bogue, Leake, Stephen and Black, attorneys for the gold note holders second mortgage protective committee, sought $25,000 for fees and $497 for disbursements; the gold noteholders committee, $10,000 for fees and $17,297 for disbursements; Daniel W. Blumenthal, attorney for the Adler committee, $12,500 for fees. The Adler committee made no claims, either for fees or disbursements.

Cullman Attorneys Ask Fee

Continental Bank & Trust Co., trustees under the mortgage, asked $12,263 for fees and $2,989 for disbursements; Proskauer, Rose and Paskus, attorneys for Cullman, $50,000 for fees and $209 for disbursements. They previously had received $62,000; Hoffman & Hoffman, attorneys for a number of bondholders, $2,500; Thomas J. Ryan, attorney for John Kane whose suit sent the Roxy into receivership, $3,500 for fees; Milton H. Reuben, attorney for the Roxy theatre, the debtor corporation, $5,000 in fees; Barrow, Wade Guthrie & Co., accountants, $13,434 for fees; George M. Garrson and Roemer-Kenny Co., Inc., filed a joint request for $58,692 for brokerage fees on the sale of the Roxy. Carl Erikson also made a claim for brokerage fees and asked $50,952.

Brackett Cites SWG Problems at Hearing

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 15.—Charles Brackett, acting president of the Screen Writers' Guild, today told of the ups and downs of the organization since its revival in 1933 as the chief witness in the hearing on the petition for the designation of a collective bargaining agency election before the Labor Relations Board here.

Brackett placed the present total of active and associate members at 523. He said two attempts were made to talk to the producers on behalf of guild recognition, but that the producers never answered the guild letters.

At one point Brackett declared that Patterson McNutt, one of the organizers of Screen Playwrights, Inc., threatened writers at Paramount with possible loss of jobs and pay cuts unless they joined his organization which now holds a bargaining agreement with the producers. Attorney Neil McCarthy called the testimony false and stated that he will demand specific proof.

Brackett testified that his present salary is $1,100 weekly, this being $100 more than his salary of a year ago.

Ostrers Win Approval of Stockholders

Charles Nordon, acting for a stockholder's committee, moved an amendment rejecting the financial report and demanding a Board of Trade investigation. There were continual interruptions on fictitious points of order, shouts of "sit down," concerted cries of "paid agitator" and continual coughing.

Nordon declared that the Ostrers had to account for £4,500,000 of £7,000,000 handed to them. The accounts really showed a net loss, he said, and contended that the preferred dividend was wrongly paid. An investigation is the only means of preventing stockholders from losing their entire investments, he said.

W. H. Drown seconded Nordon's motion amid continuous interruption. He referred to "obstructive agitation by paid employes."

Drown Called "Employed"

Jeffrey Bernerd, G. B. executive, retorted, "So are you employed by Mr. Maxwell (John Maxwell, head of Associated British Pictures)."

Drown said that Bernerd drew £9,000 a year; shareholders got nothing.

"It's £9,500," replied Bernerd.

Drown concluded by saying that the Board of Trade, upon investigating, would know what action to take if they found evidence of misfeasance. "That is our only hope of retribution," he declared. He wanted to know what happened to the £10,000,000 in theatre revenue.

Isidore Ostrer, presiding, interrupted both Nordon and Drown to hear frequent points of order and suggested that Nordon limit his speech in deference to the opinion of the meeting, but refused to interfere with a lengthy following speech by a supporter describing the company's distribution venture in the United States, and blaming America for the company's abandonment of production. However, Ostrer did interpose with, "We know all that already."

American Revenue Belittled

In his opening address, Ostrer also attributed the company's position to the absence of income from its production and distribution branches. He said, "It can be simply attributed to the fact that America made no real contribution to the cost of any of our films. We had to face the fact that for a British company to obtain revenue from America is entirely different from an American company obtaining revenue from England."

In the deal with General Film Distributors, the company had recovered the film loss, as shown in the accounts, and profits are expected, he said. The Northolt exterior lot was sold for £50,000, he added. A consolidated balance sheet will be issued when it is possible to merge 100 subsidiaries, the chairman said.

Ostrer said that the preference dividend was paid because the cumulative arrears on the issue would be due next year if no dividend were paid this year. The question of the preference dividend payment would not recur, owing to the company's improved condition, he maintained.

Maxwell, entering the meeting late, received a round of applause but said nothing. Nordon cited Maxwell's 60 per cent earnings and 18 per cent on distribution as compared to no G. B. dividend

Ufa Asks Judgment Against Lina Firm

Ufa Films, Inc., will ask Justice Charles B. McLaughlin to grant summary judgment in the N. Y. Supreme Court on Monday in its replevin suit against the Lina Pictures Corp. and J. Briskman.

Ufa claims that it granted exclusive rights to Talking Picture Epics, Inc., in 1931 on "White Devil," "Immortal Vagabond" and "The Last Company." After Epics had been adjudicated a bankrupt in 1933, Ufa cancelled the contract and demanded the return of 54 prints of the pictures. Briskman further allegedly purchased the prints and contract from the trustee in bankruptcy and assigned his rights to the defendant, Lina Pictures. The defendants deny that they have more than one print of each picture and are counterclaiming for storage charges. Ufa alleges that "White Devil" was exhibited in New York City as recently as May and also demanded an accounting of the profits. Otta Marbach was originally named as one of the defendants, but was later dropped.

To Seek End of Gaige Suit

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. will move to dismiss the $50,000 infringement action brought by Crosby Gaige in the N. Y. Supreme Court on Oct. 10 on motion that the plaintiff has failed to prosecute his suit diligently.

Gaige claims that the title of his story, "Little Miss Nobody," which was published in Modern Romances in 1931 was used by 20th Century-Fox in the picture of the same name. The picture was adapted from the story, "The Matron's Report," by Frederick H. Brennan. Gaige alleges that he submitted the story to 20th Century-Fox in 1931 and that it was rejected, but the title was used without his permission. A general denial was filed by the defendant. Dismissal is asked because of the failure of the plaintiff to notice the case for trial, although it has been pending since last November.

New Shows on the Air

"March of Time"

The "March of Time," for the past six years a CBS highlight, bowed in Thursday on the NBC-Blue, its new abode. It bucks stern opposition in the Vallee hour and the Kate Smith show, but it has nothing to fear even in these, for the "March of Time" no longer is an ordinary radio program. It has become an institution.

The opening instalment offered dramatizations of the slaying of the Brady gang by the G-Men, a stirring panorama of the rise and fall of Father Coughlin as a political power, the Duke of Windsor's visit to Germany, the unveiling of the monument to the American soldiers who fell at Chateau Thierry, the heroic doctor who injected the cancer virus in his blood in an effort to solve the riddle of the dread disease.

The careful and utterly impartial editorial handling of the news that has always distinguished "March of Time" re-enactments was evident throughout the broadcast. The voice duplications of course still are uncannily accurate.

The series, sponsored by the publishers of Life and Time, is broadcast Thursdays on the Blue from 8:30 to 9 P. M. Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn is the agency. BANNER

"Dere Teecher"

Here is a cleverly arranged question-and-answer contest for children in grade schools that is just aching to be sponsored. It is called a mental hurdle race and prizes are given to the children coming out ahead. Listeners are invited to send in questions and, if they are that good, appropriate prizes will be sent. The program is smartly paced and should find a wide audience.

Did anyone know that Coney Island got its name from the Indian word for rabbits? The redskins used to chase the creatures there, it seems.

"Dere Teecher" is heard on Tuesday and Thursday from 5:45 to 6 P. M. over CBS. P.

CIO Unit in Drive for All Office Staffs

Continuing Move to Get 10,000 Workers Here

The United Office and Professional Workers' Union, the C.I.O. affiliated unit concerned with office employes, is actively continuing its drive to organize all home office employes in the film business in New York, Anne Berenholz, in charge of the film work of the C.I.O. affiliate, told MOTION PICTURE DAILY over the weekend.

Miss Berenholz declared that there is a total of 10,000 persons employed in the home offices of the film companies in New York alone, and cited approximately 1,100 employed by Warners here and between 700 and 800 at Paramount to prove her contention.

The organizer declared that the unit has been actively engaged in the move to organize the workers under the Lewis banner since last summer and that progress is being made. She refused to divulge the extent of the "progress" or to disclose the number of home office workers who are members of the organization. She did say, however, that virtually all companies are represented by units.

No specific company has been singled out for attention in the drive, she declared, although recent reports indicated organization activity especially in Universal, Loew's and RKO.

New Sullivan County Group Being Talked

Exhibitors in Sullivan County, N. Shanghai Film Situation Is Seen Improving Slowly

By J. P. KOEHLER

SHANGHAI, Oct. 1. (Via China Clipper)—The film situation in Shanghai is improving slowly. Four first runs and several subsequents are open, and receipts are encouraging. Houses in Tsingtao, Tientsin, Peiping, Cheefoo, Changsha and Chengtu are open, as are first runs showing foreign pictures in Hankow, despite bombings.

Theatres in Nanking are closed but are expected to reopen soon. Shipments are possible to the outer ports by steamer. Mails from the United States are much delayed, but local mails and the Yangtse River airmail is all right with slight delays. Foreign banks are engaged in normal operation and Chinese banks apparently are easing their restrictions. Importation is faced with difficulty as a result of cargo being dumped elsewhere and the situation is causing considerable anxiety. Parcel post apparently is best.

Eight major American distributing offices in Shanghai are operating. H. Dunn of Warners, L. Britton of RKO and J. E. Perkins of Paramount have sailed for the United States. The Gov-

Music Hall Lines Up Five After "Stage"

W. G. Van Schmus has lined up five pictures to follow "Stage Door" at the Music Hall. The first will be "Victoria the Great." Next, in the order named, will be "The Awful Truth," "Nothing Sacred," "I'll Take Romance" and "Damsel in Distress."

Indications are that "52nd Street" will be booked into the Rivoli. Although "Stand-In" had been dated into the Music Hall for the latter part of the month, the picture has been moved back indefinitely.

Dakotans Cite Advantages of Circuit Spots

Six alleged trade advantages of affiliated theatres over independently operated theatres are cited by North Dakota officials in justification of the state's theatre divorce measure in their reply to Paramount's complaint which seeks an injunction against enforcement of the law on the grounds that it is unconstitutional.

Copies of the North Dakota answer were received in New York over the weekend after having been filed in Fargo last week.

The alleged trade advantages of affiliated theatres, as set forth in the answer, are their ability to obtain first runs without competitive bidding against independents; their alleged

Disney Multi-Plane Camera $70,000 Gadget, Now in Use

By WILLIAM R. WEAVER

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 17.—At a not very closely computed cost of some $70,000 stretched loosely over a two-year period the Walt Disney technicians have put together in somewhat terrifying complexity the bulky and incredibly precise instrument mentioned in recent despatches as the multi-plane camera. The things it does that other cameras used in production of cartoon comics don't are to be seen first in "The Old Mill," a Silly Symphony of imminent release. How it does them is patiently explained and demonstrated to the interested visitor in words of one syllable while he fumbles among indistinct memories of photographic technology which appear to have remarkably little to do with the case.

The chief thing it does is to achieve a screen effect of depth, as sharply differentiated from third dimension, in certain types of scenes and under

Seeks Parley To End Fight With Param't

Exhibitor Committee Is UMPTO's Plan

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 17.—The UMPTO on Saturday held forth an olive branch to Paramount and, in a lengthy and blistering statement, suggested that distributor confer with one exhibitor from each area where disaffection over sales policy is rife as a means of reaching an accord.

George Aarons, secretary of the organization and over whose signature the statement was issued, listed these cities and these areas from which such a committee would be drawn: Philadelphia, Minneapolis, Pittsburgh, Boston, Northern New Jersey, Los Angeles, Milwaukee and Ohio.

"No sane exhibitor wants to see Paramount harmed or the quality or quantity of the Paramount release depreciated," ran the text at one point. "Our opposition is directed solely against certain of their sales policies. We feel that many of the differences between the disputants could be ironed out by an exchange of views at a round table. We believe that Paramount's refusal to meet with any committee representing an exhibitor organization is not grounded in good business sense if these differences can by that procedure be quickly settled. 'Face saving' is one thing, but to continue a war needlessly is futile and foolish."

Then followed the suggested plan

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 17.—Charging that M-G-M's "The Unguarded Hour" is based, without her authority, on either her novel, "Kingdoms of the World," or her scenario, "The Unguarded Hour," which was sold to First National in 1925, Margaretta Tuttle has filed suit against Metro in Federal Court here.

The plaintiff asks all profits earned by the film and an injunction against its further distribution.

End First Columbia Regional in Chicago

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Joe McConville, Rube Jackter, Louis Astor, Lou Weinberg, Max Weisfeldt, Hank C. Kaufman, George Josephs and Milton Hannock discussed various sales angles of Columbia's current lineup at the first of a series of three regional sales sessions held here at the Drake over the weekend.

Seventy-five salesmen, representing 15 exchanges, were present as well as district, division and branch managers from the west and midwest. Among the subjects treated were the cleanup dates for "Lost Horizon" and distribution plans for "The Awful Truth." The sales forces left for their various offices tonight.

The next regional is expected to be held in the south, probably New Orleans.

Abe Montague, general sales manager, was absent due to the death of his mother last week in Boston. McConville conducted the sessions.

Companies in Court Hands Face Levies

BOSTON, Oct. 17.—Federal officials here say the decision of Referee in Bankruptcy Arthur Black that the Amoskeag Mfg. Co. is subject to the Social Security law paves the way for collection by the Treasury Dept. of huge sums from other corporations undergoing reorganization or liquidation.

The Amoskeag case was viewed by Washington as a national test. Trustees now in control of Amoskeag have 10 days to appeal.

Referee Black decided that a corporation undergoing reorganization or liquidation under section 77B of the Bankruptcy Act cannot be classified as a Federal agency and thus escape contributions for Social Security and Unemployment Insurance. Black found that the Federal Court did not assume control by naming trustees, but only assisted the company to liquidate.

Kansas City Theatre Discards Price Rise

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 17.—After a four-week test of substantially increased prices, the Fox Tower, first run house featuring pictures and vaudeville, has returned to its former price of 25 cents and 40 cents, with 25 cents in the balcony nights and Sunday.

The theatre introduced the increase (25 cents to 2 P.M., 35 cents to 6 P.M.) and 40 cents for the entire house for evenings) on Sept. 3, and the increase represented the first substantial raise in Kansas City theatres since the depression.

Now it is back to the same prices as charged by other major first runs. When it went to the higher price, the management's hope was that other first runs would follow. Since this now is apparently impossible for this season, the management feels it must meet competition.

calling for an exhibitor parley composed of one exhibitor from each of the disgruntled areas.

The statement was captioned "A Paramount Peace Plan." It charged, at its outset, that the Paramount "high command" had committed a "tactical blunder in its war on its customers." The "blunder" was explained as a decision by Paramount to sell away from "recognized, established accounts."

Declared the statement:

"If in doing so Paramount could recoup its losses, the move might have some economic justification. But with UMPTO holding voluntary powers of attorney to buy for most of the exhibitors and with other territories adopting similar plans, the newest Paramount move must be construed as a punitive act directed against a few of the stalwarts in the exhibitor ranks."

was to have been returnable today in the Indiana court but Paramount attorneys moved on Saturday to have the case transferred to the U. S. District Court at Indianapolis on the grounds of a diversity of citizenship involved in the action. No date has been set yet for the Federal court hearing on the application.

The action to compel the distributor to deliver the 10 pictures alleged to have been purchased on last season's contract is identical to the procedure which Allied Theatres of the Northwest recently declared it would institute against the distributor at Minneapolis. That action has not been filed yet, however.

M-G-M to Use More Color Photographs

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 17.—M-G-M's publicity department intends to use color stills in publicizing its stars and productions, it was indicated today when the new still camera laboratory went into use.

The laboratory, in addition to being equipped with what the studio describes as the most modern equipment of any photographic studio in the west, has devices for two-color still processes—Carbro and Dufay—already set up, and provisions for equipment for other color processes.

Included is a copy camera which takes three-color pictures with one setting—leaving impressions on red, blue and greenish-yellow plate emulsions.

The laboratory is completely air conditioned to facilitate the better handling of liquids used in developing and printing.

certain circumstances. A very important thing it does not do is to achieve this by means of the old familiar trick of trucking a camera trained upon a focal center along a circumferential sector of track. It does manifest its effectiveness most strikingly in dolly (approach and retreat) shots, although this is by no means the limit of its usefulness.

In common with what may be referred to for clarity in this connection as the single-plane cartoon camera, the lens of the multi-plane camera is poised directly above the horizontally placed subject matter, or drawing. But the multi-plane camera is so constructed as to facilitate a breaking up of the subject matter into from two to seven planes—depending upon the character of the scene to be photographed—and a simultaneous shooting of the matter distributed among the several planes.

Clarification

For an example to clear up that snarl of wordage, a scene to be shot may contain a background of sky with clouds drifting across it while a windmill in middle distance turns round, trees nearer at hand bow to the wind, a pond in the foreground ripples to the beat of rain and ducks parade the near bank, all this being seen through a window. In standard cartoon production all this is drawn upon a single or several tightly superimposed sheets of celluloid and shot as a single, flat subject, with the artist relied upon to suggest depth, or perspective, as best he may. For the multi-plane camera the scene is broken up, or separated, into component parts, on the basis of their respective proportionate distances from the eye of the observer.

Thus, in the example stated, the celluloid sheet on which the window is drawn is "staged" on the uppermost of a series of seven horizontal and parallel planes mounted, and vertically movable, on what technicians call a crane and a layman associates roughly with an old-fashioned four-poster bed The celluloid sheet on which the ducks are drawn is staged on the next to uppermost plane, the pond ripples on the one below, the trees curtsey on the next one, the windmill spins on the next, the clouds occupy the next shelf and the sky lies flat on the bottom one. The lens looks down upon and through all these planes and records what it sees.

Improvement Marked

That the thing the lens sees is considered by the Disney forces to be importantly superior to the picture obtainable by single-plane photography is substantiated by statistics. A good day's work with a single-plane camera nets 100 ft. of film; the multi-plane camera is counted functioning at par if it nets 15 feet of film in the same number of working hours. Additionally, operation of the multi-plane camera requires, according to the number of planes being used, the services of from two to four times as many men. As is fairly well known, operation of a single-plane camera requires one man to focus and shoot, one to stage the successive pictures for the lens, another to follow script and check operations of the second man. To this staff two men must be added for each additional plane brought into use by the multi-plane camera, since the two latter operations must be duplicated on each level.

The foregoing is as much as appears to the untutored reportorial eye. The untrained ear picks up much talk about proportionate.

The device will get its real screen test, of course, when "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" goes into the theatres.

Shanghai Situation Improving Slowly

ernment film censors are in full operation daily in Shanghai. Local business conditions indicate every attempt at normalcy despite continual day and night battle and bombardment around the settlements, where casualties from "archies" are very slight.

The cholera is under control and the population is orderly. Food is plentiful but prices are high. Reports here indicate that two theatres in Hongkew have been demolished, while 10 other subsequent runs in districts occupied by the Japanese are unable to operate.

A terrific street battle is raging three-quarters of a mile from this office but all staffs are working as usual, despite rocking bombardments from heavy guns and aircraft bombings. Many foreign refugees are returning to Shanghai from other ports.

M-G-M Signs Esmond

LONDON, Oct. 17.—Carl Esmond, currently playing in "Victoria Regina" here, is Louis B. Mayer's latest star capture in England. The MGM chief saw his performance during his recent London visit. Esmond sails for the United States on long-term contract, immediately the Lyric run ends.

Plan a Holiday Short

M-G-M Issues Book On Short Subjects

M-G-M's publicity and advertising department has turned out a book that looks like a fan magazine for the purpose of stimulating interest in shorts. It has 20 pages and measures 12¾ in. by 9½ in. and has varied color and art work.

A foreword is supplied by Howard Dietz. There's an article by Halsey Raines, a biographical sketch of Pete Smith, a discussion of foreign sales of shorts by Charles Cohen, and exploitation stunts.

It is entirely different from a pressbook and is designed for reproduction in newspapers as well as supplying selling ideas to exhibitors. A few paragraphs on the inside of the front cover indicate that it will be continued only if its reception warrants it, and will be mailed only to those who request it.

Book for "Victoria" An Elaborate Layout

S. Barret McCormick's publicity and advertising department at RKO has turned out a pressbook on "Victoria the Great" that is done up in a box like a rare first edition. The cover has the British royal crown in full color, full size, and it's considerably impressive.

The shape of the book is odd—11¾ inches high by 18 inches wide—and the cover is done in color. The first six pages are in sepia on heavy stock, followed by another page in full color. The tieups and advertising are also done in the regal manner.

'Many Unhappy Returns'
(RKO)

There are a few laughs in this comedy, in which Ford Sterling is the husband, who, attempting to please his wife by buying her a French doll, is suspected by her of going out with a blonde, when she finds blonde hair on his coat. His attempts to get out of the difficulty and the accidental inclusion of the blonde cigar stand clerk in the problem, make for a number of antics and a little comedy.

Running time, 17 mins. "G."

"Milt Britton and His Orchestra"
(Vitaphone)

The Sphinx even gets a hearty laugh from the antics of this well known band as they do their stuff in a Cairo setting. A piano, approximately 20 violins and a 'cello are smashed to accomplish this end. The short is highly entertaining and will be gleefully received. Running time, 11 mins. "G."

"Miss Lonely Hearts"
(Educational)

A lonely hearts club, so-called, is the excuse and setting for a group of novelty turns, some of which are entertaining and keep the short going at an active pace. The Michael Sisters, Anita Jacobi, Harriet Hutchins and Aileen O'Connor are among the performers, and the act includes singing, eccentric dancing and acrobatics. A fair short subject.

Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Love Sick"
(Universal)

Oswald's dog, Doxie, falls hard for a French poodle. He moons about and tries to attract her attention, but she ignores him. He is finally cured of his infatuation when he discovers she is the wife of a bulldog. It has clever moments. Running time, 8 mins. "G."

"The Man Without a Country"
(Vitaphone)

The patriotic intent of this film overshadows the acting and the coloring. It is based on the familiar story and should find a receptive audience in children. John Litel plays the title role and he is aided in his portrayal of the exiled army lieutenant by Gloria Holden, Theodore Osborn, Donald Brian and Holmes Herbert. Running time, 21 mins. "G."

"The Dancing Bear"

Farmer Alfalfa, cartoon character in this Terry-Toon, becomes involved with a dancing bear while its owner sleeps, and the result is one of those wild pursuits through the farmer's house, ending with the farmer accidentally donning a bear skin, taken away by the master of the real bear. An ordinary cartoon.

Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"A Rented Riot"
(RKO)

When rubber-legged Leon Errol tries to pay off an $80 debt by renting his apartment for a month, while his wife and mother-in-law are away, he gets more than he bargained for. The new tenant stages a wild party, the police arrive, a girl is left behind and Errol's wife walks in unexpectedly. The moments of genuine comedy which result are chiefly the work of Errol.

Running time, 17 mins. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Boots and Saddles"
(Republic)

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 17.—With Gene Autry leading in draw over the present day crop of western stars, Republic went out and spent some money this time and brought this horse opus more into the real production class. Most of the shots are heavily backgrounded with people and choral support on the singing numbers is frequent.

Autry, according to the story, has to break in a youngster, Ra Hould, from England, who inherited the ranch and wishes to sell it. Autry, in the interest of his ranch cronies, convinces the kid he should hold on and, in order to make money, they seek an army horse-breaking contract. Thus, Autry is ushered to the presence of Judith Allen, the colonel's daughter. To the meanie side leans Gordon Elliott, also after the contract and the ranch.

Autry is supported by Smiley Burnette, the latter sprinkling the yarn with comedy as a sagebush goof. These two, with Teddy Powell, Leonard Whiteup, Walter Samuels, Carson Robinson, Aaron Gonzales, Del Lyons, Lani McIntire, Fleming Allan and Nelson Shawn, wrote the jingling ditties which crop out generously.

Miss Allen, looking very good for this class product, adds from a romance standpoint, her general business with Autry assuring laughs. Supporting players are Guy Usher, John Ward, Frankie Marvin, Chris Marvin, Stanley Blystone and Bud Osborne.

Joseph Kane directed. Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Where Trails Divide"
(Monogram)

Stagecoach holdups and the violation of the blue laws in Rawhide provide the material for this western story. There is an absence of the old, reliable cattle rustling. The story is acted plausibly, but is such obvious drama that it will please in the lesser spots. Tom Keene, the hero of the piece, doesn't sing, which also has its points.

Keene, fresh from law school, arrives in Rawhide, finding it lives up to its name. He sets up his shingle, but soon runs afoul of the bad elements. His brother, David Sharp, manager of the local express office, is also playing with the outlaws. Keene gets himself appointed sheriff. He is about licked when he finally gets Warner Richmond, leader of the gang, in court and point blank accuses him of the robberies while he himself is on trial for the supposed killing of Sharp. However, Sharp makes an appearance in court. Richmond and his gang make a getaway. Keene and two undercover agents trail them into the desert, where Richmond eliminates his aids one by one until he is finally caught. Keene marries Eleanor Stewart, whom he has met on the stagecoach.

The performances are up to the usual standard. Bert Longenecker's photography is fine. R. N. Bradbury directed.

(Additional Reviews on Page 8.)

"Silly Nights"
(Educational)

Jefferson Machamer, cartoonist, brings his "Gags and Gals" material to the screen in a short subject whose comedy is to a large extent lacking in effectiveness. Machamer, seen at his drawing board, is clever, but the story, of which the title is an all too apt description, is a weak effort, at best. Various novelty acts are woven in.

Running time, 19 mins. "G."

"Playing the Ponies"
(Columbia)

The Three Stooges swap their restaurant for a race horse. They receive the bad end of the bargain. On the day of a race they discover that certain Chili nuts give their nag plenty of ambition. This discovery wins the race for the trio not, however, before plenty of highly effective and laughable slapstick takes place. The film is a big improvement over the trio's recent efforts. Running time, 17 mins. "G."

"Going Places No. 30"
(Universal)

Table tennis is treated in this issue. A quartet of experts go through their bag of tricks in regular and slow motion, each move carefully covered by Lowell Thomas as he narrates. It is fairly good material but has been done before. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Community Sing 2-2"
(Columbia)

Lilting Irish tunes are offered here. They are familiar stuff such as "Along the Rocky Road to Dublin," "Tipperary," "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" and "Sweet Rosie O'Grady." Donald Grayson and Gene Morgan take care of the necessary coaxing and the singing of the chorus. It should bring good audience response. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Short Subjects

"China Strikes Back" (Garrison)

Harry Dunham, a photographer, journeyed to remote regions in China and filmed these scenes of Chinese soldiery. Arranged by Robert Stebbins, Peter Ellis, David Wolff and Eugene Hill, the resulting picture is made to bear on the preparations of the Chinese people against Japanese invasion. There is a varied collection of shots showing soldiers on the march, maneuvers, street speakers, the dead victims of military attack lying in streets, destruction and the hardships forced upon the non-combatant. It is anti-Japanese propaganda particularly well filmed.

Running time, 28 mins. "A."

"Trotting Thoroughbreds"
(Columbia)

The training and eventual racing of trotting horses is offered in this News World of Sports number. The material is well put together and achieves a pleasant pictorial effect. The photography is excellent. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Mysterious Ceylon"
(Vitaphone)

A brief tour of the big island off the tip of India in color. It takes in the historical highlights of the place and shows a number of religious buildings. Fine native types are brought before the camera and of course glimpses of Colombo and Kandy round out the film. Fair. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Show for Sale"
(Mentone-Universal)

An impresario tries to sell a floor show to a hotel in this musical. He performs in an empty night club. The material he offers is a collection of third rate adagio dancers, roller skaters, tap dancers, a child torch singer and an exhibition of "The Big Apple." At its best it is only fair. Running time, 21 mins. "G."

"All Aboard"
(Mentone-Universal)

A railroad terminal serves as a setting for the performance of a number of average vaudeville acts that fail to introduce any novelty by being transferred to celluloid. There are laughs of the obvious variety and it may go well where the audience is not too discriminating. Running time, 17 mins. "G."

"Mechanical Handy Man"
(Universal)

Oswald and his assistant, Dumb Cluck, try to sell a robot hand to a farmer. The contrivance runs all over the screen as it pursues a cow in an effort to milk it. Much damage is done before it is finally demolished. Sometimes it's clever. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Keeper of the Lions"
(Universal)

Oswald inadvertently lets the big cats out of their cage in this cartoon and as a result the rest of the reel is devoted to his efforts to round them up. He managers this end in clever fashion. It is average cartoon fare. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

preferential treatment in the matters of rentals, selective contracts, bookings and credit; their alleged ability to obtain extended clearance; alleged overbuying; alleged ability to regulate subsequent run admission prices, and their alleged exemption from some contract provisions.

The answer was prepared by Abram F. Myers, chairman of the board of Allied States; John P. Devaney and Louis B. Schwartz, attorneys for Northwest Allied, Minneapolis; Francis Murphy of Fargo and P. O. Sathre of Bismarck. It emphasizes the defendants' fear that without the "divorce" legislation all "home-owned" theatres eventually will be acquired by producer-distributor interests. It sets forth that at the present time there are 11 affiliated theatres in the state, all owned by Paramount, as compared with 100 independent theatres.

Call Paramount "Foreign"

The answer stresses the representations that Paramount and Minnesota Amusements, complainants in the action, are large "foreign" corporations, the parent company allegedly doing a gross business in excess of $100,000,000 last year and having interests in approximately 1,400 theatres. It is represented that the "foreign" concern is not responsive to the "likes and dislikes" of local patronage in film fare and withdraws large sums of money from the state.

Contending that the "divorce" law is within the police power of the state and, therefore, is constitutional, the answer denies Paramount's representations as to the sums for which it would be liable for violation of the law in the event an injunction against its enforcement was not issued. The defendants' answer declares that the penalties "are not now known or predictable" as it will be up to the state courts to fix them upon conviction for violation.

The case will now be placed on the Federal court calendar at Fargo and may be reached for trial during the November term.

Oklahoma Town Cuts Theatres' Tax Rate

CUSHING, Okla., Oct. 17.—The occupation tax on theatres has been lowered by the City Commission here. The reduction had been requested by the theatres.

S. J. Berton, City Attorney, was instructed to draw up an ordinance which will be passed at the next meeting fixing the tax at $5 for each 100 seats or any fraction thereof.

The lowering of the tax on theatres, said Andrew W. Little, chairman of the Board of City Commissioners, is in line with the lowering of taxes in pool halls, bowling alleys and other recreational places which has recently been authorized by the Commission.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"45 Fathers"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 17.—Plenty entertainment for the entire family and more than enough showmanship material with which to sell it are provided here. An action farce, geared to provoke laughter, "45 Fathers" is also a Jane Withers' vehicle that should fully satisfy her growing legions of admirers. Dialogue and movement are cleverly balanced against backgrounds of well contrived situations, and the show moves speedily, holding interest at a high pitch.

The plot has waif Jane as the ward of an Explorers' Club composed of elderly men, and directly in charge of Richard Carle. Taken into his home, where her old friends, Paul and Grace Hartman later become servants, Carle's efforts to educate and make a little lady of the child meet with results that are disappointing to him, but which proved gayly amusing to the audience. Becoming the buddy of Carle's nephew, Thomas Beck, Jane quickly senses that Louise Henry's romantic interest in him is inspired by a desire to get his money. With the McCoys, Jane's efforts to expose the plot cause Miss Henry to file a breach of promise suit. Action moves into a courtroom where Jane's testimony and the McCoy's ventriloquistic tricks lead Miss Henry to trap herself.

Not only is tomboyish Jane Withers fully up to standard, but the Hartmans contribute much amusing stuff. Carle, Beck, Miss Henry, Nella Walker and Andrew Tombes give good performances and the supporting cast has plenty to do. Based on a story by Mary Bickel, which Frances Hyland and Albert Ray adapted and James Tinling directed, "45 Fathers" should prove a popular and profitable attraction in any competition.

Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Hollywood Round-Up"

(Coronet-Columbia)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 17.—The name of Buck Jones, leader in the 1936 Fame exhibitor poll on Western stars, tied in with an expose of the "inside" of filming western pictures as included in "Hollywood Round-Up," is a natural draw for youngsters of all ages in the areas where scenes of men on horses galloping across the screen intrigue.

In this, the first of a series of Coronet Prod. starring Jones and released by Columbia, an effort is made to expand the scope of the star's drawing power by subduing the rough action stuff, keying up the dramatic situations and making Jones undertake histrionic tasks other than those necessary for portrayal of his former fast riding, straight shooting cowboy roles.

The original story and screen play by Joseph Hoffman and Monroe Shaff, directed by Ewing Scott, place Jones as a stunt man and double for Grant Withers, conceited cowboy star. Jones, fired from his job on Withers' demands because of his friendliness toward Helen Twelvetrees, is signed up by a robber gang, members of which pose as a film location troupe. A bank is robbed, and Jones is captured. Awaiting trial, he escapes from jail with the aid of little Dickie Jones and captures the gang, which is about to flee in an airplane, by lassoing the tail assembly of the ship and pulling off the rudder. Withers gets the credit for the capture, but is exposed publicly by the boy and Miss Twelvetrees.

Previewed without Production Code Seal. Running time, 63 minutes. "G."

New Shows on the Air

"Chrysler Football Parade"

Frank G. Menke, sports authority and editor of the All Sports Record Book, now broadcasting on football Fridays for the Chrysler Motor Co. over WABC only, should find a cordial welcome from local listeners who are football enthusiasts. Menke not only chats enjoyably about the game and its history, but offers dope on the probable winners of the Saturday games.

Menke, in beginning his series, backtracked to the formative days of the intercollegiate games, when the players wore long beards and even longer head hair, and were called "gorillas." The long hair and beards, he related, were grown to enable teammates and opponents to grasp the players by the hair or beard and propel them forward or backward, depending on who had hold.

"Chrysler Football Parade" is offered Fridays from 7:15 to 7:30 P. M. Lee Anderson of Detroit is the agency. Ann Leaf, at the organ, supplies the college songs. BANNER

"Skelly Court of Missing Heirs"

CHICAGO, Oct. 17. — The "Skelly Court of Missing Heirs" turns out to be a dramatic show of merit. It is filled with episodes of human interest and the subject matter is of a type that lends itself well to dramatization.

Two cases of persons who had died and left estates of $9,000 and $22,000 were the subjects for dramatization on the opening program. The story of George Henry Watson, a World War hero, was first depicted and the adventures of the gold-seeking Patrick Noonan were the subject of the second skit. Episodes in their lives were acted by a capable cast of well known radio artists from this vicinity. These episodes, it is hoped, will serve as a means of divulging any possible heirs to the estates left by the men about whom the stories have been written.

The script was well written, and under the direction of Fritz Blocki, Chicago playwright and producer, made a good show. Fast-moving, well-dialogued and with excellent musical interludes the program proved most interesting. Peter Cavallo, Jr., headed the orchestra.

Skelly Oil stations have bulletins available to their customers who may want additional information.

The program originates in the Chicago studio of CBS every Monday from 6 to 6:30 P.M., C.S.T. C.

"Saturday Night Serenade"

CHICAGO, Oct. 17.—Musical entertainment of wide appeal is "Saturday Night Serenade" which is offered once a week over CBS by the Pet Milk Co. from 8:30 to 9:30 P.M., C.S.T.

An array of splendid artists, assisted by Gus Haenschen and his orchestra, provides a half hour of music that is delightful. Helen Marshall, soprano; Bill Perry, tenor, and the Serenaders do the song numbers and with great success.

Saturday's show opened with the orchestra and Serenaders doing "Love Is on the Air" and doing it very well. "Mine Alone" was the first solo by Miss Marshall and her rendition was extremely good. Outstanding among the orchestra numbers was the special arrangement of "Limehouse Blues."

The 14 Serenaders in singing "Moon over Shanghai" were at their best and scored heavily. Bill Perry with the Serenaders assisting was most pleasing with the song, "Just A Wearyin' For You." The orchestra next played "September In the Rain" and "Gee, But You're Swell." Miss Marshall and Perry both were impressive in their singing of "Remember Me." The final number utilized the entire cast with "Johnny One Note." It was well suited to the capabilities of the group and nicely done.

As a musical program of merit "Saturday Night Serenade" ranks among the best. C.

"News Through a Woman's Eyes"

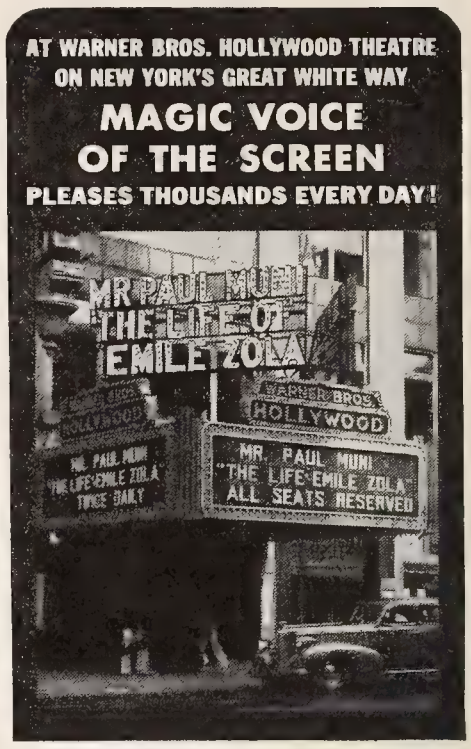
The feminine viewpoint revealed by Kathryn Cravens on this thrice-weekly spot should, no doubt, hold its listeners for another 52 weeks. The program has just been renewed. Miss Cravens talks rapidly and pointedly on such subjects as Columbus and the discovery of America, foreign elements in New York City, gas warfare and war in general, the American Legion and Elsie Janis. She drifts from one topic to another with ease and manages to endow them with interest. The period is heard over CBS Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 2 to 2:15 P. M. McManus, John & Adams is the agency. Pontiac Motors sponsors. P.

WHN Broadcasts of NBC Shows Affirmed

NBC and WHN on Saturday both issued statements acknowledging that a deal had been made whereby commercial programs carried by NBC will be duplicated on WHN.

The statements stressed that the deal did not make WHN a direct affiliation of NBC, but was merely a connecting service available to prospective advertisers.

The first NBC sponsor to take advantage of the deal is the Packard Motor Co., whose "Hollywood Mardi Gras," offered over the Red network Tuesdays from 9:30 to 10 P. M., will be heard simultaneously locally over WEAF and WHN, beginning tomorrow, and weekly thereafter. The M-G-M show, starting Nov. 4, unquestionably will be duplicated.



Packard will pay WHN the usual time rates, according to the station management.

U.A. Transfer To Be Decided In Talks Here

"Three or Four" Plans Up For Conferences

One of "three or four" plans for exercising the options by Samuel Goldwyn and Alexander Korda for the purchase of U.A. stock held by Charles Chaplin, Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks for $6,000,000 will be decided upon at conferences which will get under way here next week, it was learned yesterday with the arrival on the Queen Mary of David Rose, vice-president and financial adviser for Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., and E. H. Lever, secretary of Prudential Assurance Co., of England.

Although Rose and Lever would not discuss the deal, it was learned from sources close to them that one of the three deals provides for all-English financing and two other plans call for American financing. In one of the American plans is a provision whereby Mervyn LeRoy may participate, but to what extent, it could not be ascertained.

Prudential, which is the heaviest backer of London Films, may not

The taking of depositions was begun here yesterday in the anti-trust action brought in the U. S. District Court at Boston against major distributors, the Maine & New Hampshire and M. A. Shea circuits by Morse & Rothenberg, New England independent theatre operators. Indications are that the taking of depositions will continue throughout the week.

Gabriel L. Hess, attorney for the M.P.P.D.A., was questioned yesterday, and Louis Weinberg, in charge of London, Oct. 18.—Jack Cohn is negotiating with Max Shach to produce here for Columbia under a joint financing plan. Hollywood talent would be used. Four or more are contemplated as big pictures. Eight to 12 would be made at a lower negative cost for distribution in the United Kingdom only.

Allied Ready To Talk, Says Yamins, But—

Fall River, Oct. 18.—The Allied States board of directors would authorize its representatives to participate in a national exhibitor meeting to draft a trade practice program for presentation to distributors providing it was not asked to forego its legislative program for industry reform in the meantime, in the opinion of Nathan Yamins, Allied president.

Yamins' statement was made in reply to an offer by the I.T.O.A. of New York to call a national exhibitor meeting at its own expense if Allied and the M.P.T.O.A. would cooperate in the effort to form a united exhibitor front, both in drafting a trade practice program and in placing it before distributors. Le Maire's contract with Universal had a year and a half still to run.

Even Today

By RED KANN

THESE are difficult times. These are times when the expressed political opinion of the individual, emphasizing the right to free thinking, continues to pillory the industry in the dictator nations where free thinking is a mockery.

But by conduct established as reputable, there has been reason to believe these were no longer times when the bounds of decent expression would be exceeded in newspaper copy advertising a first run, or any other kind of run, on Broadway.

Tucked away in the amusement section of Sunday's New York Times, the Globe Theatre, in paid space, told of the approaching run of "Madame X."

"Which was she? A street walker or over sexed?" asked that copy which suggested the answer might be found at Harry Brandt's house beginning Saturday. This begins and concludes its own story. To amplify it beyond the context would serve to advance a discussion about which there is not now, and never has been, an issue—the matter of

UMPTO Group Confers With Agnew; Both Sides Optimistic

A settlement of the Philadelphia exhibitors' "buyers' strike" against Paramount is imminent and may be concluded this week, it was learned yesterday following a conference between Paramount home office officials and a committee of Philadelphia exhibitors.

No indication was given of the basis on which the settlement would be made, but it was learned that considerable progress had been achieved at yesterday's meeting and the attitude of the conferees at the close of the session was optimistic and friendly.

Wilby Due Today to Discuss 5-Year Pact

R. B. Wilby is expected in New York today from Atlanta to go over with Y. Frank Freeman the new five-year operating contract with Paramount for the Wilby-Kincey circuit. Indications are that the new long-term contract will be signed here this week.

The old operating agreement between Paramount and Wilby-Kincey expired last June 30. Negotiation of the new contract was begun at that time, but various circumstances prevented its signing. In the meantime, it has been revised to cover a five-year period instead of the one-year period for which the new contract was originally drawn.

Adolf Zukor Is Optimistic For Gains In Foreign Sales

By J. M. JERAULD

Adolph Zukor painted a rosy picture of European film prospects at a luncheon given yesterday in his honor at the Waldorf-Astoria. Conditions have improved so greatly in England and on the Continent during the seven years since his previous trip abroad that he expects Paramount to get from 33 1/3 to 40 per cent of its revenue from the foreign market, he said.

The contrast between present conditions and those he encountered the last time he was abroad was greatest in Budapest, he said. He spent 12 days there and was surprised to find heavy traffic, a general air of optimism and indications of good business.

In Vienna, he said, he conferred with Franz Lehar, the composer, and was hopeful that Lehar would come to this country and aid in production of "The Count of Luxembourg."

His review of conditions in Britain

"Bride Wore Red" Out Front With "Stage Door" in Keys

"The Bride Wore Red" was added to the list of top-notch grossers last week. It took the lead in Milwaukee, Oklahoma City and Washington and reached second place in Cincinnati.

"Stage Door" stepped out front in a big way at San Francisco. "Dead End" stirred up some excitement in Seattle. "The Prisoner of Zenda" was out front in Pittsburgh, and '100 Men and a Girl" kept up among the leaders. It was the best New Haven draw, second best in Minneapolis, and it made excellent showings in holdovers in other spots.

Business was a bit weak in San Francisco as a result of the terrific $23,000 rolled up by "Stage Door" at the Golden Gate. "100 Men and a Girl," on a dual with "Counsel for Crime," held up to $10,200 in its third week at the Orpheum. "The Bride Wore Red," dualled with "Wine, Women and Song," took $13,500, only $500 above normal, at the Paramount. "Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938" held up to $5,800 in a third week at the United Artists.

"High, Wide and Handsome" set the pace in a pickup at Omaha by getting $6,300 at the Omaha. "Lost Horizon" held up to $4,700 in its third week there.

A combination of "Back in Circulation" and Fred Waring at the Minneapolis Orpheum proved a sensation at $18,500, beating the strong $10,000 pull of "100 Men and a Girl" at the Century. These were the only strong grossers in the Twin Cities.

Houston felt the stimulus of a World Oil Exposition, but "The Prisoner of Zenda" with a take of $7,500, over par by $500, and "High, Wide and Handsome" with $8,000 at the Majestic, were the only two first runs to make much of a showing.

At Washington business was in the doldrums. The $17,000 gross of "The Bride Wore Red" at Loew's Palace was over normal by only $1,100. It was held a second week. "Souls at Sea" and "Double or Nothing" were the only other features to get into the money.

"Life Begins at College" led "100 Men and a Girl," "You Can't Have Everything" and "Varsity Show" at Cleveland. The $17,500 take on the Ritz film at Warners' Hippodrome was over normal by $5,500.

The Seattle showing of "Dead End" was sensational. The $9,000 gross in the Liberty was $4,000 over par. "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" and "Annapolis Salute" furnished the only important competition there.

At Pittsburgh the showing of "The Prisoner of Zenda" was outstanding because of stiff competition. "Zenda" reached $23,000 at the Penn, topping the previous showings of "Stella Dallas" and "Dead End," in spite of the fact that it had heavy competition from "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" at the Alvin, where the $11,000 take was $5,500 over normal.

Bartholomew Terms Are Finally Settled

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 18.—Superior Judge Celement Shinn today approved the new M-G-M contract of Freddie Bartholomew under which the boy receives $2,000 weekly for forty weeks of each year for two years. The studio has options for two additional years. An unusual contract angle cuts the boys' salary to $1,250 weekly for the last two years of the option period on the ground that the lad will be adolescent and his boxoffice draw may decrease.

The contract also provides for $3,000 weekly for Bartholomew if the studio exercises the contract clause calling for personal appearances. Personals are limited to six weeks in each forty-week period, however.

All that remains be settled in the litigation brought by Myllicent Bartholomew is how much William Neblett, her attorney, should get for his services. Neblett disclosed in court that Louis B. Mayer already paid him $10,000, but Neblett wants $15,000 more. Judge Shinn directed Neblett to make a showing on the added sum demanded and said the court would determine the legal fee.

Under the contract the aunt gets $100 weekly and if the boy travels she gets that sum plus reasonable expenses for herself.

Joe McConville and Rube Jackter returned from Chicago by air yesterday after attending the two-day regional sales meeting of Columbia at the Drake. The rest of the home office contingent came back by train.

McConville, Jackter and George Josephs will leave Friday for Atlanta where the second regional will be held Saturday and Sunday, probably at the Ainsley. The third session is slated for San Francisco in a few weeks.

Allied Ready To Talk, Says Yamins, But—

Yamins and Ed Kuykendall by Harry Brandt, I.T.O.A. president, on Oct. 9. No response has been received yet from the M.P.T.O.A.

Yamins' statement says in part: "Allied will lend its support to any plan to secure benefits for the independent exhibitors by the methods which you (Brandt) favor so long as it is not called upon to abandon its program for securing redress by other methods in case such a plan fails.

"My belief is," he said, "that if independent leaders can by informal conferences or by correspondence, with a minimum of publicity and politics, agree upon the measures which are necessary to the protection of the independent theatre owners, and a joint committee can be organized to canvass the possibilities of securing such measures without legislation, the Allied board will authorize its national officers to make the effort. It is my further belief, however, that the board will not hold its legislative program in abeyance during protracted negotiations in view of the possibility that the effort may end in frustration when it is too late to proceed with plans for legislative relief."

Allied to Hear Report

A report by Irving Dollinger, Louis Gold and Morris Marks, the committee which met with the I.O.TA. to discuss merging that organization with Allied of New Jersey, will highlight the meeting of the Jersey organization today at the Stacey-Trent, Trenton.

No date for another meeting of the committees has been set. The I.T.O.A. is slated to hold its regular meeting at the Astor tomorrow.

agreements not to sell to subsequent runs which fail to charge a specified minimum admission.

As the Dallas case was instituted by the Government, an appeal from the district court's decision would go directly to the U. S. Supreme Court, instead of to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals. The defendants have until Dec. 13 to move for an appeal and, although no final decision has been made yet, it is known that a majority of the defendant companies favor an appeal.

George V. Browne Dead

Shift Warner Managers

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 18.—Irving Hillman, former assistant at the Roger Sherman, has been named manager of Warners' Capitol, Danbury. I. Hatkoff has moved from the Capitol to the reopened Warners' Alhambra, Torrington. The assistant's post in New Haven is filled by Paul Hodgins, former chief usher.

Adolf Zukor Is Optimistic For Gains In Foreign Sales

was particularly hopeful. The British are conservative, he said, but they are not backward. Most of the troubles and problems of Europe are focussed there and the settlements are found.

"There is no war scare," he continued. "They are not afraid something untoward is to happen. They are going about their business. They have just passed through an unpleasant experience in production, but this is the experience with all new industries. They have to live down the mistakes, the enthusiasms and overconfidence of men who are taking up something new.

"It is needless for us to go over there and attempt to tell them how to do it. I doubt if we could do as well under the conditions.

"What we can do, however, is to help them make the best pictures possible by filling our quota requirements with pictures up to the Hollywood standard. We should cooperate to make the best pictures possible. We can't hope to make them all.

"The only way we can get our money back is to make the best pictures possible for the foreign market, and the same thing applies to the British industry. I am optimistic about the foreign market for our films and I am convinced the British will also take their place in the world market."

It was at this point that Zukor made his prediction that from 33 1/3 to 40 per cent of American film revenue would come from abroad. He leaves for Hollywood tonight accompanied by Chris Dunphy, newly named his assistant.

Present at yesterday's affair were high Paramount officials, including Barney Balaban, Stanton Griffis, Y. Frank Freeman and Austin G. Keough.

Para. Asks Review Of Credit Verdict

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—A Supreme Court review of a decision of the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals affirming a jury verdict giving Walton Hall Smith damages in the sum of $7,500 for breach of a screen credit clause of a contract with Paramount Prod. for the screen rights of the former's story, "Cruise to Nowhere," subsequently produced as "We're Not Dressing," has been asked by Paramount.

The contract provided that credit was to be given the author, and the company claimed that while the story had originally been purchased for use as a background for a musical picture, it had ultimately been discarded as too heavy and a new story substituted, and the author accordingly was not entitled to credit. At the trial the company produced six writers who had worked on the picture. They testified they had never read or heard of the author's story.

B. & D. Is Required To Post Court Bond

The British & Dominion Film Corp., Ltd., of London was ordered yesterday by N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Bernard L. Shientag to file a bond as security for costs in the $19,410 breach of contract suit brought by it against Wilson Collison and Hopwood Plays, Inc.

The plaintiff claims a breach of a contract made in 1932 under which it allegedly secured exclusive world rights to produce a picture based on Collison's play, "Getting Gertie's Garter." While exhibiting the picture in Australia a Frank O'Neil produced a prior contract and the plaintiff was required to settle with him for $15,000 damages and $4,410 as cost of the settlement.

The defendant has filed a general denial stating that the settlement was unnecessary. Justice Shientag ruled that the plaintiff as a foreign corporation must file a bond for costs. Trial has been set for January.

good taste and the need for it to perpetually play a part in the performance of this industry on all of its fronts.

Because it is obvious that M-G-M, the producer, would not lend countenance to such a transgression, the conclusion appears most patent that the theatre and its management take dubious honor for the circumstance. There are reasons to believe, and quickly, too, that a repetition will not be brooked.

"In all advertising and publicity issued by Exhibitor relating to said motion pictures," reads part of Clause 21 in Metro's exhibition contract, "Exhibitor shall adhere to the form of announcement contained in the advertising matter issued by Distributors." That is sufficient to make clear the procedure for the future. Yet, if it were not, those at Metro understand too well the peril to its merchandise and to the industry to stand for bad taste sensationalism in such an offensive and unwarranted form.

Century Examination Is Ordered by Court

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Charles Paletti yesterday ordered the Century Circuit, Inc., to submit to an examination before trial on Oct. 25 in connection with the "conspirary" suit brought by Rockbeach, Inc., against Century, Columbia Pictures Corp., Paramount Pictures Distributing Corp., Big-U Film Exchanges, Inc., RKO Distributing Corp. and the U. A. Corp.

Fred Schwartz, assistant treasurer of Century, was ordered to appear at the examination.

Rockbeach, owner of the Gem in Far Rockaway, is suing on the alleged ground that the major distributors and Century "conspired" to have pictures exhibited at Century's Central in Cedarhurst before exhibition at the Gem. A permanent injunction and damages are asked. Schwartz will be required to testify whether Century entered into the contract with the other defendants with knowledge of the plaintiff's rights. He will not be required to reveal the terms of Century's contract.

Poster Suit Detail Ordered

Justice Bernard L. Shientag, yesterday ordered the Berkshire Poster Co., Inc., to file a bill of particulars setting forth in detail the $2,500 breach of contract action against the B. F. Keith Corp. and the Greater New York Vaudeville Theatres Corp. Berkshire is suing for the alleged breach of a 1932 contract under which it is claimed it was entitled to one-third of the poster work of the 40 theatres in the RKO circuit in the metropolitan area.

Philadelphia "Strike" End Held in Sight

Segall and Abe Sablosky, Philadelphia exhibitor leaders.

Both company officials and members of the exhibitor committee declined to discuss the meeting, but MOTION PICTURE DAILY learned from official sources, nevertheless, that the company officials and the committee were agreed upon sufficient basic considerations at the close of yesterday's meeting to make possible a settlement by the end of the week.

The exhibitor committee will report back to the U.M.P.T.O. and nonmember exhibitors aligned with it in the "buyers' strike" today and further instructions to the committee from the exhibitor body may be forthcoming within a day or two. The committee was advised by the Paramount officials that another meeting would be set at any time the exhibitors requested one. Indications now are that the meeting, which is expected to bring about a formal agreement, will be held on Friday. The exhibitor committee plans to return to New York on that day, it was learned.

File Plan for Capitol

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 18.—A financial reorganization plan has been filed in Federal District Court here by the Capitol Investment Co., owners of the Capitol at Madison.

Under the plan, the first mortgage bonds totalling $417,500 would be replaced by new 10-year bonds at four per cent, payable semi-annually. Holders of second mortgage bonds, totalling $149,000, and general creditors, would receive two per cent interest each year, if earned.

The company owes an accumulated interest of $163,000 on bonds and loans.

Flash Previews

"Hold 'Em Navy"—A real good football story located at Annapolis. For what it lacks in cast names it makes up in human interest.

"Night Club Scandal"—In which the irrepressible reporter again injects himself into a murder case and, of course, solves it.

"The Lady Fights Back"—No profundity here, but the film's lightness makes it pleasant, engaging fare.

"Without Warning"—Mystery stuff, with Boris Karloff, sans frightening makeup. U. S. Army background.

These films will be reviewed in full in a coming issue of MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

Paternal Advice

Hollywood, Oct. 18. — Grover Jones, testifying today for Screen Playwrights, Inc., during the N.L.R.B. hearing requested by the Screen Writers' Guild, stated that he quit his $2,000 a week job at Paramount because his father told him he was underpaid. "You're only getting 40 times as much as you're worth," said the Pater, "in some other studio you might get 50 times your value."

N.L.R.B. Rules Out Coercion Instances

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—Despite the demands of Screen Playwrights, Inc., and producers' attorneys that he cite specific instances supporting his charge of producer coercion of Screen Writers' Guild members to quit the guild, Charles Brackett, acting president of the guild, today was upheld in his refusal to do so by Trial Examiner William R. Ringer in the National Labor Relations Board hearing in the guild petition for a collective bargaining agency election.

Brackett testified that many writers resigned from the guild last year under pressure from the producers, but declared that he could not name specific persons because most of the withdrawals came by phone.

M'Carthy Asks Deletion

Neil S. McCarthy, attorney for Screen Playwrights, moved to strike out the Brackett testimony on the grounds that it was impossible to present refuting testimony because no names had been mentioned, but Ringer denied the motions, stating that rules of evidence do not necessarily apply in Labor Board meetings. He was compelled to remonstrate with those in attendance at the hearing who demonstrated verbally at the Brackett testimony. Brackett declared that he earned $50,000 last year as a writer for Paramount.

The respondents lost a motion to strike out Brian Marlow's testimony that writers were under the jurisdiction of the producers in their studio jobs. This was an important point in the presentation of Leonard Janofsky, S.W.G. counsel, in his effort to show that writers are in the employe classification.

Pergola and Pitt of Pathe in Air Wreck

James Pergola and William Pitt, Pathe News cameramen, were among the passengers aboard the United Airlines' Mainlander which was forced down and believed wrecked yesterday near Knight, Utah. The men were on an assignment which called for transcontinental air travel scenes. They were en route to the coast.

Late yesterday the craft was sighted and a rescue party organized.

Pitt, a Columbia University graduate, was formerly news editor of Pathe News. He is 31 years old, unmarried, and lives in Queens. Pergola is a well known cameraman. Before joining Pathe in 1930 he worked for M-G-M, Paramount and Fox Movietone News. Pergola is married and has one child. He resides in the Bronx.

Local 306 Wins Move In Paradise Action

Local 306 gained a partial victory in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday in the first suit brought to enforce the 10-year contract made with the I.T.O.A. in January. Justice Samuel Rosenman signed a temporary injunction which requires Paradise Pictures Corp. owners of the Belmont, to employ only members of the union and to pay them $275 per week for the operation of the projection booth. The Paradise claims that it was not bound by the contract because it had resigned from the I.T.O.A. before January, but Justice Rosenman revealed that it was a member until March. At present Paradise is paying $200 a week for the booth. Ben Golden, arbitrator under the contract, made the award in favor of the union after a hearing in March. The order granting the temporary injunction requires the union to notice the case for trial before Oct. 25 and to post a $2,000 bond to cover the defendants' damages if a permanent injunction is not obtained.

League of Filmgoers Suggested by Nyman

LONDON, Oct. 18.—Kenneth Nyman, C.E.A. official, tonight suggested the formation of a Filmgoers' League, drawing upon the 20,000,000 regular patrons who attend British film theatres for the purpose of improving film standards and fighting the cost proposals in the impending Films Act.

The suggestion came in the form of a lecture at Golder's Green, when Nyman attacked the proposed quota on the ground it would reduce the number of films and make British films, British-American.

FCC Assigns Television's Frequencies

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—Permanent assignment of frequencies for television service, effective Oct. 13, 1938, were announced today by the F.C.C.

The television assignments were incorporated in orders assigning to the various services the channels between 10 and 300,000 kilocycles, on which subject lengthy hearings were held in June, 1936.

No changes are made in the present assignments of frequencies between 10 and 25,000 and 25,000 and 30,000 kilocycles, in which are included the broadcast band and film and short-wave broadcast frequencies, but the commission's orders, for the first time, make permanent provision for services in the ultra-high frequencies between 30 and 300,000 kilocycles.

The frequencies between 25 and 27,000 kilocycles are assigned to broadcast and Government use; between 27 and 28,000 kilocycles are assigned to broadcast and Government use, between 27 and 28,000 kilocycles to general communication and Government.

Television Areas Listed

In the ultra-high frequencies, geophysical and film services are assigned to the 33,540 and 35,540 kilocycle frequencies; broadcasting is given the frequencies between 41,020 and 43,980 kilocycles, 142,020 and 143,880 kilocycles and scattered frequencies; and television is given the frequencies between 44,000 and 56,000, 66,000 and 72,000, 78,000 and 90,000, 96,000 and 108,000, 156,000 and 168,000, 180,000 and 192,000, 204,000 and 216,000, 234,000 and 246,000, 258,000 and 270,000, and 282,000 and 294,000 kilocycles.

With respect to television, the commission pointed out, the assignment of frequencies is but one of many steps which the commission believes may be required before television can become a reliable service to the public. Some of these steps, it was commented, must be taken by the industry in the development of proper stands which, in turn, the commission must approve before television can technically be of great use to the public on any scale.

"At the proper time in the future," it was announced, "the policies which will govern the operation of television service in this country must be determined, particularly with reference to those matters which relate to the avoidance of monopolies. The commission must in the future prescribe such rules as will insure the utilization of television stations in a manner conforming to the public interest, convenience and necessity, particularly that phase which will provide television, transmission facilities as a medium of public self-expression by all creeds, classes and social-economic schools of thought.

Call Television Experimental

"The investigations and determinations of the commission justify the statement that there does not appear to be an immediate outlook for the recognition of television service on a commercial basis. The commission believes that the general public is entitled to this information for its own protection."

Until television reaches a point of stability, it was said, stations will be assigned to channels on an experimental basis with the same requirements as are now imposed.

Names Composers

CBS has commissioned a second Composers' Commission to write original music for broadcasting. The commission numbers six, and includes Quincy Porter, Robert R. Bennett, Leo Sowerby, Jerome Moriss, R. Nathaniel Dett and Vittorio Giannini.

Their compositions will be broadcast over CBS during the summer of 1938.

INRA, AFM Deadlock on Strike Issue

An I.N.R.A. committee and the International Council of the A. F. of M. were deadlocked last night as a result of their inability to find a compromise measure for the disputed Rule 10 in the trade agreement recently drawn by both bodies.

The stipulation in dispute obliges Federation musicians to go out on sympathy strikes thereby interfering with existing station contractual obligations which would have to be done should some affiliate be placed on the unfair list by the A. F. of M.

Other rules in dispute deal with an arbitration clause, and two weeks' notice to musicians instead of four. These points, it is believed, have been settled satisfactorily.

Canada Ad Time on Air Raised to 10%

MONTREAL, Oct. 18.—The time limit on radio advertising will be doubled next month, it was learned here today when the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. made public the new regulations which are to go into effect Nov. 1.

The former limit of five per cent on advertising portions of any program will be doubled to ten per cent with the corporation reserving the right to slice this in special cases or to order an offending station to change the nature of its advertising. In former years the five per cent limit could be raised with special permission.

The new regulations also forbid false or deceptive statements, bar all price advertisements and in all provinces except Quebec ban liquor advertisements which in effect includes those of beer and wine, too.

Programs for advertisement of foods or drugs must, by the new orders, submit their continuities to the corporation two weeks in advance of broadcast for censorship.

Acting on the assumption that "the message of broadcasting is received at the fireside, in the relative unguarded atmosphere of the home," the C. B. C. has clamped down upon all talk of birth control or venereal diseases, has forbidden the broadcast of all court trials and has made fortune-tellers taboo.

The regulations however have lent support to the rights of news-gathering, having included the following clause on the matter:

"Stations shall not transmit any news or information of any kind published in any newspaper or obtained, collected, collated or co-ordinated by any newspaper or association of newspapers or any news agency or service except the following:

"(a) Such news bulletins as are released regularly from the various bureaus of the Canadian Press for the express use of broadcasting stations in Canada.

"(b) Local news under arrangements to be made by each station individually with its local newspaper or newspapers, or such news as it may collect through its own employes.

"(c) News from sources other than those provided for in sub-sections (a) and (b) herein, shall not be broadcast unless the express permission in writing of the corporation through its general manager is secured in advance."

New Shows On the Air

"The Voice of Niagara"

"The Voice of Niagara," featuring the Carborundum Band under the direction of Edward D'Anna and with Francis G. Bowman again serving as writer, producer and narrator of the series, started its 12th year on the air Saturday night. Emanating from Niagara, the series derives its title by broadcasting each week for a few seconds the roar of the waters, conveyed by lowering a microphone over the brink of one of the falls.

The program retained the form it has had since it first went on the air. Consequently it is hard to say something about it that has not been said before. The D'Anna band is one of the finest of its type; its selections included Goldman's "On Parade," Goldmark's "Sakuntala Overture," excerpts from Herbert's "The Fortune Teller," and Sousa's "Temple Tigress."

Bowman, beginning where he left off last season and the seasons before that, again went into the history, lives and customs of the American Indians. Speculating on how the Indians arrived on the North American continent, he said it was his opinion that they marched here from Asia ages ago over a shelf of land now filled by the waters of the Bering Straits.

The Carborundum Co. sponsors the series Saturday nights from 7:30 to 8 P.M., over CBS. Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn is the agency.

U.A. Transfer To Be Decided In Talks Here

participate in financing the $6,000,000, it was stated by an authoritative source. Lever, however, is here to study the deal from all angles.

Goldwyn will arrive from the coast Thursday and Korda and Maurice Silverstone, the latter U. A. head in England, are due Oct. 26 on the Ile de France.

With the arrival of Korda and Silverstone, the first of a series of meetings will be held here in which Goldwyn, Lever and Rose will join.

Also from sources close to the situation, it was learned that as soon as a plan is determined upon for lifting the options, deals will then be sought with David O. Selznick and Walter Wanger. The nature of the proposals to be made the producers could not be learned as, it was stated, the offers would be contingent on the type of financing plan agreed upon by Goldwyn and Korda and their associates.

Financing Issue Denied

Reports that a stock issue would be floated in connection with the financing were denied. Again, it was emphasized that the money is all set, whether it is to come from England or American sources.

Lever and Rose refused to talk when reporters confronted them at the pier. It was admitted that an agreement had been made not to discuss the deal in any way. Lever, however, said that he has other business here as well as for London Films and that his stay is indefinite.

Asked various questions in connection with the U. A. deal, Lever answered: "It all depends." That also was his comment on a trip to the coast, and the length of his stay here.

Indications were yesterday that all details bearing on the raising of the $6,000,000 would be worked out in New York with a subsequent meeting to be held on the coast where official announcement is to be made at the annual U. A. producer-owners meeting next month.

Levinson in Answer To Aperture Critics

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 18.—Answering S. M. P. E. charges that the proposed aperture change in projection machines would cost the industry $1,000,000, Major Nathan Levinson, vice chairman of the Academy Research Council, today issued a statement saying that the recent research council memorandum on the change did not recommend increase in dimensions but merely proposed revision. The memo was issued with the idea of obtaining the viewpoint of the industry's technical authorities, Levinson said, and added, "Whether or not any revisions are adopted by the industry is of little moment at this time, but the research council is fulfilling its primary function of acting as a clearing house for the industry in carefully investigating all matters in connection with any technical change in advance of the making of the change. The council is not selling an aperture either larger or smaller than the present aperture, but is only concerned with getting the best possible aperture for use in the industry."

Levinson stated that stories indicating a million dollar cost have been grossly exaggerated. The council proposed revision. If approved, he said, adoption would be optional with each theatre. Only a small cost would be incurred in making the changeover.

The committee on standard aperture meets Tuesday for further study and reports on the plan by technical authorities and will make a recommendation to the council.

BOTH ARE TRANSPORTATION

BUT WHAT A DIFFERENCE

In comparison with modern SIMPLIFIED HIGH INTENSITY projection old style low intensity projection is as out-of-date as the horse and buggy. And as uneconomical.

The picture on the screen is all you have to sell. Clear, snappy black and white and good accurate color pictures can only be projected properly with high intensity light, such as audiences are accustomed to in the big theaters.

SIMPLIFIED HIGH INTENSITY projection is no longer a luxury. Almost any house can afford it. And every house can make it a business builder.

SIMPLIFIED—

1-SIMPLIFIED LAMP MECHANISM 2-FEWER LAMP PARTS

3-LOWER ARC CURRENT

Two to three times as much light on the screen as you get from low intensity, costs so little more than you are now paying, that one extra admission per show will cover it.

Cash Terms in U.A. Deal Now $4,500,000

Option Requirement Cut By $1,500,000

Cash required by Samuel Goldwyn and Alexander Korda, each one-fifth owners, to swing their deal for the fifty-fifty control of United Artists Dist. Corp. has dropped from the original $6,000,000 to $4,500,000, MOTION PICTURE DAILY learned last night.

In the face of a tightened money market this was viewed by those familiar with the inside on the situation last night as a factor of great importance in consummating the deal by which the option will be lifted.

Charles Chaplin is insisting upon $2,000,000 in cash for his one-fifth holdings in the company. Mary Pickford, owner of a second fifth, and Douglas Fairbanks owner of a third fifth, are understood to be amenable

British KRS Shuns Talks On New Quota

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The Kinematograph Renters' Society, representative body of distributors, has declined an invitation from the British Films Advancement Council to meet the members of Parliament associated with the Council in a discussion on the new Films Bill.

The invitation was to a committee room of the House of Commons. At separate times the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n and labor organizations have been invited to confer with the B. F. A. C. So far only labor has accepted.

The B. F. A. C. is the body led by Lord Strabolgi, with the general object of advocating the Isidore Ostrer quota policy, compelling American companies to spend, on British production, a set percentage of their takings in the British market. The Parliamentary section is now 86 strong.

Recent affiliations to the B. F. A. C. include a number of Empire and educational organizations, and the Incorporated Society of Authors, Playwrights and Musicians, which has a special screen-writers' section.

Seven Other Territories Affected; Agreement Expected Friday

The indicated settlement of the Philadelphia exhibitors' "buyers strike" against Paramount, if reached on Friday, as expected, will provide the basis for settlement of similar "buying strikes" against the company in the seven other territories in which such demonstrations are now in progress, it was reported in reliable quarters yesterday.

While Paramount officials could not be reached for comment on the report, it was learned that any settlement achieved for the Philadelphia territory will be available, as well, to other exhibitors on the same terms. No indication has been given yet of the basis of the settlement of the Philadelphia dispute, due to the fact that the preliminary understandings have not been formally ratified by the exhibitor faction and the company. However, it is known that a feature of any settlement which may be reached will be an agreement by both sides to abandon the litigation now under way in the Federal Court at Philadelphia.

Paramount was denied a temporary injunction against the exhibitors by the U. S. District Court at Philadelphia and appealed the decision to the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals, the decision of which is now being awaited.

The Philadelphia exhibitors' committee is due back in New York for

The matter is scheduled for consideration at next week's meeting of the council.

Since joining the company, she has appeared in "You Can't Have Everything" and "Ali Baba Goes to Town."

Sam Eckman Defends "A" Percentage Move

LONDON, Oct. 13.—Sam Eckman, Jr., making a personal reply to Arthur Dent's strictures, on behalf of Associated British Pictures, on the K.R.S. plan to impose percentage terms on all "A" films, vigorously protests the suggestion that what is aimed at by the K.R.S. is a system of controlling film prices on a monopoly basis.

Dent, says Eckman, is "talking through his hat" in suggesting that the K.R.S. proposes to set up a "cartel," based on the principle that exhibitors shall only deal with distributors in the ring.

The K.R.S. policy, says Eckman, is aimed at the over-long program, which he describes as a "menace," but even more at the program composed of two first features. "At least 95 per cent of the exhibitors of this country will hail this policy with emphatic affirmation," he says. Exhibitors playing the "two first feature" policy can only do so on flat rentals, he states. Hence the resolution that "A" films shall only be booked exclusively on a percentage basis.

Major Gale Also Criticises

Following the Eckman and Dent statements came one from Major A. J. Gale, who recently raised the question of excessive rentals in the C.E.A. Council. Major Gale disputes the K.R.S. claim that all that is aimed at in the famous resolution is to hit the long program.

This, says Gale, is just a "red herring." The real object of the K.R.S. is "to squeeze film rentals to an even higher level," and it is too late, he says, for the distributors' body to think they can split exhibitors by such tactics.

"For once," says Gale, "the K.R.S. has attempted to drive too far. . . . I have no doubt of the outcome if exhibitors for once will stand together." Gale sees the K.R.S. move as an attempt to place circuit and independent theatres in opposition, and urges C.E.A. members to get together on a price reduction campaign with the circuits.

Columbia Southern Men Meet Saturday

Allied Favors Move To Work with ITOA

TRENTON, Oct. 19.—The membership of Allied of New Jersey, in session at the Stacey Trent here today, acted favorably on a report by Irving Dollinger, Louis Gold and Morris Marks, the committee appointed to investigate the I.T.O.A.'s proposal of cooperation.

Committees of Allied and I.T.O.A. met at the Astor in New York last week. At the meeting, it was decided that if the memberships of both organizations approve plans to cooperate on mutual problems, each exhibitor unit will name five exhibitors to a special committee which will have the power of calling meetings for airing whatever topics arise for immediate disposal.

With the Jersey men endorsing the plan, the Allied group is awaiting approval by the I.T.O.A. body. The I.T.O.A. will meet at the Astor, New York, tomorrow, and act on a report by its committee.

As soon as the I.T.O.A. membership is in agreement on the plan, Allied will appoint five men to act on the joint committe of 10. It has not been decided whether Dollinger, Gold and Marks will be on the committee.

Other topics taken up today dealt with legislative matters and film buying with no action taken.

It was pointed out today that there will be no merger of the organization at the present time. The next Allied session will be held at the Lincoln, N. Y., Nov. 9.

AFL Starts a Drive Among Office Staffs

held tomorrow night at Manhattan Opera House.

Indicating that the move is directed against the C.I.O., which has been petitioning film employes to enlist in its organization for the past few months, the circular adds:

"We understand that our friendly enemies, the C.I.O., is also attempting to organize the office employes in your field. Our only answer to this is in the form of a question. Has the C.I.O. the moral right to organize workers in an industry where those workers' strength depends upon affiliated unions in the same industry and without which they have no backbone?

"The American Federation of Labor is completely entrenched in the film industry. Actors, musicians, electricians, carpenters, technicians, warehousement, motion picture operators and transportation workers are only a few of the different affiliated trades organized under the A. F. of L. The C.I.O. has absolutely no representation in the film industry and we will stand pat on that statement."

Last week, at the Denver convention of the A. F. of L., it was announced that the organization would extend its activities to the white collar field.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 19.—Racine's ordinance prohibiting marathon dances, walkathons, skatathons and similar endurance contests has been upheld by the State Supreme Court.

Copyright Attorneys Are Awarded $4,000

The sum of $4,000 was awarded to attorneys for the defendants in the copyright infringement suit brought by George A. Gogniat in the U. S. District Court yesterday by Judge Vincent L. Leibell. Gogniat, as president of the United Music Co., sued Universal, Gem Pictures Corp., Loew's Inc., Consolidated Amusement Enterprises, Inc., Don Malkanes, Morris S. Tropp, George Cochrane, Universal Film Exchange, Big-U Film Exchange, the 981 8th Ave. Corp. and the Woodside Operating Corp. The suit was dismissed on Sept. 11.

Infringement was alleged on three songs, "Don Rigo," "Vers L'Horizon" and "Valse Mutine" in Universal's "Goofeytown Newsreel." Attorneys who will share in the award are Willard S. McKay, Adolph Schimel, Howard M. Antevil, Joseph W. McKee and Julian T. Abeles. They had asked for $25,000.

Gillis Gets $1,500 More

An additional allowance for attorney's fees was made yesterday by U. S. District Court Judge William Bondy in the Flatbush Ave. & Nevins St. Corp. reorganization. J. F. Gillis, attorney for a group of bondholders, was awarded an additional $1,500 over $13,500 previously received for extra work. Gillis asked $4,500 additional. The corporation formerly owned the Fox Brooklyn Theatre and office building.

RKO Decides to Date LaGuardia Time Reel dates have been set yet, the decision would bring the picture to the neighborhood screens during the week preceding the municipal election.

The picture has played one week at the Music Hall and opens tomorrow at the Embassy, the only actual play dates given the picture thus far.

RKO deliberated over the city bookings for many days, wary of being accused of political partisanship in the event the picture was played prior to election. Late last week company officials made a preliminary decision to refrain from dating in the film on the Mayors public career until after Nov. 2. The matter was reconsidered when various public elements began inquiring into the whereabouts of the production.

Directors' Hearing By NLRB Is Asked

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—The hope of Regional Labor Board officials for a consent election on the Screen Directors Guild petition to be determined as the collective bargaining agency for directors, assistants and unit managers was blasted today when attorneys for the producers flatly refused to make any concession and asked that the petition go through the regular hearing channels. William J. Walsh, special board attorney, and Dr. Towne Nylander, regional director, conferred with Walter Tuller, attorney for Paramount; Alfred Wright, for 20th Century-Fox; Milton Schwartz, for M-G-M, and others to see if the election could be held without a hearing or a board order but they were refused.

Jones Resumes Testimony

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—Grover Jones, first president of Screen Playwrights, Inc., today resumed the stand in the Regional Labor Board hearing of the Screen Writers' Guild petition for a writers' collective bargaining agency election, giving further humorous delineations of his work in the industry, declaring that M-G-M paid him $2,000 weekly to pep up jaded writers in conferences by telling them funny stories. He also told of a seven-months' poker game at Paramount, half of the stakes of which went to the underpaid secretaries of writers. Jones said he quit the S. W. G. because of alleged communistic tendencies of some of its leaders.

Howard Emmett Rogers, also one of the playwrights' organizers, told of asserted radical tendencies. Virginia Van Upp, another member, also testified.

Loew's to Open Two In Bronx Tomorrow

The two new additions now give the major circuit 70 units in the local area. Two weekly changes will be the policy in both theatres.

Philadelphia "Strike" Pact Will Be Model

further conferences with Paramount officials on Friday. An agrement on a settlement of the buyers' "strike" is regarded as highly probable at that time on the basis of the progress made at the first meeting here on Monday. On the exhibitor committee are Lewen Pizor, Charles Segall and Abe Sablosky. As the "strike" originated in the Philadelphia area, a settlement of the dispute there is regarded as likely to encourage similar settlements in the other disturbed territories, which include Minneapolis, Los Angeles, Ohio, Milwaukee, Boston and Indiana.

A settlement, if reached, is also regarded as having a more or less direct effect on the future trade relations of all distributors and exhibitors, it is pointed out in responsible industry quarters.

Wilby In on New Pact

R. B. Wilby of the Wilby-Kincey Circuit arrived in New York yesterday from Atlanta for conferences with Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount theatre head, on a new five-year operating deal with the company for the southeastern circuit. Indications are that the deal will be closed this week.

Allvine Play Is Set

Glendon Allvine signed a contract yesterday for the staging of "Knights of Songs," described as a romance in 11 scenes, of which he is the author. It will be produced on the main stage of the Pasadena Playhouse in January by Gilmor Brown.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Night Club Scandal"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—More a revealed mystery than it is a scandal, "Night Club Scandal" may be accepted as a better-than-average program sustaining attraction. The cast contains many well-known, it not actually ace, names, and features a crowd of players who know how to act, tossing the ball of the plot around in the manner of a well-trained basketball team. Those mainly concerned are John Barrymore, Lynne Overman, Charles Bickford, Harvey Stephenson, J. Carroll Naish, Evelyn Brent, Elizabeth Patterson, Cecil Cunningham, all of whom have been around a long time, and a newcomer, Louise Campbell.

The plot is not new, but adapted by Lillie Hayward from a play by Daniel N. Rubin and directed by Ralph Murphy, it is interesting and attention-holding. First, it shows how a murderer commits the perfect crime and, by means of an airtight alibi, makes his implication in the killing almost impossible. Then it shows how a police captain, by means of circumstantial evidence, forces the conviction of an innocent, although involved suspect. Finally, it shows how a glib reporter blasts the theories of circumstantial evidence, shatters the killer's alibi and secures freedom for the condemned man.

Essentially melodramatic, the film includes an enjoyable comedy contrast and is not without the suggestion of a romantic love story. This takes a surprise twist which adds to the yarn's human interest character and accents its drama and comedy. "Night Club Scandal" looks like a strong attraction for the secondary theatres where the sophisticates do not dominate the patronage.

Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

"Hold 'Em Navy"

(Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 19.—Here's a combined midshipman and football story that is entertainment. Freshly different from earlier features which have used the same premise, it balances its Annapolis glamour, comedy, romance, football excitement and human interest in novel style. Had the film been given the benefit of a little more expensive production and had a few ace names been included, it would stack up as a strong A. As it is, it is full of the material audiences like to see.

Probably its main exploitation asset is the fact that the hero doesn't win the football game. When the winning touchdown is pushed over in the crucial moment, he's doing guard duty, meanwhile arguing with the girl in the case as he walks his post and tries to listen to the radio.

The plot is built around the romantic rivalry of two middies, Lew Ayres and John Howard, for Mary Carlisle's favor. When Ayres goes A.W.O.L. while courting Mary, Howard, in line of duty, reports him and he is dropped from the plebe eleven. A year passes, during which time the action pictures the fanfare of Academy life and Ayres makes considerable romantic progress. Then Mary tricks Howard into being A.W.O.L., but Ayres saves him from discipline so that Howard can play in the Army-Navy game. When Howard wins it, the contrasting action is as previously described.

The original screenplay by Erwin Gelsey and Lloyd Corrigan is showmanship. Their material is fresh and intriguing and Director Kurt Neumann has brought it up on the screen so that it means something. The film can be used in connection with any other feature; in many cases it may be that it will steal the show.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Warner Stockholders To Meet December 31

the annual directors' meeting here has not been set, but will be held soon after the stockholders' session.

Albert Warner, vice-president, presided in the absence of his brother, Harry, who is on the coast. The annual financial report is due the middle of next month.

Jerome J. Cohen, who deals in motion picture insurance, is en route to Los Angeles to open a coast office.

have to offer. I may not stay with the company. It all depends on what the directors have to say."

LeRoy declared that all plans whereby he was to participate in the financing with Samuel Goldwyn and Alexander Korda in the purchase of U. A. stock from Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford are definitely off. "It's been on and off so much, it's now definitely off," he said.

The producer denied that he would line up with David O. Selznick, Walter Wanger and Frank Capra in the formation of a new producing company. He insisted that the reason he is in town was because the Warner home office called him east to talk over a new deal.

On the same train were Leo McCarey and Alice Faye, the former to discuss a deal with Selznick and the latter to recuperate from a recent illness.

Hearing Is Set on Payments to Para.

& Co., Paramount bankers prior to the company's reorganization, will pay sums aggregating more than $700,000. Approximately one-half of the defendants in the action are included in this group. Other large settlement payments include those of Sidney R. Kent, $250,000; Sam Katz, $200,000; Adolph and Eugene Zukor, $500,000, to be paid over a period of 10 years; Jules E. Brulatour, $100,000; Frank A. Bailey, $100,000; John D. Hertz, $125,000; the estate of Emil Shauer, $50,000, and Jesse L. Lasky, $27,500. Lesser amounts are also possible from additional defendants.

The actions were brought by the Paramount trustees in 1935 and sought the recovery of allegedly excessive salaries paid to some defendants, and the recovery of sums alleged to have been made by other defendants through participations in a Paramount employes' stock purchase plan, and the recovery of sums alleged to have been lost by the company through the repurchase of its stock which had been issued for expansion purposes at prices in excess of the market prevailing at the time of redemption.

The settlement amounts will be paid into the Paramount treasury, Arthur A. Ballantine, of counsel to the Paramount trustee, said yesterday, verifying information published earlier by MOTION PICTURE DAILY.

Union Contract Argument Up

Supreme Court Justice Edgar J. Lauer will hear a motion today to dismiss the second amended complaint of the Gotham Amusement Corp., the H. M. Amusement Corp., the La Salle Amusement Corp., the Hancock Theatre Corp., the B. B. C. Amusement Corp., the Har-Mar Amusement Corp. and the Marvin Amusement Corp. against Local 306, Allied M. P. Operators Union and the I.T.O.A.

The defendants contend that the complaint failed to state a cause of action. Two previous complaints have been dismissed. The plaintiffs are independent theatre owners who are suing to enjoin the enforcement of the contract made on Jan. 30 between the I.T.O.A. and the unions.

Fanny Brice to Ask Suit End

Fanny Brice will ask Justice Edgar J. Lauer in the N. Y. Supreme Court today to dismiss the complaint in the $14,250 action for agent's commission brought against her by Edgar Allen. Miss Brice contends that the complaint fails to set forth a cause of action. Allen is suing for 10 per cent of the $142,500 which he claims Miss Brice received for her appearance in the "Ziegfeld Follies." He claims that he obtained the contract which paid her eight per cent of the weekly gross receipts with a minimum guarantee of $2,500 weekly.

New Use Seen For the High Frequencies

WASHINGTON, Oct. 19.—Eventual abandonment of the present broadcasting band in favor of the ultra-high frequencies was foreseen here today by broadcasting interests studying the new allocations issued yesterday by the F. C. C.

In that allocation, 75 channels, each 40 kilocycles wide, four times the present width, are assigned to broadcasting between 41,020 and 43,980 kilocycles, and another 79 channels, 25 kilocycles wide, are available between 25,025 and 26,975 kilocycles, as they can be opened up under certain provisions of the Madrid Convention.

These areas, as yet, are practically unexplored, but are believed to offer room for several times as many stations as can now be accommodated on the 550-1,570 kilocycles broadcasting band.

Commission Heads Reticent

While officials of the commission refuse to comment upon the high frequency broadcast assignments, it is known that for some time both the industry and the Commission have been dissatisfied with the limitations of the present broadcasting band and are leaning to the belief that the ultra-high frequencies offer opportunities now unavailable for broadcasting expansion.

Members of the broadcasting industry looking to the future believe that within 10 years broadcasting stations will be established in the upper spectrum and that it is only a matter of time before all broadcasting will be relocated.

Renew "Six Star Revue"

"Six Star Revue," the three-hour daily sports and musical show on WMCA sponsored by General Mills, Inc., during the baseball season, has been renewed for 26 weeks, carrying it over into the fall and winter season. The show features Lee Grant's orchestra, Helen Young and Jerry Baker, soloists; Kay and Buddy Arnold, song and piano team; Powell Clark, film reviewer, and Bob Carter, Garnet Marks, Joe O'Brien, announcers. Don Kerr and Joe Tobin are the em cees.

McGill Students Damage CHLP

MONTREAL, Oct. 19.—Rioting students of McGill University, jubilant after a football victory, "crashed" the studios of CHLP over the weekend, causing damage amounting to over $2,000.

The station, operated by LaPatrie, has its offices in the arcade of the Sun Life Bldg., and it was through this passage that a mob of students, some 200 strong, "paraded."

Radie Harris for WOR

Radie Harris, film commentator, will offer a program of Hollywood chatter and presentation of guest stars over WOR beginning Thursday, Nov. 11, from 6:45 to 7:00 and weekly thereafter at the same hour. The commentator formerly was heard over WHN.

New Shows on the Air

Philadelphia Orchestra

The orchestral series sponsored by the Association of Banks which features the Philadelphia Orchestra got off to a brilliant start Monday eveing with Eugene Ormandy on the dais and Maria Jeritza as the guest vocalist.

The new series promises to be the outstanding serious music program on the air this season, the others of its type preferring to mix the modern with the classic. Adhering to the excellent standard it set for itself the opening night, the bank series should win for itself not only critical esteem but a great audience of listeners.

The overture of the first concert was Wagner's "Die Meistersinger." Offered successively thereafter were Debussy's "Clair de Lune," waltzes from "Der Rosenkavalier" and Berlioz's "Rakoczy March." Jeritza's numbers included "Adieu Forets," "Widmung" and "Caecilie." Dr. Neil Carothers, director of the College of Business Administration at Lehigh University, discussed economics briefly during intermission. His discussions will be a weekly feature of the series.

The Philadelphia Orchestra broadcasts Mondays from 9 to 10 P. M. on the NBC-Blue. The Wessel Co. of Chicago sponsors for the Association of Banks. BANNER

"Behind Prison Bars"

This is an interesting show, marred by the inevitable injection of the "commercials" and a tendency toward preachment in the unfoldment.

In the question-and-answer manner a lapel mike picking up queries of the studio audience, Warden Lawes of Sing Sing Prison gives his analysis of what induces crime-environment, indifferent opportunity and the general lack of proper consciousness on the part of the public to the less fortunate of its citizenry.

As he narrates a case in point, the actual story of two boys and how unwittingly they were dragged into the tentacles of the underworld and salvaged in the nick of time was unfolded Monday evening when this series on behalf of Sloan's Liniment hit the NBC blue network on the initial shot under its new monicker.

There is also a "Can You Solve a Crime?" booklet available to all those interested by mailing to the sponsor the usual box top. The plug line—"End Your Groans with Sloan's"—is sadly lacking in ingenuity. While the "commercials" were used sparsely, their timing was not especially fortunate and served to mar the flow of the program.

"Behind Prison Bars" will be heard each Monday for 20 weeks from 10 to 10:30 P. M. Cecil, Warwick and Legler, the agency. Ka.

"Lloyd Pantages Covers Holywood"

"Lloyd Pantages Covers Hollywood" for New Rav machineless permanents and Dana Rav cosmetics via the gossip route. His items are singularly unimportant and are designed apparently for the sole purpose of providing over-the-fence fodder for the women who paint and powder. Which means a lot of women, of course.

Thus: Carole Lombard and Clark Gable still are "that way" about each other, according to Pantages. Alice Faye, now enroute to New York, will spend all her time in night clubs because that is the only way she can completely relax. Also, that the invitation to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor to spend some time at Clarence Brown's ranch, extended by Brown and George Raft, was nothing but a publicity stunt. Not really? Miriam Hopkins is feuding with her director. Robert Stone, a singer under contract to a studio, was released from his contract, but was re-signed by the same studio as a "find" when he was heard singing at a night club.

Pantages, albeit the lightness of his material, has an enjoyable style of delivery and should get across with his audience. He should slow down his pace, however. He spoke too fast on the opening broadcast.

"Lloyd Pantages Covers Hollywood" is presented over CBS Sundays from 1:45 to 2 P. M., under the sponsorship of the company noted above. Milton Weinberg agency of Los Angeles handles the account.

Still a Tie

Emulating the example of General Grant who said, "I will fight it out along this line if it takes all summer," the I.R.N.A. and the A.F.M. still were deadlocked at midnight last night in their efforts to come to terms on a trade agreement. They will take up the cudgels again today.

"Exits and Entrances"

In purpose, execution and effect this program is excellent. It is offered by the National Education Ass'n over CBS every Monday from 2:30 to 3 P.M. as part of The American School of the Air.

The first broadcast of the new series dealt with the current war problem, European affairs and American reactions to these questions. The attitude of the typical family gathering on the Sino-Japanese trouble was sounded out together with a simple and clear definition of the Nine Power Treaty, the recent machinations at Geneva and eventualities. The material was logically and sanely worked out. Shepherd Stone, a New York Times associate, was heard in a lucid analysis of the present European state of affairs, speaking from Paris where he arrived yesterday in the course of a tour of important continental centers.

The comment on current situations is enlightening and should find a wide audience in students and in the home. P.

Frisco Stations Give Time

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 19.—Bay area stations are contributing time for the October Electric Appliance Society campaign, intended to stimulate the sale of new and high fidelity radios. KSFO has been named to write, produce and originate a series of dramas for the campaign.

Report Mayor Wilson Will Protest to FCC

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19.—Mayor S. Davis Wilson, it is reported, has gone to Washington to place with the F.C.C. a complaint against KYW, charging that the station refused to accept a contract for a commercial talk on the city budget, scheduled to be broadcast by Wilson, Oct. 29. KYW refused to accept Wilson's talk on the grounds that it was a political talk and that Wilson was not a representative or a candidate of a political party. Wilson has always declared himself to be nonpartisan. KYW refused the talk on the grounds that it was against station policy.

Leslie Joyce, manager of the station, in a statement today, stressed the desire of KYW to remain impartial. He said the station would not sell time, but would grant it to the mayor and offered free time after Nov. 2, Election Day, to present his proposed talk on the city budget. Joyce said action on the budget was not due until Dec. 15 and added it seemed to him that a leeway of six weeks would be adequate time in which the mayor might present his address.

Eggleston to WFIL New Chicago Office

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19. — Stuart Eggleston has been appointed to head WFIL's new Chicago office. Eggleston was western manager for CBS from 1928 to 1932. For the past four years he has conducted his own company, building commercial programs for agencies and national advertisers.

WFIL's decision to open a western office is based on the station's success with a similar venture in New York. The New York City office was opened several months ago and a week ago WFIL made public a sales report for September, showing time placements of $194,000, a 476 per cent increase over any previous month in the station's history. Much of this sales volume was credited to the co-ordinating, contact, and on-the-spot activities of the New York office.

Seymour Case Goes to NLRB

CINCINNATI, Oct. 19.—A formal complaint charging CBS and its locally owned station, WKRC, with having discharged William Seymour, news writer, for alleged union activity, is being prepared by the N.L.R.B., Philip G. Phillips is regional director.

The action is necessitated by the company's failure to reply to his letler regarding the complaint filed by the A.F.R.A., an Actors' Equity affiliate, Phillips said. Officials of WKRC have denied Seymour was dismissed for the cause ascribed.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 11
(20th Century-Fox)

From a comparatively dull weekend of pictorial news events the makeup of this reel manages to provide a varied bill of fare which sustains a degree of interest.

Opening with shots of General Pershing unveiling a war memorial at Chateau Thierry, the scene shifts to London where Hore-Belisha is seen trying out anti-aircraft equipment in a recruiting drive. The French cruiser Diderot gets itself dismantled for the camera at Dunkirk to make scrap metal for new warships. At Salt Lake, Capt. George Eyeston races his car on Bonneville Flats. Dogs are auctioned off in Fredericksburg, Va.

The Names in the News sequence takes proper care of the Duke of Windsor and his Duchess during their visit to Berlin, the Archduke Franz Josef, his wife and Annabella arriving on the Normandie and glimpses of ex-King Alfonso of Spain and Mussolini, the former in Switzerland and the latter in a new hat. Lew Lehr interviews turkeys, very amusingly. A new army bomber does its stuff for aviation. Ed Thorgersen takes care of the tail end of the reel with effective enough comment on last weekend's football games where fumbles seemed to be the order of the day.

"News of the Day"
Vol. 9, No. 209
(M-G-M)

There is nothing particularly outstanding in this issue. The pictorial presentation of news that is rather dated is good. Football sequences provide the excitement.

The monument to the war dead at Chateau Thierry is the lead. The Snapshots division shows a dog auction in Fredericksburg, Va.; the National Guard at Pawtucket keeping the Narragansett racetrack closed, the comic-opera air surrounding the retiring of an Army mule at Fort Totten, the Duke and Duchess of Windsor in Berlin; this also has a number of clever candid shots of the Duke becoming bored with a concert by a labor front orchestra. The snapshots continues with scenes of Archduke Franz Josef, grandson of the Austrian emperor, arriving on the Normandie and Il Duce's men digging furiously in Rome to construct a new thoroughfare while The Boss looks on. The football shots show the best plays of the Yale-Army, Fordham-Pitt and Northwestern-Purdue games.

Paramount News

(Paramount)

It seems to have been an off week for live camera material. The Duke and Duchess of Windsor are shown continuing their study of German industrial plants and housing, but the Duchess seems to avoid facing the camera.

The China war scenes are not outstanding, in spite of Gabriel Heatter's efforts to make them seem dramatic. The warfare between Governor Quinn of Rhode Island and officials of the Narragansett Racetrack is illustrated by shots of the Governor leaving the State House and of National Guardsmen around the track with machine guns. The Governor's so-called "insurrection" is pretty dull pictorially.

One of the live clips with pictorial and human interest value is the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem shown with Arab followers and of British soldiers outside the walls of the ancient city searching pedestrians for arms.

Shots of three football games are included—Pittsburgh vs. Fordham, Yale vs. Army, and Northwestern vs. Purdue. Some of the plays are exciting, and Bill Slater's comment is top notch.

Running time, 10 minutes. J.

Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 26
(RKO)

Varied in content, this is a good, fast-moving release. There are seven subjects, three of which are topical, three are in feature vein and the seventh is some good action footage on several of the leading intersectional football games of last weekend.

The release leads off with the Rhode Island controversy which resulted in the closing of the Narragansett racetrack by National Guard on Monday. The ship news cameraman catches Archduke Franz Josef, his wife; Herbert Wilcox and Anna Neagle on their arrival in New York on the Normandie. From Paris come shots of the French steel and motor factories humming with the activity of their largest output in years and the opening of the French automobile show by President Le Brun. Scenes of the mine disaster near Birmingham which took 34 lives at the beginning of the week; a try-out of the world's largest bombing plane at Seattle, built for the Army Air Corps, the 210th anniversary of the Fredericksburg, Va., dog auction, and the football shots complete the reel. The Michigan-Minnesota and Tulane-Colgate games will be included everywhere except in New York and Pittsburgh. The Fordham-Pitt game runs in the releases for those two cities.

Running time, 9 minutes. K.

Three pigskin games, Yale downing Army at New Haven, Pitt and Fordham battling it out for a scoreless game here and Carnegie Tech toppling Notre Dame at Pittsburgh, give this release a lot of pep. The games almost take up half the footage and they stand out above the run-of-the-mill series of clips which round out the reel.

The destruction caused by Japanese bombs at Canton is vividly pictured. Universal claims an exclusive on this with Cameraman Alley given credit for the job. The desolate sight of the Narragansett race track, closed because of the Governor's orders, the taking off of the world's largest air bomber at Seattle, a view of St. Peter's, Rome, being cleared and repaved with Il Duce inspecting the work and the latest in new automobile designs at the Paris show are routine items.

to the idea of accepting cash for five-eighths each of their holdings, or $1,-$250,000 apiece, and the remaining three-eighths each, or $750,000 apiece in new stock to be issued by the company, if and when the transaction is closed.

The position of David O. Sleznick continues to be undetermined. Persistent reports insist he has been discussing a distributing deal with Paramount, although this by no means is construable as indicating he will not continue with United Artists. The general consensus of reliable opinion agrees that Selznick, at this time at least, is not keen about a renewal with U. A. if control of the company passes to Goldwyn and Korda.

Goldwyn Uncommunicative

CHICAGO, Oct. 19.—Samuel Goldwyn, en route east, refused to say anything about the prospective sale of United Artists today. He said he had "nothing to say and wouldn't say it until he reached New York."

Giveaway End Favored, But Method Snags

No Piecemeal Plan, Says Blumberg to Brandt

Leading independent and affiliated circuit operators in the metropolitan area appeared to be in agreement yesterday as to the merits of the I. T. O. A.'s objective of eliminating games and giveaways in Greater New York theatres by Dec. 1, but seemed, at the same time, miles apart as to the procedure which should be followed.

Most independent circuits declared yesterday that the first move in the campaign of elimination would be made in the Flatbush section some time next week with all theatre operators participating. Spokesmen for the I. T. O. A., following the organization's membership meeting yesterday, not only declared that such was the case as far as independents are concerned, but included Loew's and RKO among those endorsing this procedure. They added that the plan, thereafter, was to pursue the elimination campaign by neighborhoods, with either Washington Heights or the Bronx to follow

FWC Bankrupt Case Reopens Wednesday

Los Angeles, Oct. 20.—Another action seeking to have the Fox West Coast bankruptcy set aside on grounds of fraud will be filed in Superior Court here next Wednesday by William Neblett, attorney representing T. L. Tally and L. L. Bard.

In the original suit by Tally the lower courts ruled against the petitioners and the decision was upheld when the U. S. Supreme Court on Oct. 11 denied a rehearing of the case. Neblett today stated that the original Federal Court litigation failed because jurisdiction was denied and that he will now try the state courts in an effort to attain his ends.

Minnesota's Chain Tax Ruled Invalid

St. Paul, Oct. 20.—Minnesota's tax on the grosses of chain stores has been declared unconstitutional by Judge R. D. O'Brien of the Remsey County District Court. The state has been ordered to refund $125,000 to the National Tea Co. and Hahn Department Stores.

The decision does not affect the state's graduated license tax on the number of stores operated.

Production Levels Hold; 42 in Work

Hollywood, Oct. 20.—Productions in work last week totalled 42, one more than the previous week, as nine new features started and eight finished shooting. Twenty-one are in final stages of preparation, and 72 are being edited.

The starts were: Columbia, "Murder in Swingtime;" M-G-M, "A Matter of Pride" and "Everybody Sing;" Monogram, "County Fair" and "Boy of the Streets;" Paramount, "They Knew What Happened" and "The Badge of Policeman O'Roon;" Republic, "Three

Korda Bound Here; Has Option Money

London, Oct. 20.—Alexander Korda sailed for New York today aboard the Ile de France.

Wardour St. credits widespread reports that his share of the money required to lift the U. A. option jointly held with Samuel Goldwyn has been pledged by the Prudential Assurance Co.

Under terms arranged for the lifting of the U. A. option, as detailed yesterday in Motion Picture Daily, cash requirements have been cut from $6,000,000 to $4,500,000. Equal purchase participation by Goldwyn and Korda places their requirement at $2,250,000 each.

Goldwyn Silent on Status of UA Deal

Samuel Goldwyn arrived in New York from Hollywood yesterday admittedly in connection with the option deal on the U. A. stock held by Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin and Douglas Fairbanks, but completely silent about its status pending the arrival here of Alexander Korda.

"Mr. Korda is my partner in this deal," said Goldwyn yesterday. "I, therefore, feel that to discuss any phases of it without first consulting with him would be undignified and discourteous."

$2,150,000 Is Figure—Hearing Nov. 3

The Paramount trustee's petition for authorization to settle two recovery suits against former officers, directors and associates of the company for $2,150,000 in cash and notes was made public yesterday and set for hearing before Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe on Nov. 3.

If the court's approval of the settlement is granted as a result of that hearing, the two recovery actions of the Paramount reorganization trustee, which are now pending in state Supreme Court here, will be withdrawn, the closing of the estates of a number of deceased directors named as defendants in the actions will be made possible, Paramount's treasury will be enriched by the amount of the settlement, less legal fees and contingent considerations, and the formal discharge of the company's reorganization trustee, Charles D. Hilles, will ensue. Hilles was continued in that post by special direction of the Fed-

London, Oct. 20.—England's large circuits may align themselves on the side of the C. E. A. in the exhibitor association's fight against the new K.R.S. (distributor) policy of percentage bookings only on "A" product. The K.R.S. plan has aroused a storm of protest in theatre ranks here.

John Maxwell of A.B.P., Arthur Jarratt of G.B. Theatres and Oscar Deutsch of the Odeon Circuit on Tuesday conferred with C. P. Metcalfe, Ken Nyman and T. H. Fligelstone, C. E. A. officials, on a plan of procedure.

Jones Explains About Film Business to the NLRB Board

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.—And they learned about the film business from Grover Jones. The "they" in this instance is the National Labor Relations Board representatives now holding hearings on the petition of the Screen Writers' Guild to be named sole bargaining agency for writers.

Jones was called by the Screen Playwrights, Inc., to prove writers weren't just working men needing a bargaining agency—other than the playwrights, of course.

Nobody knows a thing about it, Jones testified, but the man who puts up the best bluff gets at least $3,500 a week. He admitted that was his salary.

"I know what I'm talking about, but most of the time I don't," he testified.

"A gag man," he said, "is a fellow who sits on a set, disliked by everybody, and tells the director it would be funny if Gary Cooper got his coat tails caught in something on his way out."

Has An Ambition

"I'm pretty nearly dying to do a picture in which they all wallow in the mud, but I can't afford it. It's my art."

He testified he once received $2,000 a week from M-G-M to sooth the ruffled temperaments of writers who couldn't concentrate on their work.

When he was assigned to write the story for "Lives of a Bengal Lancer," he testified, he didn't know how to start because he didn't know anything about India. He was working with William Slavens McNutt. McNutt told him it was just a western laid in India, and they got off to a flying start.

"So we wrote the script," he went on, "but it looked too easy and they didn't want to do it. It was three or four years later before they did."

In the meantime some razorbacks imported from Arkansas had grown into a flock—or a herd.

"And when they finally started," Jones testified, "they said, 'Now we got to get some boars'."

Among other writers called to testify today were Howard Emmett Rogers, Patterson McNutt and James McGuiness. Their statements sought to prove that writers are creative workers rather than mere employes.

Had It a Long Time

Grace Moore has had temperament for 15 years, and now she feels she ought to use it, she told newspapermen at the Grand Central Terminal yesterday.

"They wanted me to sing 'St. Louis Blues' in my last picture and I refused," she said. "I haven't got the training and I haven't got the voice to sing jazz. I introduced jazz in my first picture when I sang 'Minnie, the Moocher', but I'm not going to do it again."

Flatbush in two weeks, and so on until the entire metropolitan area was free of games and giveaways.

Commenting on the statement, N. J. Blumberg, RKO theatre head, stated emphatically that RKO disapproved the "piecemeal" plan and had advised Harry Brandt, I. T. O. A. president, that the circuit would agree only to a simultaneous citywide elimination of giveaways by all theatres.

A statement in the same tenor was made by a Loew's circuit executive, who denied that his company had agreed to cooperate with any move for "partial" or neighborhood elimination of games and giveaways.

The I. T. O. A. spokesman named Rugoff & Becker, Brandt, Skouras, Randforce and Century circuits, in addition to Loew's and RKO, as being willing to undertake the district by district elimination, beginning in Flatbush next week. He added that in the Bushwick section of Brooklyn admission increases of from five to 15 cents were already in effect in Loew's, RKO, Randforce and Brandt houses in connection with the drive to better operating conditions and policies.

N. J. Link Approved

The I. T. O. A. meeting approved the plan for a cooperative working agreement with Allied of New Jersey, which was approved by the latter organization on Tuesday. Maurice Fleischman was named chairman of a committee of five which will act with a similar Allied committee to further the cooperative efforts between the two organizations. Fleischman will select the remaining four members of the committee from among the members of the I. T. O. A. board of directors. Invitations were extended to the Allied group to attend future meetings of the I. T. O. A., and the same courtesy is expected to be extended to the latter, it was said.

Nathan Yamins, national Allied president, was invited to attend the Nov. 3 meeting of the I. T. O. A. to further discuss the latter's interest in a national meeting of exhibitor representatives which I. T. O. A. has offered to call to draft a program of fair trade practices for submission to distributors.

Schiller Testifies In Anti-Trust Suit

E. A. Schiller of Loew's was questioned throughout yesterday afternoon in the course of a series of depositions being taken here in connection with the anti-trust action brought by Morse & Rothenberg, independent theatre operators, against eight major distributors, the Maine & New Hampshire and M. A. Shea circuits. In the suit, which was brought in Federal court at Boston, the plaintiff alleges that it was unable to obtain major company product for seven of its theatres which are in competition with houses operated by the defendant circuits.

Schiller was excused to permit him to leave for the coast, where he plans to remain for a rest of indefinite duration. George S. Ryan, attorney for the plaintiff, said he was not certain who the next witness would be.

Chicago Pondering New Theatre Levies

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Faced with the necessity of wiping out a deficit of $3,000,000, the city alderman are eyeing theatre grosses which have been increasing steadily since the decline of the paralysis epidemic and are formulating plans for taxing the houses as a revenue-raising measure. Methods under consideration included a tax on gross receipts, which was sidetracked; a sliding scale tax on admission, also abandoned, and now a proposal to double or triple the license fees.

If additional taxes are imposed it is expected that exhibitors will ask the authorities to compromise by removing the ban on giveaways.

eral court at the time the Paramount reorganization plan was approved in 1935 in order to bring the two recovery actions to a conclusion.

Associates of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., former Paramount bankers, will pay approximately $700,000 in cash, the largest individual amount involved in the settlement. The defendants who will contribute to this sum include the estate of Otto H. Kahn, Alfred A. Kaufman, Gilbert W. Kahn, Felix E. Kahn, Sir William Wiseman, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Robert C. Montgomery and Maurice Wertheim.

$450,000 From the Zukors

Adolph Zukor, present Paramount board chairman and studio head, and Eugene Zukor, assigned to the studio, contribute $450,000 to the settlement. The payments will be spread over a 10-year period, with $45,000 being paid upon court approval of the settlement and $45,000 annually, beginning Jan. 2, 1939. Jules E. Brulatour will give five notes totalling $112,500, payable between Dec. 3, 1937, and July 1, 1939. Sam Katz will pay $250,000 which, however, is deductible from an allowed claim against Paramount for breach of employment contract amounting to $258,500. Also, if the settlement is approved, he will have a balance owing him by Paramount of $62,948, rather than the indicated $58,500, as a result of an adjustment for the market value of Paramount securities on Sept. 24, the date on which the settlement agreement was reached. Katz's contract claim against Paramount is payable by the company, under its reorganization plan, in securities of the company.

Stock Release from Lasky

Jesse L. Lasky agrees, under the settlement, to release to Paramount $105,000 in cash and 1,348½ shares of Paramount common stock valued at $35,000, which has been held by the National City Bank as trustee, and to withdraw a claim against Paramount for $282,000 and 5,395 shares of stock. The other settlement payments making up the balance of the $2,150,000 are, Sidney R. Kent, $250,000; Frank A. Bailey, $100,000; John D. Hertz, $125,000, and the estate of Emil E. Shauer, $50,000. However, Kent, Bailey and the estate of Otto H. Kahn, who have undisputed claims against Paramount which have not been satisfied, due to their possible liability under the present actions, may receive and apply the Paramount securities due them on their claims to the settlement payments.

The first of the suits was filed in the state court in 1934 by the reorganization trustees and sought the recovery of $12,237,071 for "alleged impairment of the company's capital resulting from purchases by Paramount of large amounts of its own stock during the period from Sept., 1931, to March, 1932." The stock purchases allegedly were made when no surplus existed. The defendants said that they acted in good faith and that a surplus actually existed. The case has been adjourned in the state court to Oct. 29 to await the outcome of the settlement negotiations and will have to be adjourned again to await Federal court approval of the settlement following the Nov. 3 hearing.

Salary Rebates Sought

The second suit, filed at the same time as the first, sought the recovery of salaries from executives of the company which were deemed to be "in excess of a reasonable amount." From other defendants it sought the recovery of actual or potential profits realized on participations in a Paramount employes' stock purchase plan. From directors during the period from 1927 to 1931 it sought the recovery of losses alleged to have been incurred by Paramount through the repurchase of its own common stock which had been issued for expansion purposes, where the redemption price was higher than the market price. Also alleged were dealings in the company's stock by certain directors at the same time that Paramount was purchasing stock.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY first reported the $2,150,000 settlement proposal on Aug. 19 when it was advanced to Arthur A. Ballantine, attorney for the Paramount trustee, in London, by Stanton Griffis, chairman of the Paramount executive committee. The formal closing of the settlement agreement also was exclusively reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Sept. 24. The settlement negotiations were begun in March of this year.

Lawyers Seek $215,000 Fees

Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine, counsel for the Paramount trustee, today filed an application for an allowance of $215,000 for services in connection with the $2,150,000 settlement of the trustee's two recovery actions against former officers and directors of Paramount. The application was filed with Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe who has allowed the firm $60,000 previously for services in connection with the action. The law firm was allowed a total of $510,000 for its services during the Paramount reorganization.

Charles D. Hilles, the Paramount trustee, filed a petition for an allowance of $7,500.

If the court approves the proposed settlement of the trustee's recovery actions the trustee and counsel will be formally discharged by the court soon thereafter, as the two suits comprise the final remnants of the Paramount reorganization.

N. Y. Court to Hear Suit on Song Rights

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Charles B. McLaughlin yesterday refused to dismiss the $100,000 suit of April Prod. against Harms, Inc., and ruled that the court had jurisdiction over the action. April Prod. is the assignee of the Shubert Theatrical Co. which granted Harms the right to the musical compositions from the "Student Prince" in 1924.

The plaintiff claims that it was to receive seven cents for each song published and 50 per cent of the receipts from other sources. Radio rights were not included. When the contract was made Harms copyrighted the songs and through its membership in Ascap allegedly received more than $100,000 in royalties through radio. The complaint sets forth that no accounting of the receipts from radio royalties was ever made and asks for a termination of the contract, $100,000 damages, an accounting and a permanent injunction restraining Harms from stating that it owns the radio rights.

Justice McLaughlin was asked to dismiss the suit on the ground that a copyright infringement suit could be brought only in the Federal Court and that the N. Y. Supreme Court had no jurisdiction. The court ruled, however, that the action was based on a breach of contract and refused to dismiss the complaint.

Seek to Question Yates

Eleanor Gates will ask Justice William T. Collins in N. Y. Supreme Court today for an examination before trial of Herbert J. Yates, president of Consolidated Film Industries, in connection with her $350,000 suit against Consolidated, Liberty Pictures Corp., M. H. Hoffman and J. H. Dacey.

Miss Gates, an author, charges that Liberty Pictures produced "Once to Every Bachelor" and that advertisements stated that it was suggested by her story, "The Search for the Spring." She denied that permission for the use of her name was obtained or that the picture was based on her story.

Consolidated was not originally named as defendant but was brought in when Hoffman testified that Consolidated handled the advertising. Consolidated will ask examination in London of Benjamin Goetz who was in charge of its Hollywood office in 1934. Goetz is not expected to be in New York at the time of the trial.

Canadians Hope for Pact with Mexicans

MONTREAL, Oct. 20.—Hopes of ridding privately-owned Canadian stations of the interference they suffer from Mexican stations rose today as a delegation was appointed to attend next month's conference at Havana. The appointees are Dr. A. Frigon, Donald Manson and K. A. MacKinnon.

At present many of the private stations throughout the Dominion suffer interference from a group of half a dozen stations in Mexico just over the Texas border.

It is believed the conference will cooperate to mend a situation that has been harmful to all. The solution probably will take the form of pooling bands and a reallocation of wavelengths. This will require certain concessions by the United States and gains, to the same extent, for Canada.

Cowdin Makes Optimistic Report to Directors

Universal's immediate financial problems have been cleared without recourse to new financing, and the company is prepared to proceed on a normal operating basis with expenditures geared more favorably to current and indicated future cash receipts, it was learned authoritatively yesterday.

The principal factors in the company's improved financial position result from reduced inventories and home office and studio economies which were placed in effect recently. With the promise of increased distribution receipts from current and forthcoming releases, Universal's most immediate financial problems, if not dissipated, at least are believed alleviated to a marked extent.

This picture of an altered financial situation was put before the company's board of directors this week, following the return from the coast of J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board. The obvious implication in the company's present outlook is the

"Stage Door" Pulls $96,000 Second Week

"Stage Door" held up strongly in its second week at the Music Hall, getting approximately $96,000. Now in its third week, the picture is expected to tally about $80,000 for the last seven days.

The second week of "Life Begins in College" at the Roxy finished last night with $41.500. "High, Wide and Handsome" and the Yacht Club Boys in the third week at the Paramount got about $28,000. "The Bride Wore Red" garnered $25,000 at the Capitol, while "Alcatraz Island" took in a similar gross in its first week at the Strand. The tenth week of "The Life of Emile Zola" at the Hollywood was good for $14,000.

"BUYERS' STRIKE" PACT SEEN TODAY

An Agreement in Principle Is Expected to Permit Individual Exhibitors to Negotiate on Contracts

A formal agreement on principles for ending the two and one-half-month old "buyers' strike" of Philadelphia exhibitors against Paramount is expected to be reached here today with the resumption of conferences between company officials and the committee of three representing the Philadelphia exhibitors.

Indications are that an agreement in principle, only, will be devised; that actual settlement of the differences between the company and its customers, or prospective customers, will be worked out by the company's sales department treating with individual accounts later. Presumably, although unofficially, this would mean that contractual adjustments may be made available to individual exhibitor accounts through negotiations entered into with the company.

The Philadelphia exhibitor delegation due to confer here today consists of Lewen Pizor, president of the U. M. P.T.O., Charles Segall and Abe Sablosky. They will meet with Austin C. Keough, Paramount vice-president and secretary; Neil F. Agnew, vice-president in charge of distribution, and possibly other company sales executives. An initial meeting was held here on Monday and resulted in a preliminary understanding.

Presumably, any agreement resulting from the meetings will be available to exhibitors of other territories where "buyers' strikes" against the company are in progress.

Autonomy for Guild Aims at Writers Front

The move of the Authors' League of America to grant financial and membership autonomy to the Screen Writers' Guild is being undertaken for the sole purpose of placating the Screen Playwrights in the hope of reclaiming members of the latter group for the guild and thereby achieving a solid "writers' front" in Hollywood, officials of the Authors' League conceded yesterday.

Autonomy in these matters, it is felt here, should overcome the primary objections of the Screen Playwrights to membership in the Screen Writers' Guild, which, as they have been expressed in Hollywood, at least,

Tokyo, Oct. 5.—The Government ban against film imports, officially designated as effective until the end of the year, may compel first runs here showing foreign films to switch from triple to dual and from dual to single bills. Cullman Ordered to Pay Committee Bills

Federal Judge Frances G. Caffey yesterday instructed Howard S. Cullman, Roxy trustee, to pay $4,083 for bills incurred by the Pound bondholders' protective committee during the recent reorganization hearing. Clement, Kaminer and Rowe were awarded $2,537 for printing the plan and incidental papers. The Northern Bank Note Co. received $1,448 for printing the first mortgage bonds and the Signature Co. received $90 for use of its machine to sign the bonds.

Seek to Examine U. A. Books

The William S. Hart Co. will ask Justice William T. Collins in the N. Y. Supreme Court today for permission to examine United Artists books and records in connection with Hart's suit for $500,000 damages against the distributor. Hart wants to see 12,000 cards, contract registers and books kept by United Artists as a permanent record of all pictures it distributed. It was stated that he was generally interested in "Tumbleweeds," "Wild Justice," "His Majesty, the American," "Thief of Bagdad," "Sally of the Sawdust," "Little Annie Rooney," "Don Q," "The Eagle" and "The Gold Rush."

Ask Quashing of Eisman Suit

A motion to dismiss the $1,000,000 plagiarism suit of Mort Eisman, Clara Deller and Robert Louis Shayon will be made in the U. S. District Court on Nov. 26 by the defendants, Samuel Goldwyn, Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., Eddie Cantor and United Artists who assert that the complaint failed to set forth a cause of action. The plaintiffs charge infringement of their story, "Oh Shah," in "Roman Scandals." Besides damages, the plaintiffs ask for a permanent injunction and an accounting of the profits.

Life Sues Movie Life

Time, Inc., publishers of Life, filed a suit in the U. S. District Court yesterday against the Ulten Publishing Co., publishers of Movie Life for $25,000 for alleged infringement of Life's trademark. The plaintiff charges that the defendant copies the cover color layout and block titles of Life. It is alleged that the plaintiff paid $90,000 to secure the trademark. A permanent injunction and an accounting of the profits is asked.

Deny Music Infringement

A general denial to the $1,000,000 plagiarism suit of Foreign & Domestic Music Corp., Samuel Cummins, Societe Anonima Musicale Bixio and Cesare Andrea Bixio was filed in the U. S. District Court yesterday by 20th Century-Fox, Fox Movietone Corp., Sam Fox Publishing Co., Con Conrad and Nino Martini. The plaintiffs claim infringement of their song, "Passa L'Amore," in "Here's to Romance."

Celebrities for Premiere

At the opening tonight of "Music for Madame" at the Criterion a host of celebrities from the opera will be on hand, including Grace Moore, Mademoiselle Gay, Nino Martini's teacher; Lily Pons, Doris Doe, Edward Ziegler, Charles Hackett, Armand Tokatyan, Frank Wenker, Giovanni Zenatello, Wilfred Pelletier, Lucrezia Bori and others.

A. F. L. Drive Called Company Union Move

The American Federation of Labor drive to organize white collar workers in the film business was declared yesterday by the United Office and Professional Workers of America, C. I. O. affiliated union, to be a company union move. The C. I. O. statement was issued by Anne Berenholz, organizer.

"This attempt of the A. F. of L. comes on the heels of the collapse of company unionism in the motion picture industry. Universal Pictures Co. hoped to stop the organizational drive of the C. I. O. by setting up a company union. This effort failed and the membership of the Universal Employes' Guild voted to affiliate with the C. I. O.," Miss Berenholz said.

The statement continued, "The Motion Picture Division of Local 16 has been carrying on effective organization work and now has substantial groups of members in every large film office. The idle threat of the A. F. of L. will have no effect on film office workers who are justifiably suspicious of this sudden show of interest on the part of Geneva Marsh and William Collins (of the A. F. of L.). Film office workers will continue to organize under the banner of the C. I. O."

Continue Union Talks

Progress was reported at the meeting yesterday between major circuit executives and representatives of Local 306. Another session will be held next week to continue conferences on a new wage scale which is to prevail for the next two years.

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 12
(20th Century-Fox)

Navy Day maneuvers off the coast of California, the war in China with some thrilling closeups of street fighting and the bombing of Hopei, the American delegation to the Nine Power Conference taking its leave for Brussels and maritime fashions partly make up this issue.

But on the sporting side real comedy and plenty of laughs are the order. The charity softball game at Meadowbrook, L. I., is the scene of a burlesqued ball game where the Movietone staff and other celebrities do their cutting up. The sound track is gagged to the hilt with plenty of fresh lines and such sound effects as Major Bowes getting the gong when he strikes out and Dale Carnegie also showing how to influence people.

The latter section makes up for an otherwise average assortment of clips.

Running time, 9 mins. P.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 210
(M-G-M)

Navy maneuvers in the Pacific with some unusual shots taken from the air of Government air and water craft in review and a few clips of Japanese troops and planes making a shambles of Shanghai lift this issue above the routine class. It is rare that newsmen can boast of scenes like the Navy stuff on the west coast. Behind the Japanese lines, you get an idea of what the war in China is all about. The camera rocks from a heavy bombardment from the air, proving that the material is genuine.

Other clips include scenes of the latest air tragedy in the Wyoming mountains where two Pathe cameramen were killed, motorcycles vying to climb a California mountain, Fred Snipe, Jr., being transferred from Chicago en route to Miami in an iron lung, amateur rodeo days at Victorville, Cal., fur fashions on review at the International Casino with Adelaide Hawley as hostess, women taking up hula dancing in Seattle as a form of reducing, and the departure of Norman H. Davis to Brussels to attend conferences on the Sino-Japanese fracas.

Running time, 10 minutes. O.

Paramount News
No. 23
(Paramount)

Paramount has a live and diversified newsreel in this release. Spectacular photography in the coverage of Pacific fleet maneuvers on Navy Day and some excellent shots of the Sino-Japanese conflict make these subjects outstanding. The five remaining topics, however, contribute their share to a well-balanced reel.

Alf Landon's radio attack on Administration policies and President Roosevelt's statements on neutrality, together with the latest air disaster which took 19 lives near Evanston, Wyo., are topical and of national interest. Shots of Norman H. Davis sailing for the Nine-Power Conference on the Far East and of Chicago's "Iron Lung Boy" being moved from that city to Florida are of secondary news interest. The reel recalls the first year of its existence with a "Remember When" feature which includes shots of three outstanding news events of 1927. Photography and narration are uniformly good.

Running time, 9 mins. K.

Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 27
(RKO)

Pathe's sequence on the airplane crash near Evanston, Wyo., is impressive.

The scenes are presented with the following titles: "Pathe News presents pictures of the worst airplane crash in U. S. aviation history as 19 persons plunge to death near Evanston, Wyo.

"William Harold Pitt and James Pergola, an editor and a cameraman of Pathe News, died in this accident. Members of the anonymous army that follows adventure to bring you motion pictures of the world's news, they met death as they had faced life, devoted to their duty."

A United Airlines Mainliner is shown leaving Newark and soaring through a cloud-studded sky, followed by closeups of the tangled wreckage on a snow-covered wooded mountainside of serene beauty. As the line of horses bearing the tarpaulin-covered bodies starts down the trail the spectator realizes with a gulp that other Pathe cameramen are photographing the final journey of their courageous co-workers. Other clips show President Roosevelt dedicating the new Federal Reserve Bldg., Norman H. Davis sailing for the nine-power conference at Brussels, and fleet maneuvers in the Pacific.

An odd shot is the photographing of the way in which the animated cartoon signs on Broadway are made to work by means of a certain strip developed by Douglas Lee. The cartoon film is projected on a mass of photo-electric cells. It's very interesting.

Those who like to see celebrities at play will get a kick out of a ball game in which some of the players are Babe Ruth, Major Bowes, David Sarnoff, Bugs Baer and others.

Running time, 9 mins. J.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 9, No. 608
(Universal Newsreel)

There is tragedy and comedy and a general diversification of interesting materal in this number of the Universal reel. The highlight, of course, is the tragic air crash in Wyoming which resulted in the deaths of 19. Tribute is paid by the Universal commentator to the two Pathe men who met their deaths. The smashed plane and the transportation of the bodies are well pictured.

Extremely effective is the clip on the maneuvers for Navy Day, of the American Pacific Fleet, seen from the air, high above the clouds. Listed as exclusive and interesting shots of Wall Street in the throes of the recent heavy selling wave, air shots of the "lost plateau" in Arizona, recently explored for the first time, and providing beautiful scenic effects, the beaching of a Japanese liner in the Hong Kong typhoon, as well as many smaller craft, and the comedy clip of the North Carolina man and his self-kicking machine.

A motorcycle contest, climbing a California hill, provides lively action, the rodeo contestants in New York entertain the child patients of Bellevue Hospital and a Pittsburgh man wins the 30-kilometer walking race in Cincinnati to complete the reel.

Running time, 9 mins. A.

Single Bills Lead In Missouri Polls

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 21.—George Harttmann, who operates the Armour in North Kansas City, Mo., has watched the growth of double bills with some misgivings, but nevertheless has continued to show singles. Recently he determined to put the matter up to patrons and conducted a poll. Seventy per cent of the votes were for singles, so he is continuing them and the two-hour shows he has always offered.

A similar experience was that of Frank Cassil, who has the Rialto, St Joseph, Mo. Cassil has been showing double bills for some time, but recently decided to ask his patrons what they wanted in the way of film fare. Only 30 per cent indicated a preference for doubles, so the Rialto cut them out, and experienced an increase in business. Cassil still uses an occasional double on the weekend, when he has a two and a half hour show whether he is doubling or singling. The remainder of the week the show now runs 2 hours.

Century Single Bill Test Proves Success

First move in a plan to experiment with single features in Nassau County, L. I., has been instituted by Century Circuit's Fantasy, Rockville Center. The one feature policy has been in effect 10 days and, according to Century, the next theatre to follow will be the Rivoli, Hempstead, a Skouras Theatres' unit.

About 20 theatres are operated by Century and Skouras in Nassau County, it was stated, and if the plan continues to meet with success it will be extended to all houses controlled by the two independent circuits.

Autonomy for Guild Aims at Writers Front

are that the guild is not a "local" organization but is conducted for and by New York factions.

In order to make the guild autonomous, numerous changes will be made in the constitution of the Authors' League and in the constitution of the guild. The council of the Authors' League approved the amendments to its constitution on Wednesday, virtually assuring their approval by the membership of the organization when they are voted on at a special meeting on or about Nov. 17. The amendments, it is said, while granting the Screen Writers' Guild "complete control of its own affairs," at the same time will preserve an affiliation with the Authors' League and its member organizations which will insure the guild of the advantages of a unanimity of action with those organizations in time of emergency.

Separation Flexible

"The separation of the guild from the Authors' League," it was stated officially, "will, under these amendments, be as wide or as close as the guild itself cares to make it."

The legal effect of the changes, it was said, will be to make the guild an "affiliate" of the Authors' League, rather than a "member" of it, as heretofore. It would change the legal name of the organization from the Screen Writers' Guild of the Authors' League of America to the "Screen Writers' Guild, Affiliated with the Authors' League of America."

The Dramatists' Guild, Radio Writers' Guild and Authors' Guild will be unaffected by the change and will continue as "member" guilds of the Authors' League.

Guild Hearing Ends Abruptly on Coast

Los Angeles, Oct. 21.—The hearing on the Screen Writers' Guild petition for a film writers' collective bargaining agency election ended abruptly today with a stipulation of attorneys to the introduction by producer representatives of exhibits showing the corporate structure of producing and distributing firms. They are designed to show the divorce of production from distribution so far as interstate commerce is concerned.

William Ringer, trial examiner, took the case under advisement, and will submit his recommendations to the National Labor Relations Board in Washington, who will rule on the matter. The two important points to be decided are whether production is in interstate commerce and whether writers are employes and as such entitled to come under the Wagner act.

Neil S. McCarthy, attorney for the Screen Playwrights, ended his presentation before Ringer in a surprise move by declaring he would call no more witnesses. Leonard S. Janofsky, guild attorney, introduced a copy of the original contract of the American Society of Cinematographers with the producers which showed that the producers as a whole negotiated with the cameramen.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Merry-Go-Round of 1938"

(Universal)

Hollywood, Oct. 21.—To many it may appear as though they threw the book of rules and regulations away when "Merry-Go-Round of 1938" was made. By "they" is meant B. G. De Sylva, whose first production for Universal this is, and Irving Cummings, who directed. A preview audience appeared to think they had turned out an acceptable farce.

Using only the mere core of a romantic love story which features Joy Hodges and John King as a basis, all the producing and directing team has done by making use of scores of characters, dialogue and situation gags is to permit Jimmy Savo, Bert Lahr, Billy House, Mischa Auer, Alice Brady, Louise Fazenda and Dave Apollon to be characteristically funny.

Unquestionably Monte Brice and Henry Meyers supplied some material in the original and Brice and A. Dorian Otvos added more in the screenplay as Jimmy McHugh and Harold Arlen contributed a couple of songs. But, and it seems wise, De Sylva and Cummings were shrewd enough to let Lahr, Savo and House do again the things they have done countless times on the stage and let the more familiar picture names be as they are in pictures. Accenting the straight farcing in which they indulge, Savo sings and acts "River Stay Away from My Door" and Lahr renders and recites a woodchoppers' song. House does his feminine impersonation and Auer is a Ghandi-clad swami both of whom greatly amaze Miss Brady.

In comparison with some recent laugh pictures this film would be a second choice. But as a piece of entertainment which makes no claims to pretentiousness, it is aimed at those who want to be amused and probably will do all right for itself.

Running time, 87 minutes. "G."

"High Flyers"

(RKO)

Hollywood, Oct. 21.—Some fine cast names have been assembled in support of Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey, songs and dancing are introduced and plenty of money has been spent on backgrounds, but for some reason or other—it may be the delicate fabric of the story material—the picture fails to start one of those laugh riots the press agents like to talk about. It will satisfy the Wheeler and Woolsey fans, no doubt.

The comics are operating one of those trick airplane things at a carnival when Jack Carson offers them a job picking up a package to be thrown from a liner at sea. They unwittingly grab the harbor police plane and are fired on by the Coast Guard. On their way back they discover they have valuable gems. They crash on the estate of Paul Harvey, where various articles have been disappearing.

The action speeds up as the comics are thought to be detectives and then are charged by a smuggling gang with being lunatics. Lupe Velez, as a maid, is exciting, as usual, and she sings. Wheeler does some smart dancing. Crowds of police swarm in and the kleptomaniac is discovered to be a bulldog. Charles Judels, Lucien Prival, Herbert Evans and Herbert Clifton have parts which are a little better than bits. George Irving appears as a police chief for a few seconds.

The direction is by Edward Cline from a screenplay by Benny Rubin, Bert Granet and Byron Morgan. It was based on Victor Mapes' play.

Running time, 66 minutes. "G."

ALI GOES TO TOWN' AND HOW! CANTOR FILM A SPECTACULAR HIT

Brilliantly Written And Directed Political Travesty Should Break Records For Boxoffice And Laughs

This new picture of Eddie Cantor's is a shattering hit from every angle, including that of the boxoffice. It is about the best musical extravaganza of the year—probably of any year—and will be a smash draw from top to bottom of the theater roster Eddie is in top form in a role that needs no forcing to be funny every minute, and he has a story that provides simon-pure comedy from end to end. It is a satirical travesty on current American politics and especially on the New Deal, done in an Arabian Nights setting by a device like that of "A Yankee in King Arthur's Court," with the round-eyed comedian as an American box-car voyager going to town in ancient Bagdad for a political and social triumph.

Musical elements are kept secondary to the development of this hugely funny fairytale, but five numbers are shrewdly sandwiched in and they are all topflight, with at least four headed for hit rating.

Cantor sings two numbers, Mark Gordon and Harry Revel. "Laugh Your Way Through Life" and "Swing Is The Word For Me" are rollicking incident. Graham Here To Sway," a topnotcher that is the names. Gene Towne, Baker and Gene Fowler on story, and taken over by the Peters sisters, Harry Tugend and Jack Yellen on heavyweight sepia trio, with accom- script—a marvellous quintet. And paniment by the Raymond Scott quin- David Butler, directing, has brilliantly tet, for a solid hit. Tony Martin has a translated the tale into telling action swell ballad, "I've Got My Heart Set and scenes of Oriental splendor, while On You," in which he scores emphat- sustaining exactly the right note of ically, and he and Cantor blend voices playful travesty in a clever topical, "Vote For Honest Abe." These pieces are all by Mack

Cantor A Stepper

There is added "Twilight in Turkey," by Raymond Scott, to which the Pearl Twins do an oriental specialty dance with an elaborate Bagdad background. There is also a good dance specialty by Jeni Le Gon, and Cantor himself does a bit of lively stepping. But the story holds first place throughout. When the little hobo falls off the freight train, he mixes in with a film company doing desert scenes for "Ali Baba and the Forty Thieves." Knocked out by galloping horses, he wakes up in the field hospital in charge of pretty Virginia Field, is made an extra; passes out in one of the big jars and so is magically transported to the real Bagdad to win the favor of Sultan Roland Young and save his political hide by inaugurating New Deal policies, soaking the rich, starting work projects and abolishing the army

Magic Carpet Helps

But there are enemies to be foiled A president can do so many things that a mere sultan cannot. Eddie runs the sultan for president on American lines, but is himself nominated and has to campaign against himself. He wins, but escapes, and in a spectacular Magic Carpet finale, routs the enemies of the sultan and is returned to favor just as the filmers drag him from the jar and throw him out. There is a surprise ending, laid at the Carthay Circle theatre, but no letdown, for the laughs continue to the last foot. High honors go to the writing cohorts for this well-packed outline with its innumerable facets of pungent humor and rollicking incident. Mark Lang, Martin's heart interest, Nurse Virginia Field, whose gentle ministrations win Cantor's heart, and Louise Hovick, statuesque as the scheming sultana, make an eye-filling trio. Smaller parts are well played by Maurice Cass, Paul Hurst, Sam Hayes and Ferdinand Gottschalk

Picture An Eye-filler

The picture is an eye-filler throughout, evidencing much money wisely spent. Ernest Palmer's photography, the outstanding process work in the Magic Carpet sequence, Bernard Herzbrun's sets and Gwen Wakeling and Herschel Costumes, all give visual glorification to the swiftly-moving events. Credit also Louis Silvers for notably spirited music direction, and Sammy Lee for his dance direction, and excellence. The supporting cast is of highest bewildered and ineffectual sultan, is a comedy riot. Tony Martin, the sultan's friend, wearing a becoming mustache, wins added acclaim. John Carradine and Douglas Dumbrille make picturesque and sinister Oriental conspirators, and Alan Dinehart plays the temperamental picture director with savage glee deal, according to London Films sources, is certain. The money to pick up the options for the stock will come from a City group, it was stated authoritatively.

There is outstanding pulchritude on the feminine side. Princess June Laurence Schwab, in charge of production under Darryl Zanuck, has taken Ali Baba to town with a vengeance.

When E. H. Lever, secretary of Prudential Assurance Co. of England, arrived early this week with David Rose, vice-president and financial adviser of Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., Motion Picture Daily then reported that his trip was to watch the U. A. deal from all angles.

At the time, it was stated that Prudential may not participate in the financing of Alexander Korda and Samuel Goldwyn in the deal for control of U. A. It was also reported then that one of the "three of four deals" under consideration provide for English financing.

All angles reported by Motion Picture Daily are confirmed officially by English interests identified with the deal.

important part which successful box-office product must play during the next few months if the easing of the company's financial problems is to become permanent. In this respect, home office officials are optimistic, due to current returns from "100 Men and a Girl" and advance reports on "Merry-Go-Round of 1938" and "You're a Sweetheart." Moreover, company officials are particularly hopeful in view of the fact that the company has not been obliged to resort to any new borrowing at this time.

Minor contractual differences which existed recently with Henry Koster, Joe Pasternak and Deanna Durbin, have been ironed out and new seven-year contracts providing for increased salaries have been closed with all three, it was stated.

Looking 'Em Over

"Nation Aflame"

(Television Pictures)

There is a vein of artificiality, colored with an emotion that rings off key, running through "Nation Aflame." The production is good, judged by present-day standards, and it bears the mark of being carefully handled.

The theme illustrates the growth of a secret organization that relies on mob violence and the unscrupulousness of its leader, who has dreams of national dictatorship, to attain its ignoble ends. Secret society debunking propaganda, the cycle of which by this time has undoubtedly spun its course.

The story is by Thomas Dixon, who wrote "The Birth of a Nation." It concerns the rise of Noel Madison from real estate swindler to head of a bigoted and prejudiced mob which masquerades under the costumes of The Order of Avenging Angels. Madison, in a short while, rises to the top, eventually controlling the state legislature. His practices as the head man soon have the political system corrupt and inefficient. The murder of a crusading editor starts his downfall. He arranges for the assassination of his puppet governor, Harry Holman, by Roger Williams, whose wife Madison has killed. Holman's daughter, Norma Trelvar, infatuated with Madison, revolts after he kills her father and joins with Arthur Singley in bringing about his demise. She frames him into almost seducing her. Singley breaks in with members of the order, the police and the press. The Angels are shorn of their wings. Singley is elected governor, honestly, and Miss Trelvar is the silent partner who stands in the sidelines, unknown and unhonored.

The cast does not include any well known names. The support includes Douglas Walton, Earl Hodgins, Snub Pollard, Si Willis, Lila Lee and C. Montague Shaw. Victor Halperin directed.

Running time, 72 minutes. "A."

"Renfrew of the Royal Mounted"

(Grand National)

The beautiful outdoor settings which are the locale of this story of the famous Canadian police prove to be more impressive than the melodramatic content. The story is a standard job in which the mountie, after a number of exciting escapades, gets his men with the usual business. The name part offers James Newell, a personable fellow who sings well and makes the best of his role. Carol Hughes provides the feminine interest.

A gang of counterfeiters murders a mountie. Newell is assigned. He meets Miss Hughes at a picnic and later saves her life when a canoe overturns. It seems she was going to her father, an ex-convict, and also a slick engraver, who is being held against his will by the gang. The "hot" money is smuggled across the border by stuffing it in dead trout and then freezing the fish in blocks of ice. Newell finds one of these ice blocks and a number of other clues which simply and straightforwardly lead him to the hideout. A fistfight and a little shooting ensue, the conclusion has the gang safely put away and Newell pursuing his romance with Miss Hughes.

"Renfrew of the Royal Mounted" will find its best audience with children. The film is so handled as to attract the juvenile trade. In the supporting cast William Royle, Herbert Corthell, Donald Reed, Thundercloud, David Barclay and Kenneth Harlan effectively portray standard roles. Al Herman directed.

Running time, 57 minutes. "G."

"Law and Lead"

(Colony)

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 21.—Light, even for a western, is "Law and Lead," and the story drags too slowly to interest the action fan. Box-office stamina is negligible, it being down in every department—acting, direction, and virility.

Rex Bell is the peak name, with the best character work handed Soledad Jiminez and Earl Dwire. Corner brightener for the romance is Harley Wood, who manages quite well to keep the cow country moon from getting the best of her.

The yarn covers a lawman's search for a mystery terrorist of the ranch land. Suspicion is on his pal and also points to the father of his potential girl friend. Bell, the star lugger, finally manages to pin the foul play on Wally Wales, cowyard flunkey.

Obviousness, even in this type of print, takes all the sock out of it. It's a Max and Arthur Alexander production, directed by Bob Hill. Camera work is faulty, the negative showing spotty.

Running time, 57 minutes. "G."

Ampa Steams Up and It's All Over at 2:05

All is well again at the Ampa. Ralph Rolan was back yesterday at the helm, the food was served on time, all personalties scheduled to appear showed up and the meeting was adjourned at 2:05 P.M., about 15 minutes after the business part of the session got under way.

Mona Barrie, who appears in "Virginia" and Michael Bartlett, rehearsing for "Three Waltzes," a Shubert enterprise, were the first two to be introduced and to take a bow. Nigel Bruce, who also appears in "Virginia," then was introduced, took a bow and later came back to talk about cricket. He called Hollywood a sportsman's paradise and thought the Hollywood reception for Britishers was simply great.

Next came Clem McCarthy, radio and newsreel commentator. He spoke on sports in general and current football games in particular. Dorothy Mackail said there were two reasons for her appearance. First a free lunch and second to meet McCarthy. She had planned to talk on other things, but apparently forgot what they were and let it go at that.

Constance Collier, who appears in the screen version of "Stage Door," extolled Gregory La Cava, asserting he is "a modern genius of the screen today." Toby Wing of Grand National said she was thrilled to meet Miss Collier, whom she had just seen in the picture at the Music Hall.

Rolan announced that next week will be an international meeting with Herbert Wilcox, Anna Neagel, Gertrude Lawrence, Anne Booth, Sir Gerald Campbell, David M. Dow, Douglas S. Cole, Eugene P. Thomas and the Rt. Hon. R. W. Close lined up to occupy the dais.

The seating arrangement, changed yesterday from that of the week before, will be revised next week.

Scenes of tender romance!...Filmed in the actual cities and palaces where the young Queen's headlong love affair rocked the powers of church and state!

Short Subjects

"Give Till It Hurts"

(M-G-M)

An expose of racketeer invasion of charitable organizations is offered in this issue of "Crime Does Not Pay." The material is exciting, well presented and interesting enough to hold the interest of any audience. Running time, 20 minutes. "G."

"Ask Uncle Sol"

(Educational)

Eddie Lambert as the pseudo judge on a radio "court" program is the excuse in this instance for a series of variety turns, which are at times entertaining. They include the Flying Whirlos, excellent trick roller skaters, and a couple of singing and dancing numbers.

Running time, 10 minutes. "G."

"Unusual Occupations 7-2"

(Paramount)

A tasteful arrangement of oddities. The collection shown here includes a soap taster, an angleworm breeder and the execution of wax models for store windows. The material is interesting and should please. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Four Smart Dogs"

(Rice-Paramount)

An engrossing subject that should be well received by most audiences. It begins with shots of a number of dogs doing their accustomed stunts. The final sequence, filmed in New Zealand, is exciting stuff that reveals how a first rate sheep dog works in field trials. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Romance of Radium"

(M-G-M)

Advance notice of the playing of this short should be run in the trailer. It is a film that should be played up. The history of the rare chemical from its early discovery, its development by the Curies and present-day usage is enacted with Pete Smith handling the narrative. The final sequence in which the chemical is photographed in a modern hospital is finely handled drama that will make a strong impression. Running time, 10 minutes. "G."

"Rainbow Pass"

(M-G-M)

When Chinese peasants finish harvesting they hold a religious festival. One of their pet diversions at the time is to attend their curious theatrical performances. This short embraces that aspect. It mainly concerns a performance by native characters with many quaint touches. It is well-filmed material, tastefully handled, and should prove interesting in its departure from the routine. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"The Smart Way"

(Educational)

Willie Howard, in his new role of the teacher of French with an amusing accent and makeup, is an entertaining comedian, and it is regrettable that more engaging stories cannot be found for him. This one is a routine comedy slant. Howard, as the disturbed husband, seeking a way of correcting his wife's extravagant habits, is persuaded to "kill her with kindness." The results, of course, are the reverse of what was intended.

Running time, 18 minutes. "G."

"The Lyin' Mouse"

(Vitaphone)

A clever color cartoon in keeping with the recent fine efforts produced by this company. It is a hilarious burlesque of the lion and the mouse fable with modern overtones. The mouse in question humorously spins the yarn in order to escape from a trap. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Jungle Juveniles"

(M-G-M)

Pete Smith applies his narration this time to the antics of a pair of chimpanzees and a youngster as they perform candidly and with unconscious humor act out a slight scenario. The stuff has a humor that will be readily appreciated. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"The Trigger Trio"

(Republic)

The Three Mesquiteers deliver the goods again in "The Trigger Trio." This chapter of their adventures finds a member of the team absent, but his saddle is filled capably by Ralph Byrd. The tale is a cleverly concocted story of cattle disease on the range and unwinds in a manner that will hold the interest of audiences while at the same time satisfying their appetite for amusement and diversion.

Hoof and mouth disease is prevalent in the locale of the story. Effective measures are being carried out to quarantine infected cattle. The local agricultural inspector, Robert Warwick, is murdered as he is about to report to the authorities that Cornelius Keefe's herd should be destroyed. This sets off a train of events that calls for plenty of riding, shooting and really fine photography with the ultimate conclusion being the roundup of the would-be quarantine evaders, the murderer and the satisfactory settlement to the ranchers.

Ray Corrigan and Max Terhune turn in their usual dramatic and humorous performances. Sandra Corday provides the feminine interest. The support includes Sammy McKim, Hal Taliaferro, Willie Fung and Buck, the St. Bernard dog.

It will please all around.

Running time, 58 minutes. "G."

"Lucrezia Borgia"

(European Films Corp.)

At the outset it should be recorded that this French picture, produced by La Compagnie du Cinema, and purporting to tell the story of the life and loves of the notorious Lucrezia Borgia against a background of Italian political intrigue in the late 15th Century, is far outside the pale with respect to the National Legion of Decency.

There are too many times when amorous episodes in the life of the Borgias, including Cesar, the ruthless and power-mad brother of Lucrezia, and his sister, are more than merely suggested, and thus will be offensive to many audiences. Throughout there appears an effort to make the most of the suggestiveness of the title and its subject.

Abel Gance directed from an original scenario by Leopold Marchand and Henry Vendresse. English subtitles are superimposed. The production values are good, the sets sumptuous, the performances capable, and the subject matter entirely acceptable if the story had been confined to the dark political intrigue of the Borgias, aided by Machiavelli, the arch schemer. But the opportunity afforded by concentrating on the use of Lucrezia by her brother to further his political plans, and her willingness, so long as the man of the moment is presentable, lends a different aspect to the film entirely.

Running time, 78 minutes. "A."

"Special Agent K-7"

(C. C. Burr)

An average and not too discriminating audience at a neighborhood theatre found laughs in this film. The hilarity was not in the film, however. It was at the film. It is a model "quickie" production with practically nothing to offer. It was produced with very apparent economy. The performances of the principals are stereotyped and wooden.

The plot is one of those things where a gambler is murdered and suspicion points at the juvenile lead. A shyster lawyer pretends to lend aid, but actually builds up a case against the suspect. A Federal man is hanging around and he does a little sleuthing which draws out the actual murderer. The audience, with any perception at all, will have picked him out in the third reel.

Irving Pichel, Walter McGrail, Queenie Smith, Duncan Renaldo and Billy Leeds act out the feeble story. Raymond K. Johnson directed.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

New Shows on the Air

"Jeannie Peabody"

Entertaining small town humor and excitement is offered in this serial which got off to a good start on Monday. The Miss Peabody in question is the postmistress and keeper of the general store in Hillsdale, pop. 750. She knows every one and all about him. The yarn opened just as Miss Peabody, who is getting along in years, is shutting up the postoffice division of her activities. A stranger enters and seeks information as to the whereabouts of Agnes Conway. He is representing Miss Conway's brother who, with his wife, was killed in an accident leaving a three-year old boy. The child is in an orphanage and Johnson—that's his name—is seeking relatives. Miss Peabody offers to go along to the Conway domicile and at that time the script for the day reached its last page. From the manner in which is concludes it may be said that "Jeannie Peabody" will prove satisfactory and probably sell many of its sponsor's (F. & F. Laboratories) coughdrops and cough syrup.

"Jeannie Peabody" will be heard thrice-weekly, Monday, Wednesday and Friday, over CBS 3:30 to 3:45 P.M. Blackett-Sample-Hummert is the agency. P.

The series is presented Sundays from 4:45 to 5 P. M. over six NBC-Blue stations. The Clements Co., Philadelphia, is the agency.

BANNER.

IRNA and AFM Finally Reach A Settlement

The trade agreement between the network affiliates and the A.F.M., after several months of what appeared to be futile effort, has finally been worked out by the federation's international council and the I.R.N.A. committee.

The agreement was completed at yesterday's conference and is now in the hands of attorneys for both sides for a final polishing and revision.

The agreement, both sides attempted to say, is substantially the same as the one previously written, the terms of which are generally known and which have been printed in these columns. However, the spokesmen differed radically in one major respect. The A.F.M. stated that it had not yielded on Point 10, while an attorney for the I.R.N.A. said that this clause had been entirely eradicated. Clause 10 specified that a "fair" I.R.N.A. station will not be permitted by the A.F.M. to feed programs to an "unfair" station, i.e., a station which either refuses entirely to sign a trade agreement or which, after signing violates its contents.

Groups Meet Again Today

Both committees will meet again today. After a final discussion and possible last minute changes, copies of the documents will be sent for approval to the approximately 250 stations in the I.R.N.A. category.

The trade agreement still stipulates that the expenditures for the I.R.N.A. group for musicians' salaries is to be boosted $1,500,000 annually. To this is to be added the $600,000 increase for musicians' salaries which the network key stations have agreed to spend annually.

Meanwhile the A.F.M. met yesterday with the transcription and recording group to seek a settlement with them. The meeting led to the appointment of a committee which henceforth will negotiate for the disk interests. The committee is Lloyd Egner, NBC transcription division; A. J. Kendrick, World Broadcasting Co.; Jack Kapp, Decca Record Co.; Stewart Sprague, Brinckerhoff Co.; Francis J. Quillan, attorney for World Broadcasting Co., and Merritt Tompkins, of Muzak.

Fine Maxwell Unit on Quota Act Violation

Early Opening of Houses Cited in Test Case

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 22.—In an important test case in the West London Police Court Associated British Cinemas, circuit headed by John Maxwell, was fined £60 for defaults on the quota at three theatres, the Commodore and Hammersmith, London, and the Savoy, Acton.

The evidence indicated that British films were shown at the theatres from 9 A. M. to noon, while the normal opening time of the houses was noon. The Board of Trade, pressing the action for the Government, argued that this was in violation of Section 19 of the Films Act. The defense held that any legal time of opening a theatre constituted normal operating hours within the meaning of the law. The circuit also pleaded that early opening of theatres was a common practice in the West End.

The magistrate ruled that the early opening and additional operating hours were purely for the purpose of handling the quota situation, to enable

Appeal to Be Taken On Dallas Decision

Defendants in the Government's Dallas anti-trust case will appeal from the U. S. District Court decision outlawing distributors from entering into contracts with exhibitors which regulate admission prices to be charged in subsequent run theatres, it was stated yesterday.

As the case was instituted by the Government, the defendants are privileged to bring their appeal direct to the U. S. Supreme Court, which they will probably do within the next month. The appeal action may be instituted up to Dec. 13.

The distributors are understood to be particularly anxious to appeal from that part of the lower court decree which holds that conspiracy entered into the making of the contracts with the Interstate Circuit.

Jenkins Testifies In Hub Trust Case

Felix Jenkins, attorney for 20th Century-Fox, was questioned yesterday in connection with contracts made by that company with Maine & New Hampshire Theatres by George S. Ryan, attorney for Morse & Rothenberg, independent circuit operators, who are plaintiffs in an anti-trust action against eight major distributors, M. & N. H. and M. A. Shea circuits. Ryan is here taking depositions preliminary to trial of the case in Federal court at Boston.

Jenkins testified at the morning session and identified documents being entered as exhibits in the case which occupied the afternoon. The sessions resume again on Monday.

B. N. Is Killed By High Court Of Nebraska

LINCOLN, Oct. 22.—The Nebraska Supreme Court today upheld the lower court decision involving the Beatrice Theatres Corp. case at Beatrice, when Bank Night was ruled a lottery and in violation of the state lottery laws. The court ruled the game contained all the elements of chance and lottery.

Beatrice was selected last April by State's Attorney General Hunter for a test case and District Judge Fred Messmore ruled at that time that any consideration involved, whether time, money or even going out of one's way to be at the theatre for a drawing brought it under the lottery laws. Judge Messmore, now on the Supreme Court, was ineligible to sit on the Beatrice appeal, and watched his ruling vindicated.

William H. Wright, attorney for the Omaha M. P. Exhibitors' Ass'n, said that the next move on the part of the theatres will be the filing of a motion for a rehearing of the case,

Among the individuals for whom Vasquez asks penalties are Guy P. Morgan of United Artists, Harry

Philadelphia Theatre Men Will Vote on Pact Tuesday

A basic agreement for ending the Philadelphia "buyers' strike" against Paramount was reached yesterday at a conference here between Paramount officials and representatives of the Philadelphia exhibitors.

The principles agreed upon will be submitted for ratification to a special meeting of the Philadelphia exhibitors in that city on Tuesday, and, if approved at that time, will be available to exhibitors in the seven other territories in which "buyers' strikes" are in progress, as exclusively reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Wednesday. Exhibitor leaders in the seven territories were advised by Lewen Pizor, president of the U. M. P. T. O., by telephone last night of the settlement principles and were urged to attend the Philadelphia exhibitors' meeting on Tuesday.

As reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday, if the basic agreement is approved by the exhibitors it will furnish only the guiding prin-

Gary-Para. Hearing Is Set for Oct. 29

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 22.—The U. S. District Court here today set Oct. 29 for hearing of the Gary Theatre Co.'s application for a mandatory injunction to compel Paramount to deliver to the plaintiff's two Gary theatres 10 features allegedly contracted for under last season's contracts, but undelivered.

The case originally was brought in state superior court at Marion, but was transferred to the Federal court here at Paramount's request on the ground of diversity of citizenship and other interstate commerce considerations.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Conquest"

(M-G-M)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 22.—In contrast with most films of the day, this picture is introduced with the statement that "this is an historic love," to which is appended further assurance that the attention of its compilers has not materially altered the facts in the love affair between Napoleon Bonaparte and Countess Walewska of Poland. This device has the effect of enforcing the realism which is striven for expensively and by dint of much forthright and emotional acting throughout a production which is notable for its authentic atmosphere, well chosen dialogue and an almost total lack of humor or action.

Outstanding, and in a degree virtually obscuring those of the 30 others listed as principals, are the performances of Greta Garbo and Charles Boyer as the ill-fated lovers. Each subordinates personality to characterization so consistently and tellingly as to indicate that a large section of the public will share vicariously in their alternate rapture and despair. The preview audience here indicated pleasure in certain individual acting achievements and spirited applause was heard at the close.

"Conquest" is, as everyone must know, the picture that started out as "Countess Walewska." As produced by Bernard Hyman and directed by Clarence Brown, from a screenplay by Samuel Hoffenstein, Salka Viertel and S. N. Behrman, based on the novel by Waclaw Gasiarowski, the picture concerns itself exclusively with the indoors Napoleon. A single quiet sequence takes care of the retreat from Moscow, a pencil flung upon a map disposes of the battle of Waterloo, and a rousing raid by Cossacks employed to open the production is not followed up. This technique, accomplished adroitly enough by the use of couriers and other footlight expediencies, may or may not belong in the asset column generally, but a smart clash of arms after the Elba episode might have staved off a bit of restiveness that cropped out about then among the invited spectators. Possibly payees, enthralled by the Garbo glamour, will prefer it as is.

Other players whose performances are excellent include Reginald Owen, Henry Stephenson, Dame May Whitty, Maria Ouspenskaya, Claude Gillingwater and George Houston, although the cast is long and contains many highly mentionable names. The picture is in the platinum sepia process lately favored by the company for its major offerings.

In the story Miss Garbo plays a Polish countess who sacrifices her chastity to the French emperor who can and does save her country in payment. How she comes to love him and continue faithful to the time of his departure for St. Helena makes up the rest of the record.

Running time, 104 minutes. "A."

Assets $8,310, Says Omaha Orpheum

Schedules showing liabilities of $1,917,192 and assets of $8,310 were filed by the Omaha Orpheum Co. in the U. S. District Court yesterday. The company filed a voluntary bankruptcy petition last week.

Listed as a deficiency judgment in foreclosure proceedings on the first mortgage of the Omaha Orpheum was $1,118,055; $791,181 in notes originally issued to Orpheum Circuit, Inc., but now held by the Stadium Theatres Corp.; $1,238 for trade and miscellaneous debts; $6,716 for rent liability. Assets consist of $7,047 cash and $1,242 on a debt allegedly due from the RKO Service Corp.

Court Refuses Injunction

Supreme Court Justice Charles B. McLaughlin yesterday refused to issue a temporary injunction in the suit brought by Leo Fuchs and Yetta Zwerling against Seiden Sound System, Inc., and the Moemar Theatre Corp. The defendants sought to restrain the exhibition of a short with Yiddish dialogue, "I Want to be a Boarder." They allege that they were hired to play the masculine and feminine leads in a full length picture, "I Want to be a Mother" and that Seiden after releasing it in April, used some of the extra sequences to make an additional picture. A violation of the civil rights law for use of names and pictures without consent was claimed and a permanent injunction with $10,000 damages was asked. Justice McLaughlin ruled that the contract gave the producer the right to use the extra material.

To Seek Approval of Award

Local 306 will ask Justice Aaron Steuer in the N. Y. Supreme Court on Monday to confirm an arbitration award made in its favor by Ben Golden against the Bell Amusement Corp., operators of the Hudson Playhouse. Golden, who was named as an impartial arbitrator under the Jan. 30 contract between the I. T. O. A. and the union, ruled that only members of Local 306 could be employed in the projection booths and awarded $656 in damages.

Warners Withdraw Case

LONDON, Oct. 22.—The Warner libel case against the Women's Guild of the Empire has been withdrawn before Justice Hilberry. In a statement by Warner counsel it was said the company is satisfied that the guild acted in good faith in sending to the censor board a press clipping attacking "The Charge of the Light Brigade." The defendants accepted the Warner explanation. Warners will pay the costs of the action.

Educational Ready To Sign with Guild

Educational Pictures has informally advised the local office of the Screen Actors' Guild that it will sign the guild's contract within the next few days, it was learned yesterday.

Educational's action leaves The March of Time, as the only important eastern producer which has not yet come to an agreement with the guild. March of Time's application for further consideration of its claim to being a newsreel rather than a producing organization is scheduled to be acted upon by the guild board of directors in Hollywood Monday night.

the decision in which would appear to forbid the games in Omaha as well as in Beatrice.

"We can go on with the fight," said Wright, "if the ruling is based on facts which differ in the two cases. But if it is a broad, sweeping opinion it would decide the Omaha case also."

Wright had previously indicated that the Omaha case would be dropped if the court ruled unfavorably in the Beatrice action.

Has New Lobby Display

The Broadway Strand has installed a new lobby display frame, devised by Mort Blumenstock, advertising manager of Warners, which permits large panorama effects running the full length of the lobby. The frame, 50 feet in length and six feet high, equipped with footlights, top and border lights in three colors, also can be blocked out for panels of various sizes. The construction work was supervised by Herman Maier, chief of theatre maintenance for the Warner circuit, and his assistant, John E. Schwarz.

Looking 'Em Over

"Ali Baba Goes to Town"

(20th Century-Fox)

There are glitter and flash, the spectacular and the glamorous, elaborate sets and tuneful music in "Ali Baba Goes to Town." Additionally there is a novel comedy idea as the backbone of the musical, but the laughs are not as plentiful or spontaneous as might have been expected. In a word, it does not appear too certain that in this, his latest effort, Eddie Cantor, that redoubtable veteran of comedy, goes to town.

He sings, he dances, he becomes involved in all sorts of the usual difficulties which are part of the long familiar Cantor routine, as he falls asleep on the set of "Ali Baba," a film in production, and his dream transports him to the real Bagdad of yesteryear, where he becomes adviser to the sultan, transplanting modern America to ancient Bagdad in governmental operation, à la New Deal. The idea is funny, but the realization does not always meet the expectation. There was, in another day for instance, "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court." It had an identical idea, far better executed.

Of course, there are entertaining moments, a couple of them hilarious, but somehow the piece lacks cohesion. Be that as it may, it probably will please generally, without appearing to have the potentialities of a striking musical comedy hit.

David Butler directed from a screenplay by Harry Tugend and Jack Yellen based on a story by Gene Towne, Graham Baker and Gene Fowler. The dances, in the traditional Bagdadian mode, were staged by Sammy Lee, and Gordon and Revel supplied the music.

In support are Tony Martin, who sings love songs to June Lang, as the sultan's daughter; Roland Young, as the sultan; Louise Hovick, not yet in actress, as the sultana, and Douglas Dumbrille, as chief villain.

The dialogue and situations, built for the most part about a play on the New Deal and the current American system, is amusing in part, and too forced in others. Whether it will meet with complete approval of New Dealers is something that cannot be foretold.

Settlement Reached In Para. "Strike"

ciples for the adjustment of old contracts and the negotiation of new ones by the Paramount sales force and its exhibitor accounts individually. Paramount has insisted throughout upon the right to treat the exhibitors' complaints on an individual basis.

Under the basic agreement, Paramount will abandon its claim to the right to examine the books of its exhibitor accounts to determine profits, or "split" on percentage bookings. The agreement also provides solutions for the questions involving the disposition to be made of the Paramount pictures which have been "shelved" by the exhibitors since Aug. 1, when the "strike" was put into effect, and for the dispute over the non-delivery of the six features which the exhibitors claim were included under last season's contract.

Although neither the company nor the exhibitor representatives would comment on the solutions for the last named matters, MOTION PICTURE DAILY learned that a cancellation privilege will be allowed by the distributor in disposing of the question of the "shelved" pictures in the course of negotiations with its individual accounts. It was also learned that the exhibitors will relinquish their claim to a number of the six features which were undelivered on last season's contracts, but will receive adjustments on certain of these pictures which were either completed or advertised for delivery prior to Aug. 1.

Paramount also agrees to sell its new season product to "striking" exhibitors either outright or on percentage.

A statement issued by the exhibitor committee following the conference declared that "It was agreed that the question of buying and selling was to be one of equity and no set formula was to be applied for all exhibitors." The same statement added that Paramount declared that it was "primarily interested in having satisfied customers and equitable contracts."

The litigation in connection with the "strike" will be abandoned by both sides. The "shelved" pictures in the Philadelphia area include eight to 12 Paramount features, the bi-weekly newsreel releases since Aug. 1 and numerous short subjects.

The exhibitor representatives at the conference included Abe Sablosky and Charles Segall of the U. M. P. T. O., in addition to Pizor. Paramount was represented by Austin C. Keough, vice-president and secretary; Neil F. Agnew, vice-president in charge of distribution, and J. J. Unger, eastern and southern division sales manager.

The exhibitors' statement concluded with the hope that "the various questions raised by the exhibitors will be satisfactorily adjusted and the committee's report ratified and approved after due consideration and explanation at the next meeting of the U. M. P. T. O. of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware."

Pizor said that if Tuesday's meeting approves the agreement it probably would not be necessary for the committee to return for further conferences with Paramount. He said he was issuing an invitation to all interested exhibitors to attend Tuesday's meeting. Other territories in which "buyers' strikes" are in progress are Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Los Angeles, Pittsburgh, Boston, Ohio and Indiana. It is anticipated that most of these territories will be represented at Tuesday's meeting.

Report Payne Plans Appeal From Disbarment by F.C.C.

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.—Indications here are that Commissioner George H. Payne, debarred by the F.C.C. from participating in the trials of Attorneys Paul Segal and George S. Smith on charges of unprofessional conduct, will file an appeal from the commission's action. It is stated that Payne will confer with his personal attorneys over the weekend to determine what avenues are open to him.

The commission has been engaged since last Tuesday in developing that Segal and Smith made use of dummies in their activities before the F.C.C. and it is expected that several days will be required for commission counsel to complete this line of testimony. Today's interrogations covered station applications from Minnesota and Rhode Island which had been pressed before the commission by the two attorneys.

While Payne expressed resentment over the Commission's action and asserted he would file his own report on the case independently of the other members, he is expected to side with McNinch in efforts to eliminate abuses in the F. C. C.

Payne has recommended a "housecleaning" in the broadcasting field. He suggests that radio stations be taxed on the basis of the watts they use, saying they now receive "the most valuable concession in the world for nothing." He has also asked for a general raise in standards of radio programs, particularly of children's programs.

WDGY to Mutual as 74th Network Unit

WDGY, Minneapolis, has signed with the Mutual network, making the 74th station in that hookup. WDGY operates a daytime power of 5,000 watts, and a night power of 1,000 watts until local sunset.

Film Talk Programs Must Get Approval

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 22.—Don Gilman, head of operations for NBC on the west coast, today issued an order stating that any future contracting for film gossip commentators, either as sustainers or on a sponsored basis, must have the approval of Lenox R. Lohr, NBC president, before they may be booked. Gilman declared that Lohr desires to keep down the number of such programs on NBC.

J. Vance Babb, manager of NBC's press department in New York, reported last night he was unable to reach Lenox R. Lohr or other NBC officials for comment on the above statement.

A check shows that the sponsored film commentators now heard over NBC channels are Sid Skolsky, Jimmy Fidler and George Fischer, the last named currently substituting for Walter Winchell. Film commentators now broadcasting over NBC networks on a sustaining basis are Elza Schallert and Alistair Cooke.

Ascap officials stated here yesterday that the organization's attack on the constitutionality of Florida's anti-Ascap legislation would not be filed with a Federal statutory court in that state until a decision has been handed down by one of the statutory courts for Montana, Washington or Nebraska. Tests of the constitutionality of anti-Ascap legislation have been heard by the courts in those states, but no decisions have been rendered yet.

Ascap plans a test of the Tennessee law later this year.

At the same time the Appellate Division is expected to place motion of Foy Prod. on "Tomorrow's Children" on the November calendar. Foy Prod. sought to have Supreme Court Justice Francis A. Sepia Tinting Bridges Gap Of Color, Black and White HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 24.—Reaching back into his memory and his extensive knowledge of film printing, John Nickolaus, superintendent of photography and laboratory head of M-G-M, with apparent success has bridged a gap between black and white and color on the screen.

Nickolaus is credited with having concluded that it would be a good idea to "give them a little something extra in a picture" which would be "in no sense in competition with Technicolor or the other color processes," and the result is "sepia platinum."

Audiences saw the sepia tint-tone process in "The Good Earth" first. Then they saw it in the opening and closing sequences of "Maytime" and a few scenes of "Wee Willie Winkie"

ITO Drive to Discard Games Seen Failure

Efforts of the I.T.O.A. to round up local exhibitors to discontinue games and giveaways Dec. 1 will not materialize, it was learned over the weekend. Two independent circuits with a representation of 60 theatres have been approached by the I.T.O.A. to drop games, but are understood unalterably opposed to the idea.

One independent circuit head has stated that he will not eliminate games and will conduct his business the way he sees fit and not according to ideas proposed by an exhibitor organization. The second exhibitor has stated that as long as games and giveaways attract people to his group of theatres he will not do away with them.

According to the I.T.O.A. plan every exhibitor in the local territory must curtail the practice in a concert-

Five Areas to Have Members At MPTO Meet

Reliable indications over the weekend were that five of the seven territories outside Philadelphia in which exhibitors' "buyers' strikes" are in progress will send representatives to the special meeting of the U.M.P.T.O. of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware in Philadelphia tomorrow to obtain a detailed account of the basic principles agreed upon in New York on Friday for the settlement of the "buyers' strike" in the Philadelphia territory.

If tomorrow's meeting there ratifies the settlement principles the same terms will be available to the other striking territories. The fact that all of the seven other territories may not be represented at the meeting does not indicate that those territories are not interested in effecting a settlement

Deal on Chase Fox Holdings Gets Setback

Seen in Tally's Plan to Press FWC Action

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 24.—Long-standing negotiations for the purchase of the majority of the common stock in 20th Century-Fox now held by Chase National Bank meets another setback in the reiterated intention of T. L. Tally and the Corbar Corp. to press their action to set aside the Fox West Coast bankruptcy on grounds of fraud.

For many months, Joseph M. Schenck, Darryl F. Zanuck, William Goetz and other interests identified with 20th Century-Fox have been awaiting final clarification of this situation before proceeding with their deal for the stock acquisition.

Upon his recent return from Europe, Schenck, in reply to a question advanced by shipnews reporters in New York, stated the chief obstacle to consummation of the transaction was this suit. Tally and the Corbar Corp. have been pressing the litigation for months. A lower court held against them and on Oct. 11 a rehearing sought before the United States Su-

Kuykendall Attacks Doubles in Portland

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 24.—Double bills were scored by Ed Kuykendall, president of the M. P. T. O. A., on his arrival here in the course of a tour of the country. "We deplore the double feature system and realize it is bad for the industry," Kuykendall said.

The idea originated in an effort to meet the competition of theatres with stage shows, he said, "but it spread like an influenza epidemic." He voiced the prediction that duals soon would be eliminated. Kuykendall conferred here with Ted Gamble, manager of the J. J. Parker Theatres, and other operators. He went from here to Seattle.

"False Shame" was viewed originally by one of the censor staff reviewers and then by Esmond, before it was barred. Jewell took an appeal, with Henry Pearlman of New York as attorney.

No indication was given as to whether Jewell will bring the case to the Appellate Division, as was "Ecstasy." It was believed that the impending decision on "Ecstasy," expected shortly, will serve as a precedent in guiding producers either to continue litigation or accept the decision of the censor as final.

Seventeen film critics replied to M-G-M's request for suggestions and criticisms on the content of short subjects and a number of them presented the problem to their readers with the result that Fred Quimby, in charge of the shorts department, feels valuable information has been received.

Loew theatre managers also cooperated and offered passes to those presenting the best letters.

General interest was manifested in travel shorts. Some expressed the opinion these should be dramatized instead of simply narrated. Others criticized the fact that managers often advertised the shorts program as "and selected shorts."

Newspapers in Indianapolis, Harrisburg, Houston, Baltimore, Dayton, Richmond, Akron, Dallas and other spots cooperated.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Borrowing Trouble"

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 24.—Again using the familiar "Jones Family" principals and introducing a promising new juvenile actor, Marvin Stephens, but employing a more intimately appealing motivation, "Borrowing Trouble" maintains the entertainment and showmanship standard of previous episodes in the domestic life series.

The plot revolves about what happens to the Joneses when problem youth Stephens becomes Georgia Ernest's chum. While there is sufficient romantic content, in which Shirley Deane and Russell Gleason are featured, and no lack of homey human comedy, the main factor is light drama. It takes a lot of urging to convince Jey Prouty that Stephens is not a bad boy and that he would be a suitable companion for young Ernest. But when his resistance is conquered, circumstantial evidence makes it appear that Stephens is a participant in the robbery of his drug store. With the audience kept cognizant of all incidents, compounded suspense that makes for a suggestion of persecution and pathos carries the story to a point where Prouty and Russell Gleason are certain of the lad's innocence and put into motion the chase machinery that leads to the capture of the real robbers and the establishing of Stephens' innocence all around.

As usual, Prouty, Spring Byington, Florence Roberts, Gleason and the younger family members, June Carlson, Ernest and Billy Mahan, give well-etched performances. Quality is added to the entertainment value of the story by the work of Cy Kendall, Howard Hickman, Wade Boteler, Andrew Tombes and Joseph Downing, and George Walcott and Dick Wessell, who are the hoodlum trio. Under Max Golden's production guidance and Frank Strayer's direction, the original screenplay evolved from the Katherine Kavanaugh characters by Robert Chapin and Karen DeWolf establishes "Borrowing Trouble" as desirable family entertainment and a worthy successor to earlier numbers in the series.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Without Warning"

(Warners)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 24.—"Without Warning" is a gripping mystery story, the tempo of which is aided by excellent photograpny in subdued tones and bits of comedy. It brings Boris Karloff to the screen again without fantastic makeup to frighten children. Bryan Foy produced the picture, which will satisfy mystery fans in all particulars.

Supporting Karloff, who has the role of a former convict imprisoned falsely and seeking revenge, are Marie Wilson, Eddie Craven, Eddie Acuff, Regis Toomey and others. The suspense continues to the final fadeout under the crisp direction of John Farrow. The screenplay, more or less formula style throughout, was written by Crane Wilbur from the Ralph Spencer Zink play. L. William O'Connell draws the credit for the photography.

Although a title card flashes on the screen before the start of the picture to warn that the persons, the story and the institutions in the screenplay are fictious, the locale of the story is at an island barracks of the Army. As Craven brings his bride of a few hours, Miss Wilson, to the island in violation of Army rules, a murder is committed. They discover the body and, amid the prescribed mechanics of introducing numbers of suspects, about eight persons are shown as the possible criminals. Karloff, as the former convict exposed in the investigation by an intelligence officer, is arrested, but eventually is cleared, with the exposure of the real culprit, who was trying to take over the apparently profitable gun-smuggling business of the murdered man.

Running time, 56 minutes. "G."

of the country they happen to be. It is unlikely that they will be called.

The sessions here are expected to take from three to four days. One of the plans lined up provides for English financing, two others for American money. One of the American companies is reported to be Hemphill, Noyes & Co., but sources close to the situation will not confirm or deny the story.

According to latest developments, Fairbanks and Miss Pickford are amenable to taking 37½ per cent in stock and the balance in cash. Chaplin is understood insisting on $2,000,000 cash. The options expire Dec. 21.

As soon as a plan is decided upon this week, notification for lifting the options will be forwarded the three selling partners in U. A.

U. A. Holding Producers

Walter Wanger is said to be continuing with United Artists on his 10-year deal, which has nine more years to run. David O. Selznick was said to be discussing an extension of his U. A. deal, which expires next year. However, other sources hold that Selznick will not remain with the company in the event Goldwyn and Korda secure control. Korda, however, may influence Selznick to change his mind, it was said.

Meanwhile, the sessions are centering in New York this week. There will be meetings in Hollywood, but probably not in connection with the current deal. Lever will go to the coast to visit the production center. He has never been to this country before. Goldwyn will leave after the opening of "Hurricane," at the Astor Nov. 9. Korda may depart for Hollywood after a week here. Rose is planning to leave about the same time.

cent of all employes. Application blanks were handed out. As soon as the required number of signatures has been secured, a delegate from the union will discuss terms with Columbia home office executives, it was stated.

Bookers from the local Columbia exchange told Flaherty, according to reliable information, that it was necessary for them to work overtime every day. Flaherty is said to have told them that it may be possible to get a 40 to 50-hour week agreement for that type of worker.

All employes will be classified. Increases of 10 per cent for all workers were assured at the meeting. As soon as one company gets the stipulated 51 per cent, another session will be called, it was stated.

A number of former Universal employes also attended the meeting.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Missing Witness"

(First National)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 24.—Apparently based on the Dewey investigations of rackets in New York and the bringing to justice of various racketeers, "Missing Witness" brings to the screen a well-woven crime melodrama in the program field. This classification is not due to the fast-moving screenplay of Kenneth Gamet and Don Ryan, nor the tempo-maintaining direction of William Clemens, but to the lack of marquee names of suitable strength to draw patrons through the turnstiles.

That should not be taken as criticism of the cast headed by John Litel, Dick Purcell, Jean Dale and Marsha Ralston. They and the other players performed capably in their roles.

After a restaurant owner repudiates his recognition of racketeers who wreck his establishment, Litel is appointed as special investigator of the rackets in the city. Purcell is his chief assistant. Jean Dale, secretary of the stock broker, Harlan Tucker, suspects that he is the head of the crime ring and tells Litel. Tucker disappears, Miss Dale is suspected of his murder, and Purcell, falling in love with her, sets out to find her. Through a trick Tucker is found and confesses, paving the way for romance for Purcell and Miss Dale.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"The Lady Fights Back"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 24.—This is a pleasant little picture strung over unfamiliar framework which accounts for a freshness that lifts it above the routine of intentionally secondary product. Kent Taylor, Irene Hervey and William Lundigan are the top names, although mention of Arthur Stringer as author—"Heather of the High Hand" was the original title—may have drawing power in some regions.

The story concerns an engineer commissioned to superintend the building of a dam in a mountain area and a girl who strives to thwart him, her parental inheritance being a salmon club patronized by wealthy men friends of her deceased father. Successful construction of the dam will destroy the stream for her purposes, she believes, and "The Lady Fights Back" by force and legal aid, to stop proceedings. Meanwhile, the two opponents fall in love. A happy ending is worked out when the engineer devises a "salmon ladder" by which the fish may continue to negotiate the stream after the dam has been completed.

It is an Edmund Grainger production, directed by Milton Carruth from a screenplay by Brown Holmes and Robert T. Shannon. The locale is such as to have enabled Milton Krasner to obtain extraordinarily effective camera results.

Running time, 61 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"In the Far East"

(Amkino)

The frontier near the Siberian-Manchukuoan border is the setting for this latest Russian film. It also turns out to be a story, quite theatrical and obviously dramatic, that has to do with Japanese spies who endeavor to wreck a projected railway. By devious methods, however, the espionage is uncovered and the audience is quite bluntly made to see how the state and its supporters triumph.

The narrative concerns the troubles brought to the engineers and geologists by Trotzskyists and their aids as the engineers penetrate the primeval forest. The story mainly concerns the rivalry between the plotters and the comrades who seek to delay and facilitate putting the road through a mountain. One faction desires to tunnel while the other advocates blasting a pass. However, a Chinese refugee from across the Amur River uncovers the plot in time and the affair concludes. The story is slow-moving and the English dialogue titles do not seem to interpret the events coherently.

ported for the corresponding period in 1936.

Receipts in the Third New York District increased from $393,838 in August to $442,546 last month, but were considerably under the $4,517,180 collected in Sept., 1936, it was reported.

Collections from box-office admissions in the Broadway District accounted for both the gain over August and the loss from last September, totaling $407,698 against $350,938 in the preceding month and $489,455 in the corresponding month last year.

Other collections included $546 from free or reduced rate admissions, against $2,651 in August; $2,582 on tickets sold by brokers, against $2,651; $555 on tickets sold in excess of box-office prices, against $498; $210 from permanent use or lease of boxes and seats, against $270, and $30,954 from admissions to roof gardens and cabarets, against $36,205.

with the distributor, it was pointed out. Southern California would have difficulty getting a representative here and the "strike" in Indiana is not as well organized as in other localities and agreement upon designation of a representative for that territory would be difficult on short notice it is believed.

The territories which are expected to send representatives are Minneapolis, Boston, Milwaukee, western Pennsylvania and Ohio. All seven, however, were advised of the settlement principles last Friday and Saturday by telephone and were urged to attend tomorrow's meeting, if possible, by Lewen Pizor, U.M.P.T.O. president.

General "Strike" Peace Likely

If the meeting approves the basic agreement it will pave the way only for the opening of individual negotiations by exhibitor accounts with the Paramount sales force.

The agreement provides that Paramount will not insist upon examination of customers' books to ascertain profits or "split" on percentage engagements; for a cancellation privilege subject to individual negotiations for the eight to 12 features, short subjects and bi-weekly issues of the newsreel which have been "shelved" by the exhibitors since Aug. 1; adjustment of contracts in connection with several of the six features claimed to have been included in last season's contracts but not delivered; outright or percentage selling of 1937-'38 product with negotiations on an individual basis, rather than in accordance with a set sales formula.

Both sides agree to abandon litigation now under way.

New Color Printer Assembled on Coast

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 24.—A new Telco color processing machine for making color prints at high speed is being assembled at the temporary quarters of the Telco Corp. It is claimed that the machine, working from any set of color separation negatives, can apply colors mechanically and deliver uniform color prints at the speed of black and white.

Robert Hoyt, president of Telco, is supervising the installation.

Sepia Tinting Bridges Gap Of Color, Black and White

were likewise sepiaed, by Nickolaus. According to the present plans of M-G-M, audiences will see many more, since M-G-M is expanding its laboratory and installing four new machines to handle the work. Thus far, M-G-M is the only studio equipped to handle the new development and plans to use the tint also on the new cartoon series, "Captain and the Kids." The additional cost is estimated at approximately one-quarter of a cent per foot.

The idea of the sepia tint-tone process is not new. It is simply the application of a still photography developing and printing process to motion pictures. It was used in the silent film days, but it failed chiefly because the high intensity projection lamps used in modern projectors quickly burned off the coating. In the silent days, the "rack and tank" method was employed. At that time, a 1,000-foot reel was cut into 200-foot segments, put through the chemicals and solutions, the segments were hung in a rack to dry, then were pasted together again.

Silent Type Had Faults

Its faults were high cost, uneven results, the deterioration of the strength of the solutions, the inconsistency of the toning, and the burning off of the coating under high intensity lamps. All attempts to tone pictures were halted by the coming of sound-on-film, because, according to Nickolaus, the chemicals required to complete the process dissolved the sound track.

Then Nickolaus, with the Society of M. P. Engineers, in collaboration with Eastman and other raw stock manufacturers, began experimenting with film which could withstand the effect of the chemicals.

A sufficiently strong film was developed about the time "The Good Earth" was completed. At that point, the late Irving Thalberg, aware of the experiments, called in his laboratory head and asked him what progress was being made. When Nickolaus told him the right film had been developed. but that the "rack and tank" developing and tinting problem was still present, and that $25,000 would be needed to build a machine to accommodate the process film in a manner similar to the machines used for black and white, Thalberg told him to go ahead.

Hard Road Traveled

A temporary machine was built and the tinting process as seen in "The Good Earth" was produced. Discouraging difficulty beset the experimenters, chiefly the fact that the chemicals dissolved the metal in the machine, causing the solutions to become tainted and coating the sepia-toned film.

Exhaustive experiment resulted in obtaining a certain stainless steel which served the purpose and, at further expense, renovations were made in the original machine. The result was the superior tinting as used in "Maytime."

The machine has been perfected as far as it is possible to go at the present time, according to Nickolaus, and is considered satisfactory. The one in use has a capacity of about eight feature length pictures a day. The process is slow and must be watched and checked continuously.

Nevertheless, M-G-M is continuing with the construction of four new machines and, although experiments are going on, Nickolaus believes that when they are completed the studio will be ready to go in for mass sepia-tinted production.

The sepia tint goes on the film in a manner almost exactly like the developing and printing of black and white film. As the process is continuous, the films are toned, washed, dyed, washed, dyed again and finally dried. The range of sepia is infinite. It can be applied to all colors in their entire range. In other words, the process is not confined to primary colors any more than to the secondary colors which have been its extent to date. However, only the soft tones are visible to the unaided eye.

The eventualities of the process are still unpredictable. The process is confined now to three major classifications, straight sepia, sepia blue and sepia blue and orange.

Delay Beatrice Test On Sunday Openings

BEATRICE, Neb., Oct. 24. — The court action filed by the American Legion seeking to have repealed the blue laws forbidding Sunday shows here has been delayed again by the opposition's successful challenge on the eligibility of District Judge Ellis. The judge is a Legion man.

After last July's special election ended in a tie vote and the county attorney ruled that the Sunday issue was lost, the American Legion filed a suit challenging the way mail ballots were counted. The votes of ten railroad men, known to have voted for Sunday shows, were declared invalid by the counting board because the election clerk had forgotten to sign them. The Legion's attorneys also declare the mail vote of a former teacher, now living in Baltimore, Md., should be invalidated on grounds she never intended to return here and thus was not a legal resident.

ed move. Major circuit executives have expressed themselves as favoring the elimination plan, but will not make a move until competitive situations drop games.

Last year, Loew's, RKO, Skouras and Century circuits abolished cash awards in the hope that subsequent theatres would follow suit. When this did not materialize, the games were reinstated. However, the I.T.O.A. is continuing its drive to do away with the practice but so far little support has been given the plan.

It was learned that two members of the I.T.O.A. will not drop games, despite the contention by the exhibitor organization that its entire membership had approved the move.

Corp. and chairman of the R. M. A. committee.

The committee had stated to the F. C. C. that before television experimentation could be successfully carried on toward the development of practical television, the whole band from 42 to 90 megacycles needed to be cleared for this express purpose. According to Murray, in assigning channels from 44 to 108 megacycles, the F. C. C. has given television companies a number of the desired channels, though some of them are so high they cannot be used for this purpose.

FCC Continues Its Probing of Lawyers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Alleged use of dummy applicants for broadcasting privileges by Paul M. Segal and George S. Smith, attorneys on trial before the F. C. C. on charges of unprofessional conduct, was further explored by commission counsel yesterday at a short session before the commission.

Presentation of the commission's case has been very slow and marked by frequent consultations between the commissioners on points of procedure which have arisen, indications being that the trial will be long drawn out.

Efforts of the prosecution so far have been confined to the linking up with the two attorneys of a number of applicants which the commission charges were dummies set up to exercise an influence over commission action on applications for new stations.

Change Governor's Time

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 24.—The time for Governor Marland's weekly 15-minute broadcast from the Capitol over the Oklahoma network will change to 6:30 P. M. every Monday from 12:30 P. M. Mondays. Officials of KTOK, over which the broadcasts originate, said the time was changed to give the Governor a larger audience. The program is sustaining.

Arrange Salutes

New Haven, Oct. 24.—Erle Wright, Loew-Poli publicity head, says every Loew town on the circuit is arranging special salutes on one or more local stations Nov. 4, in honor of the debut of the Metro-Maxwell House programs. A slogan of "Loew's all over the dial" has been adopted, and among the features already arranged for New Haven are talks by Dr. William Lyon Phelps and Mayor John W. Murphy, and orchestra and vocal selections.

Recommends Station For Mrs. Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—George H. Hill, F. C. C. examiner, has recommended that Mrs. Elliott Roosevelt, daughter-in-law of the President, be allowed to acquire control of KFJZ, Fort Worth, Tex., owned by Fort Worth Broadcasters, Inc.

Hill's report showed that the contract under which Mrs. Roosevelt proposes to purchase KFJZ called for $12,500 in cash and $45,000 in 24 quarterly installments, but placed the "total net worth" of the company on the basis of its May balance sheet at $33,981.80.

At the hearing R. S. Bishop, who controls the station, detailed Mrs. Roosevelt's financial and personal qualifications for taking over the station. Mrs. Roosevelt assured the commission that the resources and experience of her husband, now managing director of four Texas and Oklahoma stations of Hearst Radio, Inc., would be at her disposal.

Criticisms of Air Programs to Start

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 24.—A new program will start on KFWB Monday under the title of "Take the Air," in which network and local air programs will be criticized. The idea is that of Gene Inge, formerly radio editor of the Herald-Express, who will produce it.

Several sponsors have been tentatively lined up, but are holding off any actual inking until the response has been checked. Inge's plan is to have Manning Ostroff as commentator read his script in which a character billed as the "Voice of the Listener" will criticize the air shows, and the answers are to be furnished by various radio editors. First radio editor to appear on the program will be Dale Armstrong, of the Los Angeles Times. Pinky Tomlin will also be a guest, for an interview.

Tinkers Self to Court

Bristow, Okla., Oct. 24.—William G. Bond, amateur radio operator and inventor, tinkered his way into Federal Court at Dallas. He had hooked up his amateur set to the kitchen stove to send messages through the Lone Star Gas Co.'s lines from Dallas to its branch here, a F. C. C. examiner said.

"I didn't know it was against the law to use ground radio transmission and never dreamed it would go into the air," Bond told Commissioner Lee R. Smith.

Communications commission officials said Bond did not have a license and that the hookup interfered with radio programs. Smith released the inventor on his own recognizance to appear in Federal Court at Dallas Oct. 25.

"How to Get the Most Out of Life"

Governor Fred P. Cone of Florida scarcely read 50 words of his script Thursday morning before he went into a spiel detailing the abundant crops and agricultural possibilities, the population, the scenery and the climate of his home state. Governor Cone said all this while introducing Mrs. Emily Post, who is being sponsored by a $300,000 industry which spends $500,000 a year maintaining the Citrus Fruit Commission sponsors of this program for its 30,000 fruit growers.

Mrs. Post's part of the program promises to be interesting at a future date when she can really hit her stride with problems that will interest the woman at home. Yesterday she managed an entertaining start answering such queries as "Should a man and woman go on a weekend trip unchaperoned?" Let the female in the case use her own judgment and let what her neighbors will think be her guide, said Mrs. Post.

The program is to be heard on Tuesday and Thursdays from 10:30 to 10:45 A. M. Ruthrauff and Ryan is the agency.

RCA Communications Signs an ARTA Pact

RCA Communications, Inc., and the American Radio Telegraphists' Ass'n., affiliated with the C. I. O., have signed a one-year contract covering wages and working conditions for 1,000 employes in the U. S. and Hawaii. The contract is the first ever signed by RCA Communications with a labor union.

The contract provides for wage increases of from three to 10 per cent, a 42-hour week, two weeks' vacation with pay for those employed from one to five years, three weeks for those employed from five to 10 years, and four weeks for those employed more than 10 years; time and a half for overtime, double time and a half for work on holidays, and union recognition. The wage increases are retroactive to July 1.

Edwin P. McGrady, labor relations executive for RCA, and Mervyn Rathborne, president of A. R. T. A., negotiated the contract.

WCAU Signs With Union

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—A new two-year contract has been signed by 18 technicians at WCAU. The new contract which will net the technicians a seven and a half per cent pay increase resulted from negotiations between Dr. Leon Levy, station president, and Local 28 of the A.C.A. In addition, Levy agreed to withdraw an application for a permanent injunction restraining the union from picketing and branding the station unfair. The new pact provides for a 44 hour, five-day week and establishes minimum salaries of $46 to $69 weekly and sets up arbitration machinery.

Delegations to Attend UMPTO Meet Today

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 25.—After telephone conversations today with the seven territories affected by the Paramount "buyers' strike" Lewen Pizor, president of the U. M. P. T. O., said he expected out of town delegates to attend tomorrow's ratification meeting. The attendance will depend largely upon plane and train schedules.

Pizor said he had been assured all the territories affected would follow the Philadelphia lead.

"I think we have reached a sane, sensible conclusion to the matter," Pizor said. "We have agreed upon a compromise based on business common sense that will leave no scars or bitter feeling. The conclusion of the affair, we think, marks a step forward in distributor-exhibitor relationships and will set a precedent

China Attendance Is 40% Normal—Britton

Attendance at the film houses in the six leading cities of China is 40 per cent of normal, according to Leon Britton, general manager of Peacock M. P. Co., distributors of RKO product in China, with headquarters in Shanghai. Britton is here on business and expects to return next month.

He reports that China has 180 theatres wired for sound. Admission to first run houses runs from 60 cents to $2 in silver Mex., equal to about 17 to 60 cents in American money. No double bills are run in the first run houses, Britton said.

"Ali Baba" Grosses $33,000 in 3 Days

"Ali Baba Goes to Town" played to 66,792 persons over the weekend and garnered $33,000 in the three days at the Roxy. Indications are that the picture will finish the first week with $53,000. The eleventh week of "The Firefly" at the Astor got about $5,000, while the second final week of "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" at the Rivoli ended with $12,500.

Spokesman Foresees Selznick Switch If U. A. Control Shifts

An official spokesman for David O. Selznick stated flatly yesterday that the producer will not remain with United Artists if the option now held by Samuel Goldwyn and Alexander Korda for control of the distributing company is exercised. Selznick will remain here until he makes a new deal, probably in two weeks.

Such control, he added, in Selznick's opinion would place him in what was described as a position of "subordination" to the controlling producers. This, it was stated, Selznick would refuse to countenance.

Negotiations with other distributors admittedly are under way regardless of the outcome of the U. A. option situation, this spokesman declared. He said for Selznick that the producer was mapping his future plans and paying little heed to the Goldwyn-Korda negotiations. Of prime consideration in Selznick's plans is an intention to maintain the identity of Selznick International. An effort likewise was made to convey the impression that he was considering picking up the option with John Hay Whitney's continued backing in the event the current dickers fail. At the same time, it was suggested that the chance that Selznick would remain with U. A. was an "outside" one.

"Zola," "College," "Wife" And "Wedding" Takes Best

"The Life of Emile Zola," "Life Begins in College," "Double Wedding" and "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" were the top-ranking pictures at the first run box-offices of the country's key city theatres during the past week.

"The Life of Emile Zola" took top money at the Earle in Washington, where $23,000 brought it a second week at the Metropolitan; held to a strong third week at Warners' Lake in Cleveland; was strong in a second week in Seattle and continued first run for a third stanza. "Life Begins in College" took the lead at the Tower in Kansas City with a strong $10,500; led at the Alvin, in Pittsburgh, where it grossed the third largest figure in the history of the house and was held over; was good

Release Index Is Adopted on Screen Titles

MPPDA Board Approves De-Freezing Plan

The creation of a "release index" to facilitate the "de-freezing" of registered titles after they have remained unused for a period of four years was approved yesterday by the board of directors of the M. P. P. D. A. at its adjourned meeting.

Under the new plan original titles of pictures which have been produced, if not placed on a reserve title list, become available to others than the registrant after a period of four years. The reserve list is limited to 250. Thus, the owner of original titles may retain the permanent rights to a maximum of 250 such titles by placing them on the reserve list, but all titles over and above that number go on the new "release index" and, four years after the calendar year in which the title was used on a released picture, it becomes available to others. The release index, which will be compiled immediately, will contain the titles of every picture ever produced in this country.

Copyrighted titles derived from books and plays if used on a picture without change, remain the exclusive property of the registrant. In addition, producers are permitted to retain exclusive rights indefinitely to 100 original titles which have not been used on produced pictures. The latter provision has been in effect for the past 10 years.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

EUROPE in the days of Napoleon's glory and the love affair between Bonaparte and the Countess Walewska. That seemed like a tall order to sit through beginning 10:15—and promptly—on a Monday, of all mornings. Yet a Garbo picture comes along infrequently. A Garbo film with Charles Boyer, remembering "Mayerling," is even a less common event. Lurking well up front, too, were those persistent reports that this latest roar from Leo was in the $3,000,000 and more negative class. Fourthly and even closer to the head of the list was the realization, sometimes vaguely applied, that part of this job was to keep in touch with Hollywood, its good and its bad efforts. Thus, we went. . . .

"Conquest" is completely praiseworthy on many counts. In its background is a war-torn Europe, neatly ground and being ground under the iron heel of Napoleon. It clanks with sabers and is beribboned with epaulettes and curtseys. But always in the foreground is the love story of the man, not the emperor, and the lovely countess who goes to him as a sacrifice for Poland's freedom from Imperial Russia and remains, as this version has it, the vital love influence down the years to St. Helena and banishment. . . .

We suppose the accolade for acting honors will go to Boyer. Certainly, his interpretation of the crafty, ambitious, sometimes mad-like mortal who sees a cowering continent at his feet, is a characterization definitely touched with magnificence and great skill. Boyer gives physical appearance to the handed-down conception of Napoleon—the slightly bulging stomach, the hump in the shoulder, the Bonaparte hat, the clenched fist behind the back, the unruly shock of hair sneaking down on the forehead. But he does more. He makes the character a living and a live one—torn by affairs of state, bedeviled by the inordinate fire for a dynasty which led to the marriage with Marie Louise of Austria, alternately soft and enraged, dictatorial and overbearing. His notable endeavor also comes along to remind others and us of the once firm conviction that it was Paul Muni for "Zola" who inevitably must win the Academy's award for the highest in histrionics this year. No longer is this so completely assured, now that Boyer has played Napoleon. . . .

Then, and very much indeed to be considered, is Miss Garbo. We should remove the barriers sufficiently long to tell you that, for us, she can do no wrong. It was Dick Watts when he was reviewing films for the New York Herald-Tribune, who once wrote any Garbo film was better than no Garbo at all. In that we concur to the hilt. While this corner, from time to time, has argued with Metro over what it has done with Garbo, never has it had any verbal turmoil with this distinguished actress. She is always good, although she is sometimes better. For "Conquest," superb is the word. As closely perhaps as anyone of the opposite sex can divine it, she epitomizes woman at her sincerest, her most understanding, her most self-sacrificing. This and more she conveys brilliantly in the subdued mood which is the keystone of her deep and emotional performances. Because she does and because, also, the Walewska role keeps her in the background and Boyer down front, where the spotlight of dramatic attention the more easily can pick him out, the intelligence of her acting makes her stand forth as formidably and as proudly as a dazzling beacon surmounting a lofty and inaccessible mountain peak. . . .

In the last few years, Metro has been selecting for her the type of vehicles usually combed out for tragediennes. "Conquest" is fitly in that group. It is consequently stamped from beginning to end as the sort of entertainment in which the gum chewers will evince little or no interest. But Garbo will again entrance her admirers. The Boyer fans will find him present in copious footage and in worthwhile footage endowed with fine handling by Clarence Brown. "Conquest," in a word, is an endeavor which will make the scoffers of the Hollywood scene less strident in their criticism. It will cause them to pause and probably to reflect that their barbs here find themselves dulled in their impact with distinguished enterprise. . . .

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Look Out, Mr. Moto"

(20th Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—In reaching for the fantastic and the bizarre, with which are compounded the appeal of J. P. Marquand's fiction character, "Mr. Moto," participants in the present fabrication have picked up, possibly in error, the incredible and the impossible which used to be staple ingredients of the serial or chapter play. They have thus limited the effectiveness of the entertainment to the very young, or very immature, and this reporter regrets to mention that his 11-year-old preview companion had a hard time convincing herself that it was, as she wished to believe, a picture well stayed up for on the night before a school-less Saturday.

The names available for marquee display are Peter Lorre, Rochelle Hudson and Robert Kent. What they do in the picture is as hard to tell in swift synopsis as it was hard to figure out in slow revelation. Lorre, as Mr. Moto, is posing as an archeologist in deep Africa when Miss Hudson parachutes down from her self-fired plane while free lance cinematographer Kent points his camera. They become more or less willing guests of a tribal potentate and all sorts of queer things happen, such as feats of magic, loosing and shooting down of carrier pigeons, before it turns out that Lorre and the girl are secret agents here to prevent a revolution planned by the high priest, which they do with much machine gunning and bloodshed. The romantic angle is very indistinct.

Willis Cooper and Norman Foster wrote the original story, Lou Breslow and John Patrick the screenplay, with Norman Foster also directing. It is a Sol M. Wurtzel production.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Federal Bullets"

(Monogram)

A new twist to a G-Man story is offered in "Federal Bullets," but it does not quite seem to jell. Perhaps the performances of the principals are the cause. Conversation gives way to action and theatrical business and many stock situations of the unimpressive variety pervade the film. It should have fair acceptance with audiences in the lesser houses, or fit adequately on a double bill.

It is revealed in early sequences that Effie Tilbury is the master mind of underworld law sidestepping. Milburn Stone, a Federal agent, is assigned to bring her pseudo humanitarian outfit in. He gets himself involved in the organization and shortly learns of the false front she has erected to cover up her clever court maneuvers. Much of the story concerns her efforts to release Mattie Fain from a murder charge. When he is soon to be executed she engineers his escape, quite cleverly. The action starts at that point. Stone, however, is prepared and soon after the gang is captured following a noisy gun battle. Terry Walker serves as a romantic foil for Stone. The fadeout reveals Fain to be Miss Tilbury's wayward son.

The screenplay is by Karl Brown, who also directed. The idea for the picture was taken from the novel by Major George Fielding Eliot. The support includes Selmer Jackson, William Harrigan, Warner Richmond, Betty Compson and Helen MacKellar.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

in a second week at the Allen in Cleveland, and was a smash in Cincinnati.

"Double Wedding" was good for leading figures in Philadelphia, Cincinnati and San Francisco, while "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" turned in handsome grosses in Denver and Indianapolis.

In Washington, "Dead End" was strong at the Columbia, behind "The Life of Emile Zola." "Stage Door," dualled with "Bulldog Drummond Comes Back," was good for $11,600 at the Mainstreet in Kansas City, over par by $3,600. "Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938," on a dual bill, was top in Milwaukee, where "The Bride Wore Red" with "My Dear Miss Aldrich" was the only other bill to better average.

"Stage Door," dualled with "Fight for Glory," was good in Denver, while "Stella Dallas" held up well in its third week at the Broadway. Detroit was led by "Lancer Spy," aided by Buddy Rogers on the stage of the Fox, where the bill went $2,600 over average. "High, Wide and Handsome" had the assistance of Ina Ray Hutton on the stage of the Michigan there in its strong gross.

New Haven Quiet

New Haven theatres were weak, "The Bride Wore Red," plus "My Dear Miss Aldrich," reaching par at Loew's Poli. A stage show in addition to "This Way, Please" gave the Earle the top Philadelphia gross, while "The Prisoner of Zenda" with Horace Heidt on the stage, did well. "Heidi" was good at Warners' Hippodrome in Cleveland, grossing $13,900.

In Cleveland, where "Double Wedding" and "Life Begins in College" were the leaders, "Dead End" was fairly strong in a repeat engagement. "Lost Horizon" and "100 Men and a Girl" came close to doubling par in Minneapolis, the former at the Orpheum and the latter at the Century. "Something to Sing About," with a Major Bowes unit on the stage of the Oriental in Chicago, took the top gross, while "The Prisoner of Zenda" went $6,700 over average at the Chicago there.

"Heidi" was the only film to show any strength in Oklahoma. San Francisco had a dull week, outside of the gross of "Double Wedding" at the Warfield, where it was dualled with "On Such a Night." "Stage Door" was the only other film strong at the box-office, doing $18,500 at the Golden Gate. "That Certain Woman," on a dual with "Saturday's Heroes," took the top spot at the Brandeis in Omaha, while "Danger, Love at Work" was the only film besides the leader, "Wife, Doctor and Nurse," to better average in Indianapolis, taking $8,600, aided by a stage show, at the Lyric.

A large turnout is expected tomorrow when the specific terms of the agreement will be given members for ratification.

Neil F. Agnew, Paramount vice-president in charge of distribution, leaves for Philadelphia this morning to confer with the company's branch office officials there. It is believed that Agnew will explain to the Paramount exchangemen the policies to be followed in settling old contracts and negotiating new ones in the event the principles agreed upon in New York, Friday, for settlement of the "strike" are accepted at today's meeting.

Three Denver Groups Take Over Theatres

DENVER, Oct. 25.—Three circuits have increased their holdings, six theatres having changed owners. Dave Cockrill has reopened the Washington Park as the Park, this giving him four Denver houses, one a first run, the Denham.

Fox Intermountain is now operating 63 theatres in the territory, having added the Marlow, Antlers and Orpheum at Helena, Mont., the latter house being closed. This gives Fox a total of 90 in the territory. The three houses were purchased from Intermountain Theatres.

The Grove and Riviera, Gering, Neb., have been purchased by the Midwest Amusement & Realty Co., of which W. H. Ostenberg is president. Mrs. Clara Grove, widow of B. B. Grove, sold the houses by virtue of a court order at Gering, giving her permission to do so. The group operated by Ostenberg is a part of Gibralter Enterprises, Inc., and the addition of these two houses gives the firm 32 houses, all in the Denver area.

Invents Ticket Chopper

Ralph W. Budd, director of personnel for Warners, has invented a ticket chopper which is being manufactured by Newman Bros. of Cincinnati. It has compartments which ring a buzzer in the cashier's office at intervals, and the cashier can check with her numbers to keep a record of tickets sold up to that time. The machines are being installed in all Warner theatres.

ing Dr. Clitterhouse" and "Blonde White."

Warner will sail Wednesday on the Queen Mary.

The producer conferred with Leslie Howard and said afterwards that he would make a British picture with him this year, if a story can be agreed upon.

Irving Asher, managing director for Warners' production here, will sail Nov. 17 to confer in the United States on star castings. Lloyd Bacon definitely will direct one in England.

The company will not import technicians, as Warner believes the British staff and equipment equals Hollywood's, he says.

Asher will arrange United States distribution for several current British-made films. Of five submitted, "The Perfect Crime," "Mayfair," "Melody" and "You Live and Learn" have been accepted for American showing and will be played by the Warner theatres.

The cost of next year's output is estimated at from £300,000 to £400,000.

Warner said color would be used in 10 per cent of the output and that this probably would be raised to 25 per cent in a few years.

No More Increases On Coast—Skouras

Skouras stated he will remain in town several weeks. He may return to the coast before his brother, Spyros, returns from a vacation abroad.

Price Cut in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 25.—The Midwest here has cut its admission from 55 cents to 40 cents top at night, following the example of the Criterion which made the same 15-cent reduction early this summer, according to George Henger, Standard Theatres city manager.

The cut at the Criterion proved so popular with the public, Standard decided to lower the Midwest admission to the same level. First runs here are getting 40 cents at night in three spots, 35 cents in a de luxe suburban, and 25 cents at a downtown double bill house.

Lina-Principal to Ask for Judgments

Both sides in a suit brought by Lina Pictures Corp. against the Principal Film Exchanges, Inc., will ask Justice Edgar J. Lauer in the N. Y. Supreme Court today for a summary judgment instead of waiting for the case to go to trial. Lina Pictures is asking for the return of approximately 100 prints which were given to the defendant under a contract made in 1933 in which Principal was made exclusive distributor in the metropolitan area. Damages amounting to $10,000 also were asked. Principal claims that the contract did not require the return of the film.

Revell Made Defendant

Harry Revell, songwriter, was brought in as an additional defendant in the $50,000 copyright infringement suit brought by Charles McCord in the U. S. District Court yesterday. Revell was originally named as defendant when the suit was started against 20th Century-Fox and the Robbins Music Corp. in April, but a subpoena was not served upon him until last week.

McCord is suing because of alleged infringement of his song, "I'll Always Remember Ronkonkoma," in the song, "Goodnight, My Love" which was heard in the picture, "Stowaway." Mack Gordon was also named as a defendant, but has not yet been served. Besides damages, a permanent injunction and an accounting of the profits are asked.

Miss Davis claimed that her book, "An Authentic History of the Ku Klux Klan," was infringed in "Gone with the Wind."

Indianapolis Firm Loses Review Plea

Artists, 20th Century-Fox, Vitagraph and Educational Film Exchanges, against which the company has an anti-trust suit pending.

The amusement company brought action, alleging that the respondents had engaged in an unlawful conspiracy in restraint of interstate commerce by which they forced it to pay higher prices for films, and, by forcing it to take inferior pictures, had caused its failure.

The respondents asked the court to make the plaintiff's records available, alleging that the greater part of their defense was to consist in proving that the amusement company's losses were due to causes other than their acts.

Force Return of Film

AKRON, Oct. 25. — An injunction forcing the city to return "Sex Madness" to the State Theatre and restraining Mayor Lee D. Schroy and Police Chief Frank Boss from interfering with the operations of the theatre was granted here by Common Pleas Judge Frank H. Harvey to John H. Romweber, theatre owner. The injunction also forbids officials to revoke the license of the theatre pending a final hearing on the case.

TAMPA, Oct. 25.—Mrs. R. E. Dorman of Gainesville, Fla., has brought suit against the Sparks circuit for $1,000, alleging refusal of the management to pay her a Bank Night award, when she claims she appeared "within a reasonable time." Two similar previous suits were settled.

Depositions Halted In Anti-Trust Case

Friday for several weeks to permit the preparation of stenographic records of the testimony introduced up to that time, it was agreed yesterday by attorneys associated with the case.

Up to yesterday, 350 exhibits had been offered in evidence here, largely comprising contracts made by the defendant distributors with the defendant circuits. No witnesses were heard at yesterday's session. The plaintiff charges inability to obtain any run of product of the distributor defendants for its theatres in seven situations. Triple damages of $2,100,000 are sought.

tax act. Margiotti asks the court to dismiss the proceedings at the cost of the plaintiff companies.

Margiotti says that the chain stores, theatres and service stations are different from stores conducted by individuals, denies that the act is unconstitutional and claims that no irreparable damage will result to the companies by the enforcement of the act. He says, however, that firms have no adequate remedy at law except by equity.

More G. B. Additions

More additions have been made to the G.B. sales staff. They are: Mel Levenson, Indianapolis; Harry Stern, Los Angeles, and Sam Oshry, Cincinnati, booker promoted to salesman.

Review Refused on Ruling in FCC Case

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The Supreme Court, denying petitions of the Eastland Co. and the Congress Square Hotel Co. for a review of a decision of the District of Columbia Court of Appeals, today held in effect that replacement of two of the three members of the F.C.C. broadcast division between the holding of hearings and the rendition of a decision did not jeopardize the validity of that decision.

In a case involving applications for facilities in Portland, Me., two of the commissioners participating in the hearings were replaced before a decision was reached, and the petitioners raised the question whether this affected the validity of a decision in which the majority which decided the case neither heard the evidence nor submitted a report.

FCC Action Against Attorneys Nears End

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The presentation of the F.C.C. case against Paul M. Segal and George S. Smith, charged with unprofessional conduct, was brought close to a conclusion today with indications that the respondents will begin presentation of their defense tomorrow.

The commission counsel today continued his exploration of applications for broadcasting facilities in which the two attorneys were concerned, along the lines followed last week. Defense attorneys are hopeful of completing their side of the case this week.

Will Renew Christmas Series

Because of last year's success with its series of Christmas programs, Star Radio Programs, Inc., will on Nov. 15 release a new edition of the series, titled "Christmas Tree of 1937." The series will run in 25 scripts and will require only one man for production. The series was written by Edith Barnwell and edited by Burke Boyce, for eight years continuity head of NBC.

Rockefeller on Air

Nelson A. Rockefeller, vice-president of Rockefeller Center, Inc., will make the first public talk on Radio City by a member of the Rockefeller family Nov. 10, when he addresses a New York Building Congress luncheon at the Hotel Commodore. His address will be broadcast over WEAF from 1:15 to 1:30 P. M.

New Shows on the Air

"Children's Corner"

George Henry Payne, F.C.C. commissioner, recently unburdened himself of some highly uncomplimentary remarks anent children's programs in radio and we concur most heartily in what the commissioner said. We except, however, and we are quite positive Payne does, too, the "Children's Corner," presented thrice weekly over CBS by Dorothy Gordon.

"Children's Corner," with Miss Gordon as mistress of ceremonies, is eminently suited to childish ears in that it eschews the sophisticated songs and palaver heard on too many other "juvenile" shows. Which makes our reference to this show Sept. 16 last most unfortunate, for we chronicled then that we heard children singing currently popular tunes. It was unquestionably another children's program to which we had tuned inadvertently.

Last night Miss Gordon sang "Make Believe Land," written especially for her by the late Henry Hadley; a Norwegian tune titled "Paul on the Hillside," and, as her story, she offered a Hans Christian Andersen tale, "The Flying Trunk." Hers is not a particularly flattering voice, but she does work indefatigably and selects her material wisely.

"Adventures of Charlie Chan"

Selling this program to the audience that has been made ready by the presentation of this highly entertaining fictitious character will be an easy matter for the Stokely Co. which sponsors for its own brand of tomato juice.

The initial installment of the transcribed series started things off in the approved manner. Charlie Chan is enjoying the first day of his vacation at home with his family and jousting verbally with his son. The dissection of familiar slang by the oriental ace of the Honolulu police has its own sly humor. About to dine, Chan is called on the telephone by his superior at headquarters and informed about a mysterious call from a waterfront hotel by a Deacon Jessup. Chan goes to the address, finds Jessup dead and is off to locate the causes of his death, whatever they may be.

The program is heard Monday through Fridays from 5:15 to 5:30 P. M. over WOR-Mutual. P.

"Newsreel of The Air"

"Newsreel of the Air," new series which uses the newsreel technique by presenting personalities whose names appear prominently in the daily press, was launched Sunday afternoon with interesting results. Among its subjects were Bert Acosta, William R. Clay, of the newly-formed Anti Movie Double Feature League, Grace Freed, sister of the American boy now held captive by General Franco; Harry Meistrich, who recently achieved fame of a sort by serving as the only male juror in a panel of 12, and Mrs. Yetta Rochman, the East Side woman who has instituted a ban on babies movement in her neighborhood until the Federal Housing Commission "comes across" with an East Side housing development. Via a Chicago cut-in, Jack Redding, Chicago American reporter, and a Mrs. Clara Ludwig, who found the first ransom bill, discussed the Ross kidnapping case. We almost forgot a couple of sweepstakes winners.

This new series is eminently more entertaining than many of its prototypes, such as "We, the People." Production, despite the problems obviously involved, was nicely handled and, as a consequence, the program moved briskly. Too many such shows have a tendency to lag, due mainly to microphone inexperienced principals. Wally Butterworth and Parks Johnson, who handle also the "Vox Pop" show, rate a bow for the efficient manner in which they kept the program moving. The series is offered Sundays from 3 to 3:30 P. M. on the NBC-Red, sponsored by Energine Cleaning Fluid through Stack-Goble.

Film Gossip on Air Facing Restriction

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 25.—The recent cementing of frendship between radio and the film business appears due for a severe test over the matter of film gossip commentators who use material which occasionally borders on libel and slander.

No less than seven national and eight local and Pacific Coast air columnists are vying with one another for "exclusive" stories on the more or less private lives of the various players, and some of the material thus used has been offensive to both the studios and the players mentioned in the broadcasts.

While desirous of effecting a censorship of such news, the studios cannot afford, because of the combined wide audiences, to get into direct conflict with the air columnists, but, it is learned, will appeal directly to the heads of the networks and the stations asking them to invoke more drastically the F. C. C. ruling that the broadcasting officials themselves must safeguard against program material insofar as libel, decency and accuracy are concerned.

After much concentration, M-G-M and General Foods Corp. have finally come up with a title of the new radio hour featuring M-G-M players to be inaugurated Nov. 4. It is "Good News of 1938."

Odeon Will Build Circuit To 400, Says Silverstone

The Odeon circuit in England, which now has 320 theatres, will have 400 in three or four months, Maurice Silverstone, a director of the circuit and head of U. A. in England, declared upon his arrival yesterday on the Ile de France. Expansion plans for the circuit are continuing, Silverstone stated, but he would not divulge any information as to what theatres would be acquired or built.

Asked about reports that John Maxwell was buying an interest in the circuit, Silverstone asserted that "there isn't the slightest truth to the stories. And I should know."

Questioned about the KRS and CEA fight, Silverstone said: "There is no fight. The KRS has a desire to cut overlong programs. These are programs where two top pictures are on the same bill. This can be avoided if distributors will sell all top pictures on percentage and the others on flat rental.

"If this is done, it will be a benefit to exhibitors as well as distributors," he said. "Where there are two theatres in one locality, the plan would automatically give each exhibitor top pictures. Some exhibitors can't see it, but on the other hand a lot of others do.

"I think that the breaking up of the overlong programs will be a grand

U. A. Purchase Far from Set, States Korda

Here to Settle Details; Confers with Goldwyn

By BILL ORNSTEIN

The much discussed deal whereby Alexander Korda and Samuel Goldwyn will purchase control of U.A. by acquiring the stock held by Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford is "far from set," Korda declared yesterday on his arrival from England on the Ile de France.

"I can't say anything about it," Korda at first insisted, adding, "I came here to settle details of the deal. If they can't be set, then there won't be any deal." Korda had been ill for three weeks before he boarded the boat at Southampton. He felt much better, he said, and is anxious to take a vacation as soon as he winds up the principal business on hand.

After he debarked, Korda went into conference with Goldwyn and E. H. Lever, the latter representing Prudendential Assurance Co., principal backers of London Films, Korda's company.

Asked about the financing, the London Films head said "there have been

New Title Releases To Start January 1

The new release index of used film titles adopted by the M. P. P. D. A. board on Tuesday to "de-freeze" registered titles which have remained unused for four years after the end of the calendar year in which the picture on which they were used was released goes into effect next Jan. 1, the Hays office stated yesterday. Approximately 30,000 titles have been placed on the new release index already and more will be added between now and the end of the year.

All titles on the release index will become available to others than their original owners after Jan. 1. Copyrighted titles will not be placed on the release index, but remain the property of the owners for all time. Only used, original titles are affected.

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THERE was the time in this industry when some of the smart boys making the product in Hollywood looked the other way when accepted standards in good taste were concerned. Of that, not much need be said now except to recall the havoc which these transgressions in the name of sophistication precipitated. Then came a realization that the general good luck which has been handmaiden to the progress of the business was not kicking in with such well-established regularity. Something had to be done and something was. It took shape in what became known as the production code, an agreement voluntarily adopted by the producers themselves to organize at the source a halt on unbridled liberty in the fashioning of a world entertainment. . . .

The record since that day a few years ago when the latent teeth in the code were sharpened on the grindstone of necessity is a distinguished one. Production quality has been raised by its own bootstraps and, there is occasional reason to reflect, despite its own resistance. This, then, is one side of today's thesis. The other has to do with radio. Broadcasting has been leaping through the ether with such bounds that, as usually is the rule in industries accoutred by accident or otherwise with seven-league boots, time seems not to have been at hand to thoroughly mark the danger points. . . .

It is the fact, of course, that radio has been sensible enough to set up its own censorship in a manner not unlike the code system operating in Hollywood. Yet, the celluloid can be changed, but once any show takes the air the hurt or the harm or the entertainment or lack of it are on their way to a multitude of millions which radio itself cannot accurately diagnose. However, a question which has been creeping to the fore in the last few months, if not further back, has to do with the extent to which a reasonable censorship has been applied. The air is full of film commentators, some of them not always mindful of where to abandon the private lives of Hollywood personalities to their own devices. Good taste not only has been violated, as a consequence, but keyhole peeping in so-called reportorial enterprise has been increased. . . .

Demonstrating that in one direction, at least, this is recognized, is the current decision of NBC, for reasons not yet completely in the sunshine, that all future film commentators must be approved by Lenox Lohr, president of the system. The very fact that this control cuts through important underlings to rest finally in the hands of the head of the network is of itself significant. Officially credited is the explanation NBC wants to hold down the number of that type of aircast. We doubt that this alone is the answer. The action suggests other reasons and those reasons, we venture now, tie in with type of material. Should NBC, in fact, exercise its proposed control on the premise it advances, we urge looking beyond and over the shoulders of the offending commentators and into their scripts for deletions which not only are reasonable but very rapidly now becoming essential for radio's future good. . . .

He spent about four days here about a week ago. Then Mervyn Le Roy returned to Hollywood. It was designed, this short trip of his, to be a secret. Entirely so. And as far as Le Roy would go was to say he had been called in to talk a new deal with the Warner directorate. But Dave Selznick was in town and he has a new deal of some sort or other coming up. Sam Goldwyn had arrived, Dave Rose and E. H. Lever, the latter representing Prudential of London with a sizeable stake in London Films, were here; Korda was on his way. And thus Mervyn, while he did see and talk to the Warner board, also indulged in other conversations around the town. If you might surmise this was done largely for sweet strategy's sake, you might not be far afield. There is also to consider and to consider well how anyone could strike a new pact with the Warners with Harry playing golf in Hollywood and Jack touring Europe. . . .

The story of how well matters go with 20th Century-Fox these days of Zanuck is, of course, well known. Not so widely circulated, however, is the impression and hope, well supported to date by the figures so far this year, that the company will run close to $80,000,000 in international gross for 1937. It sounds fantastic. Yet this to remind this is a fantastic business. The low curve to which it can dip has been familiar subject matter in recent years. The ceiling to which it might soar is as indeterminate as tomorrow. . . .

Kansas City Chamber Sends Reply to Hess

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 26.—Ray T. Willette, manager of the Kansas City, Kan., Chamber of Commerce, has written to Gabriel L. Hess, attorney for the Hays organization, taking exception to some of the conclusions expressed by Hess in the latter's recent answer to the city's plea for help in obtaining first runs day and date with Kansas City, Mo.

In the letter Willette seeks "to enlighten the movie hierarchy about some of the things that have happened here in recent years that cause Kansas City, Kan., to be very much of an independent city," commented the Kansas City Kansan.

Wrote Willette: "I agree with you that Kansas City, Kan., and Kansas City, Mo., are in competition, one with the other, and by the same token these two cities are also in competition with other substantial cities in this district, such as Lawrence and Topeka," which, with other Kansas cities, play films ahead of Kansas City, Kan. "The very fact that Kansas City, Mo., and Kansas City, Kan., are adjacent to each other makes it even more imperative, if this city is to hold its trade and business and maintain its prestige as a city, that we be given an equal break."

Seymour Mayer Wins Loew's Fall Drive

District Manager Seymour Mayer took first place in the six-week fall festival advertising and exploitation campaign conducted by the Loew circuit. George Schenck of Brooklyn was second with Dominic Barreson, third. Harry Karasik's district was fourth, Maurice Seidlitz, fifth; Larry Beatus, sixth; S. H. Meinhold, seventh; William Downs, eighth; Gene Myers, ninth.

Individual theatre managers were Bernard Zelenko of the Valencia, Al Weiss, Loew's Pitkin; Edward Douglas, Loew's Kings. Oscar A. Doob conducted the drive with Ernest Emerling assisting.

U. A. Purchase Far from Set, States Korda

so many reports I don't want to talk about it." He did say, however, that Prudential is the chief backer of his film company.

"I can't say who will put up the money and I am not at liberty to say who has the money to put up."

The deal is more or less set financially, he added, but details have to be worked out. "If the deal is closed, Goldwyn, Lever and myself will make whatever financial arrangements are necessary," he said.

"How does London Films enter into the deal?" Korda was asked.

"London Films is one of the principal interests involved. Lever is acting as an adviser and a very much interested party."

"Will Prudential put up the money?"

"As I said before I cannot go into details. I cannot say anything about this."

'How long will it take before the details are set?"

"It all depends on the conversations among Lever, Goldwyn and myself. I expect the sessions to last two or three days, possibly until the end of the week."

"What plan of the three or four mentioned are you in favor of?"

Plans Still to Be Made

"We are far behind any plans. There are facts now. The fact that we are here to make a deal. It is not a question of what plan I support, for we are far behind the stage of planning."

A reporter then asked if Eagle and Dominion would participate in the financing and Korda jokingly said: "What is Eagle and Dominion?" Then he went on to say that the firm is the second largest insurance company in England and one of the backers of the Odeon circuit.

"Will you get a better break for your product in this market if the deal goes through?" Korda was asked.

"We always hope to. Despite rumors to the contrary, we are determined that there should be a British film industry. In the last 18 months 27 films have been made at Denham studios, 20 by London Films. Next year we will produce less in number, but with higher negative costs than last year. Our studios will produce more this year than last. There are six pictures in work at the same time. Among the companies working at Denham are M-G-M, 20th Century-Fox, London Films and Herbert Wilcox."

There was a brief pause while Korda took time out to order refreshments for the press.

"We are absolutely sure we'll succeed. We are sure to get a break in the American market. I admit we've made mistakes, but I believe we have passed that stage."

Korda then excused himself for not joining in the refreshments, stating that he had to be careful because of his recent illness. Then he went on:

To Release Here

"Every picture we make in London will have an American release. We will have from 12 to 15 as compared to eight last year. The new budget will range from $8,000,000 to $12,000,000. England is a very good market for American product and, likewise, the American market should get a good outlet for British films."

"What type of pictures are you aiming at?"

"I can't say definitely. There will be a variety of films. We want to have the benefit of natural backgrounds in some of our pictures. There will be four in color next year. This is an increase of one over the current program. Two of the three color pictures this season will star Merle Oberon, who has just finished one, 'Mutiny of the Mountains.'"

Queried on Stock Plan

"Is there a plan for a stock issue in the U. A. deal?"

"There is no such plan at the moment."

"Is anyone else coming over on the deal?"

"No one."

"Who will represent you in this larger picture here? Will it continue to be Emanuel Silverstone?"

"There will be no change. Silverstone will continue to be my representative."

"Will you make any product here?"

"No."

"Will Goldwyn produce in England?"

Reticent on Goldwyn

"I don't know."

"Will Walter Wanger make any films in England?"

"I can't say. I don't know."

Before Korda left for England four months ago, he mentioned that there was a possibility that Goldwyn and Wanger may produce there.

"Will you supply U.A. quota requirements in the United Kingdom? If so, will they be cheap or expensive negatives?"

"I will not make any quota films. My plans call for expensive negative costs in the future."

"Interchange of Talent"

"Is there any interchange of talent provided for in the deal, either in writing or by tacit understanding?"

That got a laugh from the producer. He wanted to know what interchange of talent meant and if there was such a thing.

"I have heard about this thing for the past 15 years. As far as I am concerned it is a question of money for my talent."

"Will you form a holding company if the U.A. deal goes through? If so, what will the name be?"

"I don't know."

"What will your production program be next year?"

"I can't say very much on my production program. It depends entirely on things worked out here at the conferences with Goldwyn and Lever."

"How do David O. Selznick and Walter Wanger stand in the arrangement?"

"I don't know. The only thing I can say is I hope they will remain with the company."

"Is the money arranged for in the deal?"

Korda laughed, put his hand inside his jacket pocket and said: "It's here," but didn't take anything out.

"You are quoted from England as saying that a City group is prepared to finance you in this deal?"

City Money Expected

"Yes, that is right. There is a City group which will put up what money is necessary." Then Korda asked what the purchase price was to pick up the options. A reporter said $6,000,000. Then Korda said, "if that's the price there is a group which is ready to put it all up if we need it."

"Are Hemphill, Noyes & Co. (Stanton Griffis is a partner of this company) in on it?"

"I don't think so."

"How long do you expect to be here?"

"About two to three weeks. I am going to try and get a vacation."

"Are you going to the coast?"

"I don't think so. I hope not."

"Is it true that you have shut down production for six months?"

Still Producing

"No. As a matter of fact we are busier now than we have ever been. We have just finished 'Divorce of Lady X' and have just started 'Over the Moon,' with Merle Oberon. This is a story by Robert Sherwood with William K. Howard directing. We have also finished what I think the biggest film ever made. It is 'Mutiny of the Mountains,' in color. For the picture we sent a unit to India to film the Himalayas in Technicolor. We may shut down for four or five weeks, as all companies do. I wish we could shut down for several months. It would give me time for a vacation."

"If the options are picked up will a reorganization of U.A. follow?"

"I can't say."

"What about the possibility of the Lehman-Atlas group providing part of the option money?"

"I don't know anything about them. Who are they?"

"Is there a possibility of a $20,000-

Executive Cargo Arrives

Alexander Korda, head of London Films, another arrival on the same liner. On the left is Maury Silverstone, managing director of United Artists (British). On the right, Emanuel, his brother and American representative of London Films. Camera work by Metropolitan Photo Service.

Just Numbers

Maurice Silverstone was handed a cablegram by his brother, Emanuel, shortly after the cutter transferred its passengers to the Ile de France at Quarantine. One of the reporters knew about the telegram in advance and asked to see it.

Maurice Silverstone obliged. The telegram was a mass of numbers.

A Boatload

The Ile de France yesterday chalked up a new record for any one group of theatrical personalities arriving on a single trip. There were 21 in all, representing all fields of the amusement industry.

Alexander Korda headed the list, which included Maurice Silverstone, Sam E. Morris, Herman Maier, Major General J. C. Harbord, Barney Glazer, King Vidor, Erik and Ludwig Charell, Jack Cohn, Lothar Mendes, Phil Reisman, J. Hayes Hunter, Marcel Hellman, Lili Hatvany, Konstantin Gorian, Bruno Frank, Julien Duvivier, Levy Straus, Mireille Balin and Arthur Reick.

000 stock issue to provide for financing production?"

"There is no such plan at the moment. I don't know anything about reports of this kind."

"Is there any truth to the report that John Hay Whitney, representing Selznick, may participate in the financing?"

"There might be. I don't know of it."

Korda was then told of stories which have been printed that Whitney was ready to buy up two of the options provided the third was exercised by Korda. He said this was news to him. After reporters had exhausted all questions, Korda thanked the men. As he was about to clear his passport regulations, the London Films head asked if there was anything else the newsmen wanted to know.

He said he could not divulge any of the details and he kept his word.

Vidor, Back, Wants To Make Film Abroad

King Vidor returned yesterday from a vacation to northern Italy, Switzerland, Germany, France and England. He had been gone since Aug. 4. He will be in town a week before leaving for Hollywood.

After studying production in France Vidor expressed himself as anxious to do a picture there and hopes that he will fulfill this desire upon the completion of his next picture on the coast. He said that in the future he will make two pictures in 18 months. He did not know for whom he would produce his next film. His agreement with Samuel Goldwyn states that if Vidor likes the script he will make the picture. His last film was "Stella Dallas."

Television Not Ready—Harbord

Major General J. C. Harbord, chairman of the RCA board, was among the vacationists returning from abroad yesterday. He spent four weeks in France and stopped over in England for a few days to look into television developments.

He was pessimistic over television progress in England, stating that it is in the same state it has always been in. "Television is not ready yet," he declared.

Lothar Mendes Here

Away from these shores for four years, Lothar Mendes yesterday returned from England to make his permanent headquarters on the coast again. He will leave in a fortnight, he said. The last picture he directed was "Moonlight Sonata," which is to be internationally released by United Artists. Previously, he had made one for G.B. and another for Alexander Korda.

Powell, Carroll Not Aboard

William Powell and Madeleine Carroll, scheduled to return from abroad yesterday on the Ile de France, were not on board, having canceled before the liner sailed from England.

thing, both for distributors and exhibitors."

Theatre building in the United Kingdom is more or less at a standstill, Silverstone added, but Odeon is going ahead as usual. There is ample financing behind the circuit to do this. Prudential and Eagle Starr, the two largest insurance companies in England, are behind Odeon. In addition there is Phillip Hill, one of the biggest financial houses in England, fin- Oscar Deutsch, he said.

Theatre business is very good and England is maintaining the high average of business it reached last year, the executive declared. Silverstone plans to remain several weeks and may go to the coast to attend the annual meeting of U. A. stockholders next month.

to succeed Harry W. Leasim, managing director of Radio Films International, Reisman stated, and no other changes are contemplated. There are no plans for British production, no expansion of offices in sight, he added. Conditions generally abroad are all right, he said.

Hellman Here to Observe

Marcel Hellman described his arrival from England yesterday as a visit to see new things being done in the theatre and in production. He plans to spend about two weeks in town and then go to Hollywood for a month. He has never visited the coast.

Hellman has last been identified with Criterion Films, which is now dormant, and which he expects to be revived shortly. He has in mind a picture by Sascha Guitry and is looking for an actor to play the leading role.

and eight to ten for the British market.

Joseph Seidelman, foreign head, is remaining in London for another month to work on deals in connection with English production plans, Cohn declared.

Asked if he had signed any talent, Cohn jocularly stated: "Louis B. Mayer beat me to it. He's got a flock of people on this boat and there's none left for us."

While in Paris and London, Cohn and Seidelman conferred with a number of the company's foreign managers. The vice-president said that business was very good in Paris and London and activity is at its peak in both cities.

Rockefeller Film Likely

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—Rufus Le Maire will leave here shortly for New York, where he will confer with George Arliss with regard to the possibility of producing a film based on the life of John D. Rockefeller.

Battalion of New M-G-M Talent Here

Sobel, Mel Heyman, Milton Weiss, Charles Cohen, Morris Frantz and Ernest Morrell. The boys experienced some difficulty tracking down Leopold Jessner, German stage and film producer. It seemed that Jessner cleared customs before the M-G-M army could get to him.

The other seven who came over were: Baroness Lili Hatvany. She is the author of "Tonight or Never" and "Love Duel." For the past year she has been writing scripts from her home in Budapest for M-G-M. This is her first trip to this country and she holds a six-month contract with options. She will remain here for a few days and then go to the coast.

Konstantin Gorian, who has appeared on the stage in Vienna for the past three years in opera, spent three weeks in London studying English before boarding the boat. He has had no experience in films.

Bruno Frank Arrives

Bruno Frank, novelist and playwright, plans to stay in New York four or five weeks before reporting to the M-G-M studios. He has a six-month contract with options. He has never done any picture work. Among the plays he has written are "Storm Over Patsy," which was produced by the Theatre Guild, and "12,000." Among his novels are "Lost Heritage" and "A Man Called Cervantes." He intends to look over the current crop of plays during his stay in town.

Julien Duvivier, one of the most prominent French film producers, said his last picture was "Carnet de Bal." He has a two-year contract. He asserted this was his fourth trip to America, but the first on a picture assignment. He has also produced 'The Grand Illusion" and "Pepe Le Moka." He will leave for Hollywood tomorrow.

Mireille Balin, prominent French actress, told MOTION PICTURE DAILY her last picture was "Femme d'Amour" for Ufa. She speaks little English and had one of her friends interpret for her. She will visit here for two weeks prior to her departure to the coast. She has a one-year pact.

Arthur Rieck, who has appeared at the Scala Theatre in Vienna, will head for Hollywood tomorrow. He said he has been on the stage for two years, has never visited this country before and has never appeared in a film. He has a six-month agreement.

Levy Straus is an assistant to Duvivier and is accompanying him coastward.

T. Hayes Hunter Here

T. Hayes Hunter, former American director and now an agent in England, was among the passengers on the Ile de France. He said he would spend about three days in New York and then go to the coast to supervise the opening of a Hollywood office. He will return to England in about six weeks.

per cent to 15 per cent. The company will not produce in any other foreign country, he said.

The new Warner theatre which is being constructed on the site of the old Daly's will be ready the first week in August, according to Morris. There is no other theatre expansion planned abroad.

Irving Asher, British production head for the company, will sail Nov. 17 on the Normandie from England, and will then proceed to Hollywood to discuss future production plans with Jack L. Warner. Morris will accompany Asher on his trip to California.

Options were taken on a number of people, Morris said, but nothing definite has been decided on bringing them to Hollywood.

Warner Coming Shortly

Warner is expected to leave England for this country in two weeks. There were no changes made in personnel abroad, Morris added.

Morris and Maier will return to England in January or February. Morris was gone six weeks visiting London, Paris and Budapest. He said business is very good in England, getting better on the Continent and also improving in France despite conditions.

Maier asserted that the Warner theatre in England will cost about $400,000 and seat 2,000. E. A. Stone of England is the architect. He was gone seven weeks.

Although he stated no further theatre expansion is being considered at the moment, the new Rhodes, a 1,400-seat theatre in Chicago, will be ready for opening Nov. 1. The new Warner house at Shaker Heights, Cleveland, seating 1,500, will be opened late next month, Maier stated.

Lost Much Weight

Morris lost 10 pounds during his stay in England. He kept away from rye bread, his wife stated.

Glazer, who was signed to a five-year producer contract by Warner in England, spent three and a half months touring Scandinavia, Czechoslovakia, France and England. He said he spent a good deal of time visiting the Russian theatre festival. He will spend about 10 days here before entraining for the coast.

Erik Charell, producer of "White Horse Inn," declared that he will begin production of the film version for Warners on the coast next spring. He added that he has a number of ideas in mind for a new show which he hopes to produce on Broadway before leaving Christmas for the Warner studio.

Edwin Morris to Coast

Edwin Morris, son of Sam E. and head of Warners' music interests, will leave for the coast Monday to assume charge of all music writers for the next six months. There is a possibility Morris will make his permanent headquarters in Hollywood, but this will be decided later.

Purely Personal

NED DEPINET and SAM DEMBOW, JR., combined for luncheon at JACK and CHARLIE'S yesterday. WILLARD MCKAY, back from the coast and about to return again shortly, was in his accustomed corner. GREGORY LA CAVA and LEO MCCAREY were chinning with some of the local critics, including DICK WATTS and HOWARD BARNES of the Herald-Tribune and BILL BOEHNEL of the World-Telegram. DANNY WINKLER of the Selznick agency was another present while JOE MOSKOWITZ, JOE PINCUS and BOB GOLDSTEIN, naturally, made up still another aggregation. EDDIE SMALL, who leaves for Savannah today to visit his mother and then journeys on to the coast, was around, having lunch with HAL HORNE with whom some sort of a deal is being talked. HORNE resigns his post with Walter Wanger Dec. 7. MCCAREY was saying he sails tomorrow on a five-week vacation abroad with no other commitment—self-imposed, by the way—than to be back in Hollywood by Christmas. This by choice.

Looking 'Em Over

"Criminals of the Air"

(Columbia)

Think nothing of the tame-sounding title. Here is a first-rate thriller. Although it follows a familiar course in the unfoldment of plot "Criminals of the Air" nevertheless will prove stimulating fare. It is a story of the Mexican border patrol and offers Charles Quigley in a virile role.

The story is one of those affairs where a gang of smugglers headed by Russell Hicks is managing to smuggle aliens over the border and the authorities are helpless to cope with the situation. Quigley comes on the scene and shortly has a plan. He is to fly a honeymoon express plane to a point across the "line" where a couple is married. While on this clue hunt he is dogged by Rosalind Keith, a newspaper woman who is after the well known story. Quigley finds a few leads, but the gang also gets a line on him and on his third flight he is taken prisoner. Miss Keith also is with him. She has stowed away on her editor's orders. Miss Keith releases him and they make their getaway with the smugglers hot on their trail. But the border patrol is lurking about and the pursuing ship is shot down. Hicks and a confrere are making a getaway in an automobile and they, too, are taken care of from the air.

These final chase scenes are thrilling stuff. The cameras were well placed and the action, shooting and airplane maneuvers are really thrilling. The conclusion has Quigley and Miss Keith taking a flight on the honeymoon express.

Good bit parts are performed by Patricia Farr, as a waitress in an airport coffee shop, and Rita Cansino as an entertainer in a cafe. The story gets under way at the outset and moves speedily along. C. C. Coleman, Jr., directed. George Meehan is responsible for excellent photography.

Running time, 61 minutes. "G."

Max Schach Is Sued On Bergner Contract

LONDON, Oct. 26.—Elizabeth Bergner and her husband, Dr. Paul Czinner, producer of her pictures, have filed suit against Max Schach, head of Trafalger Films, for the balance allegedly due under a two-picture contract the star and producer held with the producing company. Only one film, "Dreaming Lips," has been completed.

It is understood in informed quarters here that Schach has no finances available for the production of pictures on the scale on which Miss Bergner's pictures are generally made.

Ordered to List Action

Crosby George, author, was ordered to place his $50,000 infringement suit against 20th Century-Fox on the calendar for trial in December, by Justice William T. Collins in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday. Justice Collins stated that if George failed to comply with the order his action will be dismissed for lack of prosecution.

Warner Zone Heads Meet

Warner zone managers and home office theatre executives yesterday held what was described as a routine conference at the home office. Joseph Bernhard, general manager of Warners theatres, presided.

Decision Reserved On Empire Accounts

Supreme Court Judge Charles J. Dodd in Brooklyn yesterday reserved decision on a suit brought by members of the Empire State M. P. Operators' Union against Ray P. Monahan, Richard Baron and William Santasiero, officers of the organization. The complainants seek an accounting of $50,000 which they allege was contributed by 324 members in 1935 and since then supposed to have been held in escrow for certain purposes of the organization.

The complainants allege that the money was used to purchase two mortgages of $40,000 and $10,000, respectively, and that on Oct. 3, 1935, the officers authorized Monahan to deliver to a Bernard Sliashnick a satisfaction of the mortgage in consideration of $25,000. They allege that the $25,000 was not equitably distributed.

The defendants claim there is no cause for action.

Wins Esquire Amusement Case

A judgment for $7,734 was awarded to the Petroleum Heat and Power Co., Inc., against the Esquire Amusement Corp., operators of the George M. Cohan Theatre, by Justice Aaron Steuer after a trial in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday. The suit was based on a 1936 contract for air conditioning the theatre. Esquire sued for $22,965 alleging that Petroleum had failed to perform under the contract, but the deefndant responded with a counterclaim for $10,484. Judge Steuer ruled that "proof shows that each party is correct in its contention that the other did not perform" but decided, however, that money advanced by Petroleum to purchase material should be returned.

Para. Denies Gazette Charge

Paramount filed a general denial in the U. S. District Court yesterday in answer to the $50,000 libel suit brought by the National Police Gazette Corp. The plaintiff is suing for damages on the ground that showing of the Police Gazette in a scene from "Klondike Annie" caused damage to its reputation. The suit was originally started as a copyright infringement action. In its answer Paramount admitted the use of the publication but denied that such use was harmful. A dismissal with costs is asked.

Omaha Is Faced with Jam of Good Product

OMAHA, Oct. 26.—Theatre managers here are facing the problem of "too many" pictures of superior quality. They can't get them booked in.

There are only three first runs in the city and frequently money-making pictures are held over for more than a week. Consequently this city is often behind others in the showing of new films.

For instance, "Stella Dallas," released weeks ago, has yet to show here. Ditto on "The Life of Emile Zola," "Dead End," "Vogues of 1938," "They Won't Forget" and a half dozen less important "A" pictures.

Albany Club to Dance

The new territory will comprise Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 26.—The Fox Plaza, first Kansas City subsequent run which went from 25 cents to 35 cents two weeks ago, has found the increase beneficial to grosses. There has been little change in attendance. More significant, the increase at the Plaza appears to have stimulated business at the Fox Isis and Fox Warwick, 25-cent houses following the Plaza.

Philadelphia Pact Delayed For One Week

plan worked out between Paramount and the committee there was some opposition. Morris Wax attacked some items in the agreement after it had been explained by Lewen Pizor, Charles Segall and Dave Barrist. Abe Sablosky replied by saying that opposition was a reflection on the committee which had worked hard to reach a fair agreement.

After praising Philadelphia exhibitors for having "more guts" than Ohio exhibitors in waging the fight, P. J. Wood, Ohio exhibitor leader, asserted Philadelphia should not approve a plan which didn't give Ohio the same benefits. He was answered from the floor with charges that other units had not carried on the battle the way the local outfit had.

Call "Armistice"

After a three-hour discussion the sentiment of the group was that in view of minority opposition, it would be better for future peace to agree to an "armistice" period for a week instead of an immediate settlement. A motion to this effect was introduced by Charles Rappaport and seconded by Jay Emanuel. It was carried without dissent.

The terms of settlement were as follows: On the matter of six pictures allegedly on last year's contract which were held over by Paramount for the new season, two, "Souls at Sea" and "High, Wide and Handsome," are to be played as part of last year's contract at the highest percentage figure. In return, two of last year's highest percentage group already played, are to be reallocated to the lowest group, with the difference credited to exhibitors and charged against the new films. The other four films were dropped from the discussion.

Provide Arbitration Board

So far as the old pictures on last year's contract are concerned, it was generallv agreed that those which were weak or had been played out by opposition would be cancelled, though individual deals could be made for any of them. In case of dispute on these films, an arbitration board could be set up.

The time limit on old contracts was extended on pictures not yet played, including shorts. Those signing new contracts for news would not be obligated to any old releases.

The selling plan for the new season of features calls for four at 35 per cent; eight at 30 per cent, with the remainder at 25 per cent on outright buy. Paramount agreed not to insist on any examination of books and where the split percentage contract was not used before it will not be used now.

Neil F. Agnew of Paramount was in town, though not at the meeting. It is believed exhibitor leaders will confer with him today.

ITPA To Discuss Pact

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 26.—The settlement of the U. M. P. T. O. "buyers' strike" against Paramount will be one of the principal topics of discussion at the I. T. P. A. convention at the Shroeder Hotel Nov. 3.

The meeting will open with a pre-convention dinner at the Club Aztec Monday night. Business sessions and election of officers will follow Tuesday. All independent exhibitors in the territory have been invited to attend.

Neblett, attorney, and alleged that Fox West Coast Theatres, on Feb. 26, 1933, conveyed to Fox West Coast Theatres Corp. valuable and profitable properties of the former and the next day filed a petition, on behalf of its unprofitable properties, of voluntary bankruptcy proceedings.

The complaint alleges that the lessors lost millions of dollars through the disaffirming of valuable leases in the bankruptcy proceedings. Tally asks $421,510 and Corbar $419,500.

Fox in Union Deal Covering Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 26.—Fox has signed an agreement with the Theatrical Employes' Union, A. F. of L. affiliate, covering approximately 150 doormen, ushers and cashiers in 20 of its houses. The agreement calls for an approximate 10 per cent wage increase and 40-hour week.

Representatives of the Projectionists' Union, Local 164, were repulsed when they sought to stop an illustrated lecture at the men's club of the Shorewood Presbyterian Church. To their demand that a union operator be employed, Alvin E. Rutenbeck, Boys' Technical High School instructor and lecturer, declared that the meeting was private, as were the machine and pictures and that it was not being conducted for profit.

At Watertown, Wis., the Classic has engaged projectionists affiliated with the A. F. of L. with two men in a booth.

The company's objections will be covered in the supplementary letter by a provision that disputes under the contract arising here will be arbitrated in New York rather than California. The letter makes no concessions as to wages, hours or other basic contractual considerations, the guild office said. Educational has been complying with the guild contract in these respects for some time past and yesterday's agreement will permit the formal signing of a contract with the guild within the next week, it was said.

The guild, shortly, will ask Mentone Prod. and Pathe Commercial Films to sign the same form of contract as that being offered Educational, it was said.

Value of Regionals Stressed by Myers

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 26.—The value of regional conference activity in the work of Allied was stressed by Abram F. Myers, general counsel, in an address at the annual convention of the Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana in the Variety Club here today.

He cited the protection regional work in the east has given exhibitors and urged that this be duplicated in the middle west. Martin G. Smith of Toledo, president of Allied of Ohio, asked leaders of the Indiana group to participate in Ohio's convention in Columbus Dec. 7 and 8.

Discussion of tax matters had a major part in the meeting, best attended in the organization's history. Largely because of Allied's work, Indiana is the only mid-west state without a direct theatre tax. The only levy is that imposed by the state fire code. This members held not burdensome and they adopted a resolution commending the code and its benefits and praising the work of the state fire marshal's office.

Directors Elected

The following directors were named:

District No. 1, Maurice Rubin of Michigan City, V. U. Young of Gary, Alex Manta of Indiana Harbor and H. Lisle Kreighbaum, of Rochester; No. 2, I. R. Holycross of Anderson, Sam Neall of Kokomo, William Studebaker of Logansport and Leonard Sowar of Muncie; No. 3, Mannie Marcus, Harry Markun, R. R. Bair and Frank B. Vonderschmitt of Bloomington, Herbert H. Johnson of Madison, Oscar Fine of Evansville and Bruce Kixmiller, of Bicknell.

Directors will meet Nov. 2 to elect officers.

A dinner and a floor show in the Claypool Hotel followed the business session. Speakers were Governor M. Clifford Townsend, Myers, Bair, Indiana president and Bob Newhall, WLW sports commentator. The day's activities were to close with a preview of "The Awful Truth" at Loew's at midnight.

Struggle Is Seen on U.A. Canadian Sales

house for United Artists product starting with "Stella Dallas," the second attraction to be "Dead End." There is no change in the setup at Toronto and London, Ontario, where the two Loew houses in Canada have played United Artists features for years, but in various other key situations leading independent exhibitors now have the nod with respect to U. A. No reason is given for the break in relations between United Artists and Famous Players, but it is rumored that the renewal of contract hinged upon the question of first runs in Toronto and London. Alexander Korda's British productions, released in the United States by United Artists, are not involved because these pictures are handled in Canada by Regal Films, Ltd., which is controlled by N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian Corp.

AFM Will License Recording Firms

Meeting yesterday with a committee representing transcription companies the A. F. M. clearly indicated it had no intention of allowing itself to become embroiled in a series of trying sessions such as it recently underwent with network affiliates by informing the committee that the complexities of the transcription business made it impractical for the federation to attempt to draw up a trade agreement for them similar to the one formulated for the IRNA. As an alternative measure the federation said it would set up a licensing system for the transcription interests.

A licensing system would enable the union to quickly ascertain the identities of recalcitrant companies so they can be dealt with individually and promptly.

The terms of the license will be based on the 16 points submitted by the federation to the transcription interests at the beginning of the union drive to bring about a re-employment of musicians in the radio industry and will be ready within 10 days or so.

A federation spokesman informed this publication that the union "will drive those companies into line" which do not avail themselves of the license to employ union musicians. Just what this course of action would entail was not revealed.

Mason Is Named Aide To President of NBC

Frank E. Mason, vice-president in charge of station relations for NBC, has been promoted to serve as assistant to Lenox R. Lohr, NBC president. He will assume his new duties Nov. 1. Mason's new position may be considered similar to the executive vice-presidency, which has remained unfilled since Richard E. Patterson resigned shortly after Lohr became president in January, 1936.

Mason's station relations executive berth will be filled by William S Hedges, formerly manager of NBC-owned and operated stations and more recently general manager and vice-president of the Crosley Radio Corp. interests.

Keith Higgins, manager of the station relations department, will continue in that position.

Report White to Get CBS Executive Post

From an authoritative source it is reported that Paul White, currently director of special events and public features for CBS, will be awarded an executive title by the network and placed in charge of both special events and the publicity departments.

The change, however, will not affect the status of Don Higgins, who will continue in his post of director of publicity for the network.

Efforts to check this with CBS executives proved unavailing late yesterday.

LONGVIEW, Tex., Oct. 26.—James R. Curtis, president of KFRO and secretary-treasurer of the Texas Broadcasters' Ass'n is visiting stations throughout the state in the interest of the association.

The Wraps Are Off

By JACK BANNER

HOW soon will television become commercially practicable? Last November we said it was at least a decade removed, after witnessing a demonstration.

However, just a few evenings ago, RCA engineers removed the wraps again to permit the Society of Motion Picture Engineers to take a glimpse at the instrument. The progress made in the less than a year's time since we last saw television demonstrated compels us to revise our earlier estimate as to its commercial feasibility by at least half. Television—perhaps not nationally, but most certainly regionally—will be in the home within five years.

The images achieved now approximate three by four feet in size. Images of only 7½ by 10 inches were the maximum displayed last November. Considerable improvements have been made in other directions also. Now the closeups and long shots are well defined; the manipulation and coordination of the television cameras are much more skilfully handled. The images are still somewhat fuzzy, but they are clearing up. In short, television is growing up. The minds of those who scoff at it had better grow with it.

THE news of the tie-up between NBC and WHN, under the terms of which the network will feed commercial programs to the Loew station in New York indicates a growing trend among radio advertisers to obtain duplicate coverage. Several such contracts are already in effect and apparently have worked out with benefit to the advertisers. Currently there are: "Broadway Melody" duplicating over WOR-WHN; "Life of Mary Sothern," doubling over WABC-WHN; "Hobby Lobby," over WABC-WOR; "Voice of Experience" over WMCA-WOR.

Conceivably, the duplicate coverage may soon become triplicate, quadruplicate coverage. In a vast market like New York City, or in any great city, an advertiser would have a genuine something if his radio program was to be heard simultaneously over four or five stations. It is done for prominent speakers and for great special event attractions on a sustaining basis. Why not commercially?

APROPOS of "commercialitis," a disease afflicting practically all sponsors, here is a true story worth reviving. It concerns Perry Charles, an announcer formerly with WHN and now serving M-G-M in Hollywood. Perry as may be gathered from what follows, was not one of those regimented ours-not-to-question-why, ours-but-to-read - the - script - as-it-is-written announcers. He was—and still is, judging by the reports leaking back from Hollywood—a non-conformist.

At any rate, Perry was broadcasting a description of a fight from a local club over a WHN wire. The broadcast was sponsored by a chain of retail clothing stores.

The sponsor sat directly behind the announcer during the broadcast, annoying Perry every few moments with a whispered admonition to inject a commercial. Finally Perry could stand it no longer. He began a terrific sales spiel, built up to a glorious climax, and finished by shouting, "but I personally, ladies and gentlemen, wouldn't be seen dead in one of the —— —— rags!"

P. S.—The sponsor canceled.

Clean Air

An editorial observation on cleaner broadcasting appears on page 2 today as the lead of the "Insiders' Outlook" column.

Enjoined in RCA Patent Suit

A permanent injunction enjoining J. and L. Sara, Inc., and Joseph Sara from further alleged infringement of patents covering radio receiving sets owned by RCA and A. T. & T. was granted in the U. S. District Court yesterday by Federal Judge John W. Clancy. The decree was granted upon consent. No accounting of the profits and damages was submitted because both sides agreed on the amount.

Toscanini Rehearsal on Air

The dress rehearsal of the NBC symphony orchestra recruited for Toscanini will be broadcast Nov. 2 from 2 to 3 P. M. over the Blue network, Artur Rodzinski conducting.

Hersholt in New Series

Jean Hersholt, supported by a cast of Hollywood players, will inaugurate a new script series Nov. 7 over 58 stations of the CBS network. The program, to originate in Hollywood, will be broadcast from 2:30 to 3 P. M., and rebroadcast from 5:30 to 6 P. M., both New York time. The Chesebrough Mfg. Co. will sponsor, through McCann-Erickson.

WQXR Adds an Orchestra

WQXR has added to its staff of musicians a small station orchestra which will be heard in programs of classical and salon music. The group will be under the direction of George Steiner.

Defense Case Heard In FCC-Counsel Trial

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 26.—Presentation of the defense of Paul M. Segal and George S. Smith, charged by the F.C.C. with unbecoming conduct, began today with the testimony of the former and a parade of character witnesses who testified to the integrity of the two attorneys.

During his testimony, Segal contested evidence previously offered that the Commission regulations and the law had been violated in the handling of cases but under cross examination by F.C.C. counsel was forced to admit he was fully aware of the regulations and the act and the intent of the act to force full disclosure of all facts and that he had not complied with those requirements in the handling of some of the allegedly "dummy" applications.

Among those who testified to the high character of both Segal and Smith were Louis Caldwell, Paul Spearman and Duke Patrick, all former general counsels of the commission; James F. Baldwin, Swager Sherley, Ralph Van Orsdel and John W. Guider.

The hearings will conclude some time tomorrow, probably late in the evening, the commission today having announced its intention of sitting until the case is ended.

Squire Resigns as Hearst Web Manager

Burt Squire, manager of the New York Broadcasting System network, Hearst regional web in this state, has resigned from the network, effective immediately. Queried yesterday as to his future plans, Squire said he may reveal them today.

Hereafter, the general offices of the network, now at 5 E. 57th St., will be at the key station of the web, WINS.

Bradley Kelly, currently station manager of WINS, has succeeded Squire as manager of the network. Until recently Kelly was with King Features.

George Trendle Hits Radio Film Chatter

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—George Trendle, here on a visit from Detroit, has joined the current protests on radio film chatterers.

Trendle says studios should banish from studios "purveyors of confidential and discrediting information."

"The truth," said Trendle, "has never hurt anyone, but when the truth is distorted it can become dangerous and easily injure some one or even the industry."

WLW-WSAI to Move Studio Facilities

CINCINNATI, Oct. 26.—Although not expiring until Dec. 15, the lease on the offices and studios of WLW and WSAI in the downtown Union Central Annex has been discontinued, and the facilities will be centralized in the Arlington studios, some 12 miles from the downtown sector. The eighth floor of the combined studio and manufacturing plant is being remodeled at a cost of between $12,000 and $15,000 to accommodate 300 actors and reserves, as well as 50 employes of the continuity, sales and music departments. The manufacturing plant will be moved from the eighth to the seventh floor.

Crosley officials stated that the change is being made because the company's new $1,000,000 radio building, now under construction at Chickasaw & Warner Sts., would be ready for occupancy in the spring, and the new $600,000 plant at suburban Clifton Heights would be completed late next summer. A new auxiliary plant at Richmond, Ind., has been completed, and will constitute a relief unit for the Cincinnati plant, officials said.

MONTREAL, Oct. 26.—After a lapse of several years, the annual Montreal Radio Show will be resumed next month, this time, however, as a department of the National Produced in Canada Exhibition rather than as a separate venture.

Some years ago the show was an annual event in Montreal, but hard times temporarily put it out of commission. It will run from Nov. 3 to Nov. 18.

New Shows On the Air

"Rising Musical Stars"

"Rising Musical Stars" is a far worthier show than the one it has replaced, "Sunday Night Party." The new series continues under Sealtest Laboratories sponsorship and is patterned somewhat along the lines of the "Metropolitan Auditions of the Air" in that it seeks to give opportunity to unknown singers and instrumentalists. A committee of eight judges the performers, selecting one each four weeks as meriting a $500 cash prize. A grand prize of $1,000 is to be awarded at the end of 12 weeks.

The program features a 90-piece orchestra under direction of Eugene Smallens, a 60-voice chorus, and Richard Gordon as narrator. The inaugural "rising star" was Pauline Pierce.

Sealtest Laboratories sponsors the series, which is presented Sundays over the NBC-Red, 10 to 10:30 P.M. McKee, Albright & Ivey is the agency. BANNER

Reel Organization Formed in England

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 26.—A new newsreel association has been formed here, including Gaumont British News, Movietone News, Pathe News and Universal Newsreel.

The association has closed a deal with the Government and other organizations for the control of special facilities on a rotating system, whereby one reel will cover certain events for all, from specified and probably preferred positions. Paramount, although not included in the group, is eligible to join, while the new National News, now undergoing reorganization, is not.

It is believed here that the exclusion of National News amounts to a move to kill the potential competition of the latter virtually before its birth, by excluding it from special positions and compelling it to work in isolation.

Bernhard Retiring From Union Cinemas

LONDON, Oct. 18.—C. F. Bernhard, managing director of Union Cinemas, Ltd., is retiring from the company as a result of the recent deal whereby John Maxwell of Associated British Pictures, Ltd., acquired 51 per cent of the ordinary and "A" ordinary shares of the circuit.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 13
(20th Century-Fox)

Starting with a lengthy and locally interesting treatment of the New York mayoralty election campaign, this issue builds to an impressive and exciting climax in the football sequences which are featured by two 70-yard runs in the typical Frank Merriwell manner, one by Yale's Clint Frank against Cornell and the second by Pitt's Marshall Goldberg against Wisconsin.

In the New York election scenes Mayor LaGuardia is questioned by the invisible commentator, Lowell Thomas, after which Jeremiah Mahoney, Democratic candidate for Mayor, makes his bid for votes. Thomas E. Dewey, Fusion candidate for district attorney, tells of his hopes for a continuation of the fight on crime.

A battalion of Detroit police are shown on their new 100-mile-an-hour motorcycles.

From foreign sources Reims cathedral is pictured during its reconsecration ceremonies following the damage caused by the last war and Italian boys are seen in gas mask drills preparing for the next.

Lew Lehr's amusing comments accompany 3,000 Canadian geese on their way to Thanksgiving doom and Helen Claire introduces some of the newest fasion notes in veils and head adornment for coming season.

Running time, 11 mins. F.

"News of the Day"
Vol. 9, No. 211
(M-G-M)

The first two clips in this issue are the sort of material that causes some audiences to hiss and register their disapproval. General Franco is shown in Burgos as various military factions, boys, girls and regulars parade before him with their right hands raised in salute. The second possibly controversial clip reveals young Italian boys about ten years old engaging in gas attack maneuvers and sham battle. The opening of the restored Reims cathedral in France follows. In Paris a radio controlled model battleship is tested and comes out with acclaim.

The Snapshots division shows a Brooklyn inventor demonstrating his champagne beer glass that prevents the brew from going flat, which is real advancement. Capt. George Easton drives his racing car about the Salt Lake flats while he is waiting for decent weather to open her up. That group of 30 sweepstakes winners on one ticket tell what they are going to do in the way of selling a half interest. This portion is the usual hilarious stuff with laughs provided by the good-natured abuse of the King's English.

The football shots are the best part of the reel with scenes of the Texas Christian-Fordham and the Yale-Cornell games. In its entirety, it is an average newsreel issue.

Running time, 10 mins. P.

Paramount News
No. 24
(Paramount)

More or less routine in reporting and subject matter, this number of the Paramount reel is featured by the expected football action, made rather amusing by the wet fields common in the east last weekend, the aftermath of the Iowa tragedy in which 10 children in a school bus were killed at a grade crossing, and the clip of Italian small boys engaged in regular army field maneuvers, even to the donning of gas masks in a pseudo gas attack.

For the rest, the reel pictures the London show of 1938 automobiles, the visit of Secretary of State Hull to Canada, another of Sir Hubert Wilkins' flights to the Arctic in search of the lost Russian fliers, the hailing of General Franco in insurgent territory in Spain, visits of the King and Queen of England to housing projects and of the Queen Mother to a college.

The football sequences are good as usual, featuring the highlights of the Dartmouth-Harvard, Pittsburgh-Wisconsin, California-Southern California and Yale-Cornell games.

Running time, 9½ mins. A.

Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 28
(RKO)

Shots of the Japanese invasion of China and the Saturday afternoon warfare on sectional gridirons here highlight the current Pathe News release. The five remaining subjects making up the release run pretty much to routine.

The China shots are of the hostilities in the north and show extensive Japanese troop movements, field maneuvers and batteries in action. On the sports end, the reel has shortened the footage given to individual games in order to include an outstanding intersectional game for each section of the country. New York is represented by the Fordham-T. C. U. game; the midwest by the Ohio State-Northwestern game, the far west by California-Southern California and the east by Harvard-Dartmouth.

The remainder of the subjects are a review of the London Scottish regiment by Queen Elizabeth at Buckingham Palace; a cleaning of the exterior the Capitol Bldg., Washington; Indians harvesting wild rice in Minnesota swamps; military training of Italian youths, and trick billiard shots made at the championship tourney in Philadelphia.

Running time, 8 mins. K.

Universal News
Vol. 9, No. 609
(Universal)

Most of the subjects are of the magazine type and make Graham McNamee work pretty hard to dramatize them, but they're interesting. Three Irish Sweepstakes winners talk, and there's always something amusing about people trying to talk in front of a camera when they're not used to it.

Italian youngsters going through army manuevers with gas masks show what can be done in the way of training boys, but leave the spectator calm. A doughnut dunking contest is good for some laughs. The boy contestants take their work seriously. A roller skating marathon in Chicago—with a spill as the feature—is mildly amusing.

Some Venice, Cal., bathing beauties paint Hallowe'en drawings on each other's backs and then wade into the water up to their knees. It's the kind of seasonal stuff the coast publicity departments like to get out, but it always seems to amuse the populace. A flock of 3,000 geese leaving a freight car and walking to a Mansfield, Mass., farm left this writer absolutely cold.

Snow on the South Bend field during the Notre Dame-Navy game added a novel touch to some exciting plays. The boys skid around on their backs and make fumbles so fast that it's very interesting. There's a grand run in the Yale-Cornell game that'll give audiences a kick.

Running time, 9 mins. J.

President and Roper Congratulate Talley

President Roosevelt and Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper have congratulated Truman Talley, producer of Movietone News, on the 20th anniversary of the reel.

The President's letter follows: "I congratulate you upon the occasion of the 20th anniversary of Movietone News and upon its record during a particularly interesting period. The years which have passed since the inception of Movietone News have witnessed not only the pioneer period of a new medium of intelligence, but have seen that medium brought to a high degree of perfection.

"Yours is a great and boundless field in which I trust you will go forward with increasing success and usefulness."

"Nothing in educational history and development of our country has been more significant and more constructive in entertaining and informing the public than that accomplished through your Movietone News work," wrote the Secretary of Commerce.

Margaret Sullavan Is Signed by Roach

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 26.—Hal Roach has signed Margaret Sullavan to a three-year contract calling for two films a year. The first will be "Roadshow," Marc Connelly's adaptation of Eric Hatch's novel. Dallas Appeal Will Be Ready Before Dec. 13

Majors Not to Ask for Time Extension

Defendant distributors will begin preparation of their appeal from U. S. District Court decision in the Government's Dallas anti-trust suit immediately, with expectations that the notice of appeal will be filed with the U. S. Supreme Court well in advance of Dec. 13, the final date for filing of the appeal. No extension of the appeal period will be sought by the defendants, it was stated.

Several of the defendant distributors have not yet formally stated their desire to appeal from the Dallas decision but, as reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY of Oct. 23, an appeal is definite, nevertheless. Well over a majority of the defendants have decided in favor of the appeal.

The Dallas decision held that distribution companies conspired with the Interstate circuit in entering into contracts which regulated exhibition prices in subsequent run theatres for certain films.

Banning of 'Ecstacy' Confirmed in Albany

ALBANY, Oct. 27.—The Appellate Division late today refused unanimously to overrule Commissioner of Education Frank B. Graves and the M. P. Division in their rejection of the application filed by Eureka Prod. on behalf of "Ecstacy."

The opinion by Justice Leon C. Rhodes held that "The picture unduly emphasizes the carnal side of the sex relationship and the Regents of the University of the State of New York and the Commissioner of Education, having made a decision which we feel is amply supported by the facts, it should be confirmed." Justices Hill, McNamee, Bliss and Jefferson concurred.

Consolidated Net on Quarter Is $162,606

Consolidated Film Industries and subsidiaries report a profit of $162,606 for the quarter ending in September. For the preceding quarter the net was $148,713 and for the September quarter a year ago it was $290,282.

For the nine months ending Sept. 30 the profit was $541,023, compared with $776,290 in the first nine months of 1936.

Selznick-RKO Negotiations Off, Spokesman Volunteers

Selznick International's long-negotiated deal with RKO collapsed late yesterday afternoon, a spokesman for David O. Selznick volunteered to MOTION PICTURE DAILY early last night because of either the refusal or the inability of Floyd Odlum of the Atlas Corp. and representatives of Lehman Bros. to meet the producer's terms.

From another source it was learned Selznick and John Hay Whitney, chairman of the board of S. I., had been insistent upon terms directly parallelling the conditions under which Twentieth Century and Darryl F. Zanuck entered upon their merger with Fox Film Corp. That consolidation gave Twentieth Century half of the common stock of Fox Film, as well as a block of preferred and prefixed the older company with the Twentieth Century trademark.

Selznick's spokesman readily offered the further information that the field now narrowed itself to Paramount and M-G-M insofar as the producer's own calculations were concerned.

Mallard Questioned In Anti-Trust Suit

The activities of the M.P.P.D.A. law committee and particulars of RKO's theatre expansion in 1930-31 were emphasized in the questioning yesterday of William Mallard, RKO general counsel, for a deposition in connection with the Morse & Rothenberg anti-trust suit against eight major distributors, Maine & New Hampshire and M. A. Shea circuits.

Mallard testified that the M.P.P.D.A. law committee was concerned with taxation, legislation and censorship developments relating to the industry, but that block booking measures, resolutions for investigation of the industry, anti-trust actions against member companies, arbitration or standard contract forms were not subjects of the committee meetings. Mallard admitted, however, that the

RKO Planning To Gird Globe With Branches

Plans by RKO to circle the globe with its own offices are developing rapidly with the announcement yesterday by Phil Reisman that seven new foreign branches had been opened and four more are contemplated shortly. Few situations remain open. Reisman indicated that as soon as local conditions warrant the company will establish its own offices in these spots.

The new group of branches include Portugal where R. Beja, formerly in charge of Seville, is head; Egypt and Palestine, with G. E. Gregory, recently sales manager in India, now at the helm with headquarters at Cairo; Switzerland, with M. Palivoda in charge; Lille, Lyons and Marseilles, France, under supervision of the Paris office, and Trinidad, with Gordon New as manager. New offices will be opened in Belgium, Bordeaux and Morocco, under supervision of the

Armour Named RKO European Manager

Reginald Armour, general manager of the Far East with headquarters at Calcutta, yesterday was named general manager of Continental Europe and Egypt for RKO, Phil Reisman, in charge of foreign activities for the company, stated. He succeeds Harry W. Leasim, resigned.

Armour will arrive in Paris, where he will make his headquarters, on Nov. 27. No one has been appointed to replace Armour in the Far East post.

Spitz to Run Studio Until Head Is Named

Briskin Resignation as Coast Chief Due

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 27.—Leo Spitz, president of RKO who is now on his way west from New York, will assume charge of the studio until a deal is made for a successor to Samuel J. Briskin.

The present head of production intends to retire from his post and, while he has made no direct statement on his own, he has indicated, as reported in MOTION PICTURE DAILY, that he proposes to push his determination to disassociate himself from his current activities.

It is understood that, while Briskin did not sign the three-year deal he is reported to have made some months ago, he nevertheless has been functioning under an agreement set up along temporary lines as against the three-year contract which never was signed.

Briskin, according to authenticated information here, will receive from RKO somewhere between $100,000 and $150,000 as a settlement figure under the provisions of his pro tem agreement.

Disputed Six to Go On New Para. Pacts

None of the six pictures which "striking" exhibitors claimed were sold by Paramount on last season's contracts will be played on those contracts under the settlement terms outlined to Philadelphia exhibitor representatives, it was stated officially at Paramount yesterday. ticipants. The playing terms, however, will be subject to negotiation between the company and its individual accounts.

The statement was made by Paramount to correct an erroneous report emanating from Philadelphia and published in MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday to the effect that "Souls at Sea" and "High, Wide and Handsome," two of the six disputed pictures, "are to be played as part of last year's contracts at the highest percentage figure." It was emphasized at Paramount that the correction was being made solely in the interest of preventing a possible misunderstanding of the settlement terms by exhibitors outside of the Philadelphia territory as a result of the published report.

To Present Para. Report

The third quarter financial report of Paramount Pictures, Inc., will be submitted to the company's board of directors at its monthly meeting today. Profits for the three months ending Sept. 30 are under those of the two preceding quarters of the year, but are described by company officials as "satisfactory" for the mid-summer operating period.

RKO Planning To Gird Globe With Branches

Paris branch, and Lima, Peru, William S. Farmer, assistant manager in Panama, will be promoted to manager of the Lima office when it is established. The company's activities in Holland, started seven months ago, are very good. This also applies to Sweden.

Reisman was bullish over production in England, France and Italy. While in Paris he made a deal with a local group of producers to make four pictures for RKO distribution in France. He also completed arrangements with other individuals for two pictures. "Sky Prisoner" will be the first French picture to be released by the company under the deals. It is one of four promised by the group.

Compliments France

"There is a lot of production going on in France," Reisman said, "and they are producing a number of good pictures. This country is striving to compete with Hollywood and there are some fine films coming out of their studios."

The RKO foreign head said he spent some time in Italy and was impressed with Cinema City, near Rome.

"I believe Cinema City has the most complete studios I have ever seen in my life. Technicians were sent to England and Hollywood and brought back the best features of those production centers. From a mechanical and equipment standpoint it is the last word. About 10 pictures are in work there at the present time.

"Italy is very anxious to get outsiders to produce there. They want to establish Cinema City as a production center and they are working to this end."

Speaking generally, Reisman said: "There is a strong nationalistic feeling in all countries. They want to produce and see their own stories.

Warns Coast Studios

"I think good pictures are going to be made in France, Italy and England, and this may serve as a warning to Hollywood. Action pictures are needed for foreign countries instead of walk and talk.

"You can't close your eyes to the foreign market. Without it we will have no picture business here. Some pictures gross as much as $1,000,000.

"Producers should try to tell most of the story by action. Too much dialogue is not good for films designed for international release. Invariably pictures that are successful here are also successful abroad. They like the same things we do, with few exceptions.

"As for production in England, better pictures will come out of that country as soon as the serious-minded people get into production. There has been a wave of fly-by-nighters, but that is all over. Good pictures will come from England and there is no doubt about it."

Oriental Branches Hit

The RKO branch in Japan is closed and the China office is virtually dormant, Reisman said.

There is no overseating in England, according to the RKO executive. The new theatres are replacing most of the antique buildings, he said. New houses are being built in France, but not to an unreasonable extent.

Reisman plans to leave in January for South America.

RKO 9-Month Net May Total $1,600,000

RKO's consolidated net profit for the nine months ended Sept. 30 is estimated at approximately $1,600,000. The company's earnings report for the period will be submitted to Special Master George W. Alger who postponed from Oct. 14 until today the hearing on his tentative report on the RKO reorganization plan to await the availability of the earnings figures.

May Effect Reorganization

Indications are that the earnings report may figure importantly in the reorganization plan's provisions for new money for the reorganized company. The plan originally proposed the issuance of stock to provide for an unspecified amount of new cash, but the proposal was withdrawn subsequently on the statement of counsel for Atlas Corp. and Lehman Bros. that the normal earning expectancies of RKO Radio Pictures Co., exclusive of the theatre subsidiaries, indicated sufficient cash receipts to provide for the needs of the reorganized company.

The RKO picture company operations for the third quarter resulted in a loss, but this was not large enough to overcome the $476,491 profit earned during the first two quarters. The theatre companies' operations resulted in a profit for all three quarters.

Alger's tentative report which is scheduled to be presented to the reorganization factors today, will indicate the principal changes in the plan desired or believed advisable by him. His suggestions and recommendations will not be final, but will be subject to further hearings by the reorganization committees and principals. Following these hearings, Alger will take the reorganization plan under advisement again prior to drafting his final report and recommendations for Federal Judge William Bondy. Additional hearings will be held by Judge Bondy when the plan and the special master's report in regard to it come before him. Thereafter, the plan will be either confirmed or revised by Judge Bondy.

Consummation Indefinite

The extent and nature of the changes which are asked for in Alger's report today, however, will furnish the first definite indication of the length of time which will be required to complete the reorganization of RKO. His recommendations could either bring about the confirmation of the plan within the next three or four months or extend the reorganization proceedings for the better part of 1938.

Party for Miss Neagle

Prominent English visitors and members of the British colony in New York will attend a reception at the Music Hall for Anna Neagle, star of "Victoria the Great," and Herbert Wilcox, producer, this evening, coincident with the opening of the film. W. G. Van Schmus, managing director of the theatre, will be host.

Mallard Questioned In Anti-Trust Suit

last named matters were discussed less formally among industry attorneys.

The RKO general counsel estimated that the company's theatre interests reached a maximum of 175-180 houses in 1930-31. When George S. Ryan, plaintiff's attorney, pursued his questioning of theatre acquisitions by RKO in Texas and the south, Edward F. Clennen, chief attorney for the defendants, was prompted to interrupt with "Aren't you overlooking Australasia and New Guinea?"

"Are there conspiracies there, too?" Ryan countered.

"As much as anywhere else," was the reply.

The Morse & Rothenberg suit involves a charge that seven of the plaintiff's theatres were unable to obtain any run of product from the defendant distributors. Plaintiff's theatres are located in New England, New York and New Jersey. The taking of depositions and other preliminary work in the suit will be adjourned for two weeks following tomorrow's session.

Refuses Examination Plea

Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora yesterday refused to permit an examination before trial of Phillip Hodes and Robert Wolf in the "conspiracy" suit of Rock Beach, Inc., operators of the Gem Theatre in Far Rockaway, against Columbia, Paramount, Big-U Film Exchanges, Inc., RKO, U. A., and the Century Circuit.

Justice Pecora ruled, however, that if the plaintiffs could show that Hodes or Wolf were officers or employes of RKO, he would allow them to be examined. Rock Beach, Inc., claims that the major distributors "conspired" with Century in 1936 and that as a result pictures were exhibited at the Century Central Theatre in Cedarhurst one week before they were shown at the Gem.

Goetz Questioning Allowed

An examination before trial in London of Benjamin Goetz was ordered by Justice Aaron Steuer in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday in connection with the $350,000 suit brought by Eleanor Gates, a writer, against Liberty Pictures Corp., M. Henry Hoffman, Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., and John J. Dacey. The examination of Goetz was granted at the request of Consolidated whose petition stated that Goetz was vice-president in charge of its Hollywood office and had complete knowledge of all facts.

Miss Gates alleges that the advertising copy for Liberty's picture, "Once to Every Bachelor," stated that it was based on her story, "The Search for Spring." She claims that her name was used without consent and resulted in damage to her reputation. Consolidated was not originally named as defendant, but was brought in when Hoffman allegedly testified in an examination before trial that Consolidated handled the advertising for the picture.

termined claims from five per cent to eight per cent.

Based upon an agreed maximum award of $1,000,000 for Hiram Steelman, trustee in bankruptcy for William Fox, Weisman will set aside $80,000 for dividends, if the claim is finally allowed. The bankruptcy trustee is required to file a verified statement of his claim before Nov. 15. His claim is the result of damages allegedly arising from three transactions between the Chicago Title and Trust Co. with the Roxy Theatre; the Capitol Co. with the Fox San Francisco Theatre Corp. and Fox Theatres with Harold L. Arnold, Inc.

Lavarre-Warner Suit Dated

Trial of the $50,000 suit of William Lavarre, a screen writer, against Warners was set for Dec. 6 by Justice Phillip J. McCook in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday. The trial will be held before a jury. Lavarre claims that he was engaged by Warners in 1932 to write "new character stories" for Warren William and Barbara Stanwyck. He stated that he wrote "The Bedside Manner" for Warren William and that Warners used his story in a picture of the same name. The three stories he wrote for Barbara Stanwyck were "The Fated Woman," "Louisiana Lu" and "Yankee Girl" which Warners allegedly produced as "The Gambling Lady." He asks $25,000 for each picture.

Metro Wins Infringement

LAWTON, Okla., Oct. 27.—U. S. District Judge Edgar S. Vaught has awarded M-G-M $2,250 damages against Roy McAmis of Sayre, Okla., in the company's copyright infringement action. McAmis was charged with bicycling nine films from Sayre to Erick, Okla.

notice of examination before trial which was served upon him.

The plaintiff claims that the defendants conspired to induce Universal to breach a five-year contract made in June, 1932, under which Tippett was to supply the raw film stock to Universal. It is alleged that late in 1932 Eastman Kodak offered to loan Universal $1,000,000 and that Consolidated offered a loan of $500,000 if the contract were broken. The plaintiff also asserts that Universal requested a $450,000 loan from it and that the contract was broken when the loan was refused. The Brulatour motion will be heard on Nov. 4.

VOL. 42. NO. 102 NEW YORK, FRIDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1937 TEN CENTS

Para. 9-Month Net Jumps to $6,696,000

An Increase of $3,408,776 Over Last Year

Paramount Pictures, Inc., yesterday reported that its combined estimated consolidated earnings and share of undistributed earnings of partially owned subsidiaries for the nine months ended Oct. 2 aggregate $6,696,000, after all charges except provision for Federal tax on undistributed profits.

This compares with a combined total of earnings and share of undistributed profits of partially owned subsidiaries amounting to $3,287,224, after applying $1,800,000 out of a special inventory reserve set up in 1935, during the same period last year.

The computation includes consolidated earnings of $5,276,000 and $1,420,000 representing the company's share in undistributed earnings of partially owned subsidiaries.

Paramount's estimated consolidated net earnings for the third quarter of the current year are $1,958,000, exclusive of approximately $440,000 representing Paramount's share as a

"Stage Door" Pulls $84,800, 3rd Week

"Stage Door," in its third week at the Music Hall, tallied more than was expected, winding up the final seven days with $84,800, or $4,800 more than anticipated by interests close to the theatre and distributor.

"Double Wedding" hit a mild $35,000 at the Capitol during its first week.

"Ali Baba Goes to Town" finished a first week at the Roxy last night with $53,500. The picture will be replaced Nov. 5 by "Heidi," Shirley Temple's latest.

Twentieth Century-Fox, convinced by advance previews that "In Old Chicago," is the outstanding film produced by the company since the advent of Darryl F. Zanuck, is preparing to roadshow the film in a wholesale manner throughout the United States.

20th-Fox 39 Week Net Is $4,898,893

Is $447,042 Above Same Period Last Year

Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corp. yesterday reported a consolidated net operating profit of $4,898,893 after all charges, including normal Federal income tax, but not including provision for surtax on undistributed profits for the 39 weeks ending Sept. 25. This compares with a profit of $4,451,851 for the first three quarters of 1935.

For the quarter ended Sept. 25 the net profit after all charges, excepting provision for surtax on undistributed profits, was $1,143,410 compared with a second quarter profit of $1,687,885 and a profit of $1,682,661 for the third quarter of 1936.

Will H. Hays, M.P.P.D.A. president, was one of two callers received by President Roosevelt at his Hyde Park residence yesterday. The other was Professor Nelson Brown of Syracuse University, who, White House aides said, had come to discuss reforestation. The purpose of Hays' visit was not disclosed.

At Hays' office here it was stated that the reason for the visit was not known. It was pointed out that Hays has been a Presidential visitor on other occasions which were presumably of an informal social nature.

Alger Report On RKO Setup Due Nov. 15

Special Master George W. Alger will not present his tentative report on the RKO reorganization plan until Nov. 15, he advised attorneys at a hearing yesterday which had been scheduled to receive the report. The delay is due to the fact that the RKO consolidated earnings statement for the first nine months of the year, which is expected to have an important bearing on the special master's report, was not available until yesterday, presumably making completion of the report impossible for another week or 10 days.

As indicated in MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday, RKO's consolidated net profit for the 39 weeks ended Oct.

Quality Test Is Suggested On British Low Cost Films

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 28.—The new Films Bill, presented yesterday to the House of Commons and referred to committee after its first formal reading, provides that a quality test, originally rejected in the Board of Trade's White Paper on the proposed legislation, has been invoked only on films costing less than £7,500 in labor costs, or £15,000 in total, for determination of eligibility for the distributor quota.

The provision stipulates that such films will be passed if they have "a special value for purposes of entertainment." The use of the clause, it is indicated in certain quarters, will depend largely on the spirit of the administration.

With virtually that single exception the measure as introduced in the House of Commons follows almost exactly the stipulations in the White Paper. The quota percentages remain the same as in the original plan, dropping from 20 per cent as at present

D. O. Selznick To Paramount, Coast Rumors

Seen Replacing LeBaron As Studio Head

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28. — David O. Selznick, according to unusually reliable sources here, will choose from among the many deals now under consideration that which will take him to Paramount as managing director replacing William LeBaron in charge of all production. LeBaron, it is said, is ready to leave the lot upon the expiration of his present contract, several months hence.

Under the terms of the reported offer to Selznick, he would produce personally four to six pictures annually and would receive a percentage on all profits under an arrangement similar to that of Louis B. Mayer and the late Irving Thalberg at M-G-M.

Unsubstantiated rumors here have LeBaron ready to form his own company. The producer, who is out of town, could not be reached for verification of the report.

Today's development indicated that Selznick is leaning more to the Paramount offer than to any of the other deals now being discussed in New York.

Asks a Ruling on Uncensored Films

Arthur Garfield Hays has requested the Attorney General of New York to rule on the question whether an uncensored version of a film can be shown to an invited audience which includes newspaper critics. His action followed a ruling of the New York County District Attorney that a screening of an uncensored version of "Club de Femmes" to critics and guests at the 55th St. Playhouse was illegal.

The District Attorney's ruling was given after the Motion Picture Division of the State Dep't of Education (the censor board) had complained

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

THIS fair city is trembling with strategy. In lavish hotel and office suites on the East Side of the town, of course, assorted palavers are going full blast to determine a number of matters reported variously and at length in this and other publications. For instance, the United Artists deal. You might be curious about that. . . .

It appears there are plans and about their detail you'll have to take our report since precious little talking is going on within reportorial ears. The 60 per cent now held by Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin and Doug Fairbanks and tied up optionwise, by Sam Goldwyn and Alex Korda calls for $4,500,000 in cash before any transfer takes place. As reported, Chaplin wants his $2,000,000 on the line. Mary and Doug each will take 37½ per cent in stock. If and when that tidy little sum should be raised, the job would be only partially rounded out. There is the matter of making pictures and the financial well into which to dip to get the necessaries. . . .

Coursing around in Goldwyn's mind is understood to be a desire to arrange a deal so that working capital in sufficiently impressive dollars can be lined up to permit him his future activities sans the necessity for continuing to pledge his personal credit whenever he wants another million, or two, or three. For a plan by which United Artists could and would have a liquid enough treasury to extend aid to its producers, Goldwyn is reported prepared, although only finally, no doubt, to unbend in directions where unbending currently does not appear to be in the cards. Shall we say, for the fun of it, a desire to assume complete control of the company? . . .

Then Korda. In his mind, there is reputed to be a scheme for the purchase of the Pickford-Chaplin-Fairbanks interests by United Artists itself which then would seek to arrange with Prudential and/or others for the cash required to pay off the selling owner-members. Obviously, this would set up a picture wherein United Artists, the company, and not Goldwyn and Korda, the individuals, would be the borrower. How control would be determined under a plan like this is declared not to be definitely clear. Presumably, United Artists and its assets would constitute security for the loan. Presumably again, those making the loan might be willing to let Goldwyn take on authority and responsibility to well nigh any degree—within some semblance of reason—that he might desire. . . .

The obstacle, and there is one, currently appears to be the law. The belief is afloat that a setup of this nature might be in violation of the stock corporation statutes of Delaware under which United Artists is organized. In that commonwealth, a corporation is not permitted to purchase its own stock except out of surplus. United Artists, on the one hand, has a surplus of $1,500,000 while requirements to lift the option run to $4,500,000. December 21, on the other hand, is the expiration date. If the option is not picked up within the present time limit, there is reason to credit the understanding an extension might be arranged, but at a stepping up of terms. The increase, and a compliment to the U. A. producers and the George Schaefer-Andy Smith administration, traces to the conviction reported running around in the minds of the Chaplin-Pickford-Fairbanks coterie that U. A. is enjoying a very profitable year. Ergo, their holdings are worth more. . . .

Still another angle. The willingness of Miss Pickford and Fairbanks to accept stock for three-eighths of their holdings reputedly bears on Federal taxes and devices for savings in that direction if they accept the remaining five-eighths only in cash. This phase seems a trifle clouded in mist, but the report has it the possibility of tax savings does not prevail for them beyond this calendar year. This being true, it follows rationally enough that, if they extend the option beyond Dec. 21, their price goes up and they may insist upon cash. . . .

Strategy is having a day of it in another significant direction, named David O. Selznick. These are times when it is very simple indeed to keep abreast of Selznick International negotiations. It can be done by lifting up a telephone or merely by sitting back for the telephone to ring. Thus, it was offered freely that Dave would not continue with U. A. if Goldwyn and Korda get control. It was offered as freely that his negotiations with RKO had collapsed. And, known to all and sundry, near and far, are his quickly conceded negotiations with Paramount and RKO. In other words, Dave, a smart fellow, is out to make a new deal. He has "A Star Is Born" and "The Prisoner of Zenda" behind him with "Nothing Sacred" coming up, and coming up with what advance word describes as a heluva bang. Very much in demand, therefore, is Selznick. . . .

It comes about, then, that aside from his very substantial merit as a producer, Dave has a full appreciation of the dramatic timing of a story here and there. This has been happening in the last few days and it's all right, provided a little light is thrown into the intricacies of the tactics. This being what it is, we do not imagine you will mind a great deal if we day-dream on our own and suggest that surprise should not be too completely yours if Dave, after all that has been said, does elect to stay with United Artists. Not merely as a contributing producer, but under a second breakdown of the stock control under which Goldwyn and Korda both would give up not half of their 50 per cent but enough of their 50 per cent to make Selznick a minority partner. . . .

America Not Prejudiced on British Films, Says Wilcox

Herbert Wilcox, producer of "Victoria the Great," yesterday told members of the Ampa that there is no prejudice against British pictures in America, but "if there is a prejudice, it is against the bad films that are sent over." Wilcox was a guest at the International luncheon which was attended by more than 500.

"British production is probably at its lowest ebb," he asserted, "and it is a great tonic to make a picture which has been accepted here." He was referring to "Victoria the Great" without mentioning the name. Incidentally, RKO will distribute "The Rat," also a Wilcox production.

"I probably would not have been so fortunate if I had not fallen in friendly hands," he added. "There should be about half a dozen films sent over by British producers. The pictures should be scrutinized before being sent here and if this is done it will be far better for our entire industry.

Wilcox went on to pay tribute to RKO forces for the way they have handled the campaign on the Music Hall film. "I want to pay the highest compliment to the magnificent help I have received from RKO," he said. "By the way they worked on this picture you would think they had no Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire films to sell." The producer also praised Ralph Rolan for his "extraordinary cooperation and help. RKO has done a great service for British films. If anything, it has done much to aid the British industry."

Wilcox held, in effect, that the American public was justified for its attitude on bad English-made films. He hoped that future pictures will be of a quality comparable to American product.

With the exception of introducing Wilcox and Anna Neagle, which was handled by Rolan, the meeting was conducted by Capt. Harold Auten, American representative for Greater Union Theatres, Ltd., of Australia.

Taking short bows were Charles de Grandecourt, author of "Victoria the Great"; Leslie Banks, Ned E. Depinet, Hugh Cochrane, Elsa Buchanan, Ramon Novarro, J. E. M. Carmel, Hunt Freeley, Ralph Poucher, Margot Grahame, Cecil Smith, Robert Appelby, Sam E. Morris, M. A. Schlesinger, C. C. Pettijohn and Arthur Lee.

Jeff Sparks, impersonator, was the first on the entertainment bill. He mimed Kate Smith, W. C. Fields, Lionel Barrymore, Edward G. Robinson and the late Enrico Caruso.

David Dow, representing the Australian government, said "to you in the American picture industry let me say that we have an industry that is coming along."

Douglas Cole then took a bow and was followed by Gus Van, who sang a series of songs which he called "Cavalcade of Broadway."

Sir Gerald Campbell, after a few swell gags, presented Miss Neagle a medal from the Black Watch in Toronto. He said he was in favor of bringing back a cheerful note in entertainment and that it was up to the film industry to do its share.

Leon Rothier, Metropolitan Opera singer, sang a selection from "Faust." After the introduction of the star and producer of "Victoria the Great," Katharine Hare and Hendrick Van Loon did an impersonation of Noel Coward and Gertrude Lawrence.

New Warner Talent Will Play in Shorts

Plan Quality Test for Low Cost Pictures

to 15 per cent for the first year for exhibitors. During the 10-year period of the proposed bill the exhibitor quota will be 10 per cent for the first year of the new law, beginning April 1, 1940, and rising progressively to a high of 25 per cent.

For distributors the quota will run from 15 per cent in the first year to 30 per cent finally. The dropping to 15 per cent for the current season is to offset any possible disturbance. The present law expires in September, 1938, and the new legislation is expected to be made effective as of April 1, 1940. The separate short subject quota rises during the term of the law from five to 15 per cent for exhibitors and 10 to 20 per cent for distributors, according to the bill.

The bill reviews the various quota provisions since 1929, and suggests the possibility of modification after four years.

C.E.A. Fathered Clause

The quality clause, providing for review of quality to determine quota eligibility, was sponsored by the Cinematograph Exhibitors' Ass'n, but was rejected by the Board of Trade in the White Paper as being uncertain. The cost test, espoused by the Kinematograph Renters' Society (distributors), was approved. It provides that films costing £7,500 or more in labor costs alone, estimated at one-half the total production cost, would be entitled to registration for the distributor quota.

Under the new stipulation the quality test apparently would be applied to films whose labor costs are less than £7,500, to determine distributor quota eligibility. A film costing £22,500 in labor costs will rank double for quota purposes. No cost test is applicable to short subjects.

The measure, now in committee, will be brought out for a second formal reading on Nov. 4, then referred back to committee until Nov. 15, when it will be brought out again for general discussion, according to present plans.

To Ask New Council

At a conference of representatives of the Film Group of the Federated British Industries, the C.E.A. and six labor unions it was agreed that the Board of Trade should be approached with a request for a new body, the British Cinema Industries Council, instead of the films commission as suggested in the original Moyne Report. Under the plan the council would consider matters referred to it, and would not supercede the suggested advisory committee. The council also would have the power of publicizing matters brought before it. The general aim is the right of the British industry to appeal to an independent body if the films act in operation favors American interests.

The belief is expressed in some quarters that the British Government will concede to a stronger controlling body with a view to the necessity of maintaining British footage and providing against American control of production.

"'conquest' definitely a ten best! outstanding screen entertainment!"

"Superb acting of Garbo and Boyer and magnificent production send this over big. Definitely a Ten Best, scoring on all counts. First, the brilliant performances of Greta Garbo as the Polish Marie Walewska, and of Charles Boyer as Napoleon. Secondly, the powerfully dramatic and romantic story. Never has Greta Garbo appeared more glamorous, and seldom has she approached the dramatic fire and emotional intensity that she literally pours out in scene after scene. It is a great love story, as well as a powerfully dramatic document. The production has everything that makes for outstanding screen entertainment." —The Film Daily

—E. J. Smithson, Hollywood Magazine

"Overwhelmingly magnificent and impressive, here, by all odds, is one of the greatest pictures ever produced. Its artistry and magnitude would alone assure its financial success; but it wisely incorporates those elements of popular entertainment demanded in epical pictures by audiences —spectacle, speed and, above all, sex. This triumph, will live long in the memory of patrons and showmen." —Associated Publications

Boyer's Napoleon is a veritable triumph of sincere and painstaking care and authority. Director Clarence Brown has brought the production to a fine and glowing fulfillment." —Edwin Schallert, Los Angeles Times

'conquest' the best picture of this year!"

"'Conquest' the best picture of this or any other week this year. Most poignant historical love story every told or seen. A picture like this comes along to revive our childlike faith in the movies as an art and the best entertainment in the world. Garbo—in this—climaxes her career with a performance which forever establishes her as the Eleanora Duse of the screen. Boyer as Napoleon at last finds a role in which his tremendous powers and talent have full scope. Clarence Brown has turned out a fine picture. It will set Metro's trademark as the highest quality and give them priceless prestige for years to come. It's the sort of picture one can go and see two or three times with pleasure every time . . . so run, don't walk to the nearest entrance of any theatre which plays Garbo and Boyer in M-G-M's 'Conquest'." —Lloyd Pantages, NBC

Approve Hart Plea To Study UA Books

The right to inspect 12,000 distribution cards, contract ledgers and percentage books of the United Artists Corp. was granted to the William S. Hart Co. by Justice William T. Collins in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday.

Hart is suing for $500,000 damages allegedly arising from the block booking of his 1925 picture, "Tumbleweeds," with a dog picture, "Wild Justice." The first trial resulted in a verdict of $85,000 for Hart, but the judgment was set aside by the Appellate Division. Hart has also started suit in the U. S. District Court here for the return of $185,000 which U. A. retained as its distributor's share of the gross receipts.

Delay 306 Conference

Although it was expected that another meeting between representatives of Local 306 and major circuits would take place this week, no session was called. It is likely that both factions may get together next week to talk terms of the two-year contract, which will be retroactive to Sept. 1.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Barrier"

(Sherman-Paramount)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—Much has been said and written in Hollywood about Harry Sherman's long and sometimes despairing dream of producing Rex Beach's "The Barrier." It is part of this seven-year-old legend that when, at long last, he got his chance, players and technicians shared the job with him as a mutual labor of love. This kind of publicity is highly suspect in a sometimes unsentimental industry. But the picture that Sherman and his fellow toilers have turned out is fine enough, strong enough and big enough to suggest that this was not publicity at all, but a plain recital of circumstances happily conspiring to bring showmen a salesworthy and immensely satisfying piece of merchandise. In common with all Beach stories, this one is unrestricted as to appeal. As directed by Leslie Selander from Bernhard Schubert's screenplay, the picture is equally suitable for the largest and the smallest theatre in the greatest and the smallest communities.

Acting honors, of which there are more than enough to go around, go to Leo Carrillo for a characteristically rousing performance of the French Canadian trapper, to Jean Parker for a finer portrayal of the supposed half-breed heroine than any she has achieved previously, to Robert Barrat for a powerful delineation of her hunted foster parent, in the course of which he brings spontaneous applause for one of the most sustained speeches in recent film history, and to Otto Kruger as a polished Klondike gambler. Andy Clyde scores decisively on the humor side, and James Ellison is complete master of the narratively restricted romantic lead.

The well-remembered story opens with Miss Parker as the supposed half-breed daughter of Barrat who has been hiding out from the law for 18 years operating a store in an Alaskan settlement. When gold is discovered in the community he, with Carrillo as his trapper friend, Ellison as his daughter's soldier sweetheart, Kruger as the girl's real father, now turned gambler, and Addison Richards, his aide, stake out claims. Carrillo teaches Miss Parker manners so that Ellison will be proud to marry her. But Ellison hesitates to propose marriage because of the supposed Indian strain. Bloodshed and death enter the store before a happy ending is worked out.

Two songs by Jack Stern and Harry Tobias are worked into the picture without detracting from the vigor of the Beach plot. George Barnes' photography makes pictorial poetry of the mountains and streams against which most of the action transpires.

Running time, 93 minutes. "G."

"A Girl with Ideas"

(Universal)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—Another racy newspaper yarn, replete with fast dialogue, occasionally really amusing, and numerous situations which go from slapstick upward to good effect, "A Girl with Ideas" is pleasing, if unpretentious, screen fare.

Wendy Barrie is the rich girl with ideas, and Walter Pidgeon and Kent Taylor, the two newspaper men, are old friends, rivals for the girl and engaged in a continuous effort to double-cross each other. George Barbier and Dorothea Kent fill in the top spots on the cast listing effectively.

Sylvan Simon directed for laughs and comedy situations, and succeeded reasonably well in attaining his goal. The film has pace and continuous movement, involving a fictitious kidnaping, the invasion of a newspaper office by a group of society girls, a handful of fist fights and like maneuvers.

Miss Barrie wins a huge libel verdict from publisher Pidgeon and he presents the paper to the girl, whose father, Barbier, is seriously opposed to her operating a scandal sheet. Taylor is retained as managing editor against his will by virtue of his contract, and proceeds to violate his verbal agreement with Pidgeon to run the paper into the ground so that the latter may buy it back at a low price.

From that point Pidgeon tries to make the paper a laughing stock with his fake kidnaping of Barbier and similar stunts, while Taylor comes out on top in each of their battles, until Pidgeon beats him to the girl and he and Taylor go back into the newspaper business together.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

stockholder in the combined undistributed earnings for the quarter of partially owned, non-consolidated subsidiaries. Including this share, the combined estimated earnings for the quarter aggregate $2,398,000. This compares with a combined total of $2,260,764 for the third quarter last year, after the application of $200,000 of the special inventory reserve.

The Paramount statement for the quarter is viewed with interest within the trade because the exhibitor "buyers' strike" against the company, sectionally, was in effect during two of the three months covered by the third quarter report. That "strike" is now in progress of settlement and should benefit fourth quarter earnings, which may also reflect substantial cash receipts from the proposed settlement for $2,150,000 of recovery actions instituted by the Paramount trustees.

Earned 67 and 85 Cents

After deducting dividends of $298,103 on the company's outstanding first and second preferred stock for the third quarter, earnings per common share for the period would be equivalent to 67 cents on the basis of consolidated net, alone, and 85 cents on the basis of consolidated net and the company's share in undistributed earnings of partially owned subsidiaries. For the nine months period, the earnings per common share would be $1.78 on the first basis and $2.36 on the combined basis.

Alger Report On RKO Setup Due Nov. 15

2, was reported to the special master as being $1,543,511 after all charges but before provision for Federal surtax. The statement includes interest amounting to $583,665 on the extended indebtedness of RKO, as well as the expenses of the reorganization trustee. Of this amount, $961,980 is credited to profits from theatre operations. Picture company operations resulted in a loss for the third quarter, but a profit for the nine-month period is maintained by RKO subsidiaries in this group, nevertheless.

The consolidated profit of $1,543,511 for the nine months compares with a profit of $1,316,922 for the same period last year.

Alger's tentative report will be available to attorneys identified with the reorganization about a week in advance of the Nov. 15 hearing to provide them an opportunity for studying it before the hearing, at which time it will be discussed for the purpose of determining whether or not "errors or omissions" have been made. Thereafter, Alger will prepare his final report, and hearings on this may be set prior to the submission of the report to Federal Judge William Bondy. Hearings on the reorganization plan and the special master's final report will also be held before Judge Bondy before the plan is further revised or confirmed.

No Changes Revealed

Alger gave no indication at yesterday's hearing of the changes in the reorganization plan, if any, which would be suggested in the tentative report. The assumption is that the report has been completed in all respects except those relating to the availability of new money to the reorganized company, an important point on which the nine-month financial statement has a hearing.

O. C. Doering, Jr., of counsel to the Irving Trust Co., RKO trustee, reported to Alger that the effect of the recent transfer to Stadium Corp. of the Orpheum Circuit assets will be to make available to RKO approximately $250,000 in cash through dividends from Stadium. Attacked by Orpheum creditors, the transfer of assets has been upheld by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals and the time in which appeals may be taken to the U. S. Supreme Court expires within the next few days. Doering also reported that the probable maximum amount of allowable claims against RKO is now $21,028,104.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Portia on Trial"

(Republic)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 28.—Any audience should watch "Portia on Trial" with the same degrees of interest and attention as did the preview gathering. The reasons are simple and understandable. Primarily the picture from all angles is intelligently developed and presented human interest entertainment. Although continually serious yet not without many occasions of humorous comedy, "Portia" is devoid of any traces of forced theatricalism or artificial stimulation.

The means which "Portia on Trial" adopts to establish it as a film that should be talked about are a sound, logically constructed story, good acting in which Frieda Inescourt, Clarence Kolb, Heather Angel, Neil Hamilton, Ruth Donnelly, Walter Abel, Barbara Pepper and Anthony Marsh are outstanding; also by the pointed dialogue which is contrasted by sufficient action, quality production and thoughtful direction.

As the story is related it becomes known that Miss Inescourt, a woman lawyer, is the mother of Marsh, who is the heir to a powerful newspaper empire and the grandson of the politically potent Kolb. Marsh's father, whose marriage to Miss Inescourt had been immediately annulled by Kolb's influence, is killed by Miss Angel. Ruth Donnelly, her secretary, forces Miss Inescourt to assume her defense. In a dramatically staged trial she permits Miss Angel to admit premeditated murder. She does so to get Kolb on the stand. Then she forces from him the admission that if things had been different years ago she would have stood trial for Hamilton's murder rather than Miss Angel. Establishing justifiable homicide, Miss Inescourt secures an acquittal.

The screenplay by Samuel Ornitz was adapted from Faith Baldwin's story by Edward E. Paramore, Jr. It is a splendid example of concise, compact and meaningful writing. Without wastes or a superabundance of wordage it holds to the plot without deflection. Wisely George Nichols, Jr.'s direction technique allows the story to tell itself via the characterizations, dialogue and actions of the leading and supporting players.

Lack of name strength may preclude the possibility of "Portia on Trial" from becoming a general top picture, but it has human interest entertainment. In many localities it may prove worthy of being a front runner. At any rate exhibitors can assure their patrons it is an attraction worth their time and money.

Running time, 70 minutes. "G."

Looking 'Em Over

"Ridin' the Lone Trail"

(Republic)

Blood and thunder, plenty of fisticuffs afoot are bountifully supplied in this western. Bob Steele is featured. He does not sing but uses his fists to exciting advantage and generally injects action in the scenes where he appears. The audiences will enjoy it to the limit.

A mining company has been having bad luck in the delivery of its gold to a railroad station in stagecoaches. Steele with a clever ruse arranges to have himself appointed a deputy. He also gets himself a job on Frank Ball's ranch, where a white horse that is being used by the raiders is periodically stolen. The horse is the property of Claire Rochelle, Ball's daughter. The ranch hands are at a loss to explain how the nag is spirited away on these occasions. But Steele locates the outlaws and is taken prisoner. Soon after he turns the tables and with the aid of Steve Clark he runs them to earth following a highly thrilling chase in which many shots are fired and the gang is annihilated. The leader of the band is revealed to be Ball's foreman, Ernie Adams. Later, of course, there is the proper romantic fadeout.

Charles King, Lew Meehan, Julian Revero and Hal Price round out the supporting cast with effective performances. Sam Newfield directed.

Running time, 56 minutes. "G."

"Victoria, The Great," which opened yesterday morning at the Radio City Music Hall, was reviewed on Sept. 17.

"The Perfect Specimen," now being shown at the Strand, was previewed by wire from the coast on Sept. 25.

"Ali Baba Goes to Town" at the Roxy, "Double Wedding" at the Capitol, "The Great Garrick" at the Rivoli and "Souls at Sea" at the Paramount are holdovers.

Trust Suit Probing Off Until Nov. 15

recess is being taken to permit the preparation of a stenographic report of the hearings up to this point.

No witnesses were heard at yesterday's session and none is scheduled for appearance today. During the two weeks past the depositions of only Gabriel L. Hess, E. A. Schiller, Felix Jenkins and William Mallard have been obtained of a score or more being sought by George S. Ryan, plaintiff's attorney.

The Morse & Rothenberg action asks triple damages of $2,100,000. It was filed in Federal court at Boston and alleges inability to obtain any run of major company product for seven of the plaintiff's theatres, all of which are in competition with the defendant circuits.

Orders Examination in Suit

An examination before trial of Joseph R. Rosenbloom and Harry Krieger, defendants in a suit filed by the Intrastate Theatre Corp., formerly known as Warner Bros. Theatres, Inc., was ordered by Justice Pecora in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday. The testimony will be taken on Nov. 9 at the Supreme Court. Intrastate is suing to recover $5,875 which was deposited as security on the 1931 lease for the Dellinger Theatre in Batavia, N. Y. The theatre was destroyed by fire on Columbus Day of 1935. The balance of the October rent, $434 which was prepaid is also claimed. The defendants allege that the lease was induced by fraud and that the fire was caused by the negligence of the plaintiff.

Seek to Examine N. S. S. Heads

Warners will ask Justice Steuer in the N. Y. Supreme Court today for an examination before trial of National Screen Service executives, defendants in a $1,000,000 suit. Those to be examined are Herman Robbins, president; Toby Gruen, vice-president and treasurer, and Sam Dembow, secretary. Warners claim that trailers for its pictures have been made by the defendant "without Warners' consent and over its protest." Trade names and trademarks belonging to Warners allegedly have been used. The plaintiff sets forth that these trailers "misrepresent, distort and disparage" the features which they seek to advertise. Besides $1,000,000 damages, a permanent injunction and an accounting are asked.

Asks a Ruling on Uncensored Films

that the screening was a violation of the law.

"Various questions of widespread importance to the industry are involved," says Hays. "If a private showing to invited people is against the law, the query at once arises as to whether an unlicensed film in its original version can be shown to anybody at any time. Will showing it to critics be against the law? If that isn't against the law, will it be contrary to law to show it to any one else? Does the law apply to anything but public performances? How can the censors lay down a law which prohibits the showing of an unlicensed film to critics, but which would permit to be shown to prospective buyers."

NBC Opens Morning Hours to Sponsors

Following in the path of WABC, which recently opened its morning facilities to "canned" offerings, NBC will make available to sponsors of electrically transcribed programs the morning hours up to 9 A.M. over WEAF and WJZ. The innovation becomes effective immediately.

To obtain more time, both stations will begin broadcasting an hour earlier than heretofore, at 6:30 A.M.

KPO, NBC outlet in San Francisco, which, like WEAF and WJZ, has been barred to transcriptions, also will be made available for disc shows up to 9 A.M., Pacific Time.

Regular card rates will apply, and time will be sold to advertisers only in unit periods. Requests for options have been received already from several agencies. The NBC Thesaurus and transcription department will be at the disposal of clients.

The decision to open WEAF, WJZ, and KPO for transcriptions was made several days ago, although as late as Wednesday of this week the network stated it had not yet formulated an opinion in the matter.

KTMS Will Join NBC Coast Blue Network

KTMS, Santa Barbara, Cal., will join NBC as a supplementary outlet available to the Pacific Coast Blue network Oct. 31. The addition of KTMS will bring the total number of stations associated with NBC to 140.

Get A.F.M. License, Recorders Are Told

Phonograph recording manufacturers, meeting yesterday with the A.F.M., learned that union musicians hereafter will be available only to companies licensed by the federation. The license will be similar to the one now being prepared for transcription interests although the context of the instrument will apply, naturally, to the recording business.

Yesterday's meeting culminated the A.F.M. drive to bring about a more equitable employment of union musicians in the allied radio, transcription and recording fields. The federation thus far has negotiated with independent stations, network affiliates, key stations, transcription groups and, as of last evening, recording people.

The federation will meet today with NBC and CBS heads to sign the agreement for network stations which was formulated recently. The agreement is for stations in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

It is expected that the federation's international council will disband tomorrow. A sub-committee, however, will be formed and will remain here to act for the federation.

MacDonald Forecasts Wait for Television

CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Eugene F. MacDonald, Jr., president of the Zenith Radio Corp., told stockholders this week that television for practical use "is just around the corner for the stock salesman only." He said he did not believe the problems of television insurmountable, but that its practical commercial application appeared to be well in the future.

The way is now paved for Zenith to build an experimental television broadcasting station in Chicago. Stockholders have approved amendments in the articles of incorporation permitting the corporation to broaden its activities in the field of television. Application to build a station has already been made to the F. C. C.

MacDonald expressed the belief that television will come over telephone wires instead of by radio waves. He said he expects the A. T. & T. Co. will handle the transmission of television programs, with the public paying for the service as it does its phone bills. Radio manufacturers will probably restrict their activity to building television receivers, he said.

New Shows On the Air

"Tish"

The Federal Radio Theatre-sponsored "Tish" series, based on the Mary Roberts Rinehart stories of that title and presented over CBS, loses none of its flavor in the transposition from printed page to oral offering. The story Wednesday evening was definitely entertaining and well acted by the WPA cast.

The redoubtable spinster, aided and abetted by her companions, Lizzie and Aggie, came to the aid of a husband who has been imposed upon by a lazy wife who fakes illness, in Wednesday's adventure. By wrapping a sheet about herself in the dead of night, Tish scares the supposedly hopelessly paralyzed invalid into electrified action and locks her up in a seldom-used servants' cottage in the rear of the main dwelling. The husband is brought to a window outside the cottage, where, unobserved, he may witness his wife's amazing physical and gastronomic recovery. He asks the penalty for wife beating at the close.

The dramatization was ideally written, and the dialogue was better than any we have heard in a long spell of listening. The Leith Stevens score helped the production materially.

"Tish" is presented over CBS Wednesdays from 9:30 to 10 P.M. as a sustaining series. BANNER

"Stella Dallas"

Since this serial is a continuation from the point where the film of the same name left off there is little doubt that local listeners who found entertainment in theatres will likewise do so at their dials. Stella Dallas, her trials, hardships and happinesses will be appreciated.

Tetley's Tea sponsors the program which is heard over WEAF only Mondays through Fridays, from 12:30 to 12:45 P.M. Blackett-Sample-Hummert is the agency. P.

Ascap to Plead Its Case with Publicity

Ascap will endeavor to lighten its legislative woes by an extensive public relations program designed to make the public the friend and ally of the organization, Ascap officials advised the semi-annual membership meeting of the society, held at the Astor yesterday.

The Ascap spokesman attributed the effectiveness of the organization's antagonists in having anti-Ascap legislation introduced in 23 states and enacted in five of them to the fact that the society's membership of less than 1,100 leaves it politically impotent. Thus, it was felt, the society needs a friendly public to aid it in warding off political attacks which its own lack of national influence cannot do effectively. Details of the new public relations program were not disclosed by Gene Buck who presided.

Union Plan Dropped

The society's earlier plan of seeking an affiliation with the American Federation of Musicians, or of applying for an A. F. of L. charter as a labor organization in its own right, is dormant now and was not discussed at the meeting. The meeting paid tribute to the memory of the late Nathan Burkan, Ascap general counsel for many years, and sent a congratulatory message to Eddie Cantor, who is observing his 25th year in show business. A report revealed that the society's membership now consists of 927 writer members and 119 publisher members.

On the dais in addition to Buck were E. C. Mills, general manager; John G. Paine, chairman of the administrative committee; Louis D. Frohlich, counsel; Louis Bernstein, vice-president; Shelton Brooks, Joseph Weldon Johnson, John Abbott, Irving Caesar, Joseph Young, Fred E. Ahlert, Charles Wakefield Cadman, George Fischer, Mrs. Edward MacDowell, Mrs. Ethelbert Nevin, Mrs. Harry B. Smith, Otto A. Harbach, Edward B. Marks, Jack Mills, Mrs. Mel B. Kaufman, Mrs. Nola Arndt, Mrs. Charles K. Harris and Saul Bernstein.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 14
(20th Century-Fox)

No matter how many of those sweepstakes winner clips they put into newsreels they always seem to be interesting. The latest issue of Movietone News has three of them, each telling of the winner's happiness and trying to convey an idea of what will be done with the money. Actors could study the unaffected technique of emotional expression with profit.

Ed Reek is credited with supervision of automobile show scenes. They're smart. Radiator angles, moving mechanisms, highlight touches make an ordinarily dull subject bright and interesting.

The football shots are good as usual—especially one made in brilliant California sunshine. War Admiral's comeback is well handled, both pictorially and in Ed Thorgersen's comment. An apple picking and throwing contest, with comment by Lew Lehr, is mildly funny.

Vyvyan Donner's fashion stuff is outstanding. The styles might be last year's so far as this reviewer knows, but the method of presenting good looking models in informal poses around a piano and the fine lighting effects put these shots in a class by themselves.

Running time, 9 mins. J.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 212
(M-G-M)

Done in the "March of Time" style, the longest and most important clip of this number of the reel pictorially reports the tragic episode involving the death of some 50 people through the use of a new prepared medicine. Seen are the nurse, last known person to have taken the medicine, the chemical analysis in the Chicago laboratories of the American Medical Ass'n and the mustering of forces by the U. S. Food and Drug Bureau to take the material out of circulation. It is handled in extremely effective fashion.

Another striking feature of the reel is the filming of New York in the Broadway area from a plane by night. Said to have been done with a new type of film, the results are extraordinary. The rest of the reel is made up of a study of the new method of teaching deaf children to talk in Philadelphia, an amusing clip of the beekeepers' convention in Washington, flashes of the latest sweepstakes winners, good for a laugh as usual, new versatile tractors in use in the middle west, and the automobile show, with a glance at the smart lines and trick gadgets of the 1938 cars.

Running time, 9 mins. A.

Paramount News
No. 25
(Paramount)

The usual routine clips with highlights on local sweepstake winners supply a few comedy moments. The automobile show is limited to one model and lacks completeness in detail.

War Admiral comes through after a foot injury last summer to win the Laurel, Md., stakes. Tear gas bullets are on display at Pontiac, Mich. Machine guns in operation with the specially prepared bullets indicate a new method of halting bank robberies.

Natives of Plymouth, Mass., enact the first Thanksgiving feast. Farmer Brown and his stingless bees are shown at the Capitol during the international meeting of beekeepers. Then comes three winners of the Irish sweepstakes with a humorous touch provided by Michael Di Pietro and his family in Brooklyn.

Bruce Barton, advertising man, describes what he thinks are "silly laws," and Paramount gives its impression of a few ideas contained in the antiquated laws still enforceable in many sections of the country.

Gabriel Heatter, Bob Carter, Joseph Boley, Mark Hawley, John D. Seymour, Gregory Abbott and Sydney Walton, commentators, all take a hand in the narration.

Running time, 9 mins. O.

Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 29
(RKO)

The seven items in the makeup of this reel manage to be generally interesting in view of the scarcity of events that would have more pictorial appeal.

The war in China is the lead clip. The fall of Hopei into Japanese hands is shown accompanied by scenes of artillery in action and the parade of Nipponese troops through the ancient city. Sweepstakes winners follow doing their customary bits in the customary self-conscious fashion. The Automobile Show provides the cameraman with an opportunity to experiment with unique angles and film various models at the controls of the exhibits. In Pontiac, Mich., an inventor of a new tear gas shell demonstrates his projectile which is intended to eliminate the injuries resulting from the former metal cartridge. In Washington the remarkable machinery for computing the forthcoming unemployment census is shown and explained. A new type of tractor is put through its paces in Indianapolis, going so far as to scare a traffic policeman as it tears through town and makes a turn on the proverbial dime. Sporting life is evidenced when War Admiral captures a race down in Laurel, Md., 'way in front.

Running time, 10 mins. P.

Universal Newsreel
Vol. 9, No. 610
(Universal)

Skillful and significant editing went into the highlighting Chinese-Japanese war clips in this number of the Universal reel. In sharp contrast are shown the blazing inferno which was a Shanghai factory, the bursting of shells along the waterfront, the activities of Japanese mop-up squads at their work in the streets, against the completely peaceful-appearing everyday activity along the Bund in the International Settlement, only a few blocks away.

There is excellent pictorial value in the pictures of the first hunter field trials at Aurora, Ont., and in the annual turkey "roundup" at Corvallis, Ore. There is high comedy, funny by reason of the complete naturalness of the "actors" in the clip recording the unbridled happiness of Michele Di Pietro of Brooklyn, sweepstakes winner.

For the rest, the reel contains clips of the grape harvest in Guasti, Cal., a corn husking contest in Tarkio, Mo., the huge bonfire at Eugene, Ore., with which college students offered sacrifice of wood to the gods of football, and a few shots, well developed, of the 1938 automobile show in New York, all of which make for diversification and interest.

Running time, 9 mins. A.

Short Subject

"March of Time"
(RKO)

A high order of general interest and dramatic reenactment, coupled with an episode of historical significance are inherent in this, Issue No. 3 of "March of Time." The generally expected high level of execution and subject matter which characterize the successive issues of the reel are maintained in this latest release.

The first episode centers about the activities of the U. S. Secret Service, whose lawful duty is the safeguarding of the President, but whose chief duty is running down counterfeiters. In dramatic reenactment, the work of the Federal sleuths is illustrated with the case of William Watts, one of the ablest and smartest of counterfeiters, who defied detection for four years but was finally cornered.

Of unusual interest is the story of how the citizens of Manchester, N. H., faced with ruin when the great Amoskeag Mfg. Co., textile plant, went into bankruptcy, formed a committee, based on the idea of diversification of industry for the city, bought the plant, and leased parts of it to varied industries. The result is returned prosperity for the city.

Of international significance is the sequence on Algeria, France's great and productive colony in north Africa. With Fascist Italy, Spain and Germany pinning France and endangering its lifeline across the Mediterranean, and Algeria's native population just now being stirred by Fascist agitators, the Popular Front government of France has a serious problem on its hands in Algeria. The sequence serves admirably to point up the situation in highlight, at the same time establishing a picture of the current Fascist axis in Europe.

Probe of "U" Is Denied by Court

N. Y. Supreme Court Justice Samuel I. Rosenman yesterday denied a motion for a peremptory writ of mandamus to permit the Murita Trading Corp. to inspect the books and records of Universal Pictures Corp., Inc., "to determine the advisability of instituting proceedings for the dissolution of the corporation." He stated that the inspection would be granted, however, if Murita could prove at a trial that it is a stockholder under the Delaware law and that it is acting in good faith.

The petitioners hold 160 shares of eight per cent first preferred stock of Universal which was purchased in July, 1936, and claims to represent 10 per cent of the outstanding first preferred stock. Universal Pictures which produces shorts, comedies and newsreels, is a Delaware Corp. and a subsidiary of the Universal Corp., also chartered in the same state.

Justice Rosenman declared that "an inspection will not be granted to facilitate speculative schemes or gratify idle curiosity." It was pointed out that no charges of mismanagement had been made.

Willard S. McKay, vice-president and general counsel for Universal, stated that an effort had been made by the petitioner to have its stock purchased at the call price of $110 plus accrued dividends, but that the offer

CEA to Press Its Demand on Quality Test

To Continue Opposition to Cost Clause

By BRUCE ALLAN

LONDON, Oct. 29.—The Cinematograph Exhibitors Ass'n is pressing its original demand for inclusion in the proposed new Films Bill of a provision for the viewing or quality test to determine eligibility for quota purposes. It is continuing its opposition to the Government-approved cost test basis, and is expected to insist, if the latter is adopted on an appeal committee to hear objections to films costing above the £15,000 total minimum production cost for quota, but which are not entertainment.

This provision takes on considerable importance, since, if it is adopted, would in effect provide that films eligible on the cost basis may be challenged to a viewing or quality test.

The C.E.A. also intends to press its demand for the formation of a new British Cinema Industries Council, as was indicated in MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday. Such a council would be composed of representatives of the various branches of the industry as well as nominees of the Board of Trade. MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"Living on Love"

(Radio)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 29.—Produced without ostentation or manifestly significant overhead, "Living on Love" is a reasonably brisk little comedy based on a novel situation which might have yielded more substantial results if labored over a little longer and honed down to finer cutting edge. As it stands, with James Dunn, Franklin Pangborn, Solly Ward and Tom Kennedy giving individual performances that somewhat overshadow the story, it is a suitable companion picture for the hardier type drama or melodrama of upper bracket dimensions.

Dunn is an impoverished artist living in a rooming house operated by Ward, who takes advantage of the fact that Dunn works nights to quarter Whitney Bourne, a likewise impoverished saleslady, in his room during the other circuit of the clock. Both resent this and each attempts, by means of vitriolic notes exchanged and other devices, to discomfit the other. They do not meet as co-tenants, but do meet outside, under assumed names, and fall in love. Fellow roomers, acrobats and others figure in the events which culminate in their mutual discovery of their real identities and there is a spell of rough-housing before the happy ending.

It is a Maury Cohen production directed by Lew Landers from a screenplay by Franklin Coen based on John Wells' novel. The setting is reminiscent of "Stage Door," but the resemblance stops there.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

Schreiber Sells His Five Detroit Houses

DETROIT, Oct. 29.—Jacob Schreiber today stated that he had sold his group of five Woodward Ave. houses to Jake Broder and a silent partner, whose identity could not be learned, and would shortly go to Arizona.

The houses are the Colonial, Blackstone, Majestic, Forest and Garden, with a total seating capacity of 3,757. The deal is one of the most important made in Detroit in years. It becomes effective Sunday, 21 years to the day after Schreiber opened his first house, the old Blackstone on Michigan Ave., which was demolished some years ago.

Schreiber is a unique character in the show business here. He is credited with "making" show business on Woodward Ave. He has been the storm center of a long feud with Ben and Lou Cohen, which grew out of his acquiring the lease on the Colonial while it was being operated by the Cohens.

Schreiber said he would remain in Arizona for six months to permit his wife, who is ill, to recuperate. Other than that he has no plans.

The amount involved in the deal was not made public, but was said to run into the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Broder has operated candy concessions in Schreiber's and other local theatres for years and also is the owner of two ballrooms.

extension of the proposed double quota provision on the basis of an increased quota value being applied proportionately to increased cost. The proposed double quota clause now provides that films costing £22,-500 in labor costs alone may count double for quota purposes.

The trade attitude toward the bill as presented to the House of Commons probably will be reflected at the second reading of the measure in Commons, Nov. 4. It is now in committee. The trade reaction is expected to be indicated more specifically in the offering of amendments while the bill is in committee.

It also asserts that labor permits have been granted to American technicians without proper regard to the statutory requirements that the engagement is essential and that it does not displace a British subject.

prosecutor. Withers asked for an opinion on all chance games, specifying several, and Reagan pointed out that the Attorney General's office already has given opinions holding the others violate the state's lottery laws.

The free distribution of tickets entitling holders to participate in the distribution of prizes by lot or chance does not relieve Screeno from its lottery features, Reagan said. The distribution of the tickets stimulates patronage at the theatre and constitutes a consideration.

Murita contended that losses from November, 1929 to April 30, 1937, totaled $6,680,418 and that dissolution might be necessary to prevent impairment of the capital stock. The petitioner questioned the employment contracts of J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the board, for $1,750 weekly for five years; R. H. Cochrane, president, at $1,750 weekly for five years; Charles R. Rogers, vice-president, at $2,000 weekly for five years, and McKay, general counsel, at a weekly salary starting at $700 and later to be increased to $1,000. Honorary pallbearers will be Charles R. Rogers, Edmund Grainger, Dan Kelley, John M. Stahl, Leo Morrison, Bernard Toplitsky, Wilbur D. For the last six years Asher had been a first string producer for Universal. He was born in Susanville, Cal., Sept. 1, 1888. He entered the film business as a salesman and became, eventually, manager of the Turner Dankin Exchanges in California.

After a period with the Sol Lesser Enterprises, Asher joined Universal as co-producer of "The Cohens and the Kellys." The success of this Jewish-Irish picture caused him to join with Eddie Small to produce "McFadden's Flats" and "The Gorilla." The productions were made by Asher, Small and Rogers. Later they produced 12 Corinne Griffith starring pictures.

In 1930, Asher returned to Universal City as a producer.

Asher was one of the best and most successful of Universal's producers, making on an average of eight productions a year. His most recent pictures were "The Man Who Cried Wolf" and "Some Blondes Are Dangerous." He was scheduled to produce "More Than Love" and "Let's Be Candid" at the time of his death.

Few Complaints Made by Trade Body in Year

By BERTRAM F. LINZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—False and misleading advertising has practically been eliminated from broadcasting, only 1,275 out of a total of more than 439,000 continuities examined by the Federal Trade Commission during the fiscal year ended June 30, last, requiring investigation, it was disclosed by the commission in its annual report.

In only 12 cases, it was stated, did the commission issue formal complaints during the year. Most of the cases investigated were found not to require action and of those in which the commission found cause for complaint, all but a dozen were settled by stipulation.

Under the commission's procedure, every individual station submits all continuities for a 15-day period four times a year, while the national and regional networks report weekly, sub-

Alperson Sets FWC Deal; Will Go West

With 16 pictures finished and a deal for the entire season's lineup with F.W.C. either closed or about to be signed, Edward L. Alperson, president of Grand National, is now planning to leave for Hollywood by Wednesday.

The next James Cagney film has been set and will be announced in a few days. The story will bring Cagney back into his rough and tumble character.

Alperson denied there is any difficulty financially with the company and that no additional finances are being sought.

No Reduction In Short List Despite Duals

Output This Season Is 5 Greater Than Last

With 75 to 85 per cent of the country now said to be playing double features, a sizeable increase over last year, there is no reduction in the number of shorts being produced by major companies. According to the number of releases being offered major circuits, the short subject output for 1937-'38 will be five more than last season. This does not include the nine that United Artists is scheduled to release in place of the Disneys.

The total number of 714 two-reelers and singles for the current season as compared to 709 last year does not include the newsreels which M-G-M, 20th Century-Fox, Paramount, Universal and RKO add to their short subject sales. Major circuit buyers are at a loss as to what to do about the shorts. However, they go hand in hand with the feature lineup and cannot be discarded unless paid for without being played. This happens in numerous cases.

The tendency of major producers is

The subject was said to be available for spot bookings in the metropolitan area beginning last Thursday. It is sponsored by the citizens' independent committee for the election of Mahoney, an active

It'll Be Duals

Omaha, Oct. 31. — Omaha exhibitors differ with Sam Goldwyn, who says double features can be ended by making pictures so long—two hours or more—that no manager can present another film.

Theatre men here have double-billed such pictures as "Romeo and Juliet," "Lost Horizon" and "The Good Earth," each of which is extremely long.

They say their patrons won't patronize single bills.

No Richey Successor Plan of Allied Unit

DETROIT, Oct. 31.—Allied of Michigan will not name a successor to H. M. Richey, who resigned some weeks ago from his post as general manager of the unit to become associated with Cooperative Theatres of Michigan.

This is revealed in a statement just issued by Ray Branch of Hastings,

Schenck Here To Talk New British Plans

List May Be Raised to 12 Features Yearly

Expansion of production activities in England will be discussed and decided upon by 20th Century-Fox this week, it was stated Saturday by Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board, upon his arrival from the coast.

In an exclusive interview with a MOTION PICTURE DAILY reporter, Schenck said that the purpose of his trip east was to discuss the British production situation with Sidney R. Kent, president, and the board of directors.

At present Robert T. Kane is producing four to five British films under the name of New World Films. He is now working at Denham Studios. Under the plans to be considered by the 20th Century-Fox board is the possibility of increasing the number of English-made films to 12 a year. The boost in the yearly output presumably is designed to take care of quota regulations. Most of the pictures will be made for international release and not limited to England.

Asked whether talent will be sent from the coast to England, Schenck said that this was up to the board and whatever it decided would be done.

Raises Damages in Suit

Irving Gielow was granted permission by Federal Judge John W. Clancy in the U. S. District Court on Saturday to raise his claim for damages against Warners from $500,000 to $2,000,000. Gielow originally filed suit for $500,000, which he claimed was the profit from the picture, "Flirtation Walk." After starting the action Gielow stated he discovered that the picture earned $1,500,000 and that two shorts, "Merry Melodies No. 3 and No. 6," which earned $500,000, were also based on songs from the picture. The complaint alleges that "Flirtation Walk" is an infringement of Gielow's dramatic composition of the same name and the songs, "I Can't Believe" and "Mr. and Mrs. Is the Name," are also plagiarisms. Trial of the suit was stayed for three months.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 31.—Correcting erroneous reports, Harry Schenck, manager of Hollywood Studios (Talisman), has said that the deal he negotiated with Imperial Pictures, Inc., for three pictures was not for himself, but for Lynn Roos, veteran cameraman-director, who plans three pictures to be made for the most part in the Malayas, with native casts. Interiors will be filmed here. Titles have not been selected yet.

to make longer features, which again has the circuits stymied when it comes to booking single and double-reel subjects.

According to a comparative analysis, Paramount has eliminated 12 singles, Vitaphone six doubles, while Universal has increased its two-reelers by 13 and dropped as many singles.

Parts of Pennsylvania, Texas, the south and Chicago have not yet embraced the double feature movement, it was stated.

Last season, major distributors sold 119 doubles and 590 single reelers. For the current selling period, 150 doubles and 564 one-reelers are on the major company schedules.

During 1936-'37, Columbia sold 26 doubles and 101 singles; 20th Century-Fox, 42 and 58; Paramount, one and 112; Vitaphone, 36 and 104; RKO, 36 and 39 in addition to 13 "March of Time" subjects; Universal, two and 65; U. A., 18 Walt Disneys; M-G-M, 12 and 80.

For the new season, the following are being sold: Columbia, 26 two-reelers and 100 singles; 20th Century-Fox, 42 and 58; M-G-M, 12 and 80; Paramount, one and 100; Vitaphone, 30 and 104; RKO, 24 and 39 in addition to 13 "March of Time" reels and 18 Walt Disneys; Universal, 13 and 52 in addition to two special double reelers; U. A., nothing so far.

the bill ignores the unemployed and does nothing for technicians, who are described as "the very life blood of the industry."

They have proposed amendments to the bill abolishing the double quota, calling for quota percentages of 20 per cent for distributors and 15 per cent for exhibitors, the exclusion of directors' fees, story costs and star compensation from the determination of minimum negative costs of films for quota purposes, the inclusion of a fair wages clause, no more than one foreign technician, including the director, on any quota film, and the inclusion of a representative of the employes on the suggested Film Advisory Commission.

organization in the New York mayoralty campaign.

Among the theatres in which the reel received weekend bookings were a number of RKO neighborhood first runs in the metropolitan area. For these it helped to establish a non-partisan local political record, inasmuch as it was dated in for Friday and Saturday, immediately following a two-day booking accorded The March of Time's production on Mayor LaGuardia's public career. The latter production also played the Music Hall and Embassy in earlier engagements.

Looking 'Em Over

"Mystery of the Hooded Horseman"

(Grand National)

LINCOLN, Neb., Oct. 31.—One of the lesser Tex Ritter tries. On paper and for ad purposes, the title carries much more import than the story as it unfolds on the screen. The song department provided three ditties, "Ride, Ride, Ride," "A Ridin' Old Paint" and "I'm a Texas Cowboy." The first, written by Fred Rose and Michael David, is strained, but it is used for the tag tune.

Extreme slowness of movement stalls interest in a tale of hooded men who are seeking to terrorize ranch and mining men from property which is rich in ore unknown to the present owners. Ritter, in company with Horace Murphy, as a stooge, arrives on the scene to get entangled with the sheriff, Earl Dwire, for threatening local citizens Charles King and Forrest Taylor, a couple of hoodlums, which makes it bad all around. Ritter finally unmasks the gang. This provides him with an "open sesame" to the arms of Iris Meredith, whose father has been knocked off by the terrorists.

Performance in many cases is below par, which is a reflection on the persistence of the director, or absence of an adequate shooting budget. Many of the scenes are obviously the one-take variety. General mistakes such as easily seen shots in the air instead of at the target during chases are frequent to keep the quality extremely low.

Edward L. Finney is the producer and Ray Taylor director. Edmund Kelso contributed the story and screenplay.

Running time, 60 minutes. "G."

"Vienna Burgtheater"

(European Films)

There is considerable merit in this importation from Austria, which has the value for American audiences of a simple story, making knowledge of the German dialogue quite unnecessary to understanding, several excellent performances and good technical quality.

On the other hand, however, it is inordinately long, and would be vastly more successful in holding audience attention if it had been more closely knit, or tightened up in several spots.

Made by Forst Film Prod., in Vienna, and directed by Willy Forst, the film is featured by the outstanding performance of Werner Krauss as a famous Austrian actor of the late 19th Century, who falls in love with a young girl, then renounces his love to assist the young dramatic student with whom she is in love. Excellent sequences picture Krauss on the stage in bits from "Faust" and two plays of Schiller.

The young actor becomes involved in a near scandal when the assistance rendered him by a wealthy baroness is misconstrued by her husband, and his discharge from the theatre follows. But answering the girl's pleas when he realizes she does not love him, Krauss stops the young man as he is about to commit suicide, gives him renewed hope, and brings about a reconciliation with his fiancee.

Running time, 105 minutes. "G."

Brazil Bans "Sabotage"

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 31.—The Brazilian censor, following its action in banning "The Road Back," Universal film, also has banned "Sabotage," a G. The British film was banned, according to the censor, because it upsets public order and teaches comspiracy and terroristic technique.

Short Subjects

"Sunday Night at the Trocadero"

(M-G-M)

Set in the famous Hollywood night spot, this short presents Reginald Denny as a candid camera photographer who snaps many well known film names in various comic situations. The humor of the piece is heavily drawn. However, there is entertaining singing and dancing and a parade of semi-nudes. It manages to be pleasant. Running time, 20 minutes. "G."

"Popular Science J 7-2"

(Paramount)

A new motor car, police dogs trained to lead the blind, a rocking bed for the sick, a visit to a "gemological" institute and new ideas in women's stockings are offered in this issue of the subject. The reel is done in color with the usual excellence of taste and will find a good audience. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Stockholm Pride of Sweden"

(Fitzpatrick-M-G-M)

The city known as the Queen of the Baltic is photographed to perfection here. The camera catches interesting customs and scenes in the city and closes with fine shots of sailboats underway. It is done in excellent color and up to standard. Running time, 9 mins. "G."

"Paramount Pictorial P7-4"

(Paramount)

Feminine headgear made from native materials in the Bahama Islands opens this short. It is followed by scenes of huckleberry harvesting in Oregon and a documentary bit on the theme of "Steel Never Dies." The items are pleasant variety and interestingly done. It will fit anywhere.

Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Pick Your Favorite"

(Rice-Paramount)

Scenes of the myriad sporting activities from mountain climbing and sailing to fishing off Montauk Point are flashed briefly in this Sportlight as Ted Husing delivers a rhymed commentary that comes off rather well. The result creates a nice mood by the pleasant aspects of the various activities. It is well filmed and should have good reception. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

"Protek the Weakerist"

(Fleischer-Paramount)

Another reliable cartoon with Popeye, his can of spinach, Bluto and a pair of dogs. Popeye is out walking Olive's Pekinese and he meets Bluto with a ferocious bulldog. The usual conflict occurs and with the trusty vegetable Popeye and his pooch comically and spectacularly conclude the affair. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

Mexican Firm Plans Most Elaborate Film

By JAMES LOCKHART

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 29.—What promises to be the most pretentious film made in Mexico by Mexicans, "The Conquest of Mexico" is being prepared for production in the near future by Gabriel Soria, youthful director, who heads the company that produced the popular "Ora Ponciano" ("Come On Now, Ponciano").

The new picture is to trace for the first time in the films the fall of the Aztec Empire. The scenario, which is being prepared by Marcus Goodrich, is based upon accounts of the conquest by Bernal Diaz del Castillo, one of Cortes' soldiers, and by Prescott, the American historian.

A large company is being recruited for the picture which will be made on sites here and in the surrounding community that figured in the conquest, and is to cost 1,000,000 pesos (about $280,000), the greatest outlay for a film made by Mexicans. Soria has gone to New York to purchase special technical equipment for the making of the picture. He plans also to seek several leading Mexican players there for parts in the film.

Mexican Films Gaining

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 25.—Mexican pictures are making a strong bid for prominence amid the avalanche of importations from Hollywood. Seven large local theatres are currently exclusively exhibiting as features pictures made by Mexicans in Mexico.

Hungary Increases Use of 16mm. Film

By ENDRE HEVESI

BUDAPEST, Oct. 19.—The use of 16mm. films has increased to a marked extent recently in Hungary, not only for educational purposes in the schools, but for small communities where no theatres are available to the population. The educational films are being produced by the Magyar Film Iroda, and projectors are turned out by the Telephone Factory, Ltd.

A large local laboratory, Kovacs and Faludi, has obtained the rights to reduce to 16mm. practically all features produced in this country. The result is a vigorous struggle, since Magyar and the Telephone Factory have the projectors, but educational films only, while Kovacs and Faludi have the films but no projectors. An agreement between the two factors is expected in the near future.

Swedish Film Unit Goes to Antarctic

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 21.—Svensk Filmindustri has sent a film expedition to the Antarctic. It will travel on board the big Norwegian whaling steamer Cosmos II which a couple of days ago left Norway together with a whole flotilla of smaller craft, in all 20 vessels. The expedition consists of 20 people with Tancred Ibsen as director and four cameramen and two soundmen together with actors contracted by S. F. The steamer will return next spring. The idea is to film scenes for a dramatic feature and also to make films of an educational and documentary nature.

Control of Distribution by Australian Government Seen

By CLIFF HOLT

SYDNEY, Oct. 6. (By Air Mail via London)—The suggestion has been put forward here that the Federal Government will give serious consideration to the advisability of regulating the distribution of available films between Hoyts and Greater Union Theatres, following the now definite statement that the theatre operating deal between the two circuits will not be renewed on its expiration at the end of this year.

At the moment, however, the most important consideration is as to which Government is in power next year. Always eager to protect local industry and local capital, Labor may be persuaded easily that the 20th Century-Fox influence in Hoyts represents a definite threat to the future of Greater Union Theatres, since, by reason of its American theatre circuit, it is said 20th Century-Fox can do much to influence those companies doing business with them on the coast to sell to Hoyts in preference to Greater Union.

Labor governments especially are ever ready to listen to propaganda against American film companies and as Greater Union Theatres will undoubtedly beat the big drum about the "stranglehold tactics of the American film combines," the prospects of active political participation in the matter of film supplies will not be out of the question if the Lyons Government is defeated.

In a statement by Norman B. Rydge, the Greater Union chief says that it has been hinted that if his company operates independently from 1938 onwards, adequate supplies of film will be denied to the company's Australian-owned theatres.

"Statements," he said, "have already appeared in the overseas press that all the good film has been tied up against Greater Union Theatres. I do not want to discuss this question here, but all I can say is that our Australian Government have always protected Australian industry and will not stand by and allow such a vast organization as ours to be forced out of business. No Government, I am sure, will hesitate to introduce legislation to protect, if necessary, the jobs of our large army of men and women employes, and the interests of about 5,000 Australian investors."

An extraordinary feature of the proceedings is that whereas Hoyts have allegedly cornered all the important film for next year, no official announcement has been made by either Hoyts or any one distributor that contracts have actually been signed.

Czechoslovak Firm Shows Profit Gain

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The A-B Motion Picture Studios, Prague-Barrandov, Czechoslovakia's largest and only permanently occupied establishment, showed a new profit from 1936 operations of 247,000 crowns, as against 282,000 crowns in 1935, according to a report to the U. S. Dep't of Commerce from Assistant Trade Commissioner Theodore J. Hadraba in Prague.

The dividend declared was increased from 10 to 12 per cent—20 to 24 crowns per share—in view of the smaller allocations to reserves.

Gross earnings of 4,500,000 crowns in 1936 were higher than those of 3,700,000 crowns in 1935 by almost 22 per cent.

During 1936, 25 sound feature pictures and five sound versions were produced, as against 19 sound features and six sound versions a year earlier.

The amount involved in the guarantees was not disclosed.

The plan calls for the Government guarantee on approved Czechoslovak features up to 50 per cent of the calculated cost, within a total available amount of 10,000,000 crowns (about $350,000).

"Return of the Scarlet Pimpernel"

(London-United Artists)

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Sequels are always subject to the handicap of comparisons, severe in proportion to the excellence of the original on which they are founded. "The Scarlet Pimpernel" was one of the best films ever turned out by London Films. The current offering does not, and in the nature of things probably could not, reach the same level, but it is box-office material with very considerable marquee values, and newcomer Barry Barnes certainly puts up a creditable show in the title part.

There are rather obvious story handicaps in the fact that the "Pimpernel," English fop aristocrat who makes a sideline of helping French aristocrats escape from the Revolution, was at the end of the first film known to the instruments of the Terror. That means that, when he is led back to Paris, to recover his kidnapped wife, he has to use a series of disguises. The situation created is inferior dramatically to that of the "Pimpernel's" identity being a mystery to his enemies. And some of Barnes' makeups would not deceive a really smart Terrorist.

The high spot of the production, leaving aside those frequent captures and miraculous escapes, is a picture of the convention which dethroned Robespierre, whose fall is seen to be due to the machinations of Sir Percy Blakeney, the "Pimpernel." This and a descent by the mob on the prison of La Force presents crowd work effectively on a large scale.

The story is, of course, very unsophisticated stuff, but of proved audience appeal. The guillotine, and the revolutionary tribunal which provided it with heads, are as picturesquely blood-chilling as in the original. Sophie Stewart is the Lady Blakeney, Margaretta Scott the actress who tricks the "Pimpernel" back to Paris, and Francis Lister is Chauvelin, chief of the secret service.

Running time, 90 minutes. "G."

NBC Acquires Property for Coast Studio

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 31.—Consummation of the purchase of two city blocks at Sunset Blvd. and Vine St. and the immediate start of construction of new broadcasting studios were revealed yesterday by NBC executives. The property comprising five acres, is the site of the original Famous Players-Lasky film lot.

As now planned, the new studios will provide only for the immediate needs of NBC in Hollywood. One of the reasons for this is the fear that television, if and when practical, may render obsolete buildings and equipment, it is understood.

Much Like Film Units

The studios will be patterned after the film stage unit plan. Four large individual studios each seating several hundred persons and four other studios without audience accommodations will be included in the setup. The executive and administrative offices will be housed in a central office building with a lobby three stories high, with two main entrances at the corners of Sunset and Vine, where Hollywood's heaviest traffic flows. The auditorium studios will face on Sunset Blvd., with individual entrances. Others will be built as needed along Argyle Ave.

The new studios were designed and planned by O. B. Hanson, NBC chief engineer. The contract for construction has been awarded the Austin Co. Construction will begin within a few days.

Report Radio Almost Free Of False Ads

mitting copies of commercial continuities for all programs wherein two or more stations are involved. Producers of recordings submit monthly returns.

During the fiscal year, the commission received 439,393 commercial broadcasts by individual stations and 30,983 by networks, and a total of 959,264 pages of advertising was examined by the staff, out of which only 24,558 broadcasts were found to require more than passing scrutiny.

In its examination of advertising, the commission's only purpose, it was explained, is to prevent false and misleading representations. It does not undertake to dictate what an advertiser shall say, but rather indicates what he may not say under the law. All active commercial stations are cooperating to an encouraging degree, the report stated.

WFIL has put its recording facilities to another use by recording WLW Line and Mutual commercials, and then rebroadcasting them at open periods, when WLW Line or Mutual time conflicts with previous commercials. New Shows On the Air

"Singing Cinderella"

"Singing Cinderella" is the title of the new Barbasol series, which introduced a new vocalist to network listeners in Mary Jane Walsh, whose infectious deliveries quickly should place her among the leaders in the contingent of feminine song favorites.

Her voice is small, but she sells it advantageously. Sentimental tunes are her forte, and her repertoire of love laments included "The First Time I Saw You," "Remember Me?" and "How Deep Is the Ocean?" Nat Brusiloff's band in support was rather washed out. Another instrument or two would serve well. Jean Paul King was his usual efficient self as announcer.

Listeners are offered five $50 prizes weekly for guessing the number of votes one of three reasons for using Barbasol will receive.

"Singing Cinderella" is broadcast from the studios of WOR Fridays from 8 to 8:15 P. M. and from 11:15 to 11:30 P. M. for the Mutual network. WHN and the stations of the WLW Line also carry the program. Erwin, Wasey is the agency.

Schenck and Wertheimer plan to remain here several weeks.

We want the industry to know that we feel capable of handling the affairs of the organization in the future without engaging anyone to fill the vacancy caused by Richey's resignation, other than retaining Pearl Sprott as business manager.

"We feel that she is entirely capable of administering and rendering service to our members and that when we are called upon to handle legislative matters, we have capable enough personnel to meet any and all situations.

suggested the industry work out its own fair trade practice agreement.

Introduced by A. P. Archer, president of the Theatre Owners and Managers of the Rocky Mountain Region, Kuykendall urged the moral and financial support of theatre men interested in equitable taxation, legislation and questions affecting the industry. He declared it was hard to formulate national policies on such matters because of petty jealousies among the exhibitors, and urged them to look at the matters from more than a local viewpoint.

Kuykendall left Denver today for Omaha. From there he goes to Kansas City, St. Louis, Oklahoma City and Dallas, where his nationwide tour of regional exhibitor organization headquarters is scheduled to end.

The stagehands local is also understood to be sitting in on the negotiations. In the event the 10 houses are classified as de luxe the scale for operators would be $2.55 instead of $1.86.

A meeting is scheduled for this week at which time it is hoped the classification argument will be finally decided.

Warners Play Six Yearly on London Stage

Will Use Material Later For Its Pictures

By BILL ORNSTEIN

Warners will produce one play every two months in London in association with British producers, bring the shows to New York for presentation on Broadway and then make them into pictures, Jack L. Warner, production head for the company, declared yesterday upon his arrival on the Queen Mary.

"Blondie White," which opened recently in London, will be brought to New York in six weeks. Warners will put on the plays here without outside affiliations. The production executive said that the works of foreign writers are not controlled by the Dramatists' Guild contract.

Two English actors were signed to long-term contracts by Warner. They are Bruce Lester, leading man, and Paul Williams, character player.

Production plans for England call for 16 next season and Warner as-

Select Suit Against Warners Is Quashed

Federal Judge John C. Knox dismissed the "piracy" suit of Select Theatres Corp. against Warners in the U. S. District Court yesterday, but granted the plaintiff 15 days to file an amended complaint.

Select, which is the assignee of the Shubert Theatres Corp., claimed that its play, "The Audition," was "deliberately pirated" in the Warner picture, "Ready, Willing and Able." Judge Knox ruled that the complaint was defective because it failed to show that Select is the present owner of "The Audition." Damages amounting to $10,000, a permanent injunction and an accounting of the profits are demanded by Select.

"Awful Truth" and "Zola" Leading Box-Office Parade

"The Awful Truth" and "The Life of Emile Zola" shared the top honors during the past week, a study of key city grosses at major theatres indicates. In the running and strong were "Life Begins in College," "Stage Door" and "Heidi."

"The Awful Truth" came close to the house record for the Earle in Washington, with $25,600, double the house weekend record at Warners' Hippodrome in Cleveland, and doubled the average for the week, was a smash at $24,500, over par by $10,500 at the Boyd in Philadelphia and was held over.

"The Life of Emile Zola" continued strong at the Metropolitan in Washington, held up well in Indianapolis, topped the week at the Century in Minneapolis, went $5,500 over the Pittsburgh Penn average to lead the city, almost doubled average at the Roger Sherman in New Haven and was held, and with "Music for Madame" led the parade in Milwaukee, with $10,000 at the Warner.

"Life Begins in College" and "The Prisoner of Zenda" were good, behind "Zola" and "The Awful Truth" in Washington. "Double Wedding"

Discuss Possibility of Share in Financing

David O. Selznick, according to official sources close to the situation, definitely has been discussing an extension of his contract with U.A., in addition to negotiations with other companies, during his stay here. Under the terms of his present agreement with U.A., the producer has two more pictures to deliver after the release of "Tom Sawyer."

Several talks have been held between Selznick and parties interested in the purchase of U.A. stock held by Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford, it was stated. The possibility that Selznick will participate in financing the $4,500,000-$6,000,000 deal was discussed, it was declared.

"Selznick is an important producer on the U.A. roster," the official source said, "and we would like to have him continue with us." The source insisted that the money for the deal is set.

"We accomplished some things during the conferences last week," it was asserted, "and while I am not at liberty to discuss what they are, it looks as if the discussions will be wound serted that at least one picture will be of major importance with Hollywood stars and director. If the plan works out, additional films of this type will be produced, he said. No other foreign production is contemplated.

Gone five weeks, Warner visited France, England and Budapest. He will remain here for about two weeks before heading west.

"Theatre business is at its height in France and England," he observed. "And this is no bunk! I haven't seen it so good in years.

"One of the reasons for booming exhibition in England is because theatres charge $2.15 for reserved seats and the minimum price is 40 cents. This applies to small towns as well as big cities.

"There are some dual feature houses, but they don't make a hoorah about it. The quota laws are responsible in most cases because theatre owners are required to run a certain amount of British footage on all programs.

Warner said that in England he did not believe there were 1,000,000 unemployed. As for a war scare, there is no such thing, he said.

A third stage is being built at the Teddington studios. Irving Asher, production head in England, will sail for this country, Nov. 17. Shortly after Jack L. Warner's return to the studios, his brother, Harry, president, will leave for New York. Harry Warner has spent more than six months in Hollywood and plans to continue this schedule for year to year. He has built a home on the outskirts of Beverly Hills, which is about ready for occupancy.

Warner Chicago House Ready

CHICAGO, Nov. 1. — Warners' Rhodes, newest addition to the Warner circuit here, seating 1,500, will be opened on Thanksgiving Day. The house will run in the "C" week of release with a single feature policy to start with. Admission price at all times will be 30 cents.

Warners' new theatre in the Shaker Heights section of Cleveland will be named the Colony. Instead of opening this month as previously indicated, the house will not be ready until the middle of December. It will seat 1,500.

up this week." As soon as all details are cleared up, a joint announcement will be made by Samuel Goldwyn and Alexander Korda, probably at the end of the week, it was added.

"There are a lot of things to be worked out," the source said, "and we expect to finish them in the next few days."

According to present indications, it was stated, George J. Schaefer will continue in his post and Maurice Silverstone, head of U.A. in England, will remain in his post. Silverstone has attended several of the closed sessions. Both men are regarded in high esteem by the interests seeking to purchase the stock owned by Chaplin, Fairbanks and Pickford. The indications are that no changes in the present U.A. machinery will be made.

Meanwhile, Selznick has temporarily suspended buying new story material until a decision is made on continuing with the company or going elsewhere.

Walter Wanger, whose contract with U.A. has nine years to go, is presumably waiting for the outcome of the Goldwyn-Korda talks. His last picture, "Stand In," is now slated to go into the Music Hall following "The Awful Truth," which started Thursday. Wanger will probably leave for the coast after the opening of "Stand In."

Paramount's "EBB TIDE"

As the ebb tide ran its course they found their love . . .

Now she was no longer alone. Now she had someone to help her, to fight at her side against all the hellish fury of these mad men of the seas, these crazed bits of human driftwood, who wished to carry her with them . . . out . . . out on the ebb tide of faith, of hope . . . into the depths of their own despair. Cleveland Circuits In Talk with Union

CLEVELAND, Nov. 1.—District managers of the three local major circuits are reported to have met with representatives of the stagehands' union to discuss wage scales and working conditions as they affect cashiers and ushers in circuit houses.

A demand for wage increases ranging from 25 per cent to 33 per cent was thrown out, it is reliably stated, the circuit heads refusing to enter into any negotiations on that basis. Concessions in working conditions agreed upon were elimination of split shifts for cashiers, one day a week off for all girls, and strict adherence to the 40-hour week for all service employees. It has previously been the practice to make an adjustment of hours to comply with the 40-hour week.

Local circuit heads, it is stated, agreed to recognize the union as bargaining agent, but maintained the right to hire and fire at their own discretion.

Loew-Poli in Union Deal

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 1.—Loew-Poli has signed with both projectionists' and stagehands' unions for the next three years for 10 houses of the 15. Those remaining open are stagehands, New Haven, stage and booth, Meriden, and stage, Springfield.

Looking 'Em Over

"Carnival Queen"

(Universal)

LINCOLN, NEB., Nov. 1.—Titled right for the adventure and action houses, "Carnival Queen" will be found some better than their average fare as production and performance go. Its general level will be half-and-halfing in a dual setup.

Top casters are Robert Wilcox and Dorothea Kent. Wilcox, carnival born, although his characterization hardly bears it out, is slipped into the top spot with a tent outfit when it becomes apparent G. Pat Collins, game operator with a prison record, is mismanaging the show at the same time the show is visited by a supposed waif, Dorothea Kent, who in reality is the owner and endeavoring to find out what's the matter with her inheritance.

Hobart Cavanaugh, with the magic show; Jonathan Hale, a bank detective masking as a veterinarian; Ernest Cossart, administrator of the estate of which the carnival is a part; and Harry Tyler, nervous cohort of Collins, complete the other highlighters. Miss Kent is attractive all the way.

There is plenty of hurdy-gurdy, sideshow openings, merry-go-round music and all the stuff which lend itself to the exploitationist who wants to circus his house. The story moves fast enough to entertain well.

It is from the novel by the same name penned by Richard Wormser, with screenplay by James Mulhauser and Harold Buckley. Nate Watt directed, with Robert Presnell as associate producer.

Running time, 66 minutes. "G."

"Murder in Greenwich Village"

(Columbia)

A light, battling type of romance, with a mystery tucked into the yarn, and an accent on comedy which often fails to jell, "Murder in Greenwich Village" is not the detective fiction kind of film which the title implies, and emerges as ordinary fare, suitable for duals, while perhaps in some lesser spots it may be able to stand by itself.

Richard Arlen shares the lead with Fay Wray, he as the energetic commercial photographer with hopes, she as the wealthy girl who becomes involved with him. In support are Raymond Walburn, who is amusing as Arlen's employe; Marc Lawrence as the gangster, and Gene Morgan as the stupid detective. Albert S. Rogell directed from a screen play by Michael L. Simmons and a story by Robert S. Shannon.

Arlen accidentally meets Miss Wray, the two immediately begin to annoy each other, and she seeks his assistance when a man with whom she had been visiting in the same studio building where Arlen is located is found murdered. He aids her, and they continue their feud, while Morgan attempts to be funny and Lawrence, the murdered man's brother, launches his own investigation. The feud turns to love, of course, and when she seems definitely implicated, Lawrence saves the day by killing the unsuspected murderer and giving himself up.

Running time, 66 minutes. "G."

Reich 5,302 Houses Are Owned by 3,496

By J. K. RUTENBERG

BERLIN, Oct. 23.—Germany's present total of 5,302 film theatres are owned by 3,496 individual exhibitors or companies. The German houses have an aggregate seating capacity of 1,943,049. A little less than half the total number of theatres in the country are open daily, a third operate two or three times a week and the others are in operation once weekly.

The leading circuit is Ufa, which controls 110 theatres, 10 in Berlin.

No other company operates more than 18 houses. The total income of all German theatres increased from 176,000,000 reichsmarks in 1932 to 220,000,000 reichsmarks in 1935, and estimates indicate that the 1936 total business was not less than 240,000,000 reichsmarks, although final figures are not yet available. Attendance rose from 235,000,000 in 1932 to 310,000,000 in 1936. The average seating capacity of all German houses is 366 and for those open daily 512. Berlin and the eastern part of the country contribute the largest percentage of the nation's total theatre gross.

Berlin, with 403 film theatres, accounts for 15 to 18 per cent of the total national theatre income. The entertainment tax has dropped steadily from 18.4 per cent in 1924 to 7.18 per cent in 1936.

Distribution and production showed heavy losses at the end of 1936, chiefly accounted for by the increase in film costs.

led in Indianapolis, dualled with "Counsel for Crime" at Loew's. "Stage Door," "Heidi" and "100 Men and a Girl" all were in the running in Minneapolis. "Heidi" topped the Chicago takes, going $4,200 over par at the Oriental, while "Life Begins in College" and "Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938" were strong.

"Double Wedding" took the lead at Loew's State in Houston, going slightly over par, while "Ali Baba Goes to Town" and "Stage Door" held up nicely on a split week. Behind "Zola" in Pittsburgh were "Walter Wanger's Vogues of 1938" aided by a stage show at the Stanley, and "Life Begins in College" in its second week. "Victoria the Great" on a roadshow policy was high in Montreal, going $3,000 over the average at His Majesty's. Other strong attractions in the city were "100 Men and a Girl," in its fourth week, "High, Wide and Handsome" and "Life Begins in College."

"Stage Door" Takes Omaha

"Stage Door," dualled with "Love Is on the Air" took the best gross of the year at the Brandeis in Omaha, and was held over. "Life Begins in College" was strong. "Stage Door" was the top grosser at the Hillstreet and Pantages in Los Angeles, in both cases dualled with "The Lady Fights Back." The bill almost doubled average at the Hillstreet and went $13,000 over average at the Pantages.

"Heidi" came close to doubling average at the Denver in Denver with $13,500 and was moved to the Aladdin. First runs were generally good, with "100 Men and a Girl" and "Wife, Doctor and Nurse" strong. "Danger—Love at Work," plus Ted Lewis and his band on the stage, was the only attraction besides "The Awful Truth," the leader, to better par in Philadelphia.

Seattle Likes "Life Begins"

"Life Begins in College," dualled with "Flight from Glory" led the grosses at the Paramount in Seattle and was moved to the Orpheum. The rest of the houses were quiet. "Double Wedding" on a dual with "Dangerously Yours" were behind "Zola," which led in Milwaukee, but the bill was strong enough to warrant a second week. "Heidi" plus a stage show at $10,400, which was $3,400 over average at the Fox in Kansas City, was the only bill to come through well in a slow week. "Lost Horizon," with an Eddie Peabody stage show at the Fox in Detroit, led the way with $26,200, over average by $6,200. "Big City," plus Fred Waring on the stage of the Michigan, accounted for $26,400, over average by $5,400. "Live, Love and Learn" was just about fair.

"Yes, the poll went for vaudeville, but the musicians' union didn't."

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

Bulldog Drummond's Revenge

(Paramount)

Hollywood, Nov. 1.—Mystery, menace and adventure are the principal ingredients of "Bulldog Drummond's Revenge." There is also some comedy and romance. Production technique (danger and escapes, often in thick fog, in London, Paris, on a train and aboard ship) tends to accentuate the drama expected in a Scotland Yard story. Five principal characters, John Howard, John Barrymore, Louise Campbell, E. E. Clive and Reginald Denny, all bearing the same screen identities as in "Bulldog Drummond Comes Back," are again present.

Howard (Bulldog) much prefers marriage to Miss Campbell to further experiences with Scotland Yard's head man, Barrymore. But the theft of a munitions secret which threatens the security of England excites his interest. Ensues a stalking chase through fogbound London, aboard a train bound for the coast, across the Channel to Paris. Miss Campbell goes along, as do the comedy characters, Clive and Denny. Many adventures befall the quintet, particularly Howard and Miss Campbell, prior to the capture of sinister Frank Puglia and the return of the secret formula.

Edward T. Lowe adapted the H. C. McNeile story and Louis King directed. They functioned similarly in the case of "Bulldog Drummond Comes Back." Intended as a secondary feature, its market is evidently in places where a lot of weird goings-on are understood and appreciated.

Running time, 55 minutes. "G."

"Rangers Step In"

(Columbia)

No departure from the routine handling of a western story is to be found in "Rangers Step In." In fact, it relies on the tried and tested theme of a feud between two families who have brought their quarrel from Kentucky to the range. As it is such standard melodrama, it may find acceptance.

Bob Allen, probably the handsomest of western film leading men, is featured. The narrative concerns the fight between the aforementioned two factions that springs from the deviltry of an unscrupulous individual who is trying to decimate the Warrens so he can step in, buy their property cheaply, and then resell it to railroad interests as right of way at a handsome profit. Allen and his troop of state rangers are called in by the local sheriff. They attempt to calm things, but there is always interference. Only when Allen is framed in the killing of the scion of one family does the affair get somewhere. Allen uses a clever ruse and uncovers the real culprit whom he hands over to the authorities after beating the daylights out of him. The two families are peacably reunited and Allen finds romance with Eleanor Stewart.

Spencer Gordon Bennet directed. The support includes John Merton, Lafe McKee and Hal Taliaferro.

Running time, 61 minutes. "G."

"Tex Rides with the Boy Scouts"

(Grand National)

The ready-made exploitation angle, evident in the title and sprinkled liberally throughout the narrative should provide an avenue for the facile selling of this western to children and the members of the Boy Scouts.

The story manages to offer scouts at their various activities in every possible sequence. Tex Ritter plays a Federal agent who is tracking train robbers. Aided by Snub Pollard and Horace Murphy, he sets about locating the thieves. He locates them at a mine that is used to cover up their transactions. Meanwhile, Pollard is converted by the scouts and Ritter finds time for a romance with Marjorie Reynolds. At long last, as the ex-King of England said, the forces of law and order and the bandits come to grips. The scouts snare one faction of the gang and Ritter and a posse capture the other.

The story drags and only in the final reel does the element of action really show itself.

The support includes Charles King, Tommy Bupp, Karl Hackett and a liberal assortment of boys from a Los Angeles troop. Ray Taylor directed.

Running time, 66 minutes. "G."

district manager for the Tri-State Theatres Corp., which operates 14 houses in Nebraska, said that as far as he is concerned the Bank Night question is dead.

Sam Epstein, president of the Epstein Circuit, said he felt it to be unfair that Bank Night is ruled out of the theatres, but similar schemes still operate at Omaha filling stations and cleaning shops.

Will H. Singer, manager of the Brandeis, said he plans to drop the whole thing.

William H. Wright, attorney for both the Omaha committee and for the Fox Beatrice Theatre Corp., of Beatrice, Neb., against whom the unfavorable decision was made, said he thought a request for a rehearing might be advisable. It would be best, he added, to await decisions pending in the Supreme Court of Missouri and Minnesota.

Approval for "Strike" Pact Is Due Today

Leaders in Philadelphia Favor Settlement

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.—Formal approval of the proposals for settling the exhibitors' "buyers' strike" against Paramount is expected to be given by exhibitors in this territory, where the "strike" originated last July, at a meeting here tomorrow morning.

Opposition to the settlement proposals is limited to a minority of the exhibitors affected and, significantly. the most influential figures in local exhibitor circles are in favor of the settlement.

Tomorrow's meeting will hear reports by a group of 25 exhibitors who, during the past week, opened negotiations with the local Paramount exchange either for the settlement of their last season's contracts or for new season pacts, or both. The results of these negotiations will be reported to the meeting as a guide to the exhibitors in judging the manner in which the settlement proposals work out in actuality. Ben Golden, Philadephia

This rate is equal to the British preferential tariff which has been extended to British-made films for five years.

The change in the customs schedule means that films having French.

IATSE Claim Upon Service Men Expected

Possible Move Delaying Organizing Activity

The I.A.T.S.E. may claim jurisdiction over theatre sound equipment service workers, it was learned yesterday, and the possibility of this action has already delayed the final organizing work among theatre service men several months.

Several I.A.T.S.E. projectionists' locals, including Local 306, New York, already have asserted jurisdictional claims over the service men and, it is understood, have appealed to the I.A. to lay formal claim to this jurisdiction before the A. F. of L. Whether or not this action actually has been taken could not be ascertained definitely, but it was learned. nevertheless, that the service men's organization, which was formed early last summer, has not yet been chartered by the A. F. of L. as an independent union.

Regardless of the ultimate disposition of the jurisdictional question there is no doubt that organization of

Final Details Now Said Under Discussion

The United Artists deal late yesterday was reported to have reached the stage where details of the new setup to emerge under the changing control of the company are now occupying the time of Samuel Goldwyn and Alexander Korda who would become half partners in the corporation by acquisition of the stock now held by Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks and Charles Chaplin.

At the same time, indications from another quarter tended to emphasize the point that, while the purchase price has been arranged through Prudential of London possibly in association with other British banking groups, some details concerning terms under which the money is being advanced continue to call for clarification and the establishment of mutuality with the Goldwyn-Korda interests. One thoroughly familiar with the status of the negotiations described them in this manner:

"While efforts are being made to push the English group, it seems the

Insiders' Outlook

By RED KANN

AT odd intervals, and no doubt because of the travail which goes into the capturing of rippling fun on the screen, Hollywood astonishes with the prodigious merit of its endeavors. Tomorrow, the Music Hall will prove the case when "The Awful Truth" begins an engagement there. It was only a few weeks ago that Harry Cohn was in town, looking at "You Can't Take It with You," that hardy perennial of New York's last stage season and still getting along on all eight this doddering theatrical year; Columbia owns it and is preparing to do something about a transfer from stage to film pretty quickly now. He was talking about "The Awful Truth," predicting for it a whirlwind success, going on at length about a new Cary Grant and not overlooking Irene Dunne in the telling . . .

All of this eventually conveyed itself to us as a "must" and when the time, therefore, came along for Columbia to show this high-speed comedy, there we were on deck to take a look. In these mixed up days with a chore or two or three constantly demanding attention, time out for pictures is not always as convenient as it sounds. Our approach to the projection room consequently was as one disgruntled and grumbling. Our departure was springy, airy and labeled with a grin that persistently refused to fade as the day went on . . .

Now you must admit, as we do now, that this is saying a good deal on behalf of a reaction to any film. This is also to inform, however, that exaggeration plays no part in this report, for "The Awful Truth" is fun from its beginning, down through its length and well into its finish. It has to do with an inconsequential tilt between Miss Dunne and Grant, their divorce, her rebound into the copious arms of Ralph Bellamy, a big rancher from Oklahoma and her eventual return to Grant because she always had laughs with him and, besides, it was Cary she never stopped loving anyway. The same applied where he was concerned and that made it a dead cinch for a final reconciliation when time arrived to close out the picture and its harum-scarum, screwball comedy . . .

Already and on the basis of its limited first run engagements here and there around the country, the farce is registering its box-office strength. As closely as analyses of product and the merit in it hold in these days of football and upsets, this is an attraction which should do very right by its producer and its theatre accounts. The comedy rages high and constantly and frequently the proceedings slip into that coveted division where the adjective "brilliant" seems inescapably the proper one to use. By a stretch of the typewriter, we suppose there might be more to say. To say more, on the other hand, means doubling back on praise already thickly, but properly, applied . . .

Nobody is claiming the credit, for in matters such as this no credit should be sought. It is sufficient to point out that John Montague, who, by press association effervescence, apparently had one of those million dollar Hollywood contracts in his hand, has nothing of the kind. On each occasion when notoriety cracks the news columns, the Hollywood contract story is dug out of the morgue to temporarily damage an industry which once may have been intrigued with such possibilities but which now is not, since it knows better than to mess around with trouble. The indiscriminate publicity to which a major American industry thereby is subjected by the responsible, as well as the irresponsible, press represents a something which the film business seemingly has been able to do little about. That is, little except to take these matters in its stride and to rise above them, confident that its well-established intent to keep its cuffs unsullied eventually will impress with the full measure of its seriousness. . .

Principal Not to Expand

No expansion moves are planned by Principal Theatres, Mike Rosenberg, operating head, stated yesterday. The coast circuit has 20 units and is affiliated with F.W.C. Sol Lesser is financially interested. According to Rosenberg, the circuit did not add any theatres last year. He plans to be in town a few more days "on business," conferring with Charles P. Skouras.

IATSE Claim Upon Service Men Expected

the service men is virtually complete and that negotiations with the major sound equipment sales companies on new wage and hour schedules and provisions covering general working conditions are not far off. The service men's organization already is prepared to ask a basic minimum wage of $80 per week, it is reliably reported. The average scale for Erpi service men now is approximately $65 per week, and for RCA Photophone Mfg. men, about $40 per week. Erpi spokesmen yesterday denied that the differential, if established during the forthcoming negotiations, would force the company to increase its service rates to exhibitors. Photophone officials could not be reached for comment yesterday on whether an $80 minimum, if obtained by the union, would require an increase in that company's servicing charges to theatres.

Considered Last Year

The organizing of the service men was sufficiently well advanced last summer to cause several midwestern projectionists' locals to bar non-union service men from theatre projection booths. At the point of opening negotiations with the equipment companies, however, the jurisdictional question involving the I.A.T.S.E. and the newly organized service men's union arose, barring further advancement of the new organization's aims. Some I.A. locals, it is reported, want the service men to become members of the operators' union. Other locals, it is said, advocate organizing the service field on their own and handing over the servicing jobs to their present members in order to absorb the unemployed within their own ranks. In the latter group are the large city unions whose membership frequently exceeds available employment opportunities.

Cotton Area Grosses Up

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 2.—Griffith Theatres officials report that grosses in the cotton area of southern Oklahoma are running much higher than grosses in the wheat area. The reason is that farmers in the wheat area are storing their crops for a possible rise in price and are thereby keeping that much cash out of circulation. Griffiths reports that Bank Night, which is used in a majority of their 200 theatres, is losing its popularity and drawing power with the public.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 15
(20th Century-Fox)

This release adheres to what appears to be a Fox Movietone habit of giving the customers their money's worth not only in footage but in varied topics, well photographed, skillfully edited and produced. Six subjects make up a "world events" section; there is Vyvyan Donner's and Helen Claire's neatly staged fashions preview; Lew Lehr's "newsettes" and some thrilling shots of the Yale-Dartmouth and Princeton-Harvard games to complete the reel.

The world events are led off by new shots of the fall of Chapei, affording an impressive view of the destruction wrought in the Shanghai area, and an impressive plea by Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek for world aid for China's defense. The journey of the British royal family from Buckingham Palace for the ceremony of Parliament opening; electrical displays at the Paris Exposition; Mussolini astride his new Arabian horse, reviewing the Roman police, and studies of the 40 sets of twins discovered in a Chicago high school comprise the remainder of this section.

The fashions preview combines a glimpse of new motor models, being staged against the background of the New York Auto Show. Lehr contributes a laugh with his observations of the working of a new seal-feeder at the London Zoo. For sheer excellence of camera reporting, the shots of the Yale-Dartmouth game win the vote of this reviewer.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 213
(M-G-M)

Shots of the Yale-Dartmouth 9-9 tie furnish some of the best football scenes thus far this season. The passing and runs were extraordinary and the light was apparently perfect for long range photography. The cutting, by relieving the playing with shots of the crowd and the cheering, with Jean Paul King's commentary, is excellent. King is improving on sport subjects

After showing scenes of Japanese artillery in streets and bombers at work around Shanghai the war shots turn to Madame Chiang Kai-Shek. She is charming as well as an effective speaker. The Japanese side, presented by Ambassador Saito, falls pretty flat after her talk. Gijon apparently fell to the insurgents on a rainy day—that is, if the films were made the day of the fall.

King George and Queen Elizabeth ride to the opening of Parliament, but audiences won't get hysterical about this. Ernest Simpson, well known ex-husband, strides along the deck of the Queen Mary while photographers get busy. He looks something like Thomas E. Dewey, but even that doesn't make him an interesting newsreel subject.

Paramount News
No. 26
(Paramount)

Football activities over the weekend gives this issue of the reel its punch. The spectacular plays of the various games provide the desired action and have the stuff that pleases audiences.

The rest of the reel offers a fox hunt in Virginia, the fall of Gijon into Spanish insurgent hands, King George on his way to open Parliament, a display of fur coats on pretty models, war scenes in Shanghai, Ambassador Saito reading a speech in Washington in which he tells the world that Japan wants peace and Madame Chiang Kai-Shek denouncing Japanese invasion.

It was a dull weekend as far as pictorially acceptive news goes.

Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 30
(RKO)

The highlight of this rather routine number of the Pathe reel are the sharply contrasted speech of Japanese Ambassador Hirosi Saito, contending in Washington that Japan only wants peace and no territory in China, and war scenes in and around Shanghai, indicating the terrible price of that "peace."

The spectacular finish which enabled Yale to tie Dartmouth, in their football game last week, makes for snappy newsreel sports material, assisted by the able verbal description of Clem McCarthy. In the other clips, King George and Queen Elizabeth are seen riding in the royal coach to the opening of Parliament, which is average material; the arrival on the Queen Mary of Sir Ronald Lindsay, British Ambassador; Ernest Simpson, former husband of the Duchess of Windsor, and Daniel Doherty, national commander of the American Legion, straight stuff; the fight of the Texas Dep't of Public Health to end malaria, using an entire county as a laboratory, which is interesting and well handled, and Italian motorcycle and mounted police in a spectacular demonstration of skill and daring in leaping through burning hoops and over burning shrubbery, set off with flashes of Il Duce, glorying in the sight.

Universal News
No. 611
(Universal)

Two pigskin games, Harvard tackling Princeton at Princeton, and Yale pitted against Dartmouth at New Haven liven up this issue. The two games are humdingers with Graham McNamee giving a dramatic description of plays.

Madame Chiang Kai-Shek at Nanking, pleads for a boycott against Japan for the latter's undeclared war. This is one of the few shots where a subject actually speaks in the Universal Newsreel. Madame Kai-Shek has a good command of English and is forceful in her simple way.

Rounding out the issue are autumn floods from the overflowing Potomac at Ridgley, Md., police field day at Rome with Mussolini's men and horses going through a daring series of stunts, the destruction of a produce building which collapsed and killed two in Minneapolis, and the gentle playfulness of a wire-haired terrier and a wide-eyed kitten.

Kuykendall Renews Arbitration Moves

Williams, president of the M.P.T.O. of Nebraska and Western Iowa.

Kuykendall arrived a day before he was expected and attended the Variety Club Hallowe'en party at the Hotel Fontenelle. The following day he met 27 exhibitors at the Hotel Loyal.

Under the proposed new setup the board's rulings would call for voluntary acceptances, in this way avoiding the feature which caused the courts to outlaw the old boards.

"Many exhibitors in the territory have been working for cooperation and away from litigation," Williams said, "but they have had little success. The air is getting charged with dissension between exhibitors and distributors."

About 300 exhibitors in eastern Nebraska and western Iowa would come under the boards, Williams told Kuykendall. He expressed the opinion that exhibitors should stop fighting among themselves and start cooperating for their common good.

Kuykendall refused to take a stand on the question of admission prices, saying it was a local problem.

New Shows on the Air

"Brave New Worlds"

"Brave New Worlds," a cavalcade of the Latin Americas, suffered from a bad case of over-acting on the part of the cast in the inaugural airing. A most unfortunate occurrence this, for otherwise the series well merits praise and the attention of all listeners-in. Irving Reis is the director and we do not question but that this fine young artist will quickly curb his unnecessarily effusive actors. The material is sufficiently vivid and needs no artificial heightening.

The birth of the Republic of Santo Domingo served as the opening vehicle. Beginning in this modern day, a young idealist is introduced aboard a ship bound for that island. He is fleeing from a world torn by war and greed. A kindly ship's doctor engages the youngster in conversation, learns the reason for his moodiness and endeavors to draw a parallel between the present day conquistadores and those of ancient Spain who founded the Latin Americas and who were destroyed in the end by their own ruthlessness. Via the flashback method, the bloody founding of Santo Domingo is traced, beginning with its discovery by Christopher Columbus and the subsequent expedition to its shores of the gold-crazed Francisco Pizzaro, whose depredations and cruelty led Columbus to exclaim bitterly on his death bed: "He is a vulture feeding on dead Indian bodies lying on the beach."

The dramatization went on to trace the careers of the various conquistadores who, starting from Santo Domingo, set out on expeditions that led to the founding of various other Latin American countries, expeditions which are to be traced more completely in subsequent broadcasts. The moral the doctor painted for the young idealist, of course, is that all conquistadores in the end are destroyed as a result of their own excesses, a moral which imbues the youngster with new hope.

"Brave New Worlds" is a CBS offering, presented in collaboration with the U. S. Office of Education. It is broadcast Tuesdays from 10:30 to 11 P. M.

Overseas Previews

"Dinner at the Ritz"

(New World—20th Century-Fox)

LONDON, Oct. 22.—Annabella's third British vehicle for 20th Century-Fox's subsidiary, New World, shows a distinct advance in her mastery of English, thereby removing the main drawback to the universal acceptance of a star with an original and attractive personality, as well as undoubted beauty. The subject is also exceptionally well costumed—and de-costumed—showing some reality behind the "best dressed film star" line they are tying on to Annabella.

The story of "Dinner at the Ritz" is curious stuff, but definitely entertaining. It starts out almost as tragedy with the murder of a French financier and the vow of his daughter to bring his murderers to book. It lapses into comedy when the girl disguises herself as a Spanish countess and an Indian begum, and is instantly recognized by the two young men in love with her. It finishes as sheer melodrama with a shooting party on a houseboat on the Thames. What matters is that it interests all the time and that it is lavishly produced, with attractive Parisian, Riviera and yacht settings.

Annabella is more nearly the wistfully attractive heroine of her French films than in either of her earlier British vehicles; they are learning how to cast her. Supporting her here are David Niven, a debonair U. S. Government agent camouflaged as a playboy, Paul Lukas as her fiance-criminal, Romney Brent, a detective—a very well played part—and Francis L. Sullivan, a good villain type.

It looks like audience material, even if the conclusion is a fall down from the exceptionally promising opening. For the women, Annabella's dresses are eye-openers.

Running time 76 minutes. "G."

President Roosevelt will take to the air Nov. 14 to discuss the plan. The three national networks are being lined up by Frank R. Wilson, former head of M. P. Capital Corp. and now director of information of the Census of Unemployed, for a joint broadcast Nov. 16 when instruction will be given over the air on the method to be used in filling out the cards. Wilson is seeking to obtain Gabriel Heatter to handle the directions over Mutual, Edwin C. Hill over CBS and Lowell Thomas over NBC.

in addition to double bills. Admissions range from 15 cents for the opening at 10:30 to noon, 25 cents for matinees and 40 cents during the evenings.

During the first week of vaudeville, Henry Armetta topped the bill with six other acts. The take for the seven days was $14,000. The following week a French Riviera unit and 60 people occupied the stage. This week, the third, Stepin Fetchit is the headliner. One of the current pictures is "The Return of Cappy Ricks."

When Leventhal and Dow took over the house, it was originally planned to put on stock shows. The idea was discarded for straight double features and finally when this policy didn't go over, vaudeville was added.

we will do, but the possibility is that we will put in games." An RKO executive said that the latest development will most likely force the circuit to institute either Screeno or Bank Night in the Long Island city.

Skouras is understood to have agreed not to reinstate games in certain houses, but added the Roosevelt to its string playing Screeno because an independent competitive house was using games.

Philadelphia "Strike" Pact Put in Effect

Formal Vote Is Taken by UMPTO Members

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 3.—The "buyers' strike" against Paramount was formally ended today by unanimous vote of the U.M.P.T.O. This action followed a week of a so-called "armistice" during which exhibitors discussed terms of the settlement. It was generally agreed that favorable deals could be made, but that prices would be higher.

A minority group reported dissatisfaction. To protect this group the organization set up a conciliation board of 12 members, four to sit simultaneously next Monday, Wednesday and Friday, to hear complaints and seek adjustments with the company.

David Barrist suggested retention of the "War Board" in case future difficulties develop. At the same time he tendered his resignation, but the meeting took his advice on keeping the board and refused to accept his resignation.

The meeting was attended by about

Para. Settlement Approved by Court

Federal Judge Alfred C. Coxe yesterday approved the settlement for $2,150,000 in cash and notes of two actions brought against former officers, directors and associates of Paramount by the reorganization trustees of the company in 1934.

Paramount Says Production Delay Cost Over $1,500,000

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 3.—Not only were the Paramount pictures which exhibitors claim were included in last season's contracts unavailable for release by Aug. 1, last, but the production delays which made it impossible to release them last season cost Paramount more than $1,500,000 in studio charges, it is asserted in the affidavits of company officials filed in U. S. District Court here today in connection with the action of the Gary Theatre Co., to obtain a mandatory injunction to compel the company to deliver 10 additional pictures on last season's contract.

The affidavits filed today include those of Russell Holman, Paramount eastern production head; Allen Usher, Chicago district sales manager, and Jules J. Rubens, head of Great States Theatres.

The production delays which made delivery of the pictures in dispute impossible during the release period ended last Aug. 1, and the cost to HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—S. J. Briskin resigned today as vice-president in charge of production for RKO, to take effect immediately.

He will leave the studio as soon as Leo Spitz, RKO president, now on the coast, is prepared to take over temporary charge of production, pending selection of a successor to Briskin. The fact that Spitz will assume temporary charge was reported exclusively in MOTION PICTURE DAILY on Oct. 28, immediately after Spitz' departure from New York for the coast.

Further substantiation came yesterday of the MOTION PICTURE DAILY report, also of Oct. 28, that Briskin will receive approximately $150,000 in

Hoyts Booking Move Aimed At Greater Union Breakup

In a move designed to offset a highly competitive situation in Australia with the expiration of a 10-year partnership arrangement next month with Greater Union, Hoyts has made a deal with Snider & Dean, formerly the Sir Benjamin Fuller circuit, to book and buy product starting Jan. 1, it was learned yesterday.

Walter J. Hutchinson, head of foreign activities for 20th Century-Fox, will arrive from the coast Monday to confer with Sidney R. Kent on the Australian situation. He debarked from the Monterey in Los Angeles last Monday after spending several weeks in Sydney. Two Hoyts' managers are in town and awaiting Hutchinson's arrival.

While in Sydney, Hutchinson tried to work out an arrangement with Greater Union for an extension of the 10-year deal. He was unsuccessful.

The Snider & Dean circuit is represented by former legitimate theatres in practically every first run situation controlled by Greater Union. The latter company, which has approximately 60 theatres, is represented by six first runs in Sydney, including the State; eight in Melbourne, four of which are operated in association with other interests; five in Brisbane; four in Adelaide; four in Tasmania; three in Hobart; two in Launceston; six in New Castle, four of which are in association with partners.

Hoyts has about 200 houses, mostly

20th-Fox Will Delay Action On FWC Stock

Schenck Says Market Not Right for Chase Buy

Negotiations for the purchase of 20th Century-Fox stock held by Chase National Bank have been delayed indefinitely, Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the film company's board, said yesterday. The reason, according to Schenck, is the current stock market situation.

Schenck feels that the time is not ripe for making a stock deal. He also said that he is not concerned with the new suit filed by William B. Neblett, attorney for L. Tally and the Corbar Corp. against F.W.C., reopening litigation involving bankruptcy proceedings of the coast circuit.

F.W.C. is a subsidiary of National Theatres, a subsidiary of 20th Century-Fox. Charles Skouras, operating head of F.W.C., is now in New York and plans to leave for Los Angeles in the next few weeks. The complaint of Tally-Corbar alleges that the lessors lost millions of dollars through the disaffirming of leases in reorganizing the company. Tally seeks $421,-510 and Corbar $419,500.

Schenck Favors 10 British-Made Films

Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the 20th Century-Fox board, is in favor of producing 10 pictures a year in England, he told MOTION PICTURE DAILY yesterday.

"Souls," Meroff Get $103,000 in 3 Weeks

"Souls at Sea," Benny Meroff and his band and Jane Froman on the stage finished a three-week run at the Paramount with a tally of $103,000. The first week ended with $43,000, the second, $35,000; the third, $25,000.

At the Capitol, "Double Wedding" last night concluded a two-week engagement. The take for seven days was about $25,000. "The Great Garrick" took in approximately $15,000 in the second week at the Rivoli and was replaced yesterday by "Lancer Spy." "52nd Street" will follow "Lancer Spy." About $10,000 was garnered by "Alcatraz Island" in the second week at the Strand. The 11th week of "The Life of Emile Zola" tallied about $8,000. "Atlantic Flight" at the Globe got $1,500 in four days and "The Westland Case" finished with $7,500 at the Rialto.

"52nd St." Starts Big

WILLIAMSPORT, PA., Nov. 3.—The Rialto got off to a good start yesterday with the opening of "52nd Street." The take for the day was $1,075. The figure was better by $100 than any previous mid-week opening in three years.

Kromocolor Hearing Ends in New Jersey

PATERSON, Nov. 3.—Vice-Chancellor Vivian M. Lewis today ended the hearing on the application by Joseph O'Donnell to rescind a bid of $105,000 for the Kromocolor Laboratory, Paramus, and to have his deposit of $21,000 returned to him. At the same time, a counter petition by the receivers of the laboratory declaring that O'Donnell had no right to rescind the bid and if he did not go through with the deal should default the deposit also was heard.

A decision is expected shortly. William Krimsky, co-receiver for Kromocolor, represented the laboratory.

Sues Pathe Film Corp.

J. F. O'Keefe, as assignee of Zasu Pitts, filed a suit in N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday for $5,940 and interest against Pathe Film Corp. and Pathe Studios, Inc. A judgment was recovered for that amount in the Los Angeles Superior Court but remained unpaid.

O'Keefe alleges that Miss Pitts was hired by Pathe Studios in May, 1930, and that damages amounting to $5,000 were promised if she was not assigned to a picture before the end of the year. O'Keefe claimed that assets of Pathe Studios were sold to RKO without notice to creditors and that the sale was "fraudulent." He will ask Justice Salvatore Cotillo today for judgment because of alleged default by the defendant, while Pathe will cross move for a dismissal of portions of his complaint.

Adds Company to Action

Henry Rose, a writer, was granted permission by Federal Judge John W. Clancy in the U. S. District Court yesterday to bring in the M-G-M Corp. as an additional defendant in his infringement suit against the M-G-M Pictures Corp., M-G-M Distributing Corp., Loew's, Inc., Culver Export Corp. and Frank Dolan. Rose claims infringement of his story, "Burro, Burro" in the picture "Man of the People." He stated that recently he discovered that the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corp. registered the copyright for "Man of the People" and that the corporation was a necessary defendant.

Would Vacate Quiz Motion

Columbia will ask Justice Isidore Wasservogel in the N. Y. Supreme Court today to vacate a notice for examination before trial of Sol Trauner and Nat Cohn in connection with the suit brought by Rock Beach, Inc., against Columbia, Paramount, Universal, RKO, United Artists and the Century Circuit, Inc. Columbia insists that the examination desired should take place at the trial rather than before. Rock Beach is suing for an alleged "conspiracy" as a result of which the Gem Theatre in Far Rockaway allegedly did not receive pictures in 1936 until after one week's clearance from the Century's Central Theatre in Cedarhurst, L. I.

Mills' Landslide

E. C. Mills, chairman of the administrative committee of Ascap, was elected justice of the peace of Shelter Island, his home locality, polling 912 out of a total of 980 votes cast in the island election Tuesday. Mills, who is also fire commissioner, declared that he would contribute the fees he collects as justice of the peace to the fire department.

Dismisses Caruthers Suit

Cinema Strike Ends

The strike of Service Employes' Local 54 against five houses of the Cinema Circuit—New Amsterdam, Harris, George M. Cohan, Prospect, Bronx, and Astor, Brooklyn, which started Tuesday was settled yesterday.

Writers' Guild, Producers May Take Dispute to Supreme Court

Hollywood, Nov. 3.—Indications are that the Screen Writers' Guild and the producers named in the recent Regional Labor Relations Board hearing will carry the matter of Wagner Act jurisdiction to the U. S. Supreme Court. This was seen in the failure to set dates for other regional labor board petitions filed by the Screen Directors' Guild and three other film talent groups. No other film industry case will be heard here, it is apparent, until the Supreme Court decides the question of jurisdiction.

It was understood that in the event of unfavorable decision by the national board against either the Guild or the producers, each will make every effort to carry the case to the highest tribunal. Trial Examiner William R. Ringer has forwarded to Washington the complete file of the hearing, along with his informal recommendations. The avenue for appeal from the national board decision is the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals, sitting at San Francisco. From there, the case may be carried directly to the Supreme Court.

SEC Reveals Griffis Sale Of Debentures

By CLARENCE LINZ

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—Disposition by Stanton Griffis and Maurice Newton, directors, of 137,000 Paramount 3¼ per cent convertible debentures held indirectly, 42,000 by Griffis through Hemphill, Noyes & Co., and 95,000 by Newton through Hallgarten & Co., wiping out their holdings in those securities, featured August and September transactions of film company officials in the stocks of their corporations, according to the semi-monthly summary of the S.E.C., made public today.

The transactions occurred in August, in which month also Newton, through Hallgarten & Co., disposed of 200 six per cent convertible first preferred stock through conversion and acquired in the same manner 1,400 shares of common, of which he also disposed.

Newton Total 2,813

At the close of the month, the report showed, Newton held 2,813 shares of second preferred and Griffis 1,000 shares of first and 1,000 shares of second preferred.

The S.E.C. also reported further progress by the Chase National Bank in disposing of 20th Century-Fox stock held under escrow agreement, selling 2,284 shares of common and 4,568 of preferred during September. At the close of the month the bank still held 343,448 shares of common and 687,096 shares of preferred.

In Grand National Films, Kirk W. Todd, director, Pittsburgh, Pa., reported disposition of 1,100 shares of common, of which he still held 15,100 shares at the close of the month, while in Monogram Pictures, Sol A. Rosenblatt, director, New York, reported disposition of options for 9,765 shares of common, of which he held 11,228 at the close of the month together with 1,000 shares of common stock.

Loew's, Inc., increased its holdings in Loew's Boston Theatres to 97,754 shares by the acquisition of 132 shares in September, while in Loew's, Inc., Sam Katz, officer, Culver City, Cal., disposed of 400 shares of common, of which he held 100 shares at the close of the month, while Charles C. Moskowitz, director, New York, acquired 100 shares, giving him 1,000 shares.

Trans-Lux Active

The only other transactions reported were in Trans-Lux Corp., Robert L. Gordon, director, New York, acquiring 500 shares of common to bring his holdings to 900 shares, and Arthur C. Payne, officer, New York, acquiring 300 shares of common to give him a total of 1,803 shares.

Reports on the holdings of equity securities by men becoming officers or directors of corporations showed that Aaron Rosenthal, Los Angeles, becoming an officer in Grand National Films on July 1, last, held no equity securities at that time.

Holdings of officers and directors of corporations upon the effective date of their registrations showed that in Monogram Pictures, registration of which became effective September 10, W. Ray Johnston, New York, held 62,383 shares of common and options for 89,054 shares, and Joseph A. Sisto, New York, through J. A. Sisto & Co., held 2,267 shares of common, while Scott R. Dunlap, Hollywood, and William R. Stewart, Herschel Stuart and M. S. White, all of New York, held no equity securities.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Love Life of a Gorilla"

(Jewel)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—This is a travelogue of the jungle areas of Africa, the hairy areas of gorillas and the naked areas of native women, under the lurid title, "The Love Life of a Gorilla," and depends, for any draw it might possibly have, upon the title and its presumed lascivious connotation. The sparse credits displayed say that Samuel Cummins and Raymond Lewis assembled and edited the film, based on the results of several expeditions, including that of "Col. Hubert Winstead, F.A.A." The narrator fails to define clearly in what jungle the film was taken, mentioning "the Sudan" once, and giving, as the base for the safari's operation, Mambuti, the location of which a competent encyclopedia fails to divulge.

After spending about 45 minutes traveling about the veldt and show- the capture of various wild animals, the expedition arrives in the "land of the big gorillas." The narrator leads the audience to believe that the natives, to prevent the gorilla band from attacking the village, periodically offer a native woman to the apes as a mate. Scenes of a woman being carried by one of the large animals and of women and a child rooting about in the bush for food while gorillas, supposedly, watch over them, are thrown in to attempt to show the theme of the picture—the cohabitation of human with animal, a theme obviously unsuitable for a theatre to which the public has entree. Mammalary exposure is recurrent.

If the statements made by the narrator concerning the habits of the gorillas and the natives are true, Cummins, the guiding genius of Jewel Prod., could do science a possible service by giving the film to institutions, such as museums, and to savants studying anthropology, instead of pandering to the gullible via the box-office. It has no proper place in the entertainment field.

Reviewed without production code seal.

Running time, 80 minutes. "A."

"Charlie Chan at Monte Carlo"

(20th Century-Fox)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—So many "Charlie Chans" have been made that it must appear to the initiated, or uninitiated, that only the utmost in ingenious production makes it possible for succeeding episodes to carry a spirit of newness and difference. Yet for practical exhibition and entertainment purposes "Charlie Chan at Monte Carlo" might just as well have been the first one ever made. Of course, the enduring Warner Oland has the title role. Keye Luke and others who have appeared in earlier stories are again present. The plot, that is, as far as "Chan's" participation goes, is about the same—his solving a baffling, complicated, suspenseful murder mystery.

Where this one differs, is that it has more comedy, which Oland, Luke and Harold Huber, who came into the series in "Charlie Chan On Broadway," mainly provide. It has more melodrama, in which the above named trio, Virginia Field, Sidney Blackmer, Kay Linaker and a promising newcomer, Edward Raquello, are the focal points. Its production merit, and that includes story content, dialogue, action, characterization, backgrounds, settings and technical novelties, are of high caliber.

The cleverly concealed plot is equally cleverly developed. Oland and Luke are holidaying at Monte Carlo. In asides, suggestions that something sinister will occur are introduced. Hitch-hiking, the pair come upon a dead man in a wrecked car. Then the film plunges into its plot. The lives of several people are tangled up in the disappearance of a fortune in bonds. As dramatic suspense, compensated by comedy, holds sway, the denouement is brought about in compact and tense fashion.

Although about half the dialogue is in French, the narration is as understandable as though all was in English. Rather than becoming a handicap, this twist serves to intensify interest in the story. It is likely the film will be regarded by many as the best of the series.

Much credit for the film redounds to Robert Ellis and Helen Logan, who wrote the original, and to Charles Belden and Jerry Cady, who adapted, as well as to Eugene Ford, who directed.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

Philadelphia "Strike" Pact Put in Effect

100 exhibitors. The motion to end the "strike" was made by William Butler and was seconded by Harry Perlman.

As reported earlier, the same basic provisions which were established between Paramount and the Philadelphia exhibitors for the settlement of the "buyers' strike" there are being made available for settlements in other "strike" territories. These are Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Indiana, Ohio, Boston and Los Angeles.

Under the settlement Paramount agrees to abandon its demand for the right to inspect the books of theatres playing its pictures on percentage. The company will not adhere to a fixed sales policy but will make new season deals on either flat rental or percentage terms. A cancellation privilege will be accorded in clearing up unplayed pictures on last season's contracts and the terms of these arrangements as well as new contract terms will be subject to individual negotiation between the distributor and its customers.

Indications are that acceptance of the settlement terms will be general in the affected areas within the next few weeks.

Looking 'Em Over

"Blazing Barriers"

(Monogram)

The reliable formula of the rehabilitation of an individual by contact with government service is offered in "Blazing Barriers." This time it is the Civilian Conservation Corps. The film manages to find room for entertainment, romance and adventure set against pleasant scenery and may also be viewed as New Deal propaganda. It should fit in well on duals.

Frank Coghlan, Jr., and Edward Arnold, Jr., make a getaway from a robbery into which they were enticed by their frequenting of a poolroom and their contact with the sordid side of life in a big city. Their escape on a freight train lands them far out in the country. They meet Guy Bates Post and his vaudeville partner who feed them and keep them overnight. The following day they decide to join the C.C.C. Young Coghlan and the discipline of the camp do not hit it off. Arnold fares better. After a few brushes with the better element, Coghlan learns to toe the line. On his first leave he meets Florine McKinney, daughter of Herbert Corthell, the local sheriff. Coghlan applies for a forest ranger position and gets it. Meanwhile an officer is killed and suspicion points to Coghlan. Miss McKinney hides him in a mountain cabin. A forest fire sets off the climax and, in the ensuing excitement, Arnold is fatally injured by falling timber while attempting to rescue Miss McKinney and Coghlan. The conclusion has Coghlan a new character with a wholesome outlook on life with Miss McKinney. Taps are sounded for the heroic Arnold.

The story is by Edwin C. Parsons. Aubrey Scotto directed. The supporting players include Irene Franklin, Addison Randall and Milburn Stone.

Running time, 65 minutes. "G."

"The Return of Maxim"

(Amkino)

Once again the state-controlled Russian producers raise and vigorously wave the flag of the embattled workers pleading—and fighting—for their rights, this time against the Czarist regime. The film, produced by Lenfilm, has moments of sweep and power, rises to emotional crisis, and withal, despite unusual length, contrives to maintain an attention-holding pace. But be that as it may, the picture still is out-and-out propaganda, rather preaching a cause than telling a story of a fight for an ideal.

That the film's preachment is telling, for those who are inclined to listen, was indicated in the spontaneous applause with which certain dialogue passages, translated in subtitle, were greeted by the audience at New York's film home of Soviet sympathizers, the Cameo. That the film contains too much of propaganda for the run of Americans is also evident. Likewise, the inherent characteristic of the Russian, as seen in these films, at least, to gesture in exaggerated fashion, and shout his lines, probably will be little less than annoying to the American audience.

Boris Chirkov plays the title role in this sequel to "The Youth of Maxim," and in this case, in a setting immediately prior to Russia's entry into the World War, are pictured the political fomentation of strikes, the undercover methods of rousing the workers to revolt, and the street fighting between workers and Cossacks, culminating in efforts to persuade the soldiers to keep their guns—for future use.

Running time, 100 minutes. "A."

"Doomed at Sundown"

(Republic)

LINCOLN, NEB., Nov. 3.—Bob Steele, plains country prankster, turns serious in the first seven minutes of "Doomed at Sundown" and is sent on a manhunt for the knifer who has killed his father. Steele westerns seem to be handily received at the box-office and this one will keep faith with his fans.

There's considerable action, a few fights, and some gunplay. Incidentally, there's a spark of romance, Steele and Lorraine Hayes figuring. The setting is in mountainous country.

Besides Steele and Miss Hayes, the cast names are Earl Dwire, a border toughie, and Warner Richmond, leader of a rustling ring. Dwire will make the kids shiver.

The picture will fit in well with a weekend date. It's an A. W. Hackel production, directed by Sam Newfield.

Running time, 55 minutes. "G."

To Consider Film Bill Change Today

of the Federation of British Industries, and six film workers' organizations.

Eustace Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, received the deputation and will deal specifically with all points raised at the second reading and debate on the matter, scheduled for the Commons tomorrow. The measure has been in committee since its first reading.

Informed quarters have expressed the belief that the deputation was very well pleased with the reception they received. They expect concessions in the nature of provision for the suggested appeal committee over the advisory committee at present provided in the bill, and an intensification of British labor safeguards, as well as a possible modification of the double quota provisions.

The C.E.A. has sent copies of a pamphlet to all members of Parliament, stressing the need of two major amendments to the measure, one establishing a viewing committee to give effect to the C.E.A.'s demand for a quality test for quota determination, and the other for a Government films commission as suggested in the original report of the Moyne committee.

Tomorrow's debate is expected to open the general fight on the legislation at the opening of the committee stage of the measure's consideration.

suburban situations, and few first runs. Among the first runs are the Regent, Sydney, and Regent, Melbourne.

Product deals for Hoyts were concluded by Charles Munro, managing director, when he visited here several months ago. At that time Stanley S. Crick, 20th Century-Fox exchange head for Australia, also was on the local scene. Munro also made arrangements for vaudeville acts during his stay here.

Greater Union is not expected to experience any difficulty in securing product despite the disassociation with 20th Century-Fox interests.

ITOA Still Hopes For Giveaways End

The I.T.O.A. is still hopeful that games and giveaways will be discontinued in the local area and the organization is on record that it will fight to accomplish this, Harry Brandt, president, told members yesterday at the regular meeting at the Astor.

Negotiations are continuing with major circuits to drop the practice and efforts along these lines will not cease, he said. RKO is said to be responsible for the failure of the move in Flatbush, it was stated after the meeting. The circuit had agreed to abandon games in the Kenmore, but later changed its decision, contending that partners in the theatre refused to eliminate the policy unless it applied to the entire circuit.

Product buys were discussed at length with the general opinion being that independent exhibitors are not rushing to make new deals and have sufficient bookings to mid-December.

The annual Movie Ball will be held at the Astor, April 2. David Weinstock is chairman on arrangements with Maurice Fleischman, chairman of the program committee.

It was also voted to seek from Walter J. Wiens, local Paramount manager, the Philadelphia "strike" peace plan for Wisconsin exhibitors with a promise that no current Paramount product will be purchased by members unless the plan is made available to state exhibitors.

Plans for the revision of the association's constitution and election of officers will be taken up at another annual convention to be held between Jan. 10 and 20 of next year.

Opposition to producer-sponsored radio programs was also voted.

Looking 'Em Over

"Some Blondes Are Dangerous"

(Universal)

The dumb pugilist and his affairs with the fair-haired members of the opposite sex, a perennial, is offered in "Some Blondes Are Dangerous," with a number of variations to give it a refreshing air. The hero of the piece, portrayed by Noah Beery, Jr., is a naive Joe Palooka type. In fact he has all the mannerisms of the cartoon character. Willian Gargan is effective as the ring marvel's manager and Nan Grey and Dorothea Kent are the women in his life. The leads enact their roles easily and competently.

Young Beery is brought from a picnic match, sponsored by the department store where he works with Gargan, to middleweight champion. He is entirely oblivious of the real affection Miss Grey shows for him. Instead he takes up with Miss Kent, an actress with a number of shady companions. Miss Kent maneuvers him into marriage and, with her two-timing, to the ultimate loss of his title to a fighter Gargan had taken an interest in. Finally Beery is left alone in his dressing room, beaten both in the ring and in love. Miss Grey, now a buyer for the store, throws up a trip to Paris and a fine job, goes to Beery, and the "Iron Man" finally sees the light in her eyes.

The dialogue is racy and sounds like the real stuff. The story loses no time in getting down to essentials and manages to keep up interest. It was directed by Milton Carruth from a screenplay by Lester Cole.

Running time, 64 minutes. "G."

Overseas Previews

"Paradise for Two"

(London-United Artists)

LONDON, Oct. 27.—Patricia Ellis and Jack Hulbert in a very merry story, against Parisian backgrounds with the original twist that a chorus girl, who has exploited a purely imaginary liaison with a millionaire, takes the rich guy for a reporter and persuades him to impersonate himself, in order to kid her manager that she has a backer for the show. Sounds confusing, and is, and the confusion, on the screen, is more than a little amusing.

Miss Ellis was worth bringing from Hollywood for her role; she sings the "Kiss Me Goodnight" number very pleasingly. Jack Hulbert is very British, but understandable, and he can also sing—and dance. There is plenty of comedy and a finale of the first night of the millionaire-backed show is well put over.

Running time, 75 minutes. "G."

Short Subjects

"Little Red Walking Hood"

(Vitaphone)

Another of those excellent color cartoons that burlesque the classics and manage to do it very well, too. Here the familiar story is streamlined and in a manner debunked. The chief character offers many asides which prove highly humorous as does the hero of the piece who remains disguised until the comical conclusion. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Educated Fish"

(Fleischer-Paramount)

Here is a color cartoon that will find a wide audience in all situations and pleasantly entertain them. It is the well known stuff about the youngster who would play hookey from school. Here it is given undersea treatment with fish as the characters. The beery "Schnitzelbank" song is worked in too, and with its well-drawn sequences the piece unreels as first-rate entertainment. Running time, 7 mins. "G."

"Jan Garbini and Orchestra"

(Vitaphone)

Jan Garbini is an accomplished violinist and this one-reeler shows off his dexterity with the instrument to interesting advantage. Garbini is particularly accomplished in pizzicato, but on the whole his playing is different and refreshing for this type of offering. There is also a brief story which involves the presentation of a Stradivarius to Garbini by a mysterious female admirer. It is a higher type band presentation. Running time, 10 mins. "G."

Para. Settlement Approved by Court

trustee, retained jurisdiction when the company's plan of reorganization was approved by the court in June, 1935.

As a final allowance for services rendered in connection with the settlement of the actions, Judge Coxe yesterday approved a fee of $150,000 for the trustee's counsel, Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballantine. Paramount, through its attorney, Thomas D. Thacher, recommended an allowance of that amount, although the petitioning law firm had requested an allowance of $215,000. Hilles, who had requested a final fee of $7,500 for his services, was allowed $5,000 by Judge Coxe. Thacher recommended an allowance of $2,500 for Hilles.

There was no opposition to the settlement of the two recovery actions at yesterday's hearing and the court's approval was granted from the bench in less than an hour. Arthur A. Ballantine, of trustee's counsel, observed, in advocating the settlement, that while a trial of the suits might result in a greater recovery for Paramount than the settlement amount, the cost of the litigation and the time which would be required for final adjudication were important factors in making a settlement advisable.

Call Settlement "Desirable"

Thacher stated that the settlement had been considered fully and approved by the Paramount board of directors. He said that a settlement was believed to be desirable as the company might be injured by an exhaustive airing of its affairs in court.

Barney Balaban, Paramount president, and Austin C. Keough, vice-president and secretary, were present at the hearing.

The bulk of the settlement amount is payable to Paramount in cash immediately. Approximately $650,000 is payable in one to 10-year notes. The settlement negotiations were opened last March, tentatively agreed upon in August and formally approved by the litigants on Sept. 24. Court approval had to be obtained to effectuate the agreement, as the suits were a part of the Paramount reorganization. They sought the recovery of approximately $12,500,000 for alleged misfeasance and malfeasance of company officials during the period 1927-'31.

Canada Circuit Gets 6

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—United Amusements, Ltd., operating 21 neighborhood and suburban theatres in Montreal, Lachine and Sherbrooke, Que., has acquired six theatres of Confederation Theatres, Ltd., Montreal, in an important deal, details of which have just been divulged by George Ganetakos, general manager of United Amusements. The acquisition brings the Circuit total to 27 houses.

Three Added by Associated

TORONTO, Nov. 3.—Three more neighborhood theatres in Toronto have been added to the control of Associated Theatres, Ltd., Toronto, of which H. T. Long is general manager. The three comprise the Madison, owned by the estate of J. C. Brady; Beverly, operated by Beverly Theatres, Ltd., and the Radio City, built not long ago by V. Simone who continues as proprietor and manager.

Paramount Says Production Delay Cost Over $1,500,000

Paramount resulting from these delays, are set forth in Holman's affidavit, which also states that the latter's duties include liaison service between the company's Hollywood studio and the New York distribution office.

Holman's affidavit relates that "High, Wide and Handsome," one of the 10 pictures in dispute originally was scheduled to start Nov. 16, 1936, and was to have been available on April 9, 1937. He shows through weekly reports to his office from the studio that the start of production was delayed to Jan. 6; that the company was 41 days behind on a 56-day shooting schedule, and with re-takes, cutting and editing, the picture was not ready until Aug. 20, and general release was set for Oct. 1. The production was $600,000 over its budget, according to the affidavit.

"Angel" Also Delayed

In the case of "Angel," Holman says, its premiere had been set for Sept. 1 in the Paramount, New York, but that final cutting and editing delayed its availability to Oct. 7. General release was set for Oct. 29. The production ran 22 days behind a 49-day shooting schedule and exceeded its budget by "several hundred thousand dollars," the affidavit asserts.

"Souls at Sea" finished 34 days behind a 60-day schedule and its final cost of $1,750,000 was $350,000 over its budget, according to the affidavit. It was released Sept. 3.

"Artists and Models" was started on March 15 on a schedule intended to make it available on July 9. Ensuing delays ran the picture $100,000 over budget and made Aug. 13 the general release date, the affidavit sets forth.

Production on "Spawn of the North" had been planned for the summer of 1936, but just prior to the departure of the company for Alaska in June of that year, Carole Lombard became ill. Because the Alaskan exteriors could be shot only in summer, the affidavit says, no start could be made on this production until a year later.

Fields Illness a Factor

Casting difficulties and the prolonged illness of W. C. Fields prevented the company from starting "Count of Luxembourg," it was stated. Shooting has just finished on "The Barrier" and cutting and editing still remains to be done. Paramount was prevented from starting the second Marlene Dietrich picture due to the lack of material satisfactory to the star, whose contract gives her a veto in these matters, and also permits her to make one picture annually for an outside producer. She exercised the latter right by appearing in "Knight Without Armor" for Alexander Korda in England, which made her unavailable to Paramount for an extended period, the affidavit relates.

Similar difficulties, notably a contract right to appear in pictures of other producing companies, prevented Paramount from making an unnamed Claudette Colbert picture, which the plaintiff contends was sold under last season's contract. The 10th picture, a Harold Lloyd production, was planned for last season release but could not be started for diplomatic reasons resulting from the fact that the story which had been prepared paralleled too closely the experiences of the Duke of Windsor, according to the affidavit. No suitable alternate vehicle was available, it was said.

Usher's brief points out that the Gary Theatre Co. contracted for Paramount's output for four previous years and never received the maximum number of pictures designated in the contract in any one of those years nor complained to the company or the courts as a result. Paramount, it was stated, delivered 57 of a maximum of 65 pictures specified in the 1933-'34 contract; 52 of a maxmuim of 64 following season; 62 of 64 the year after, and 53 of 65 last season. His brief makes the point that it is common practice and knowledge in the industry that the maximum number of pictures referred to in the contract is seldom, if ever, delivered during a releasing season.

Gary Brief Filed

V. U. Young, president of the Gary company, declared in a plaintiff's affidavit that no producer ever before has failed to deliver more than one or two promised features in a season. He accused Paramount of bad faith.

Other affidavits for the plaintiffs were filed by Clyde Winans, manager of the Palace, and Albert Blocher of Theatrical Managers, Inc.

Judge Robert C. Baltzell called for affidavits instead of oral testimony when the case opened last week. He set Nov. 8 as the deadline for filing the plaintiff's brief and Nov. 15 for the defendant.

The court's decision in the action is expected within the next few weeks.

Bubbles and Froths

Si Seadler returned from a flying trip to the M-G-M studio yesterday. Literally, it was that. He left here last Friday with Oscar Doob by air and returned with him via the same method yesterday.

Seadler failed to get much rest on the overnight journey, but that apparently had little to with his enthusiasm for "Rosalie," a forthcoming Nelson Eddy-Jeanette MacDonald musical, designed to hit first runs around Christmas. He bubbled over the film and actually he frothed over the performance of Lona Massey, a Mayer import whose first picture in this country "Rosalie" will be.

Hold Baker, Benchley

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—M-G-M has extended the writing contract of Melville Baker, in the Norman Krasna unit, and extended the pact of Robert Benchley, before he left for New York.

Benchley's next three "How to Do" shorts will be made in New York. Roy Rowland will direct them.

"PORTIA ON TRIAL"

(Republic)

Here is a picture which sets out determinedly to please, on the dramatic side, and succeeds so well in its direct audience appeal that it merits a good spot on any program. Without a "big name" in the cast, it offers an interest-gripping portrayal of a typical Faith Baldwin story, full of human emotion and a somewhat different play on the 'mother love" motif

As the title indicates, the story is one of life among the legalites, especially Portia Merriman, highly successful woman lawyer The mystery of her past crops up early in her bitter feud with John Condon, head of a powerful newspaper syndicate, whose wastrel son once had been her husband, and to whom she had surrendered her infant son 17 years before The return to America of the ex-husband with a new mistress and the son, sets the stage for the drama which leads to the shooting of the ex-husband and Portia's dynamic courtroom defense of the murderess.

All the individual performances are exceptional. Frieda Inescourt gives a splendid portrayal of Portia Neil Hamilton never gave a better performance than his interpretation of the prodigal. Walter Abel is excellent as the district attorney, as is Clarence Kolb as the flinty newspaper chief Ruth Donnelly always seems to be at her best. She is again. Heather Angel is effective as the justifiably homicidal mistress. Anthony Marsh is pleasing as the juvenile Barbara Pepper's snappy though brief witness stand scene is almost a triumph. All the minor roles are adequately handled

With the exception of the too-heavy pointing up of some of the scenes, George Nicholls has turned in a smooth, capable directing job Edward Paramore's adaptation and Samuel Ornitz's screenplay provide well-constructed action, tensity and bright dialog. Al Levoy gives the picture lavish production which is well above par Harry Wild's photography is tops The sound production is unusually good.

DAILY VARIETY DAILY

If laughs, tears, intense drama, suspense are the stuff from which good pictures are made, 'Portia on Trial' is due to go over big with audiences everywhere, more especially among the femmes who will go for the mother love angle like a hungry horse for its oats. 'Portia on Trial' strikes a variant on the 'Madame X' theme but it has original and surprising slants all its own and, while some may consider a few of the situations forced, the whole makes topping film material and turns out to be A1 entertainment.

Frieda Inescort loves Neil Hamilton, the weakling son of Clarence Kolb, a wealthy and powerful newspaper publisher. Hamilton fathers her son and wants to wed her but the old gentleman steps in and nixes it, agreeing, however, to give the baby his name provided the mother signs affidavits completely discrediting herself.

The baby is educated in England and years later returns to New York as Anthony Marsh. Hamilton falls in love with Heather Angel, a British girl, just as he had fallen for Miss Inescort years before. Miss Angel's baby dies but she accompanies Hamilton to America. Old man frames Miss Angel with the immigration authorities, she escapes, returns and murders Hamilton.

Miss Inescort, who has become a successful attorney, defends Miss Angel. The trial, the frantic efforts of Kolb to discredit Miss Inescort, the mounting drama of retributive justice that whirls the vengeful old millionaire to ultimate confession of his wrongdoing, constitute material from which a powerful and moving document has been evolved.

Like all superior pictures, this one had a soundly conceived story to begin with. Samuel Ornitz has taken the Faith Baldwin original and molded it into a drama of swift climaxes, punctuated by vibrant dialog. George Nicholls, handed a swell script, turns in an evenly paced directing job, taking every advantage of the opportunities for piling suspenseful climaxes on top of one another until at the finish the audience is putting out those nervous, jittery little laughs that are the unfailing sign that it's emotionally involved with the story.

Frieda Inescort captures the major acting honors. She is a player of commanding and beautiful dignity, a real Portia, and her enunciation is a joy to hear. Walter Abel plays a suave and effective district attorney who is hopelessly in love with Miss Inescort, and does a bangup job of it. Neil Hamilton contributes an excellent and well studied characterization while Clarence Kolb, as the elderly Titan with a Jove complex, never let down for a moment. His scene on the witness stand is masterly. Anthony Marsh makes a personable juvenile and does well with a difficult part. One of the memorable characterizations is turned in by Ruth Donnelly as Miss Inescort's professional assistant and confidante.

Heather Angel brings beauty and sympathy to the role of the girl who kills Hamilton and she, too, has a witness chair sequence that grips the audience powerfully. Barbara Pepper handles a smaller role with appealing skill, and the same is true of Hobart Bosworth and Ian Maclaren. George Cooper and John Kelly were good for plenty of giggles and the remainder of the cast acquits itself with credit.

Albert Levoy, as associate producer, has made this picture one that Republic can be proud of and also one that will do much to boost Republic's standing among exhibs lucky enough to book it An outstanding contribution to the general excellence of the film is the RCA Victor High Fidelity sound, which comes through under control at all times. Harry Wild turns in a thoroughly satisfactory camera job.

Inescapable conclusion is that in 'Portia on Trial,' Republic has a box office bell ringer, a product that will fill houses with afternoon as well as evening crowds, for the femme word-of-mouth on it is bound to be terrific.

Warners to Stop Supply of Scripts to Small Stations

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 3.—Warners today announced a decision to discontinue supplying radio script versions of its pictures to small stations throughout the country.

The move, according to the studio, is predicated on the finding that these broadcasts, many of which assertedly have been inexpertly presented owing to circumstances beyond the control of the stations involved, are proving detrimental to the company's interests and those of exhibitors playing its product.

The decision, however, has no bearing upon other and more important radio activities of the studio, which will continue, it was stated.

More than 210 of the smaller stations are affected by the decision, which becomes effective immediately. Final production on which radio continuities will be provided under the discarded plan is "It's Love I'm After."

Decision to abandon this activity was reached following an exhaustive national survey to determine reactions to the broadcasts by S. Charles Einfeld, director of advertising and publicity, and Robert S. Taplinger, new studio publicity head.

Broadcasting Quality Low

The survey, according to the studio, indicates that the smaller station broadcasts of the continuities have been generally inferior in quality. This has been due, it was said, to lack of trained casts and directors, and the lack of proper facilities at the stations for giving the radio versions adequate presentation over the air. The studio also said that in many instances the scripts have been enacted by local amateurs and dramatic groups with results uncomplimentary to the pictures on which they are based. There have been cases in which inference has been made that the actual stars of the film were participating in the broadcasts, it is averred.

Inasmuch as inexperienced players appeared in the radio versions, it was further stated, this was injurious to the film stars.

In conclusion, the Warner statement said, the studio has decided that these broadcasts of its radio versions have failed in their mission to publicize constructively its productions and have proved harmful to the box-office in numerous instances. Transcription programs will be continued, however.

Lack of power in the north necessitated sets designed to use as little power as possible which will be run off batteries.

Short Wave Hearings Are Closed by F. C. C.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—After four days of hearing relative to whether non-commercial or commercial interests shall control short wave frequencies for broadcasts to South America, the F.C.C. closed discussion of the subject and said it would hand down a decision within three weeks.

The frequencies, hitherto held by the Government and now allocated for temporary use only, are being sought by NBC, General Electric Co., and the World Wide Broadcasting Corp., a non-commercial educational organization.

While World Wide said it would use the frequencies only for educational programs, NBC and General Electric said they seek the facilities for Latin American broadcasts which later might be sponsored commercially.

To Ask Injunction In Operating WTNJ

The Trenton Broadcasting Co. will ask Justice Salvatore Cotillo in the N. Y. Supreme Court today for a temporary injunction pending trial to restrain Charles E. Loew, Julie V. Loew and WOAX, Inc., from interfering with Trenton's operation of Station WTNJ. The plaintiff alleges that it purchased all the broadcasting time of WTNJ in November, 1934, under a three-year contract. Rental under the agreement was $12,600 for the period plus all operating costs with an option to purchase the stock of the corporation for $70,000.

Trenton claims that it took advantage of the option but that the defendants refused to apply to the F.C.C. for approval of the sale. They ask that the defendants be compelled to sell their stock for the agreed price and that a temporary injunction be granted until the trial takes place.

Films Replace Theatres Over U.S.—Wanger

Legitimate Has Passed Out, He Tells Ampa

By BILL ORNSTEIN

"The legitimate theatre has passed out as a national theatre and pictures have taken its place, not only as a national theatre but internationally," Walter Wanger, U. A. producer, yesterday told members of the Ampa at the International Casino.

Wanger brought up the topic in discussing the passing of Winthrop Ames, whose ambition, Wanger said, was to develop the legitimate theatre nationally.

"The world accepts pictures as a regular diet every day," Wanger stated, "but our greatest problem is to make each individual picture for what

Australian Censor Lauds Product Code

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 3.—The substantial reduction in the number of pictures which were banned or in which eliminations were ordered by the censor board in Australia during the past five years, is chiefly the result of the work of the Production Code Administration in Hollywood, in the opinion of W. Creswell O'Reilly, chief film censor of Australia.

O'Reilly was here in the course of a nine-month world tour, during which he visited production centers in the United States and England. The complete text of O'Reilly's statement follows:

"During my brief stay at Los Angeles with my wife and daughter, the concluding stage of a nine months' holiday tour around the world, we have taken the opportunity of visiting the major producing companies' film studios, and have gained useful and interesting information regarding their organization, methods, and activities generally. We did the same in England, but, of course, the American studios are on a much larger scale.

"My visits were in a semi-official capacity, but the knowledge gained will be of much value when I resume duty in Sydney at the end of next month.

Conference Illuminating

"Not the least interesting contact was a Saturday morning conference with the representatives of the producers organization at their offices in Hollywood where we exchanged ideas and gained illuminating information respecting each other's viewpoints. I have great admiration for the splendid work which has been done during the last three years or so by Mr. Breen and his associates and the thoroughness with which they have exercised control over the production of the studios from the time the story is considered right down to the final preview and release for exhibition. It is a great achievement to have secured the agreement of producers not to release any film without the certificate of approval.

"The work done is reflected in the censorship figures for Australia. For instance, about five years ago, 16 per cent of feature films were rejected, and over 50 per cent suffered excision. In 1936, the corresponding figures were 1.7 per cent and 20.9 per cent respectively.

"Last year in Australia, an organization was formed under the auspices of the Roman Catholic Church similar to the Legion of Decency in the U. S. A., and our censorship cooperated with them in the preliminary discussions, and, as a result, the lists issued by the Australian organization are practically identical with the classification made by the Commonwealth censorship.

"We are deeply indebted to the executives of producing companies for facilities which have been made available to us in England, Canada and the United States, and I appreciate the kindness and courtesy extended to me by the offices of the Hays organization."

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 4.—Edward Rowley of Robb and Rowley, Texas circuit operators, is in Hollywood on a visit. He leaves tomorrow on his return to Dallas.

Advantages Claimed For Brewster Color

A camera making three separate negatives rather than using the bi-tack system and one reflected image, the fact that it is a photographic process rather than a lithographic process, enabling the use of basic dyes which are ideal for color photography, and the use of mazda light in the studio, are the advantages claimed by P. D. Brewster, president of Brewster Film Laboratories, Newark, for his color process, Brewster Color.

In describing the process, Brewster pointed out that the color camera uses three entirely separate negatives, recording simultaneously red, green and blue separations by means of two three-plated revolving mirrors operating between the lens and film. The red and green separation negatives are printed respectively, on the two sides of a double-coated positive film and developed to produce separate black and white (silver) images, reproducing the color values, and in registry on the two sides of the film.

These silver images are converted chemically into a transparent mordaunt, and the image series, printed from the red separation negative, is treated with a blue-green basic dye, and the images on the other side, printed from the green separation negative, are treated with a basic magenta (blue-red) dye. The third color series, yellow recorded from the blue separation negative, is superimposed on the magenta image by a modified imbibition process that permits the use of a yellow basic dye.

Hays Leaves for Coast

THE KEYSTONE OF YOUR FUTURE

Films Replace Theatres Over U.S.—Wanger

it is. The thing is how we can focus publicity on the picture. We must have novelty, new ideas.

"When I speak of novelty I can refer to 'The Life of Emile Zola,' which is an enormous tonic to the box office. I think 'Conquest' also will be something different.

"We must get the picture before the public while it is playing, not after," he cautioned.

"Box-office personalities are only box-office when properly placed. There have been several big pictures with names that have not been hits. That was due to the fact that the personalities were not cast right.

"As one instance let me point out 'Private Worlds.' The part called for a Scotch doctor. Herbert Marshall was anxious to play the part and was even willing to take a reduced salary if he could get it. We felt that Charles Boyer would be the logical man and cast him for the role against the advice of the sales organization. The picture definitely established Boyer as a new personality and this is a good example of combination casting.

Lauds Publicity

"It is more important to cast a star to fit the role and keep him out of wrong pictures. This has been particularly true of our stars. We have a small organization and can watch them."

Wanger then went on to stress merchandising of films on a comparative scale with developing new stars. On publicity and advertising, he said: "I deeply appreciate the work you men do and the part you play is of international importance." He asked that proper publicity be given to novel ideas and new personalities.

In introducing the producer, Hal Horne referred to all of Wanger's pictures but "52nd Street," on which he worked. Wanger, nervous at first, said: "I believe there is no one in the picture business that has a rosier future than Hal. I expect him soon to be known from coast to coast as a leading figure."

Horne, who was in his usual form, declared that "Wanger is a man who perhaps can make a dollar go farther than anyone else in the business."

Entertainers Appear

There were several acts on the program, which included Rocco and Salters, colored song and dance team from the Kit Kat Club, who also appeared in "Vogues of 1938." Georgie Tapps, who also appears in the picture, took a bow. Jack White, who plays in "52nd Street," pulled a couple of nifties that had Horne looking to his laurels.

White said, "You know this picture. I call it 51st Street. They cut so much out of it, it lost a block."

Jack Robbins, the music publisher, said a few words. Sammy Fain, the composer, sang and played many of the numbers he wrote. After Wanger's talk Zenn Kaufman talked on merchandising and sales contests.

All Kinds

Selznick International went into a dither yesterday, all because of a cable from faraway Singapore. At the Capitol there, "The Prisoner of Zenda," it was stated, grossed $4,200 on its opening day. This was twice as much as "Garden of Allah" did in its first week; more than the weekly take on "A Star Is Born" and three times the gross for the first week of "Little Lord Fauntleroy."

company's 1937 net to approximately $11,000,000, inclusive of dividends from partially-owned subsidiaries. The estimate is based upon normal earnings expectancy for the fourth quarter, plus the amount of the settlement, which is payable in cash immediately. Paramount recently reported combined earnings and equities amounting to $6,696,000 for the first nine months of 1937.

Para.'s Teasers Are Called Entertaining

Paramount recently decided to produce teaser trailers on eight to 10 of its big pictures a year. These are usually shown in theatres two weeks in advance of regular bookings and are distributed free. They are apart from the regular trailers released by National Screen Service. "Thrill of a Lifetime" is the first on the new season's schedule and is entertaining and different.

There is music and song and, by cleverly interweaving miniature scenes from the picture, the public is given a fairly good idea of what is to come without tipping off the story.

The Yacht Club Boys are shown in a producer's office on the Paramount lot and are warned that Adolph Zukor will not permit them to exhibit any advance material on themselves. So they sing a specially composed ditty and bring to life pictures on the wall. At the same time, the exhibitors as well as the public, will get an idea what the Yacht Club Boys themselves can do. It all takes place in three minutes.

According to Bob Gillham, similar subjects are to be made available on "True Confession," with Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray ribbing each other, and "The Big Broadcast of 1938," in which W. C. Fields tries his skill at golf and billiards.

The idea is good and well taken.

Berlin Attendance Low

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4. — During July, 1937, the 398 film houses in Greater Berlin were visited by 3,707,580 persons, paying 2,982,667 reichsmarks, of which 215,544 reichsmarks went for taxes, according to a report from the office of the commercial attache to the U. S. Dep't of Commerce. Thus far the high month was March, when the 403 theatres were visited by 6,143,998, paying 4,982,994 reichsmarks, of which 433,768 reichsmarks went for taxes.

leaving Columbia for RKO at the expiration of his present contract and being succeeded in his Columbia post by Mendel Silverberg, attorney. Another is to the effect that Pandro S. Berman, now producing A pictures at the studio, may add to his own duties those of Briskin. Other quarters see Henry Henigson, now at M-G-M, assuming direction of the RKO studio.

Lee Marcus, at present producing most of the RKO B product, is seen as a likely candidate for the Briskin position while others being fitted into the picture include David O. Selznick, Mervyn Le Roy and Jesse Lasky.

Even the old RKO-Paramount merger rumors have been revived with adherents to this belief pointing out that RKO would be in a position to take such a step immediately upon its discharge from bankruptcy.

Burgess Meredith will preside at the meeting, about half of which will be given over to a discussion of W.P.A. theatre projects.

The council of the Associated Actors & Artistes of America, the parent theatrical union for all classes of performers, will meet today for the first time since the reorganization of its administrative setup with Frank Gillmore as active head. Jurisdictional problems of affiliated unions, including those of the American Federation of Actors and Burlesque Artists Ass'n will be discussed by the board at the meeting.

Frisco Openings Gain

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 4.—Theatre openings have speeded up. Nasser Brothers, after expending $50,000, have reopened the Castro, partly destroyed by fire several months ago. Harry Farros has taken over the Liberty and changed it to 'Chez Broadway" with a burlesque-picture policy. Joe Enos has opened the Columbia with second run pictures and giveaways. Morris Klein will open the Palace (formerly Milano) Nov. 5. F.W.C. has taken over both the Marvel and Valmar in Vallejo. Morris Gallos is remodeling his Majestic which is located in the Mission district.

Doubles "Youth" Budget

Martin Finkelstein, president of Globe Pictures, has doubled the budget on "Spirit of Youth," which is to star Joe Louis. Original plans called for bookings in colored houses only, but this idea has been dropped and the picture will be made available for all theatres.

Film Bill Has 2nd Reading In Commons

tion, he said, is held to be too uncertain.

Stanley voiced the hope that reciprocity between the British and United States industries would encourage Americans to buy British films at a price sufficiently substantial to create a special incentive to promote their exhibition in the States.

In debate the commission as well as the quality test was argued at length with some members stressing the American menace and others stating that the chief function of the British industry is to bring about a coalition between England and the United States.

Because of the Moyne suggestion regarding the films commission that "the powers of this commission were such that the House of Commons would not be prepared to part with them" there was considered by yesterday's committee the establishment of a body without quasi-legislative powers.

Tom Smith declared that the adoption of the bill would reduce British films from 200 to 80 yearly but this was denied by Capt. Euan Wallace who, replying for the Government, added that it is undesirable that Commons should give the control of such a rapidly changing industry solely to a commisssion. Concluding, he stated that the Government favors an advisory commission.

a committee effected the arrangement with managers of Broadway houses and circuit home office representatives. The session was held in the RKO headquarters.

With the conclusion of negotiations, stage shows are expected to be restored in a number of circuit theatres which have been holding up deals pending the outcome of the salary question. One of the theatres which is expected to reinstate shows is the Strand, Brooklyn.

Circuit representatives are expected to get together with Local 306 on final details governing wage increases on a two-year pact under a 10-year master contract signed in 1935. A temporary 10 per cent advance recently was granted by the circuits.

The Newsreel Parade

Movietone News
Vol. 20, No. 16
(20th Century-Fox)

A strong, well-paced and wholly entertaining reel is this number of Movietone News. The top spot, of course, goes to the election, with fighting speeches by the two successful candidates in New York's historic balloting, Mayor LaGuardia and Thomas E. Dewey, new district attorney. The clip is concluded with a shot of President Roosevelt voting in Hyde Park and giving his name in the manner of any other voter.

In the World Events section are excellent shots of the dash for safety of the "suicide squad" who held off the Japanese in the Chapei area of Shanghai, and the advance of the Japanese troops. Palestine is seen under martial law, with British soldiers in command of the situation. A good pictorial study shows the herding of a multitude of sheep down from the Colorado mountains as winter approaches.

Styles are displayed prettily by youngsters on the 20th Century-Fox lot on the coast, and Lew Lehr is at his funniest in his description of a water fight between two fire companies in France. It's a standout laugh. Ed Thorgersen is clear and snappy in the football sequence showing the N. Y. Giants battling the Chicago Bears in a professional game. The almost human intelligence and skillful jumping of police dogs in training in Australia is extremely interesting.

Running time, 10 mins. A.

News of the Day
Vol. 9, No. 214
(M-G-M)

This is an excellent reel, interesting and diversified. It opens with the election in New York, showing shots of Times Square, well-taken, short speeches by Mayor LaGuardia and Thomas E. Dewey, successful candidate for New York District Attorney, and an amusing conclusion as President Roosevelt, pictured while voting at Hyde Park, suggests to cameramen that they use last year's pictures, since, he says, he is probably wearing the same suit, anyway.

Splendid shots of the Chinese defenders of Chapei, the ruined section of Shanghai, and the activities of the advancing Japanese troops, feature the foreign material. Jean Batten, British girl flyer, is seen landing at Croyden Airport after her record-cracking flight from Australia. Fine angled shots from above make of the Horse Show in New York a fascinating clip.

The speeding up of lumbering activity in the far northwest is interesting and pictorially excellent, while the speedy football sequences cover Fordham-North Carolina, Kansas-Michigan State and Pennsylvania-Navy in entertaining highlight.

Running time, 9½ minutes. A.

Paramount News
No. 27
(Paramount)

Paramount comes through with a series of behind-the-front scenes of the undeclared war on China. Some of them are gruesome, but that is war and here it is unvarnished.

The rest of the subject is composed of the run-of-the-mill material with Mayor LaGuardia attacking rackets and crime on his reelection. His speech will probably get plenty of cheers locally. Thomas E. Dewey, newly-elected district attorney, and several other successful candidates in the New York election are shown briefly and without comment.

The national horse show at Madison Square Garden, the new secret Government plane in a test flight at Dayton and the Chicago-Bears pigskin tussle at the Polo Grounds are among the other topics. Interesting are the scenes showing a Denver farmer growing coffee beans in his apartment. O.

Running time, 10 mins.

Pathe News
Vol. 9, No. 31.
(RKO)

Several interesting clips in this reel. The first is the negro tombstone cutter, William Edmondson of Nashville who has carved a number of subjects and which are now on display at the Museum of Art in New York. The second is the midget boat races at Washington where tiny craft, powered with gasoline, hit up as much as 30 miles an hour. The third, and probably the outstanding of the trio, is the world's largest Bible. Louis Waynai, a carpenter of Los Angeles, has printed the book in letters two inches high and then built a special church to house it.

Other subjects include Mayor LaGuardia's speech on his reelection in which he says: "Non-political and non-partisan government is contagious and all cities are interested in it." The new army plane at Dayton in a test flight, Hindu fire walkers in a "purifying" ceremony at Singapore and the national horse show at Madison Square Garden complete the reel.

Running time, 9 mins. O.

Universal Newsreel
No. 612
(Universal)

This is an excellent midweek issue, having plenty of variety and allotting footage liberally wherever the subject matter merits it.

The Chinese war continues to hold a high place in newsreel interest although so much footage has been received and exhibited here by now that it cannot be denied that the material has begun to reflect a sameness which tends to rob any one reel's war stuff of distinction and to brand it all with an air of repetition. Universal's Norman Alley, however, seeks to avoid this in the present release by turning his camera on the human interest angles. Considerable footage is devoted to the plight of Chinese non-combatants caught in the war zone and their dependence for food upon their Japanese conquerors. His shots of prisoners of war and of the hospitalized wounded veer away from the familiar scenes of troops in action and of destruction by bombardment to achieve good camera reporting.

Opening events at the New York Horse Show in Madison Square Garden and of the Winter Dog Show in Los Angeles are well photographed and edited. The running of the Washington Handicap at Laurel Park, Md.; a record salmon run at Tanner Creek, Ore.; tryouts of a new Army bomber at Dayton, O., and the building of mystery speed boats at Atlantic City, capable of carrying 500 pounds of explosives and believed to be intended for use by Chinese "suicide" pilots complete the reel. The seven subjects comprise a varied release of sustained interest.

Running time, 9 minutes. K.

Short Subjects

"Zorro Rides Again"
(Republic)

The colorful exploits of the character in the title role of this serial in the past have proved box-office. This, too, has all the earmarks of another hit. In the first episode there is never a dull moment. The action is apparent in the opening sequence and is almost continuous up until the concluding and thrilling but never fatal fadeout. It is safe to predict that the younger audiences will mark in red the days on which it is played.

The story that introduces the famous character is one of railroading. A track is about to be laid on the California-Yucatan line. Other interests, however, are set on acquiring the road. Murder and destruction is rampant until Zorro's grandson, the last one of the line, appears on the scene and starts upsetting the outlaw plans. The action is well-portrayed and set against scenic backgrounds. The ensuing chapters should ably carry on the initial impetus of the story.

The cast features John Carroll, Helen Christian, Reed Howes, Duncan Renaldo, Richard Alexander and Nigel de Brulier. William Nobles' photography is excellent. William Whitney and John English directed.

The initial installment runs a half-hour, the rest of the 12 episodes will run 20 minutes each. "G."

Infringement Charge Denied by 20th-Fox

A general denial was filed by 20th Century-Fox Film Corp. in the U. S. District Court yesterday in answer to the infringement suit of Quirico Michelena Llanguno. The film company admitted production of the picture, "The World Moves On," which was released in South America with Spanish titles as "Paz En La Tierra" but denied that it was pirated from Llanguno's story, "Paz En La Guerra."

The answer also admitted that a decree had been rendered in Mexico City against 20th Century-Fox Films of Mexico S.A., awarding Llanguno a permanent injunction and an accounting of the profits. It was contended by the film company that the decree was not final and that a Mexican copyright could not be enforced in the United States. Dismissal of the suit with costs was asked.

Albanes Named Head Of Radio Conference

HAVANA, Nov. 4.—Senator Wilfredo Albanes today was elected permanent president of the Inter-American Radio Conference at its second plenary session held here.

A feature of today's meeting was a rising tribute to the memories of Thomas A. Edison and Guglielmo Marconi.

Commander T. A. M. Craven of the United States F.C.C. was named as head of the technical committee which, among other important work, will deal with frequencies and allocations. The committee will organize its work tomorrow.

Hope was expressed today that a result of the conference would be the elimination, or at least the decreasing, of much broadcasting interference among contiguous countries. This is said to mean that the United States as well as other countries will be expected to relinquish rights to certain frequencies in order to obtain similar concessions from adjacent nations.

New Shows on the Air

Leo on the Air

When better pictures are made, M-G-M will make them. That has been the proud boast of the Metro organization, a boast generally upheld. But the Lion last night in its attempt at the building of a radio program, proved to be nothing more than an ineffectual cub.

The inaugural airing of "Good News of 1938" was a chaotic attempt, with scads of screen names dragged willy-nilly before the mike to say a few words or to sing a few bars of music, then retire, not to be called upon again. Jeanette MacDonald and Allan Jones, in scenes and songs from "The Firefly," saved the entire production from mediocrity.

The show, the first of its kind in radio history, provides for the exclusive use of the entire M-G-M talent by the one sponsor, General Foods Corp. M-G-M learned long ago, as must all picture producers, that names alone do not a picture make. But apparently that lesson was forgotten in planning the radio program.

Church Playlet Stuff

The first 30 minutes of the program sounded like something put on at an Elk meeting, with Douglas Shearer presented in a sound booth running a sound track of the picture "Rosalie," Buddy Ebsen and Eleanor Powell and George Murphy offering a few tap dance steps, Igor Gorin singing "Caucasian Melody" after Robert Z. Leonard had read a pedigree of the singer's background; Judy Garland offering some tunes from "Broadway Melody," and following, a battery of once glamorous stage and revue names, Irene Franklin, Ukelele Ike, Eva Tanguay, Trixie Friganza and Ann Pennington.

This was tied-in with an attempt to bring to the radio audience backstage glimpses of motion pictures in the making by having em cee Robert Z. Leonard guide an imaginary group of tourists about the lot and surprising the various acts as they went through their paces. The net result of the staccato pace was one of utter confusion.

Singing Exceptional

Thus passed the first 30 minutes of the production. Jeanette MacDonald and Allan Jones, for their part, almost made one forget what had transpired before by offering brilliantly re-enacted scenes from their motion picture "The Firefly." They sang and acted their roles superbly.

Between scenes, Louis B. Mayer, of M-G-M and C. M. Chester, of General Foods Corp., both voiced their opinion that a new era of air entertainment would result from this first merger of the allied motion picture and radio arts. Mayer tendered a master key to the M-G-M studio lot to Chester.

"Good News of 1938" is presented Thursdays from 9 to 10 P. M. over the NBC-Red Network. General Foods Corp. sponsors for Maxwell House Coffee. Benton & Bowles is the agency. Different M-G-M players will be featured weekly, with Robert Z. Leonard serving as permanent master of ceremonies, and with Meredith Willson providing the musical backdrop.

It Can Be Done

Radie Harris will begin a weekly program of film comment over Mutual Nov. 10 from 6:45 to 7 P.M.

About the broadcasting of a film program, Radie says: "I believe it can be done without being sensational. A reporter covering Hollywood should have plenty to say without debunking, without tearing down, shattering illusions and broadcasting questionable rumors and scandal."

Mutual Billings in October Hit $206,194

Mutual billings for October went over the top with a total of $206,194, an increase of 2.4 per cent over the October, 1936, billings, which were $202,008.

The cumulative total from January to October was $1,418,507, up 3.8 per cent over the billings for the same period last year, amounting to $1,365,433.

Political business for October, 1936, was $69,623. The above figures do not include this sum, either in the cumulative total or the October, 1936, figure.

Music Groups Study Television Clauses

Having agreed on the mechanics of a 10-year pact between the Song Writers' Protective Ass'n and Music Publishers' Protective Ass'n, John Schulman, attorney for the songwriters' group, and A. M. Wattenberg, counsel for Warners' music subsidiaries and representing the publishers, are now working out provisions as to limitations and restrictions of bulk sales for television.

The contract, up to the point of television, is said to be satisfactory to both sides and will have nothing to do with Ascap. Both the music publishers and writers have agreed to sign another 10-year agreement with Ascap upon the expiration of the current pact in 1940.

Attorneys working on the television angle are in agreement on the principles involved and it is now a matter of reducing the terms to writing.

Early End of Para. "Buyer Strikes" Seen

Move Started on Coast And in Minneapolis

Early settlement of the "buyers' strikes" against Paramount throughout the country was indicated yesterday with the advancement of settlement proposals in both the Minneapolis and Los Angeles territories.

An outline of Paramount's policies for settlement of the "strikes" along the lines agreed to by Philadelphia exhibitors earlier this week was presented by company representatives to Los Angeles exhibitor leaders. Striking exhibitors in the Minneapolis zone met yesterday to discuss the settlement policy previously outlined to them.

At present, indications are that other "strike" territories will follow the lead of the three major territories in ending the dispute. The other affected areas include Milwauke, Indiana, Ohio, Pittsburgh and Boston. The "strike" has been less organized in these territories, however, and all that may be required to end the stale-

Three Witmark Men Die in Motor Crash

Danny McBeth, Alex Giannini and William Kelly of Witmark & Sons, Warner music subsidiary, were killed late Thursday night in an auto accident near Rhinelander, N. Y. The three men were on their way to attend the opening of a new show at the New Kenmore Hotel, Albany, when the car they were in swerved off the road and killed the three men. A fourth man was in the car, but was not identified with the company.

The bodies are at Cornelius' Funeral Parlor, Rhinelander. Giannini's wife is due to give birth in about two weeks, it was learned yesterday.

"Awful Truth" Gets $12,500 First Day

Garnering approximately $12,500 for the first day, "The Awful Truth" is expected to tally $90,000 for the first week at the Music Hall. "Victoria the Great," which just finished a week's run there, took in about $85,500.

"Ali Baba Goes to Town" finished a second week at the Roxy with $43,350. "Heidi" opened yesterday to good business. The first week of "The Perfect Specimen" at the Strand ended with $25,000.

Warner Says LeRoy Will Be Re-Signed

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—That Mervyn LeRoy will be signed to a new long term contract with Warners on the return to the coast of Jack L. Warner, studio head, was intimated by the latter as he paused here today between trains en route west. Hollywood reports recently named LeRoy as a possible successor to Sam Briskin, in charge of the RKO studio.

Warner reported that the company had more pictures ready for release at this time than ever before. Most of them, he said, can be classed as of "superior quality." Warner was enthused over the sales reports made to him by the company's representatives here, indicating that sales in the city and territory are the best in years.

G. N. Business Hits New Peak—Alperson

Grand National this week had the biggest week in its history in point of billings and collections, Edward L. Alperson, president, stated yesterday. Contracts with F.W.C. are scheduled to be signed next week. Few details remain to be ironed out, but major points have been agreed upon by Charles Skouras and Alperson.

Alperson now plans to leave for the coast next week. Edward Finney probably will accompany him.

Walter Nolan Gets Consolidated Post

Walter Nolan, formerly with the Loew and Lane circuits, has joined Consolidated Amusements as division manager for the independent circuit's group of theatres in the Bronx. He will make his headquarters at the Earl.

No change in the managerial setup for the Eighth Ave. theatres has been made and none contemplated, according to Laurence S. Bolognino.

AFRA Ready Soon to Negotiate Contracts

The American Federation of Radio Artists is "about ready" to negotiate with agencies and networks, George Heller, assistant secretary, said yesterday.

Heller said that the basic organizing work among radio performers was sufficiently advanced to permit A. F. R. A. to ask for recognition, negotiation of wage and hour scales and of working condition contracts, but that contractual details had not been completed yet.

Some Reception

Chicago, Nov. 5.—Jack L. Warner was much impressed when he alighted from the Twentieth Century here today to find a 60-piece band on hand and "Welcome" banners fluttering in the breeze. He intimated as much to Sam Clark, local Warner press representative.

The fact that James Roosevelt, son and personal aide of the President, was arriving on the same train to fill a local speaking engagement wasn't mentioned to Warner until later.

Kuykendall Critical Of Court Decisions

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 5.—Recent court decisions affecting the industry were criticized by Ed Kuykendall today at the annual meeting of the M. P. T. O. of St. Louis, eastern Missouri and southern Illinois.

He expressed the opinion that judges did not understand the industry's problems. While leaders in Congress, including Senator Pat Harrison, urge the necessity of closer cooperation in the industry, he said, court interpretations of existing law make this impossible.

Following Kuykendall's talk the

Monogram May Raise Total, Says Dunlap

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.—Monogram may increase its production schedule for the 1938-39 season, Scott R. Dunlap, vice-president in charge of production, said after arriving from a board of directors meeting in New York.

The 1937-38 schedule consisted of 42 pictures, including 16 westerns. More than half of the product has been completed and is playing at theatres. This, according to Dunlap, puts the company a month and a half ahead of schedule.

FCC Stops Hearst's Foreign Air Service

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—The F.C.C. has suspended the authority of Hearst Radio, Inc., to communicate with Johannesburg, Bogota and Honolulu through station WEEW. The commission ruled, however, Hearst Radio could have a hearing on the communications links. A protest against the Hearst application by Press Wireless, Inc., has been dismissed.

Equity Upset By Prospects Of Film Rule

Screen, Radio Dominate Four A Directorate

The prospect of Screen Actors' Guild domination of the board of Associated Actors & Artistes of America threw a scare into a membership meeting of Actors' Equity Ass'n at the Astor yesterday that failed to subside until it was made clear that there was nothing the older actors' union could do about it.

A resolution proposing equal union representation on the Four A's board was voted down following considerable discussion. Burgess Meredith, who presided at the meeting, which was attended by about 500 Equity members, and George Heller, assistant secretary of the American Federation of Radio Artists, whose representation on the Four A's board will also exceed Equity's, argued that there was nothing to fear from Equity's board minority and that the "protection" of union members would be the aim of the parent A. F. of L. organization for theatrical performers. That there would be dissension within Four A ranks as a result of the

Arguments Ordered On Writer Dispute

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.—The National Labor Relations Board in Washington today issued orders for oral arguments to be presented there Nov. 19 in support of the testimony given at the recent Hollywood hearing on the Screen Writers' Guild petition for its designation as the bargaining agent for screen writers.

Dr. Towne Nylander, regional labor board director, who made public the national board's order here, said that notifications would be sent to the 16 producers named in the guild petition, to the guild itself and to the Screen Playwrights, which intervened in the action because at present it holds the bargaining agreement for writers.

MOTION PICTURE DAILY'S HOLLYWOOD PREVIEW

"The Hurricane"

(Goldwyn-United Artists)

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5.—For months Samuel Goldwyn and his publicity department have been advising the world that "The Hurricane" would take a place among the great pictures of all time. In the opinion of a small group of reviewers who have seen the film prior to its opening, this proves entirely correct.

"The Hurricane" is a great picture simply because it includes all the elements essential to a great picture. It tells a heart-touching love story. With human interest as its keynote it narrates the heroic romance of a South Sea Island pagan boy and girl who, surviving the persecutions of a white civilization seeking to impose cruel justice upon a primitive people, flowers to glory when the awful forces of nature wreak death and destruction. There is fine acting in the show. Dorothy Lamour, Jon Hall, Mary Astor, C. Aubrey Smith, Thomas Mitchell, Raymond Massey, John Carradine, Jerome Cowan and Al Kikume see to that.

If anyone were to be singled out as the star, the honor would undoubtedly go to Mitchell. Yet all the others may rightly consider their performances as marking the high spots of their careers.

Although John Ford has made other great pictures, never before has he so effectively demonstrated his talents and abilities as one of the screen's foremost directors.

In bringing the Charles Nordhoff and James Norman Hall love story to screen realism Dudley Nichols, who did the screenplay, and Oliver H. P. Garrett, who effected the dramatization, elected to let the story tell itself and to permit Ford's abilities and the talents of the players, plus one of the most amazing demonstrations of production effects the screen has ever seen, to endow the film with a potent punch, the fury of which actually stuns the senses. The hurricane sequence running approximately a half hour is an awesome thing. Compared to it, the earthquake episode in "San Francisco" is like a tempest in a teapot.

The hurricane is really the star of the show. Staged by James Basevi and R. T. Layton and photographed by R. O. Binger, this remarkable example of screen mechanics is certain to be the subject of reams of commendation.

Besides the impressive quality of the story, the calibre of acting, writing and direction, and the sensational hurricane, there are many other things which accentuate the entertainment and commercial value of the film. Not the least of these is the importance of the musical score arranged and directed by Alfred Newman. A seven-minute overture preceding the opening of the score establishes the proper mood and, as the story mounts to a pre-climax before the storm, it sets the stage for what is to follow.

Bert Glennon's photography of the straight narrative and scenic portions of the film has been done beautifully. Lloyd Nosler did a fine job of editing.

There need be no worry as to what "The Hurricane" will do at the box-office. That it will be a great attraction for those who play it is certain.

Running time, 103 minutes. "G."

home offices a proposal by the Theatre Employes' Union which would provide for an increase in wages to ushers from 25 to 35 cents an hour and a $2 weekly raise for all other "front of the theatre" workers. The proposal also includes recognition of the union as the sole bargaining agency for this type of worker.

Fox Midwest has indicated it would go along with the union on a basis similar to that worked out for the Midland, Mainstreet and Newman. Snow's talks with Fox have covered only the first run Fox Uptown and Fox Tower and the first subsequent Fox Plaza. The proposal, if generally accepted, also would affect the first run downtown Empress. The present proposal is a considerable modification of the original agreement.

RCA 9-Month Net Reaches $6,599,111

Reporting net profit of $6,599,111 for the nine months ended Sept. 30 last, the RCA board of directors at a special meeting yesterday authorized the payment on Dec. 21 of dividends which will bring the total paid on the company's three classes of stock during 1937 to approximately $6,450,000. These are the first dividend to be declared in the corporation's 18 years of existence.

The 1937 nine months' net profit compares with a net of $2,847,383 for the same period last year. Profit for the third quarter of this year was reported at $1,951,726, compared with $1,083,604 for the same quarter last year. The net figures are after interest, depreciation, amortization and provision for Federal income taxes but before provision for Federal surtax on undistributed profits.

Gross operating income for the first nine months of this year amounted to $82,847,873, compared with $69,037,084 last year. For the third quarter of 1937 gross operating income was $30,052,173, compared with $25,094,558 for the 1936 quarter.

Three Dividends Declared

The dividends declared by the board yesterday were 87½ cents per share on the $3.50 cumulative convertible first preferred for the period from Oct. 1 to Dec. 31, payable Dec. 21 to holders of record on Dec. 3; $31.25 per share on the outstanding 16,196 shares of "B" preferred for the period from Oct. 1, 1931, to Dec. 31, 1937, payable Dec. 21 to holders of record on Dec. 10, and 20 cents per share on the 13,880,963 shares of common stock, payable Dec. 21 to holders of record on Nov. 12.

David Sarnoff, RCA president, stated following the meeting that the board had set Nov. 30 next as the final date for conversion of the "B" preferred stock for first preferred and common under the provisions of the company's charter. He added that only two per cent of the 766,897 shares of "B" preferred previously outstanding had not yet been exchanged. Yesterday's dividend action cleared up the arrears on the company's "B" preferred.

Brown Suit Settled

The infringement suit of Daniel L. Brown against Jacob and Lee Shubert, Select Theatres Corp. and Tams-Witmark Music Library was marked settled in the U. S. District Court here yesterday. The stipulation filed provided that no damages or profits were to be paid, but the defendants acknowledged the plaintiff's ownership of the rights to the opera, "Sari," which Brown claimed having acquired from the composer in 1911. It was alleged that the defendants infringed by granting radio rights to the music of the opera.

Another Stokowskiism

Philadelphia, Nov. 5.—Leopold Stokowski, the "Peck's Bad Boy" of the concert music world, has done it again, this time while appearing with Powers Gourad on the Yellow Cab program over WCAU to comment on the Philadelphia Orchestra and to stimulate the sale of tickets.

Midway in the broadcast, Stokowski learned that the broadcast was sponsored by the Yellow Cab Co. Gourad almost passed away when Stokowski said: "Yellow Cab? They almost made me miss this broadcast. I called them once, then twice, and no cab came, so I had to leave for the studio." Wildly, Gourad asked if he had not called the wrong number, but Stokowski said no, and repeated the proper number. As the broadcast concluded the announcer reminded the audience of the cab company's 'phone number, but Stokowski leaned over in front of the mike and said emphatically, "You can call but it won't work."

Equity Upset By Prospects Of Film Rule

variance in board representation among the affiliated unions was not to be assumed, it was argued.

The size of the membership of the individual unions determines their representation on the Four A board. Both the Screen Actors' Guild and A. F. R. A. have approximately three times the membership of Equity.

Paul Moss, license commissioner, addressed the meeting on behalf of Mayor LaGuardia who had been scheduled to speak but did not appear. Moss said that any practical plan for a municipal theatre which was worked out by the stage organizations within the next four years would be given assistance by the city "if possible." He added that the project would have to be in the nature of a "laboratory" theatre to offer opportunity to new talent and would not be a large theatre "seating thousands."

Moss urged reduction of theatre ticket prices to make attendance "easy." A resolution was adopted by the meeting calling upon theatre groups to draft an ordinance prohibiting or regulating ticket speculation.

Brock Pemberton, producer, made a pessimistic report to the meeting on the cooperation being given the American Theatre Council by stage groups.

The meeting advocated the scaling of Equity dues according to the earning capacity of members.

Agent's Suit Dismissed

Justice Salvatore Cotillo dismissed the suit of Edgar Allen for $14,250 agent's commission against Fanny Brice in the N. Y. Supreme Court yesterday. The complaint was held to be defective because Allen failed to state that he was a licensed theatrical agent. Allen claims 10 per cent of $142,500 which he says Miss Brice earned in the 1933-Ziegfeld Follies. Justice Cotillo allowed Allen to file an amended complaint within 10 days if he pays the costs.

Chase Sales Of 20th-Fox $3,600,000

Receives $1,200,000 in Dividend Payments

Chase National Bank has realized approximately $3,600,000 within the past year on the progressive liquidation of its 20th Century-Fox stock holdings, it was learned on Saturday. The bank has been entitled to dividends amounting to about $1,200,000.

The bank's consistent disposal of the stock at average market prices over the past 12 months has reduced its holdings of 20th Century-Fox preferred to approximately 50.05 per cent of that issue outstanding and to approximately 26 per cent of the common, it was revealed. The sales of preferred during the period from Oct. 15, 1936, to Nov. 1, 1937, aggregated approximately 88,000 shares, having an average market value for the period in excess of $2,600,000. The bank's sales of common during the period amounted to approximately 43,900 shares with an average market value in excess of $1,000,000.

Chase now holds 687,096 shares of preferred, compared with 774,753 shares a year ago, and 343,448 shares of common, compared with 387,376 a year ago. The bank retains its 58 per cent interest in National Theatres, the company's negotiations for the purchase of this stock having been held up by litigation and, currently, by market conditions.

He Got the Point

The Capitol last week was running an elaborate trailer for "Conquest," next attraction at the house. The titles are in the expected style, lauding the film with all the adjectives at the command of the advertising copy writer, and pointing out that when it was thought the screen had reached the apex of achievement, along comes "Conquest."

At that point a gallery god one day reacted in a loud, clear voice with: "I guess they mean it's good." And the house collapsed in hysterics.

Theatre Regulations To Be Relaxed Soon

Changes in the new building code, effective Jan. 1, indicate a relaxation of theatre restrictions which will permit builders and exhibitors more latitude in setting up offices and storing equipment.

Offices and apartments may be built above the auditoriums of theatres under the new laws, provided sufficient space separates the theatre portion of the building by unpierced walls. The main floor of the auditorium is no longer restricted to street level and more space on street frontage may be utilized for stores. Storage of theatrical equipment beneath the stage is permitted now provided precautionary standards for safeguard

S. W. G. Asks Author League For Larger Representation

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 7.—The Screen Writers' Guild has petitioned the Authors' League of America, parent writers' and dramatists' organization, for representation on the council of the latter organization commensurate with the membership of the guild, it was learned here today on good authority.

According to local unconfirmed interpretations, if the guild's petition was to be granted the screen writers would achieve a majority and, consequently, a position of dominance on the league's council. Its membership is believed to be greater than that of either the Dramatists' Guild or the Authors' Guild, the other two principal member guilds of the Authors' League.

The proposal has been submitted already to the council of the Authors' League in New York, together with additional requests relating to the screen writers' current moves for complete autonomy. It was reported here that the league council has acted favorably on some of the requests, denied others and deferred action on

Predict Pact On U. A. Sale During Week

"No Hitches," Declares One of Insiders

Interests close to discussions now nearing a conclusion for the purchase of U. A. stock held by Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Mary Pickford for $6,000,000 yesterday told MOTION PICTURE DAILY that "there are no hitches and not the slightest lack of understanding between the parties involved."

The date when a formal announcement will be made was hard to predict, according to the source, but at the rate the conferences are going it would not be surprising if Samuel Goldwyn and Alexander Korda called in the press for a joint statement early this week, it was stated. Only details remain to be ironed out, according to this source. What the details are was not divulged.

It was pointed out that U. A. has from 30 to 40 subsidiaries throughout the world and that these must be taken into consideration when so important a deal is about to be consummated.

Goldwyn, it was said, has a local group ready to put up his share of the money involved to complete the transaction. Prudential Assurance of England is said to be the financial sponsor for Korda. E. H. Lever, secretary of Prudential, has been sitting in on the conferences. As secretary for that company, he is vested

By RED KANN

A BUZZ of comment has been created by Frank Nugent's review of "Conquest" in The New York Times. He did not like the film and, in passing the word along to his constituents, the critic did not spare the linotypes. That, we view it, is entirely alright. As one who likes to speak his mind and has, this page two space would defend to the last Nugent's prerogative. It also makes no difference in the measure of his integrity that, of all the metropolitan purveyors of Hollywood effort, he emerged this time as the non-conformist. For, correct or otherwise, a critic, if he is that, must be untrammeled in the expression of his opinion. . . .

In this particular circumstance, however, it strikes us that Nugent led with his chin and that of his paper. He predicated his review on the report, largely circulated by accident or by press agentry, that "Conquest" cost $3,800,000 to produce. Taking this as his starting point and largely holding on to it thereafter, he assumed Metro had been overcharged. But he went beyond. He permitted this adding machine figure to furnish the coloration for his appraisal and placed himself in the very untenable position of reviewing an important picture—and one which we happen to believe is a notable picture, if that matters—in the light of what in the Nugent mind that attraction should have had, or might have had, at its erroneously reported near $4,000,000 cost. . . .

This is a very curious approach for any critic of a daily newspaper to take. Within the trade where selling terms are a reflection of cost, if not always of merit, it could be argued a critic should reveal an awareness of the extent to which the negative charges have gone. It could be maintained, and successfully, we think, that a given attraction, expensively bound up, might do an enormous gross and leave nothing for the exhibitor in the light of what he must pay to get it. The accepted instance, for years, has been the Chaplin features, of course. Such observations, however, are trade information and presumably something sacrosanct within the borders of the industry. . . .

A daily newspaper critic has nothing to bother his head over in this respect. He is supposed to tell his readers whether or not the film under discussion is worth or is not worth their time and so their money. It follows, because it axiomatically must, that the measure by which critical conclusions are reached is the footage on the screen and the impact or the entertainment, or the lack of either or both, which the sum total conveys. It is not any of Nugent's business what the charges against the Garbo-Boyer film are. At least, it is not any of his concern when he undertakes a review. If he holds it interesting to tell Times readers this was an attraction which cost whatever it cost, there is in the columns of his copious and very excellent newspaper a niche for such a bit of news. . . .

Let us assume, which is a mighty assumption, that Heifetz does a poor concert with the Philharmonic Orchestra. Downes, Gilman, Sanborn or Chotzinoff, in their critiques the following morning, would not contemplate matching fees with disappointed performance, although they might scold the soloist. When "Virginia" opened at the Center Theatre, it was reviewed by Atkinson, Watts, Lockridge and the other dramatic critics for what it revealed, which, it so happened, proved to be not much. Some one of them might have mentioned in the passing a word about the investment. Not one of them would have reared, nor did he, his review on such a foundation. It would have been as unorthodox an approach as that in which Nugent now finds himself entrapped. . . .
